INDIAN warriors, as a rule, are vain of their personal appearance. Says an authority: "An Indian maid is not permitted to look at a reflection of her face even in a brook; but every young man in the Sioux nation carries a pocket mirror, either of glass blacked with quicksilver or of some shining metal." This is rather an improvement on the civilized custom which most of our young men have of standing up to a bar and paying 12½ cents every time they look into a glass.—S. F. Stock Report.

MINING NOTES FOR THE WEEK.

MODOCK OFFICIAL LETTER.—The official letter of the week is as follows:

May 20, 1879.

J. W. Pew, Esq., Secretary Modock Con. M. Co.:—DEAR SIR: Since making connection between shaft and upraise we have been putting connection drift in shape for bulkhead and connecting with pipe to face of tunnel. Have this work well along and will commence prospecting as soon as this is finished. Tunnel on 1000-foot level has been run 50 feet the past week, and is still in fine ground either for ore or progress. We shall prospect at several promising points in the tunnel, on ledge matter passed through and from first stope 1000-foot level. The showing for a continuation of that ore body in first stope is excellent. We have some very high-grade ore standing in this stope and the prospects for its again opening out are very good. Assays from two pieces from this point yesterday ran $2,200 and $2,800.

Yours, respectfully,

A. C. TIBBETTS, Supt.

THE GOLDEN STAR.—Such is the name of the mine belonging to Messrs. Cartier, Janviers and Thomas, located in the foot-hills across the valley. They thought to make the ore pay by arrastra process, but failed on account of the extreme fineness of the gold, and have suspended work for the present. The ores tried were of course selected, and assayed up in the hundreds in gold, but in the arrastra the finer particles floated off or else the quicksilver became so coated with some rebellious substance as to refuse amalgamation. We think, however, the main trouble, so far as attempting to work the ore by grinding in an arrastra goes, lies in the general fact that the ore is harder than the granite used to crush it, and that "flour gold" constitutes the main portion of its value, although the mine produces some magnificent specimens of free gold. A shaft 94 feet in depth, following the 15-inch vein on its nearly vertical course downward, shows the mine as developed so far, and the fact that the average 12 inches of gold ore is widening at the bottom and shows a richer quality of ore. When down 70 feet, Mr. S. D. Woodhull, after assaying several samples taken from the shaft, expressed his belief that the entire vein would average $200 per ton. Mr. Frank Atwood, a gentleman of quite wide mining experience and observation, has recently made an examination of the property and places his estimate somewhat lower. Both, however, think it a mine to be relied upon for a large amount of ore. Work will be resumed upon the starting up of the new mill at Crysopolis.

REX MONTIS.—Messrs. Potter and Ward, of the Rex Montis, after their recent thorough examination and investigation of the company property, have authorized the resumption of active mining and milling operations on a scale indicating a determination to make a complete success. An order has been given the Black Rock sawmill for supplies of lumber and timbers. A force will be put upon the mines, extracting ore and prospecting. The mill will be run on company or custom ore continually. In the purchase or working of outside ores we understand that the most liberal terms are offered to prospectors and miners for ore of all descriptions that will pay to work. A lot of about 20 tons of fine gold ore has been already purchased for the Fish Springs mines, which will be put through immediately. The reputation of Supt. Hoit and Foreman Walker for ability and fair dealing in such matters will be sufficient to set many of our mine-owners at work getting out and shipping ore.

KEARSARGE.—By the Southern stage to-night will probably arrive here Mr. Frank, one of the principal owners of the Kearsarge, and Mr. Calvert, the Secretary, who are accompanied by Mr. Dagan, a mining man of note who formerly visited the property. Recent developments in the lower works point almost unmistakably to the existence of heavy bodies of rich ore. We have hitherto delayed reporting this fact, with the intention of personally inspecting the mine before doing so. This will soon be done. Altogether, the prospects are bright on the hill this season.

NEW MILL.—Messrs. Phillips & Woolsey have purchased battery, etc., from the old Cervantes mill at Lone Pine, and have the same now on the ground at Crysopolis for use in the construction of a 5-stamp gold and silver mill. Such a concern has come to be a necessity for that side of the river, and mine owners in Union district will not be slow to avail themselves of its advantages. Besides the mines being opened by Messrs. P. & W., the mines of Hopper, Cartier, Densmore and many others will contribute their quota of rich ore to keep the mill producing bullion.

SNOW'S CAÑON.—Mr. Chas. Mason, representing the Snow's Cañon mill property, accompanied by Mr. Williams, the Company's attorney from San Francisco, was in town Tuesday last upon matters pertaining to the suit of Gunn and Grant against the owners of the mill. Mr. Mason stated that the late run of the mill, continuing thirty days, on custom ore from the gold mines of the district, resulted in a shipment of $15,000 in bullion. The mines are looking well, and a delay on account of litigation is unfortunate all around.

ANOTHER SHIPMENT.—A lot of eleven tons of ore from the Ygnacio mine, Cerro Gordo, was last week shipped to the New Coso furnace at Darwin. Assays from the regular samples show its value at 180 ounces silver per ton.

ACROSS THE RIVER.—A day or two since an INDEPENDENT representative made a brief excursion among the old claims across the river, more especially with the object of examining a series of mines now belonging to S. A. Densmore and T. Ferguson. They are situate in the Inyo range, on the top and east side of the first foot-hill immediately opposite Independence, and distant in an air line about five miles. This foot-hill or spur from the main range, with which it is connected by a ridge of increasing elevation, attains a hight of about 600 feet above the valley. Its sides are very steep, and leave no detritus at the base; hence the natural wagon roads of the valley lead right up under the dumps. The hill overlooks the old townsite of San Carlos, one of the most pleasant locations, in all respects, on the east side of Owens River. Its formation is mainly lime, with stratifications of slate and metamorphic granite. Rounding the southern point of the hill, near its base and facing a semi-circular cañon, we come to Confidence No. 1. This ledge and Confidence No. 2, situated about 300 feet above, were the property of the old San Carlos company. A shaft 72 feet deep has been sunk on No. 1. The ledge shows a width of about three feet, the pay streak from 12 to 20 inches. The ore is black, rich looking, copper-stained metal, the assays averaging $72 per ton in silver and from 8 to 10 per cent of lead. Occasional small kidneys of black lead ore have been discovered in the vein matter, which assay high as $400 per ton. Like the one above, this ledge cuts across the cañon, and its course to the northwest is plainly defined as it ascends the opposite spur of the mountain. Confidence No. 2, or the middle ledge, bears about the same description as to size, but carries much finer ore; it is quartz, with black sulphurets of silver. Assays of unselected samples resulted in $70 silver and $8 80 in gold per ton. On this the old company have a monument, if a hole in the rocks can be so called, of the mining stupidity characteristic of operations in those days. A tunnel 65 feet in length has been run to tap the ledge a little less distance in depth, and stops about 30 feet short of getting anywhere. The deepest opening is only 18 feet, in rich ore at the bottom. The ledge has been stripped 1,200 feet, showing a streak of fine metal every few feet along its surface course. Running along the summit of the hill and parallel with the mines below, is the Blue Bird mine, belonging to the same parties. In this the vein of ore is slightly smaller, but the gangue and wall rock appear more favorable and more indicative of a permanent, contact vein. The ore, sampled and assayed, runs $61. A shaft 20 feet deep exposes ore and well-defined ledge matter to the bottom. All these ledges stand nearly perpendicular, the ore belts cutting through at nearly right angles with the general formation. On top, and so far as they have been opened, these claims certainly look well. About forty-five tons of ore stacked up at the several dumps—the richest of which has not yet been tested by assay—attests in itself to their present and probable future value. We are not authorized to speak for the owners by any means, but believe there is an opportunity for some good men to bond these mines, sink a hundred feet or more on each shaft and prove up a valuable property.

DAILY LINE.—There is no progress backward in the following matter: The stage lines from Carson, Genoa and Virginia to Aurora and Bodie, and from Aurora to Independence, belonging to Frank Cluggage and John Allman, have all been consolidated into one management and under one joint ownership. There are now two or three daily lines running to Bodie, and to make the system complete the route from here to Aurora will be stocked and run daily, to connect with the Southern stage at this point. The new arrangement is to go into effect in about three weeks from this date.

DELEGATES APPOINTED.—At the adjourned meeting, last Saturday, of the Republican County Central Committee, A. R. Conklin, T. A. Gardner and P. A. Chalfant were appointed Delegates to the Republican State Nominating Convention to be held at Sacramento on the 27th of next month. No definite action was taken in regard to the time of calling a County Nominating Convention, or appointing Delegates to the same, it being deemed advisable to defer that matter for the present. With this understanding the committee then adjourned subject to a call.

STATE CERTIFICATE.—Our talented young teacher, Dan. Crough, brother to County Clerk John Crough, has just received from the State Superintendent of Instruction an educational diploma entitling him to teach in any public school of the State for the period of six years from May 19th. It is based upon his successful career as a teacher, a previous first-grade State certificate and his diploma as a graduate of the State Normal School which was awarded him upon his twenty-first birth day.

INDIANA.—Messrs. Boley & Tuttle continue the work of extracting rich ore from their mine near Swansea. Assays made by Mr. Woodhull of three samples taken from the dump piles showed: No. 1—1,595 31-100 ounces in silver per ton; No. 2—770 40-100 ounces, and No. 3—648 ounces. A shipment of 10 or 12 tons of this class of ore to San Francisco is now being made.

COUNTY COURT.—Pursuant to adjournment, the County Court will convene Monday next. The immediate business on hand will be the trial of Dely, charged with burning the Lone Pine bridge. Thirty jurors have been summoned and doubtless a trial jury of twelve will be obtained from the number.

COOL.—A New Orleans paper remarks: "The man who pulled down his white vest for Summer wear struck the season too previously this week." That is just the way it fits the white vest gentry here, for the weather holds windy and cool enough for early March.

WINDMILLS.—Elsewhere in this issue will be seen an advertisement of the famous "Althouse Windmill." After due investigation and trial, we are satisfied the Althouse is just the sort of a windmill for this valley, and well worth its cost to any household as a matter of convenience, protection against fire and general comfort, saying nothing of the great value of such water-works as a means of irrigation in orchards, gardens, etc.—in this regard immensely cheaper than to "row" with neighbors about "water rights," and all that sort of thing. Believing this, the proprietors of this paper have accepted the local agency, and will give patrons ordering a mill all possible advantages as to cost, etc.

DIED.—Sheriff Moore, lately on a trip to Bishop Creek, returns with the painful report that one of the children of Wm. McBride, who lives at his ranch near Benton, had died with the dread diphtheria. Dr. Middleton, of Bishop, had reached the patient but a few moments before its death and too late to be of service. Others of Mr. McBride's family had been stricken down, and further reports are awaited with the keenest anxiety.

CLEANING UP.—The Brown Monster mill, after a six months' run, is making a thorough clean-up this week. This completed, which will require several days, the mill will probably shut down for some time to come, or until a 500-foot tunnel is completed so as to better facilitate extraction of ore from the 500-foot level.

MOVING OUT.—Reub. Van Dyke, of Lone Pine, passed through town this morning with the finest big team of oxen we have seen in a century, more or less. He is loaded with freight for Mammoth, and we believe will go on to Bodie. A band of some 300 horses are about leaving Lone Pine for Southern Utah.

DISCONTINUED.—By order of the Department the Postoffice at Georges Creek has been discontinued.

WM. BLACKMORE, well known in Carson Valley and vicinity, and at one time proprietor of the Silver Mountain stage line, but now the keeper of a saloon in Mammoth City, Lake District, California, had a difficulty with Col. Putnam (familiarly known on this coast as "Old Put") on Wednesday of last week, wherein the latter was seriously if not fatally injured. The circumstances as we glean them from our exchanges are that some dispute arose in reference to a game for which Putnam was dealing in the saloon, and from words the latter resorted to blows, striking Blackmore over the head with a heavy cane, inflicting a severe cut. The assaulted man seized a six-shooter, and following Putnam out of the house, struck him on the back of the head with the weapon, fracturing his skull. It is considered almost certain that the unfortunate man will die from the effects of the blow.—Carson Valley News, May 17.

A JOINT committee, appointed by the Mechanics' Unions of Lyon and Storey counties, waited upon Mr. Sutro the other day with reference to the rate of wages paid certain mechanics employed by the Tunnel Company. Mr. Sutro received the committee very courteously, and informed them that he was not aware that any men were employed by the company on mechanical work for $4 per day, but that he would investigate the matter, and if such were the fact, would remove all cause of complaint. He heartily approved of the Union. Why should not the mechanics unite for self-protection as well as the merchants, brokers and business men of all classes? His sympathies were with the mechanics, because he had been one of them since boyhood. After the departure of the committee, Mr. Sutro ascertained that a few carpenters were working for $4 per day. He immediately gave orders to raise their wages to $5.—Lyon County Times.

SOME of the conundrums propounded by the new Constitution come up in the next election, and it is difficult to see how any decisive and satisfactory answer can be obtained. Lawyers differ as to whether twelve or twenty-four Supervisors are to be elected in San Francisco, and are now discussing whether an extra session of the Legislature will not be necessary to get the Superior Courts to work. It is also disputed whether or no the hold-over Senators are constitutioned out. In our view, however, there is no doubt. The hold-over Senators must go.—S. F. State.

THE party which went out from Aurora the early part of last week to hunt the would-be stage robber who killed the Indian, traced him across the country to the Bridgeport canyon, where the pursuit was given up. The Indians who accompanied them were exceedingly timid in following the trail. The fate of their comrade made them fearful that they might find the bold highwayman which they were not expecting to.—Bodie Standard, May 19.

"SUFFERER" writes us from Oquawka: "Is it wrong to kill a man who plays in a brass band, and lives next door to you?" Well, that depends, a great deal. If he plays the E flat, and has been playing seven or eight years, it would be very wrong. But if he plays the tuba, and has only been practicing about three weeks—kill him; kill him at once; go into his house and shoot him; we send you the loan of a gun by this mail.—Hawkeye.

"OH," said the afflicted wife, weeping over his body, "he said he would take off his flannels any way, and, poor man, he little thought how soon he would go to that place where flannels are never needed."

IN the case of J. C. Duncan, on trial for forgery in raising the certificates of stock of the Safe Deposit Company, the jury disagreed, standing eight for conviction and four for acquittal.

THE interest paid in this country on railroad bonds is said to be larger than on the entire national debt.

England's Food Supply.

England's food supply has been recently discussed in a volume by Mr. James Caird, a writer of the highest authority, and his opinions, backed by formidable statistics, are just now exciting much attention from the English press. According to Mr. Caird, between 1857 and 1876 the annual value of imported cereal and animal food rose from $165,000,000 to $550,000,000, and in the latter year nearly one-third of all the agricultural produce consumed in the United Kingdom was brought from abroad. Much the larger proportion of the total quantity was grain, in one form or another; indeed Mr. Caird calculates that half the British bread is made of foreign wheat. Although British imports of cereal food are much greater in the aggregate than those in animal food, yet the latter have increased, and are increasing at a more rapid rate. Ten years ago nine-tenths of the meat and dairy produce consumed in the United Kingdom was raised at home; last year the home supply could only satisfy three-fourths of the demand, and the remaining fourth was furnished from abroad. The causes of this enormous increase are not difficult to trace. Thirty years ago, as Mr. Caird says, not more than one-third of the people consumed animal food more than once a week. Now nearly all of them eat it, in meat, or cheese, or butter once a day. This has more than doubled the average consumption of animal food in the country. The growing demand for animal food, accompanied as it has been by a considerable rise in agricultural wages, has made grazing farms and market gardens in the United Kingdom the most profitable agricultural investment for capital. Within the last twenty-five years the capital value of live stock has almost doubled. The permanent pasture has increased since 1867 by about 2,000,000 acres or 8 per cent. Mr. Caird calculates that the value per head of the population of the foreign food imported into the United Kingdom in 1877 was nearly $15. In other words, every householder paid in that year at least $75 to foreign countries for the necessaries and simplest luxuries of life.

THE lot of the poor Mongolian will be a hard one under the new Constitution of California, but it may well be asked whether the Caucasian will fare much better. During the year 1880, all adults, male and female, capable of holding property—which means about one-half of the population of California—will be required to make out, under oath, a statement of all their property, including—if the law is strictly enforced—the very clothes they wear while making it. Merchants will be taxed both on their cargoes and their bills of lading; a receipt for grain will be taxed, and the grain also; a leasehold will be taxed, and the land also. The tax-gatherer will lay a heavy hand on corporations, and will pass by individual capitalists engaged in precisely the same business. Corporate capital is taxed over and over again, and yet, curiously enough, that other black beast of Kearneyism, the mortgage, virtually escapes through the clumsiness of the attempts made to over-tax it. It seems strangely out of place to find in this instrument some most excellent features; but here they are—the veto power over items in appropriation bills, a breathing-space after a legislative session, in which the Governor may act upon bills, and some others. But it is not likely that the new Constitution will stand. It can hardly be that a civilized people will be content to live under it.—N. Y. Tribune.

SUDDEN DEATH.—Yesterday morning a dispatch was received here from Carson announcing the death of Hank Woodruff at that place at 5 o'clock. The deceased had been ailing only 12 hours. Several times within the past two years he has had similar attacks—cramps in the stomach—but Drs. Davison and Rogers, who had attended him on such occasions, brought him out all right, pronouncing the disease simply inflammation of the stomach. No particulars are given as to who were his attendants in Carson. He left here as Wells, Fargo & Co.'s messenger last Wednesday night, and was then enjoying perfect health. He leaves a young wife to mourn his sudden demise, and a host of friends all over the State who will remember him as a man of sterling qualities.—Esmeralda Herald.

MR. BATES, the giant, with his giant wife, lives in Seville, Ohio, in a house much like other people's houses, only much larger. The doors, windows, and shutters are of unusual size. The house is thirty feet wide and ninety-six feet in length, and nicely finished. Mr. Bates is regarded as a very superior farmer. A few weeks ago his wife gave birth to a child, the second since her marriage with her present husband, and in both instances the child died. If the last child had grown to maturity it would have been the tallest kind of person. On the day of its birth it measured thirty inches in length and weighed twenty-two pounds. Its chest measure was sixteen inches, and its feet six inches.

THE Merchant says a minister once asked a scholar this question—"Where do liars go?" The response was: "To Fleet street, to write for penny papers." Had the question been asked by a minister of a San Francisco Sunday school scholar, the answer might have been: "To 423 Clay street, to write for the Chronicle."

GROWING OLD.

BY LUNA HUTCHISON.

I know I'm growing old; the weight of years
Hangs heavily. My head, like bough of forest tree,
Laden with winter's snows, bends low—
White with frosts that know no Spring
This side the tomb. From mortal sight
Loved ones are gone; as a leafless tree
I sigh and grieve their bitter loss,
Wailing to the night wind's chilling blast.

In youth my steps scarce bent the grass beneath—
As swallow's wing above the mirrowed lake
Dips to its flitting shadow, then did nimbly glide,
That now are slow and feebly grown; not like fleet footed Time
Whose speed's increased with the revolving years.
My voice, that sung with birds as free as they,
Has lost its merry tone; like harp unstrung,
It has no charms save for the loving and the young.

And are forgotten e're the mold above them
Has grown green with its first verdure.
Looking down the vista of the past
I see the flowers I've trampled on,
And feel the thorns that pierced my feet—
Or rather heart, with rankling sorrows deep.

It may be life's a troubled dream,
And death the waking to a brighter day
That shall dispel all sadness; for while here,
Like chrysalids, we feel our aching wings
Have no expanse, nor could they soar
Unsullied in earth's murky atmosphere,
And raise us to that heaven where all is love,
Or ope the portals of our home above.

But, bright above the sitting sun,
Appears the star of Hope! Its cheering rays
Shine out upon Life's troubled sea
As lighthouse to the mariner. So when
Our weary day is done—the voyage ended—
We feign would leave a mark behind,
Some impress of the Immortal Mind!

A Point in Natural History.

A crowd of men collected around a curious animal in a cage in front of a C street restaurant. One of them remarked:

"That's a woodchuck."

"Woodchuck be hanged! It's a ground hog," said another.

"I'm bettin, it's a badger," was the next observation.

The dispute grew pretty warm, and several bets were put up. Presently a man came along whom all the disputants were well acquainted with, and it was agreed that he should decide. "Why, you cussed fools," he said, "it's a coon." This was received with a howl of laughter by the crowd.

Finally, Professor Stewart hove in sight and was at once appealed to. After hearing a statement of the point in dispute, he said, gravely:

"You are all right except the coon man. This little animal is a woodchuck in Connecticut, a ground-hog in Missouri and a badger in Nevada; but, mind you, nowhere a coon. It belongs to the rodent family, and is more properly classified as a marmot."

"What's the high-toned name?" asked a bystander.

"Give us the whole business."

The Professor eyed the last speaker attentively for a moment, and then remarked: "Naturalists, sir, term the species Meles Labradorica, and—"

With a yell of wild dismay the inquisitive person bolted around the nearest corner, and the crowd dispersed in great trepidation.—Virginia Chronicle.

MRS. MAJOR had a chicken that appeared to have been "doped," and she worked with it, giving it all kinds of treatment, but the chicken did not seem to get any better. Finally, Mrs. Major took the chicken, cut open its craw and took out a lot of hay, then sewed it up again, and the chicken is now one of the best laying hens she has. How is that for surgery?—Lead City Enterprise.

England's Ships.

Great Britain does not maintain her prestige on the sea without working for it. Her steam mercantile marine is kept the most powerful in the world through generous subsidies, and notwithstanding her tremendous war navy, her ship yards are crowded with workmen employed in the construction of new ships. It is officially announced that the following ships are being built in private and Government yards: Agamemnon, 4, double-screw, iron, armor-plated turret ship; Constance, 14, screw corvette, steel and iron cased with wood; Dotorel, 6, composite screw sloop, and the Polyphemus, double-screw steel, armor-plated torpedo ram, all at Chatham. Ajax, 4, double-screw, iron, armor-plated turret ship; Bouncer, 1, double-screw, steel gunboat; Bullfrog, 4, Cockchafer, 4, Espoir, 4, screw composite gunboats; Gadfly, 1, Griper, 1, double-screw iron gunboats; Insolent, 1, double-screw steel gunboat; Nautilus, 8, and Pilot, 8, sailing brigs; Tickler, 1, double-screw iron gunboat, all at Pembroke. The Kingfisher, 6, composite screw sloop, at Sheerness. The Linnet, composite gun vessel, and the Swift, double-screw gun vessel, at the Thames Ship building Company. The Miranda, 6, and the Phœnix, 6, composite screw sloops, at Davenport. Another ship, the Pincher, 1, double-screw iron gunboat, is to be built at Pembroke. If the United States Government is building a single ship the people do not know it, and yet our nation is liable to become involved in a war with some great maritime Power at any moment. The policy which keeps our navy a burlesque among nations, and which fails to do anything to re-establish the former position of our merchant ships on the world's seas, is as unaccountable as it is stupid.

IT is probably generally remembered that some years ago—in 1873—Congress passed a law providing for the erection of durable headstones over the graves of soldiers of the regular and volunteer forces of the United States whose remains are interred in the national military cemeteries. This law has been carried out, and the graves of the nation's dead in these cemeteries are now permanently marked. At the instance of the War Department, Congress has recently authorized the erection of similar headstones over the graves of the Union soldiers who are buried in private and village cemeteries. This will be done as s on as the necessary arrangements can be made. In the meantime the Quartermaster General at Washington will at once proceed to collect the necessary information as to where these headstones are required. All persons having any knowledge of the burial places of soldiers in private cemeteries, whose graves are not marked, are requested to communicate the fact to the Quartermaster General, and give regiment, company and date of death of deceased, if known. Similar information is desired from parties in charge of such cemeteries. Of course it is not intended to furnish headstones for graves over which monuments have already been erected by relatives or friends of the deceased.—Hawkeye.

THE following remedy is given by a Paris correspondent of one of the Boston journals for neuralgia. Referring to his recovery from a dangerous illness, says: "I mention this illness that I may tell you how easily I was cured. I was bent double. I could hardly breathe. My physician ordered me to take a flat-iron and heat it as hot as I could bear, put a double fold of flannel on the painful part, and move the iron to and fro on the flannel. I was cured as by enchantment. My doctor told me that some time since a professor in one of our colleges, after suffering some days with neuralgia in the head, which he himself had failed to cure, sent for the former, who prescribed a hot flat-iron. The next time the doctor saw the professor, the latter said: 'I had no sooner applied the heated iron to my head than instantly all the pain had vanished.'"

A CERTIFICATE to the effect that Mary Josephine Young, wife of lawyer J. N. Young, of this city, had satisfactorily passed her examination, and was now a member of the bar of the State of California, was signed in the Supreme Court this morning, Chief Justice Wallace for the first time writing out the entire certificate himself. She passed her examination yesterday, having previously satisfactorily passed a very difficult examination before Judges Welty, Denson, McFarland and Clark all of whom accorded her praise for the ability displayed, and signed her preliminary certificate. Mrs. Young is the first lady admitted to the Supreme Court in the State of California, Mrs. Foltz having only been admitted before a District Court. Mrs. Young is a native of California and a Sacramento lady.—Sacramento Bee.

THE consumption of rubber in the United States is reported to amount to about 12,000,000 pounds annually. Of this quantity the largest proportion is obtained from the Amazon region of South America, which furnishes the finest quality of this product; the inferior sorts come from Africa and Central America. The price of the crude commodity ranges from 25 to 50 cents per pound, according to quality. One-half of the entire yield of South America comes to this country, and one manufacturer alone—that of rubber shoes—consumes one-half of our entire supply.

SOME gamblers are always lucky. Gen. Schenck, the poker player, gets $4,625 back pension for a wound in the hand. Wounded or not, it's a pretty good hand to hold.—Bodie Standard.

PROF. DANIEL VAUGHN, the scientist, who recently died in Cincinnati of starvation, is to have a costly monument erected to his memory.

SATURDAY, MAY 31.....1879

"SAGE BRUSH LEAVES" is the title of a work now in press, from the eloquent pen of Harry R. Mighels, of the Carson Appeal. Mr. Mighels, the gifted author, is now on his death bed and the sale of this work will be food and raiment to his wife and children. Mr. Mighels has long been suffering with malignant cancer, and a few months ago a council of surgeons in San Francisco pronounced his case incurable, and told him that he had but a short time to live. He then set about writing "Sage Brush Leaves" for a source of income for his wife and little ones after his death. The book's melancholy history, the talent of the writer, and his wide popularity as a pioneer journalist of the Pacific Coast ought to influence every one of Major Harry Mighels' scores of friends and acquaintances throughout this region to buy at least one copy of his book, containing as it does the brightest scintillations of his peculiar genius. The price is only $3, and THE INDEPENDENT office will be glad to add to its own the subscriptions of others and send them all together.

P. S.—Exchanges received at this office this morning state that Mr. Mighels died on the morning of the 27th instant.

ALL that is necessary for the organization of a new, or the reorganization of an old, mining district (where the office of Recorder is vacant from expiration of term or from absence) is for the resident claim-holders to get together upon a day announced by notices posted thirty days previous, and then and there fix their local regulations as to time of first assessment work, etc., adopt the general U. S. mining laws and elect a Recorder. A record of the proceedings of the meeting, to be filed with and kept by the Recorder, including a statement of the votes cast for such officer, is all sufficient under the law. The assembled miners or claim-holders, without regard to any official registration of voters, simply enact local mining laws as to election of the Recorder, his fees, official term and place of office, and adopt such rules as conform with the general statutes. The foregoing is given in reply to several general inquiries upon the subject.

AT the last bids for the sale of silver for standard dollar coinage at Washington, bids for 50,000 ounces for the New Orleans Mint, and 300,000 ounces for the San Francisco Mint, were accepted. The price paid was slightly in excess of the New York quotation. The past few days have shown an advance in the price of silver bullion, which is probably owing to the report recently telegraphed, that Bismarck had decided that the sales of silver by Germany ought to cease. The sales of silver by that country, which have been incessant since 1876, have been the great incubus of the silver-producing interest, being a constant bear on the silver market, and if no more large offerings of German silver are made American silver producers may expect a better price for their product than has ruled for some time past.

NIHILISM, or Socialism, or something of that sort, has reached India and taken an emphatic form. The agitators have kindled incendiary fires and have threatened that they will kill the Governor of Bombay, hang the Judge of the Court of Sessions, carry murder and rapine throughout the country, and engage in the massacre of Europeans.

THE object of the visit of D. O. Mills and Lloyd Tevis to New York is ascertained to be to place on the market bonds issued by the Southern Pacific Railroad to the amount of forty-three millions of dollars, to aid in the completion of that road.

MAJOR FOOTE, a well-known lawyer, died suddenly in Aurora on Thursday, from paralysis of the heart. He was a son of ex-Senator Henry S. Foote, of Mississippi; also brother-in-law of ex-Senator Stewart, of Nevada.

THE Chronicle says that Kearney is a dirty blackguard, and Kearney retorts by saying the Chronicle is a lecherous, lying sheet. Guess they are both right.

IT is proposed to hold a spelling match in Virginia City some time next month, in which the entire State of Nevada will be entitled to participate.

GEN. GRANT, in a recent letter from Singapore, writes to a friend that he and his party expect to reach San Francisco some time in July.

YESTERDAY was decoration Day.

ANOTHER TAX RULING.

It begins to look like Inyo county was being made a victim to injurious tax ruling by the State Board of Equalization. We have had a number of them, all tending the same way, viz: reducing the county revenues. Here is the latest, which explains itself:

SACRAMENTO, May 10, 1879.

J. F. Dillon, Esq., Assessor, Independence, Cal.: DEAR SIR—In reply to your letter of the 6th inst., I would say: That the following was written to Wm. L. Moore, Tax Collector of your county, on January 14 last, in answer to a letter from him in relation to collecting the taxes assessed to a person on the Reservation:

"The conclusion to which the Board came is, that the land in question is not taxable for State or county purposes, for the reason that the State has no jurisdiction within the territory reserved by the United States Government for the purposes of a fort, except to serve civil and criminal process thereon.

The consent of the State that Congress shall have the exclusive right of legislation over portions of the public domain set apart or reserved for certain specified purposes, was given in an Act of the Legislature, approved April 27, 1852. The consent given in said Act was as expressed in the Act itself in accordance with the 17th clause of the 8th Section of Article 1st of the Constitution of the United States, and with the acts of Congress in such cases made and provided (see Statutes 1852, Page 149.)

It is the opinion of the Board that the Military Reservation of Camp Independence is covered by the provisions of the aforesaid Act of April 27, 1852. If the Board is correct in this opinion it is quite clear that the land in question was not subject to assessment under authority of the State, and that it can not be sold for delinquent taxes."

In presenting your letter to the Board yesterday the foregoing opinion was referred to, and it was the opinion of the Board that, under the peculiar position a Military Reservation occupies, that you would have no authority to assess and collect taxes thereon, either personal or real.

Very respectfully,

F. R. HOGEBOOM, Sec'y.

It is curious how things change about. For many years there was one thing at least in which the several settlers on the Camp Independence Military Reservation grounds were of one mind—that was, that Congress should give them the immediate right to purchase their lands the same as other settlers upon the public domain, even though the total abandonment of the Post and withdrawal of ever soldier from this entire region should follow as a matter of necessity to give them that right. To this end they got up petitions praying the abandonment of the Post, and that they might be allowed to obtain title to their respective claims. Lawyers and others were liberally feed to advocate the proposition. The agitation of the subject was so far successful that the troops were all finally ordered away, but in all other respects the land question remained exactly as before. Had Government then thrown its military reservation open to settlement there would be nothing to complain about; but it still holds a wood, grass and Post building reservations each, some six sections of land in all. And the settlers also hold their original claims upon these lands, but under no better title than during the occupancy by troops. Until quite recently they were no better satisfied since the withdrawal of the troops than before, though we have heard nothing of any more petitions for the throwing of these lands open to settlement. But now comes a phase of the matter which, we should think, would cause those settlers to hope that the Government never would abandon these lands as a military reservation: perhaps to make them feel sorry they ever loaned their aid at all in procuring the removal of troops as a preliminary to such abandonment. The above letter explains this phase.

The point is, that settlers on these lands enjoy their absolute use with none to molest or make them afraid—not even the tax collector, who, to all other people, is as inevitable as death. They not only escape every cent. of taxation on their possessory claims and all the products of the same, but also upon all their personal property wherever found! This last clause of the instructions is the curious part. Strictly rendered it means that a person residing anywhere within the limits of these military lines might own a thousand head of stock for instance, and yet could not be made to pay a cent of taxes on any of them, no matter where they were being pastured, whether on or off the reservation grounds. That we conceive to be a perfectly logical deduction from these instructions. It follows then that the mere fact of actual residence upon military reservation lands virtually absolves such resident of the entire burden of taxation, though the bulk of his personal property might be situated miles away from his place of residence. Such being the facts of the case, it is clear the settlers on the Post lands now find far better grounds for self-congratulation than they did up to date in bemoaning their situation. We don't refer to their former action in this matter in a fault-finding mood, but only to show how curiously things come about.

But we do take exceptions to the rulings of the State Board touching the non-taxable character they give the personal property of residents upon military reservations. It is incomprehensible how the mere fact of trespassing upon Government property can absolve such trespasser from every obligation to help maintain the Government, as required of all other citizens. If that ruling is law and common sense, and these settlers are totally exempt from taxation on their personal property (we raise no question as to the real estate), they may be equally exempt from all other obligations of citizenship, such as jury duty and all that sort of thing, unless this is provided for as part of the allowable "civil and criminal process."

But it is in keeping with those other rulings of the same Board by which this county has been made to lose the taxes on several mining and other properties, wherein the most technical protests were entered and sustained by the Board, apparently by process of reasoning too abstruse for common people to understand. The revenues of this county have suffered a diminution of not less than $8,000 in what should have been its tax receipts for this year, 1879; all through these learned decisions of the State Board of Equalization. It is no wonder things begin to look pretty blue as to maintaining the county credit after the present year. But it is no fault of the Assessor or Tax Collector it is so; for they have to work according to instructions, no matter whether they believe them right or wrong. There is a remedy for part of these troubles, which we shall propose for action hereafter.

THE Virginia Enterprise, growing enthusiastic over the situation, says: The 15th of June will soon be here, when the sub-drain of the Sutro tunnel will be completed, and we shall see a general firing up about the center of the lead. The pumps of the Savage, Hale & Norcross and Requa shaft will then begin pouring into the Sutro tunnel a perfect river of water. The fight with the water will then be at close quarters, and will be fierce and brief. It will be but play for the pumps to throw the water up to the level of the Sutro tunnel. Once it is out we shall have a peep at the long-flooded lower levels of both the Savage and Hale & Norcross. Who knows but in their depths lie hid one of Coll Dean's three secret bonanzas.

THE Downieville Messenger says there is great excitement in Sierra City and vicinity over the recent rich gravel discovery in the ridge southeast of that place. From a wheelbarrow load of gravel eight dollars were obtained. The whole country has been located, if reports be true. Many have great faith in the discovery, and believe that an immensely rich gravel deposit underlies the ridge for many miles.

MR. WHITE, the quartz mill builder, says the Bodie Standard, is in town on his way to Lake, where he is engaged to rebuild the Mammoth mill. Machinery is en route via Mohave. The stamps will be increased to thirty in number, and steam power applied, so that neither freezing nor drying up of the streams will stop the mill. Mr. White thinks the new mill will be in operation within the next fifty days.

Sometimes they are in debt. We have seen a swal-ow; yea, verily, and even a spar-ow.

AN army of crickets stopped a railroad train near Reno, Nevada, a few days since, detaining it two hours and a half. The crickets covered the track for about three miles, and when the driving wheels of the engine would strike them they would whirl around without going an inch. Train men were forced to use brooms to sweep the insects off the rails.

To run the city government of Virginia City, Nevada, it costs at the rate of about $115 for each man, woman and child in the municipality. If each person had to pay this sum, as well as the State and county taxes, none but wealthy people could afford to live in Virginia City. The bulk of these heavy taxes is paid by the large mining companies.

ISAAC C. BATEMAN, a well-known mining operator, a heavy owner in the Northern Belle mine, situated in Belleville, Esmeralda county, Nevada, and interested in several other enterprises in that State, died at Sierra Madre Ville, near San Gabriel, Los Angeles county, on the morning of the 23d instant.

SUCCESS in life is measured not by wealth accumulated, not by honor gained, not by fame won—but by the love—God's grandest gift—which has been given and received.—Chico Enterprise.

Not to be personal or impertinent, partner, but how did you find that out?

THE conviction of Mr. and Mrs. Smallman, two adventurers, who have led the life of sharpers in San Francisco for a number of years, ought to have a wholesome effect upon this large class of people. Mrs. Smallman, it seems, had made the casual acquaintance of John W. Mackay, the Bonanza man, several years ago. Out of this acquaintance she tried to lay traps for him so as to get him in her toils. Mackay, however, as far as shown, was never sufficiently off his guard to give himself away. She then tried a grand coup, and started a suit for damages against him, estimating her injured virtue at $200,000. This suit, however, was abandoned. We have no doubt that the bold stroke for a fortune led to the present conviction, and that Mackay, having found out facts against the Smallmans coming within the criminal statutes, was instrumental in having them pursued to the bitter end. They were convicted of larceny, in obtaining $2,000 from a Mrs. Cooper, on the representation that their relations with Mackay would enable them to secure its investment by him in stock that would amply repay her. They appropriated the money to their own use. There are many other adventurers and blackmailers in San Francisco who would be brought to grief if the same interest were taken in pursuing them that has been shown in this case.

A LETTER from John Sherman to a war Democrat in New York states that while there is no doubt he could be elected Governor of Ohio, it would be wrong for him to entertain the proposition, so many being interested in the refunding and redemption work now progressing. "What I would aspire to do in case public opinion should decide to make me a candidate for President," said Sherman, "would be to unite, in co-operation with the Republican party, all national elements of the country that contributed to or aided in any way the successful vindication of the national authority during the war. I would do this, not for the purpose of irritating the South or opposing them in any way, but to assert and maintain the supremacy of the national authority to the full extent of all powers conferred by the Constitution. The true issue for 1880 is national supremacy in national matters, honest money and an honest dollar."

LYNCHED.—A note from Mr. Price, stage agent at Mohave, to Mr. Thompson of the Blaney House, states that a mob on Wednesday night took Bill and Tom Yoakum from the jail at Bakersfield and proceeded to execute them according to Judge Lynch's code. Bill fought so desperately, however, they had to shoot him twelve times before he would be quiet. The rope process was then successfully applied to the other. This plan to end the career of these desperate men was adopted because the Supreme Court had just granted them new trials, which was accepted as equivalent to final acquittal, murderers though they were known to be. As they had been saying all along that they intended to kill several witnesses and others when the chance offered, it was well enough to take timely precautions to save them that trouble.

THE Southern Pacific Railroad terminus is now at Casa Grande, some 30 miles beyond Maricopa. Two lines of stages will connect with all trains, one for Florence and the other for Tucson. The direct line to the latter place will go by way of Picacho, and by making a saving of at least twenty hours. Maricopa will continue to be the station for all freight for the northern portion of the Territory and must eventually become a place of considerable importance.

THE latest advices from the Eastern States say wool is very firm at recent advances. Manufacturers are free purchasers at current rates, and holders are disposed to meet the demands as fast as the supplies arrive. Stocks are materially reduced, very little fleece wool remaining unsold. California is in good demand, and supplies are taken as fast as received. Fall clip, 10@16; new spring, 17@22.

A MAN named Langhein, residing at Marsh Landing, near Antioch, a few days ago killed his two children—a boy and girl; shot at but missed his wife, and then detiberately blew his own brains out by the discharge of a shotgun. His wife and other witnesses testified that he was a sober, industrious and peaceable man, and the deed is ascribed to insanity.

A VIRGINIA CITY woman was so taken up with Lawrence Barrett that she made up her mind that if it were a boy, she would name it Barrett, but it was twins, and so her husband named them Grin and Barrett.

A. C. FREEMAN, of Empire, came in from Mammoth City, Lake District, a few days ago, and he, like all others who have visited the camp, speaks in glowing terms of the outlook. The Mammoth is the only mine out of which ore is being taken so far, but many others are being prospected, giving bright promises, prominent among which are the Headlight, Monte Cristo, Folk and the Gener. The Mammoth has four feet of the richest gold-bearing quartz ever found on this coast, some of it being pure gold, and twelve feet of silver ore lying beside it; rather a queer formation. This company is running a ten-stamp mill day and night. Mr. Freeman believes that the camp has a glorious and permanent future in store for it. Town lots are now selling for from $20 to $25 per foot front. There are many Carsonites there now.—Carson Appeal.

WE are credibly informed that last year the amount of potatoes raised in Fish Lake Valley approximated 300 tons. The hay crop this year is looking splendid, and from indications will yield as much if not more than usual. There is a vast area of land now lying idle in that section which with the aid of artesian wells for irrigation would produce all kinds of farm produce in abundance. The mining interests are slowly looking up in that whole country, and especially so at Lida Valley, Silver Peak, and surrounding camps.—Esmeralda Herald.

RECENTLY a very modest Boston young lady, who wanted a pair of garters, addressed the shopman thus: "It is my desire to obtain a pair of circular elastic appendages, capable of being contracted or expanded by means of oscillating burnished steel appliances that sparkle like particles of gold leaf set with Alaska diamonds, and which are utilized for retaining in proper position the habiliments of the lower extremities, which innate delicacy forbids me to mention."

IN San Francisco a woman married a coachman unwittingly, believing him to be a Mexican nobleman. They parted after an unpleasant honeymoon of a week. "Had I known that I would only get morning breezes for breakfast, trade winds for dinner and fog for supper, I would have told you my constitution couldn't stand it."

MODOCK OFFICIAL LETTER.—The official letter of the week is as follows:

May 27, 1879.

J. W. Pew, Esq., Secretary Modock Con. M. Co.:—DEAR SIR: We have been engaged the past week in completing bulkhead, making it air tight, and connecting pipe to face of tunnel. The work is well along, and to-day we have fine air to a distance of 1,400 feet in tunnel. Expect to have balance of pipe up by to-morrow night. Shall start in to-morrow in old stope, 1000-foot level, near place where high-grade ore mentioned in a late l tter was found. As soon as we get through with air connection shall break into points where we propose crossing. Will have this under way very shortly. Ledge matter, where will start prospecting, looks well, showing copper stains and giving assays ranging from a trace to $15 and $16.

Yours, respectfully,
A. C. TIBBETTS, Supt.

GOT LEFT.—The stage trip from here to Mojave in Summer heat is not a mere pleasure jaunt anyway, and none the more agreeable when one happens to experience just such an experience as was experienced by the late Kearsarge party, Messrs. Frank and Dakin. Up to the point of Indian Wells matters proceeded as usual, when the passengers were landed for supper. The driver, a gentleman bearing the somewhat uncommon name of Smith, seems to have arrived at some misunderstanding with the landlady concerning the supply of whisky just then considered necessary by him, and in high dudgeon he mounts the box and sails the team out on a run, leaving the passengers in the act of getting aboard. A messenger sent after him on horseback, upon overtaking him, failed to convince Mr. Smith that the matter of having left his passengers was of any consequence whatever; so he rattled along into the Junction. Here he met Supt. Taylor, who, after examining the way-bill, indulged in some persuasive and polite language, and with a proper and energetic application of foot-power, informed Mr. Smith that the Southern line would be conducted without his valuable services; contrary to his general course, this particular driver had violated a well-known rule of the road as to indulging in the ardent. Mr. Dakin mourned the loss, himself, of a bottle of choice liquid possessing stimulating properties; but set himself about enjoying the enforced twenty-four hours' detention. At meal times the party regaled the inner man mainly upon mackerel; but through Mr. Frank's kindly offices, the next days' dinner promised grandly, chicken and all that sort of thing. Mr. Dakin, declining an invitation from Mr. H. W. Beecher to visit his camp and eat of mutton, bacon, beans, etc., persuaded that gentleman to repair with him to the hostelry and have a square meal on chicken for once in his life; in fact, on just such grub as those of the same profession as his illustrious predecessor generally enjoy—regular yaller-legs. Mr. B. did so, and at the appointed hour Messrs. Dakin, Beecher and Frank sat down. There was the mackerel, but the house was getting tony and fish was to constitute the first course, of course, though a little coarse, considered as a delicacy. It was partaken of sparingly. Then ensued a wait. Mr. D. glanced at his friends, and looked inquiringly toward the kitchen; presently he looked again. Mr. Frank deliberately retired. Mr. Dakin prospected the culinary department and assayed several samples. On his return, he sadly explained to Mr. Beecher that he had nothing whatever, nothing in the world against him; not even the fact that he had a wife and family and Mr. B. had such a father, would induce him to treat an invited guest that way—but there wasn't any chicken. The apology was accepted. However, the next upward bound stage finally came along, and after arguing the matter awhile with the leader of the new Panamint people, the Kearsarge party got aboard and came through. The foregoing was given us by Mr. Dakin himself, in strict confidence, and we hope our readers won't allow the incident to get out.

KEARSARGE.—An article descriptive of the Kearsarge, from extended notes taken during a recent examination of the property, is necessarily deferred. Suffice it to say, however, that the grand old mine is fulfilling the best expectations of its owners and friends. Mr. Frank, one of the principal owners, accompanied by Mr. W. J. Dakin, mining engineer and expert, made a thorough and extended examination of all the new works and developments, being assisted by Supt. Gray and Surveyor Seeley. We hope in due time to publish Mr. Dakin's report upon this series of mines, which we feel assured will be an able one, truthful and highly favorable.

SHEEP.—Some nine bands of sheep, aggregating 18,000 in all, are now being driven through this county en route to Montana. They come from Gen. Beal's Tejon Ranch, in Kern and Los Angeles counties. They are in the general charge of Henry Ward Beecher, Jr., a son of the celebrated Brooklyn divine. Mr. Beecher is about 26 years of age, a graduate of Amherst, and an ex Hudson River steamboat captain, and appears to be here in California seeing the world in a practical manner. He will probably pay Independence a visit to-morrow or within the next day or two following.

GOOD PROSPECT.—Henry Hopper is operating on a gold ledge located quite near the old Crysopolis mill, which is panning out about the best of any we know of. He worked eight tons by arrastra process, and netted therefrom no less than 120 ounces, worth $18 per ounce.

STATED meeting of Inyo Lodge No. 221, F. & A. M., at the hall to-night.

EXPERIMENTAL.—Supt. Holt's well-supplied assay office, at the Rex Montis mill, was the place where was had an experimental test of the so-called new Electric process of reducing rebellious ores, some description of which was given a week or so ago in an article taken from the Sacramento Bee. By politeness of Mr. Holt, an INDEPENDENT representative witnessed the operation. And, by the way, that representative feels at liberty to state the fact that there is really nothing new in the plan or idea of Mr. Robertson (the "originator") in the matter of doing what is done by his "process." However that may be, we will describe, as near as may be, the modus operandi and results: A porcelain kettle was filled with cold water, in which was put say half a pound of salt, an ounce of cyanide of potassium and about the same quantity of sulphate of copper or blue stone, though for what special purpose the latter chemical is used for was not clear to either the operator or observer. Two pieces of Fish Springs gold ore, a singular product of that district, were selected for the purpose. Almost their entire bulk consisted of cube or crystal sulphurets and iron pyrites, a bright coppery substance about as hard to reduce under stamps as so much soft iron, yet carrying considerable fine gold. The assay furnace being ready, these pieces, weighing from eight to ten ounces each, were placed in the muffle. In a few seconds they began burning like so much stone-coal, throwing off flame of all colors, whether from sulphur, antimony or arsenic, deponent don't know. After a few minutes, when at a white-red heat, and the black fumes still emitting, they were dumpted into the bath or solution described. When taken out the ore was a gray, leaden like mass, so friable as to yield into powder between the fingers. Concentration of this by "horning" it out, showed a fine black sand only—if the gold were in those particular pieces at all it was so fine and so coated that a grinding process in amalgamating pans would certainly be necessary to bring it out. While we have little faith in the process being either new, economical or successful, an experimental trial is interesting; and we advise our metallurgical friends to try it and report results.

PANAMINT.—There comes an encouraging word from the famous Panmint country, in the southern end of our county, where the usual history of a sudden rise and equally rapid fall is being supplemented by an era of steady growth and prosperousness. Readers will remember our mention of the incorporation of a new company which is now operating there, under the somewhat elongated title of the "Leota Consolidated Gold and Silver Mining, Smelting and Water Company," having 20,000 shares and a capital of $20,000,000. Its original purchase was of the mines Richmond, Venus, Mohawk, Pinney, Leota and Chick. As we understand the matter now, the new company has bought in addition all of the ten patented mines of the Surprise Valley Mill and Water Company, including the Panamint mill. The latter is one of the finest twenty-stamp mills on the Coast, built by Senators Jones and Stewart, of Nevada. Last week a party, consisting of the Superintendent, Prof. Cherry, Mr. Chickering (a son of the piano manufacturer), and others arrived at Panamint, with the intention of remaining there and bringing their families. They are accompanied by Mr. Mitchell, the inventor of the new ore concentrator bearing his name, who will put in operation one of 40 tons' capacity per day. These concentrators are gaining a high reputation among mining men, as a means of reducing rebellious silver ores to a state next thing to bullion itself, in which state it is shipped instead. There are now twenty-four of them in operation in Utah and three in Nevada, but Panamint will have the honor of the first one set at work in California.

A QUESTION OF SANITY.—It was a little bit curious, that matter in court, when an order was asked for to vacate an order that was never made, so far as the records could be made to show. This was in the matter of the old charge of insanity against John Alexder. The facts are, however, such a charge was made early in July, 1872, and order of arrest issued, but which Sheriff Mulkey declined to serve. As the prime movers found that they were working up a little more of a "josh" than they bargained for, they slid out of trouble by going early next morning and withdrawing the affidavit, and that was why, we suppose, no record was made of it, other than our reference to it (no real names being given) in our issue of July 6, 1872. Nevertheless, Mr. A. always felt as if something ought to be done to place him right on the records, and, pending the motion to this effect, made quite an energetic argument in his own behalf. So now, as a presumption of law, he stands precisely where he did before Bill Squires and E. H. Van Decar made such donkeys of themselves in this matter originally.

GOOD EFFORT.—Our young friend, Geo. M. Gill, was appointed counsel for Dely, the bridge burner, for his first case in the County Court. It was considered a foregone thing that conviction of defendant would follow a trial, for the facts against him were too nearly prima facie to admit of doubt of the result, save by some unexpected technical good fortune, or showing that he was truly non compos. Nothing of that kind happened, and he was found guilty. Nevertheless, his young counsel is credited with having managed the case like an old stager, and with an argument of real excellence both in matter and manner of delivery.

TAKE NOTICE.—All persons wishing pictures at Hildreth's gallery, in this place, must apply before next Friday, as he will close here that day, and reopen at Lone Pine.

SEE if there isn't something new in Al. Briggs' advertisement.

OUR DARWIN LETTER.

DARWIN, May. 27.

MESSRS. EDITORS—Since my last this part of the county, as regards arrivals and departures, has been about a stand-off, with the odds probably in favor of the latter. In the list of arrivals are gentlemen from the East, who are now holding forth at Snow's Cañon, investigating the mines in that vicinity. Messrs. Chickering, Cherry and others of the new Panamint Company have lately arrived, and are now at that point, laying the ground-work for future operations there, and from my limited knowledge of their affairs believe they mean business.

Messrs. Birchett & Parker, lessees of the Snow Cañon mill, accompanied by Mr. Graves and Constable Fitzgerald, came in on the 23d with the result of their final clean-up, after a 24 days' run, which showed up to the respectable figure of nearly $15,000. The total number of tons worked was 102, and average yield per ton about $140, averaging about one-third gold and two-thirds silver. The ores composing this flattering and encouraging result came from the St. George, St. Elmo, Old Virginia, Billy Ross and Moffatt & Stopp mines. That locality can not feel otherwise than thankful to Messrs. B. & P. for their bold, fearless and manly attempt at solving the problem as to whether the various mines there had merit and could be made to pay under good business management. The question has resulted in an affirmative answer, and the gentlemen who risked their money to determine the important point made of it a financial success. Recent developments in managing mines in this vicinity has demonstrated that when mines are handled by honest and conscientious men, who throw their whole soul into their work and work themseves, that mining can be made to pay.

Mr. Mason, of Snow's Cañon, reports all the mines there as looking well, and their owners are preparing to keep on working their respective properties, and in the course of a month or two we may expect to hear the steam whistle again in that doubtless rich locality.

New York parties who are interested in the Snow Cañon property, now here, are investigating matters generally, and are decidedly favorable to a thorough opening up of their mines, and have the where-with-all to execute ideas when their minds are made up.

The New Coso furnace is still running, and will probably continue the balance of the month. For the last week the monster has eat nothing but the old accumulated flue dust of years, and, contrary to general opinion, it has seemed to enjoy a change of diet from hard ore, and has been doing remarkably good work, turning between 200 and 300 tons of that minute particles of matter into nice bars of bullion of good paying grades, and greatly replenishing the company's finances, which, by the way, is perfectly satisfactory. In this run Supt. Williams tells me he has paid out over $15,000 in gold coin for various ores purchased by him. It is a fortunate thing for this vicinity that we have one company in our midst with ample facilities and ample means to purchase our ores at fair prices, thus enabling the development of our mines to continue uninterrupted.

Following is the Superintendent's report of his run up to May 28 at 6 A. M.:

The product of the New Coso furnace from May 1st to 27th inclusive: Bars, 3,064; No. tons, 124 1092-2000; value, $35,000.

At Modock, under the new management, Supt. Tibbetts is gradually bringing matters into satisfactory working order, and is commencing to prospect right and left in the 1000-foot level for ore, now that the shaft has been connected with the upraise, affording good ore at that depth.

Mr. Tibbetts was very fortunate in securing the services of Mr. Jerome S. Childs as his mine foreman upon taking charge. Mr. Childs has for the last year been in the employ of the New Coso Company, giving good satisfaction, and now goes back to his old stamping ground. Being one of the original discoverers and locators of the Modock, and having been connected more or less with all the past developments of the company's mines, and withal a practical miner, knows probably better than any man in the county their formation, peculiarities, and where ores would likely to be found. Curtailing expenses has not been lost sight of in late movements there. The air coming down the new shaft is being made to travel against its will to the face of the 1000-foot tunnel, by bulkheading the point where the shaft drift connects with the main tunnel, thus doing away with forcing in fresh air by machinery. We all hope that the Modock Company is on the eve of cutting a bonanza of sufficient size to fully reward and compensate those who have had the courage thus far to put up their coin to develop the property.

Yours, truly,
C. F. O'BRION.

POSTPONED. — On account of the meeting of the District Court, set for the 8th of July, and other reasons, the Democratic County Convention has been postponed from the 3d to the 7th of that month.

County Court Proceedings.

MONDAY MAY 25, 1879.

People vs. J. T. Dely, incendiarism. A jury, composed as follows, was sworn to try the case: A. W. Rose, E. Robinson, W. H. Huff, A. Stecker D. Naylor, F. Uhlemeyer, D. F. McNeal, Jas. Shalten, Jacob Shoemaker, H. Ferhman, Wm. W. Boyd and A. McKellips.

Court ordered a recess until 2 P. M. On reassembling, A. Stecker, one of the jurors, failed to put in an appearance until about half an hour after his name was called; whereupon the Court fined him in the sum of $10 for the default.

A number of witnesses were examined for the prosecution, and Court adjourned to 10 A. M.

TUESDAY, MAY 27.

Defense called a number of witnesses, defendant testifying in his own behalf. Prosecution recalled several witnesses. Adjourned to

WEDNESDAY, MAY 28,

When, the testimony being closed on both sides, District Attorney Snelling for the prosecution and Geo. M. Gill counsel for defendant, addressed the jury at length. After instructions from the Court, the jury retired; and after a short deliberation at 2 P. M., reported a verdict of "guilty as charged in the indictment. E. Robinson, Foreman."

Prisoner ordered to appear for sentence on Saturday, at 10 A. M.

Geo. M. Gill, Esq., for defense, gave notice that he would file motion for arrest of judgment.

THURSDAY, May 29.

Defense moved and argued motion for arrest of judgment.

Prosecution asked and was granted till Friday, May 30, to answer the said motion.

The motion for arrest of judgment was on the grounds first, that defendant was laboring under a defect of reason; second, that the evidence adduced upon the trial did not justify conviction; and third, that there are strong doubts as to the defendant's sanity.

After arguments by counsel, motion was overruled.

S. P. Moffatt, Esq., moved that an order be entered of record as follows: "As it appears from the fact that a petition, charging John Alexander with insanity in the year 1872, and upon which petition an order of arrest having been made, that said order be declared vacated and null and void." So ordered.

Judge Dundy's Decision.

Judge Dundy's decision releasing certain Indians from the custody of an officer of a United States Army at Omaha last week, was not made entirely clear by the dispatch to this coast which announced the event. It seems that Gen. Crook, under instructions from Washington, was returning Standing Bear and a party of Ponca Indians to the Indian Territory. The Poncas fled from the Territory some time ago on account of sickness. The unhealthiness of their reservation was rapidly thinning out the tribe. The flight was against orders from the Indian Bureau, and the military authorities were directed to pursue the fugitives and return them to their reservation.

At Omaha, in Nebraska, counsel was engaged for the captive redskins. The United States Court was applied to for a writ of habeas corpus. The writ was granted, directing Gen. Crook to return by what authority Standing Bear and his party were held in custody. On the return to the writ Messrs. Webster and Poppleton, two of the ablest lawyers in Nebraska, argued the case of the redskins without fee. They held that the return showed that there was no authority of law for Gen. Crook's action; that the redskins were entitled to their liberty as well as white men, and that there was nothing in the Constitution or laws which would warrant the military authorities in forcibly returning them to a portion of the country from which they had fled.

Judge Dundy rendered a decision on May 19. It holds: First—That an Indian is a person within the meaning of the laws of the United States, and that he has a right to sue out in the Courts of the United States a writ of habeas corpus. Second—That Gen. Crook had the custody of the Poncas, under the color of the authority of the United States, but in violation of the law. Third—That no rightful authority can be found for removing the Poncas by force to the Indian Territory, which Gen. Crook has been ordered to do. Fourth—That the Indians possess the inherent right of expatriation as well as the most fortunate white race, and have the inalienable right to life and liberty and the pursuit of happiness, so long as they obey the laws and do not trespass on forbidden ground. Fifth—That the Poncas were restrained of liberty in violation of law, and must be discharged from custody.

If the Poncas were white men there would be no need of asserting the elementary Constitutional principles. As they are Indians, it shows courage on the part of a United States Judge to declare them. It is, indeed, a great step in advance to declare that redskins are entitled to the protection of the Constitution and laws. It seems like a new revelation to hear from the bench that Indians are entitled to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness as long as they do not infringe the equal liberty of others.—Eureka Sentinel.

MR. WOODBRIDGE, of Hillsborough, Texas, went into a drug store, drew a revolver, compelled the clerk to give him some strichnine; said that he would shoot anybody who attempted to prevent his suicide; took the poison, and died with the cocked weapon in his hand.

SACRAMENTO Democrats have resolved to nominate a straight ticket.

NEAR Anaheim is located the "Societas Fraternia." Its members are Spiritualists. They eat no meat of any kind, no eggs, milk, butter, cheese, bread; in fact, nothing but fruits and vegetables, and then only such as can be eaten uncooked. They believe that nature furnishes everything necessary for man's subsistence. Nothing passes their lips except that which grows from the ground, and it must be eaten just as it grows. They hold that it is as sinful to diet on dried or preserved fruit as it would be to lunch on roast beef, plumb pudding or Limberger cheese. They run to the very extreme of vegetarianism. They run to the extreme in everything. There is no separate property—everything being held in common. Neither does the society desire to accumulate wealth; nature furnishes them with food, and they have little need of money. It is needless to say that they hold the marriage ceremony in contempt.—Santa Barbara Press.

General Notes.

John Augustus Rogers, a Kentucky temperance lecturer, has committed suicide after six weeks of uninterrupted intoxation.

Leaping from the Cincinnati bridge to the water, a distance of ninety-five feet, did not kill Robert L. Green, as he had expected.

INITIATORY steps have been taken in New York to form a company to lay a submarine cable from the Pacific Coast to the Hawaiian Islands.

The craft in which Mr. and Mrs. Goldsmith intend to circumnavigate the globe has been completed in Boston. It is only 18 feet long and six feet wide.

Mr. William Marshall, of Glasgow, who died on May 3, has left a legacy amounting to over $1,000,000 to found in Glasgow an institution bearing his name.

One of the crack restaurants at Berlin, the proprietor of which has failed, reveals a creditor who has created a sensation by sending in his bill of 2,300 francs for "horseflesh" supplied.

An old Vermonter offered a widow $1,000 to marry him, and she accepted; but on seeing her daughter, he recanted, and offered $2,000 for the younger woman. A breach of promise is the result.

More than 400 yards length of cliff at Couville, near Havre, fell into the sea, with three reports like thunder-claps. The tide was in at the time, and the material was carried away by it when it retired.

John Morse, a prisoner in a Denver jail, mingled with the members of the Young Men's Christian Association when they held services in the prison, sang as loud as the loudest, and walked out with the party.

The late E. Spencer Miller, a wealthy Philadelphian, spent considerable time and money in collecting rare China cups. His collection was sold by auction, and the prices did not average one-third of what he had paid, yet were rather high. Sixty-five old cups, costing $1,400, went for $259.

George Rix and Tom Hartigan played poker at Rockland Station, Tenn., without any understanding as to whether straights were to be counted. They quarreled when the question was brought up in the progress of the game, and Hartington shot Rix. Then Rix's wife took a revolver out of her dead husband's pocket and mortally wounded Hartigan.

The liquor license system of Boston is controlled by the Police Commissioners, who now report that the number of bars has decreased from 3,000 in 1874, the last year of prohibitation, to 2,027 during the license year of 1878 and 1879, and the number of drunken persons, noticed by the police, from 19,234 to 14,920, while the population has increased from 337,000 to 375,000.

A diminished consumption of tobacco both in England and France has been noticed. M. Leroy Beaulieu thinks the rising generation in France smoke less than their parents. It seems more likely, however, that the peasants, among whom the indulgence has been gradually extending, are retrenching in this direction, owing to deficient harvest and low prices.

There are only 23 actual makers of pates de foie gris, the sales of which reach about $375,000 a year. The geese consume large quantities of corn, and a little antimony is added to the grain to swell the liver. A good fat goose will, after the treatment, weigh 16 to 20 pounds, and have a liver weighing from two to three pounds. The taste for this delicacy steadily grows.

A paragraphist of a London paper says: "The Duke of Beaufort, better known, perhaps, as Horsey Beaufort, goes the round of the United States with Mr. Sothern. Whether his Grace acts as bill-poster or private secretary, I don't know. What with dukes, dancing attendance on theatrical valets, and earls slinging ink in fashionable periodicals, the peerage is getting quite useful in a small way."

A Rome correspondent remarks that Garibaldi's countenance has quite lost the vavacious expression it used to wear. He can not stir without assistance, and suffers frequent torments or pain. Garibaldi is now 73 years old. It is twenty-nine years since he was soap and candle making on Staten Island; and, to use Lord Beaconsfield's phrase, "a great deal has happened since then."

Dr. Rose and Mr. Canfield drank two glasses of whisky in a drug store at Alliance, Ohio, and found it so good, that they called for more. As they raised the glasses again the physician said, "Here's your good health." "Oh, don't say that," said Canfield, "consider your business, and wish this stuff may make me sick." They drank, and within an hour both were dead, the druggist having given them poison by mistake.

The Roman races are run on ground beyond the Ponte Nomentana, bought from the late King by Count Telfener, who lately married Mrs. Mackay's sister. On the occasion of the recent meeting the King rode over each day across the country, fifteen miles each way, and visiting the ground the day before the races began, went over the steeple-chase course, taking all the fences. The Queen was present in a carriage and four, with outriders.

SHERIFF'S SALE.

BY VIRTUE OF AN EXECUTION ISSUED OUT of the District Court of the Sixteenth Judicial District of the State of California, in and for the County of Inyo, in the suit of Sigismund Herrman and Company, Plaintiff, against L. Munzinger and John H. Dodge, Defendants, upon a judgment rendered in said Court on the Twenty-fourth day of March, A. D. 1879, for the sum of One Thousand One Hundred and Twenty-seven 62-100 dollars in gold coin of the United States, besides costs amounting to the sum of Forty-six 80-100 Dollars, duly attested the 22d day of May, A. D. 1879, whereby I am commanded to make the amount of $1,174 42-100, in gold coin of the United States, besides accruing costs and interest, I have levied upon all the right, title and interest of the said Defendants in and to the following described real property, to-wit:

Lot No. 1 in Block No. 13 in the town of Lone Pine, as appears on the plat of said town now on file in the office of the Recorder of said County of Inyo. Also, an undivided one third interest of that certain piece, parcel or lot of land situated in the village of Bishop Creek, commencing at a point fifteen feet east of the southeast corner of a certain lot or piece of ground formerly owned by S. G. Sneden and upon which his store was situated, running thence North 233 feet, thence East 220 feet, thence South 233 feet, thence West 220 feet to the place of beginning, the same being situated in the southwest corner of the SE¼ of Section No. 6, in Township No. 7 South, Range 33 East, Base and Meridian of Mount Diablo; together with all the machinery, tubs, fixtures and improvements of every kind used in the business of brewing beer and malt, together with all and singular the tenements, hereditaments and appurtenances thereunto belonging or in anywise appertaining to said above described real property.

Notice is hereby given that on SATURDAY, THE FOURTEENTH DAY OF JUNE, A. D. 1879, between the hours of 9 o'clock A. M. and 4 o'clock P. M., to-wit: at the hour of 1 o'clock P. M. of that day, in front of the Court House, in the town of Independence, county of Inyo, State of California, I will sell all the right, title and interest of the said defendants, L. Munzinger and John H. Dodge, in and to the above described property, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to satisfy said judgment and all costs, at public auction, to the highest bidder or bidders, for cash in hand in gold coin of the United States.

W. L. MOORE, Sheriff.

Sheriff's Office, Inyo County, Cal., May 23, 1879. n466t4

SUMMONS.

IN THE JUSTICE'S COURT OF FIRST Township, in the County of Inyo, State of California. T. G. Beasley, Plaintiff, against M. Ashton, Defendant. The People of the State of California send greeting to M. Ashton, Defendant—You are hereby required to appear in an action brought against you by the above named Plaintiff in the Justice's Court of First Township, County of Inyo, State of California, and to answer before the Justice at his office in said Township, the complaint filed therein within five days (exclusive of the day of service), after the service on you of this summons—if served within the Township in which this action is brought; or, if served out of said Township, but in said County, within ten days; or, within twenty days if served elsewhere.

The said action is brought to recover from you the sum of One Hundred Dollars, money loaned to you at your request, at Deep Springs Valley, Inyo County, California, on June 4th, 1877, with legal interest on same amounting to Fourteen Dollars, gold coin, all of which more fully appears by the complaint herein filed.

And you are hereby notified that if you fail to so appear and answer said complaint, as above required, said Plaintiff will take judgment against you for One Hundred and Fourteen Dollars, gold coin, together with costs.

Make legal service and due return hereof.

Given under my hand this 21st day of May, A. D. 1879. D. CAMPBELL,
Justice of the Peace of said Township.

Johnny-Come-Lately.

An old pioneer was hugging the historic stove in Judge Knox's Court-room last evening, and, as is usual with the old-timers who visit that temple of justice, was in a reminiscent frame of mind. Though poor now, he had, as a matter of course, been once rich.

"I was a leadin' citizen of Muckallamy Hill in '52," he said. "In them days I was in the dust buyin' business. I had my sign out, Se Compra Oro Agni—up stairs, you know, and all that sort of thing. I tell ye, it takes a smart man to get along in that 'ere trade. Jenkins & Co. was the boss at it when I first went into it at Muckallamy Hill, but it wasn't six months afore I'd took half their trade away. I had to rustle to do it. You see the boys was allus anxious to sell, an' the first that offered the coin made the riffle. Jenkins & Co. was pretty high-toned, an' used to wait every night fur thar man to go down the hill to the express office an' bring up their money in a hand-cart. I saw my chance an' used to be on hand when the stage come in, an' just shouldered my own coin when the driver throwed it off. Nick Monkins was the driver in them days. He was afterwards killed by road agents. Many's the time Nick's throwed me down my sack with a clean $400,000 in gold coin into it, an' I've chucked her across my shoulder an' trotted up that there old hill, an' had every bit o' dust bought up afore Jenkins & Co.'s hand-cart arrived."

"How much did you say you packed up the hill on your shoulder?" asked Judge Knox's clerk.

"See here," said the clerk, figuring rapidly, "gold's worth about $18 an ounce, and there's twelve ounces to the pound, Troy weight; that makes a pound worth $216. Now, 216 into 400,000 leaves something over 1,851 pounds—pretty nearly a ton. How far up the hill did you you carry that, did you say?"

A REMARKABLE case of lynching occurred at Cheyenne, Wyoming, recently. A man named Dug. Reed, obnoxious particularly to the citizens, was taken out of jail. Then, with unusual courtesy, the lynchers allowed Reed to select the method of death most agreeable to him; and when he stated that he would prefer to be hanged, they went still further and allowed him to be his own executioner. He took the rope in his hand, climbed a telegraph pole, fastened one end around the top, and formed a noose at the other end. Then he made his last dying speech, which was short, being no more than "Good-bye, boys," and jumping off, was launched into eternity. Some Coroner's juries might find this to be a case of suicide; but, to some extent, the crowd at the foot of the pole must be considered as aiding and abetting.

A GENTLEMAN who has spent some days in the region of the coal-oil wells says that, in his opinion, the Government ought to interfere at once and put a stop to further pumping and boring for oil. He is quite certain the oil is drawn through these wells from the bearing of the earth's axis, and that the earth will cease to turn when the lubrication ceases.

A MAN down at the Bay, a few days since, rescued a broker's daughter from a watery grave. The broker sent for the young man next day and gave him a point on stocks. To-day the hero is walking around on his uppers and sleeps on benches at the Plaza.

A Gallant Soul Passed on.

Away back when Sacramento valley was covered with oaks and flowers, a strippling from the far-off coast of Maine came with the Argonauts and began to ply his trade as a house and sign painter at Bidwell's Bar, in California. Few houses needed any paint in those days and not many signs were called for, and so this youth painted Bidwell's Bar as it was then, and when the people looked upon the painting they knew there was genius among them. They asked the young painter to join their rude festivities, and so, by divine right, he took the lead and was king. Then he began to write for newspapers, and his clear-cut style, which has since become so well-known, attracted attention to him. He obtained a paper of his own, and might have worn out his life upon it had not the upheaval of 1861 come. Before, he had been a Democrat of the straightest sect. But, as he said, the attack upon Sumter came to him like a blow on the cheek—a personal affront. So he hurried to the East, and improving the first opportunity that offered, asked for nothing but to be shown the enemy which was fighting against the old flag. He knew no other work and thought of no other duty until out from the battle's canopy that old flag flashed triumphant again, and then, with the invincible army that had beaten down secession and broken the shakles from the slave, limping with cruel wounds, he came back to the walks of peace. Since then his fertile brain has been occupied upon his newspaper at Carson, save once, when he served the State admirably in the Legislature. A year and a half ago he was attacked with a fatal disease. A dreadful surgical operation stopped its progress for a few months, but it was only a respite. For weeks he has hovered between life and death, and night before last he died. This, in brief, is the story of the life and death of Hon. Harry R. Mighels, but it gives no idea of the bright mind that flashed among us so long, and which has now gone out. So contradictory a nature as was his is seldom found. One side of him was altogether divine; the other side was often rough in its humanity. No braver man ever lived. This was exemplified a thousand times while he was in health; it was revealed on battle fields where men were dying all around him, and in the quieter walks of life where it is necessary sometimes to face things worse than the peril which comes in the excitements of war. But the sterling stuff of which he was made was never so plainly revealed as when the truth was made known to him that he must die with a lingering, painful illness. He heard the summons calmly, and for weeks, as his physical strength has been waning, the old vein of rollicking, reckless humor has been upon him, and he has passed his time laughing Death in the face. As a writer he had no counterpart on this coast. He possessed a style all his own, which was always guided by a clear judgment of men and embellished with a quaintness which made it distinct from all others. If called upon to name his strongest characteristic we should say it was love of country. This was a passion with the man, and however changeable he may have been in minor things, there was not a moment of his life in which he did not hold that in defense of native land, life and fortune and everything else that men hold dear were forever pledged. His character was molded on this coast, and if much of the recklessness and imprudence of the early days lingered in his nature, there was beside, kept bright as a diamond, that type of magnificent generous manhood which of old was a distinguishing trait of the men of this coast. But the quick brain has ceased to throb; the soldier's arm is nerveless; the fiery words no longer move the pinched lips. There is nothing left but the wasted body, which still bears the scars of wounds received in his country's defense. Lay him with the veterans, and when on Decoration Day, the graves of the soldier dead are garlanded, place the brightest flowers on Mighels' grave. And while tendering most heartfelt sympathy to the wife and children of the departed editor and soldier, let none of us forget that the stricken widow and half-orphaned children have claims upon us, all of which will not be liquidated when we have said kind words and scattered bright flowers over the husband and the father's grave.—Virginia Enterprise.

DON'T shut out the sun, even though your carpets suffer a little under his ardent gleam. We are more active under the influence of the sunlight, and can think better and act more vigorously. Let us take the most airy room in the house for our living room—the workshop, where the brain and body are built up and renewed—and let us have a bay window no matter how plain the structure, through which the good twin angels of nature—sunlight and pure air—can freely enter. Dark rooms bring depression of spirits, imparting a sense of confinement, of isolation, of powerlessness, which is chilling to energy and vigor; but in bright rooms is good cheer. Even in a gloomy house, where walls and furniture are dingy and brown, we have but to take down the curtains, open wide the window, hang brackets on either side, set flower-pots on the brackets, and let the warm sun stream freely in, to bring health to our bodies and joy to our souls.

THE Sanitary Committee of New Orleans have commenced work on the sewers and streets with water, and are laboring faithfully in the interest of sanitary reform, before the advent of yellow fever.

THE rumor that an Italian firm was negotiating in the Unit d States for an immediate supply of 100,000 tons of coal, in place of obtaining it from England, as heretofore, has caused uneasiness in London. A cargo of American coal reached the Mediterranean sixteen months ago, and met with a ready sale, and more than twenty cargoes have been sent over since that time. It is apprehended that before long the coal industry of Great Britain will have to encounter determined rivalry on the part of the United States. American coal will not be landed in England, but will be shipped to ports on the Continent which are now dependent upon supplies from the coal field of the United Kingdom.—Stock Report.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.:

SATURDAY, JUNE 7.....1879

IN the very important matter of electing a State Senator and an Assemblyman, to serve in the next Legislature, Inyo county cuts no inconsiderable figure. As to State Senator, we are coupled with Fresno, Tulare, Kern and Mono. If any party contemplates a distinct political nomination of a candidate, it can only be done by a caucus of the party's delegates to the State Convention, or else by a separate district nominating Convention. Up to date no delegates to the respective State Conventions have been empowered to make such nominations, and as there is no likelihood of any District Conventions being held, the field is open for a hundred candidates—and may the devil take the hindmost. As to Assemblyman, the election is left between Inyo and Mono. To avoid complication and arrive at straight nominations, we suggest that the respective Democratic and Republican Conventions of each county, under prior agreement by the parties' Central Committees as to number, appoint delegates to meet in joint nominating Conventions at Benton—a point equi-distant between the county seats. It is of the most vital importance that our two counties be represented in the next Legislature by an energetic, intelligent man, one familiar with the requirements of the region and competent to secure for it the best possible advantages under the new Constitution. Besides, the changed and changing condition of both counties require as much special or local legislation as can possibly be forced through. Put up your best men and then go ahead.

THERE is a hitch in Congress in reference to the payment of Capt. Eads for his work on the Mississippi jetties. One month ago the army engineers in charge reported that Eads had accomplished his work and had obtained a channel 200 feet wide and 25 feet deep. Mr. Eads thereupon applied for the $500,000 which the law allowed him when the channel of the above dimensions was obtained, but a legal question was involved and was referred to the Attorney General. A recent inspection of the work, however, shows that the channel is now 25 feet deep but only 140 feet wide, therefore the Secretary of War, in whose charge the work has been placed, holds that the channel is not permanent and Capt. Eads is not entitled to his money until a channel of the required depth and width has been proven to be permanent.

THE California Farmer goes after the farmers of the State red hot for their surprising support of the new Constitution, and absolves itself from all responsibility in case the half of them are sold out by creditors. And honestly, we don't believe it will require the further aid of a New Constitution party to convince them that this little matter of cinching capital is disastrous business—enough has been done already to let them into the cream of the joke.

THERE will be no election for United States Senator by the Legislature selected in September next; but the Legislature selected in 1880, to take their seats January, 1881, will be the one to make the selection of a successor to Newton Booth. And the next Legislature, in its 100-days' session, will certainly have trouble enough on its hands without a Senatorial election, to interpret and comply with even half the requirements of the new Constitution.

THE Chronicle is devoting a great deal of space in pointing out the difference of principles between itself and its late chum, Denis Kearney. There is an obvious distinction but no particular difference between them, so far as the returns yet show—that is, in the matter of principles.

THERE are high hopes that the warm weather will "freeze out" that big monkey show in Washington—in other words, that the Great American President-making extra Congress will have to quit and go home to cool off a little. But the chances for that depend on the thermometer.

NOW, THEN, will somebody who pretends to know, really tell us when the terms of our present county officers expire, and whether under the various constructions of the new Constitution there will not be a hot contest and a fearful hellabalo over the hold-over Senator queston?

THE feeling that Congress will adjourn about the 1st of June is growing, and Congressmen are said to be arranging their plans accordingly. Some have engaged passage for Europe in steamers that sail about the middle of June.

THE POST LANDS.

As will be se n by a communication elsewhere in this issue, Mr. Vagt takes up the cudgel in behalf of himself and other settlers on the military lands, and emphatically denies that he or any of them ever signed a petition for the removal of the troops, or worked in any other way to bring about the abandonment of the Post, that they (the settlers) might the sooner receive a title to their lands. This is in reply to our statement to the contrary made last week while referring to the decision of the State Board of Equalization declaring the lands and personal property of such settlers non-taxable for State and county purposes. From what Mr. V. and others of the settlers now say about it, is clear that we were in error in assuming that they had signed any petitions to directly bring about the abandonment of the Post. We could name many circumstances, however, tending to justify our statement on this point; among the rest, that at least two petitions were got up and signed by various persons, asking directly that the troops be removed; that the fact of such a sentiment was made use of by the Post Commandant in his communications to the Department while he himself was urging the abandonment of the Post. But as it now appears, these particular petitions were not signed by the settlers themselves; that they signed such petitions only, and paid advocates for such work as would give them the right to purchase their claims, wishing to leave the Post grounds proper intact. We will only say in addition on this point, that we referred to the aforesaid fact merely to point out that what was then considered by these settlers an unfortunate state of affairs, to wit: that they were living on a military reservation unable to secure titles—had now turned out to be rather fortunate after all, inasmuch as that reservation, according to the State Board of Equalization, virtually absolved them from all tax obligations; yet, in reality, did not threaten their rights of possession in the least; that, under the present aspects of the case, they might now feel it rather to their advantage to pray the maintenance of the reservation instead of the contrary, as when petitioning to have their particular parts of the Post lands abandoned for military purposes and thrown open to settlement. But this was not intended to be construed literally—that is, that farmers about the Post were unwilling to pay their legitimate share of the cost of citizenship, meaning only that they might refuse to do so if they wanted to, and refer to that tax decision of the State Board as a full justification. We were trying to point out the peculiarities and effects of the State Board decision as it might be construed, thus: that if these citizens are not liable to pay a personal property tax, they are not liable for any other duties of citizenship—to pay poll taxes, or even entitled to vote. That is what that decision means, not what we assert to be a fact in right, nor a fact desired in any respect by the settlers themselves. It places them in the same condition politically as are the residents of the District of Columbia.

The "remedy" we thought to propose is simply the same that we urged three years ago, namely: to have these lands thrown open to settlement precisely as set forth in those petitions; to induce Congress to grant the Post buildings and the 120-acre tract pertaining to the same, to Inyo county for a county high school, all as set forth heretofore, and as petitioned for in the joint resolution passed by the 22d Legislature, said resolution having been introduced and successfully advocated by our Representative, Mr. Moffat. That is the outline of the "remedy."

We are glad to say that the Post settlers to a man are not only very anxious to have this plan an accomplished fact in every particular, but propose to do all they can to bring it about. They want not only a high school of our own, but they want homes of their own; and they want to improve their homes. Furthermore, they wish it distinctly understood they have no intention to refuse their fair share of taxation or shield themselves by this remarkable personal property decision of the State Board, even now when their tenure of land possession is one of sufferance merely. Now, that it will be so much more to the general advantage to make these Post lands a source of revenue, there is abundant cause for us all to join in a petition to Congress for the purpose named above. Though action in the matter by that body can not be looked for before next Winter, right now is the time for action at home. The good offices of Secretary McCrary are of vast importance in this matter. We think we can count upon these offices as a matter of certainty; it is only necessary that he should be made acquainted with all the facts.

That threatened petition referred to by Mr. Vagt (to have these settlers removed) is too absurd to talk about, except to say that we can but think there is some misconstruction of facts or motives someway. We do not see that these settlers are to blame because high authority says they are exempt from taxation, nor that their removal would make their present claims any more taxable, or the Assessor any the richer by virtue of increased collections. We guess the Department will want something more than a citizens' petition before issuing orders of ejectment against citizens. That Department would be quite certain to notify "your petitioners" in such a case that it could attend to its own affairs and that they, the said "petitioners," would do well to attend to their own business.

THE Chronicle says the New Constitution party ought to elect all the officers in the election this Fall, because of the dangerous clause in the new Constitution allowing the Legislature to authorize the election or appointment of county or township officers. During the late contest the Chronicle urged that this clause did not confer this power. If, however, it is dangerous to let either of the old parties triumph because of this clause, it is equally true that no such dangerous clause should have ever been put in a Constitution.

BENTON'S NEW PAPER.—We received this morning the first number of the Benton Tri-Weekly Letter, a new paper just started by Orlando E. Jones, is our neighboring town of Benton. In superficial inches, it is by no means a large paper, but editorially it is as big as the biggest, creditable in every respect, and is bound to be a success. To get out three issues a week will keep Bro. Jones sloshing around considerably, but we think he is of a kind to do it. Subscription price only 25 cents a week, or $1 a month. It is worth it.

AN expedition by the American Colonization Society will leave New York on June 14, when the bark Monrovia will sail direct for Liberia. The society has applications from 500,000 persons for passage and homes in the Liberian Republic, thus showing that there is some deep-seated cause impelling the colored people to seek a change of residence. The number of emigrants sent will depend upon the amount contributed. The chief difficulty of the society is to restrain those who are not likely to succeed and be useful, and to obtain the means for settling others.

ALBERT PERRIN, for many years foreman of the Chollar mine at Virginia City, threw himself down the Standard shaft, at Bodie, on May 30, and was instantly killed. Deceased had been in town several days and had acted so strangely as to cause suspicion of his sanity. He was visiting the Standard mine, and on the 400-foot level he walked to the shaft and asked the foreman the distance to the bottom. On being told, he plunged down headforemost.

PLANS for the excursion to meet Gen. Grant at San Francisco are about matured, and J. B. McMillan will issue from his headquarters at the St. Nicholas Hotel, New York, shortly, a formal announcement. The fare from New York to San Francisco and return will be $150, and from Chicago and return $125. Tickets are good for sixty days.

THE two handsome gray stallions, presented to Gen. The Arabian beauties are in fine condition, and will probably be sent to their owner's farm in the West.

ST. LOUIS puts in a claim for the prize savings bank defalcation. The cashier of a certain bank and a confederate outside have managed, by an elaborate system of checks, drafts and other papers, to rob the bank for three years without being detected, and have succeeded in making away with $300,000 of the funds.

PROF. NORDENSKJOLD has arrived in his steamer the Vega, at Behring Strait, demonstrating thereby the practicability of making a northeast passage from Europe to the eastern coast of Asia. The Professor will return to Europe by way of the Suez Canal.

WHILE the Interoceanic Canal Congress at Paris is eliciting a large amount of information on different routes, it has so far failed to show that any of the Central American schemes would yield a fair return on the capital needed to carry them into effect.

THERE were four men executed last week in this State. If that proportion is kept up long enough the tendency will be to make murder odious after awhile—leastways, less popular.

A LATE dispatch from Simla says that the treaty of peace between Great Britain and Afghanistan was ratified on the 1st instant, and a salute of thirty-one guns was fired in honor of the event.

TROY DYE and Edward Anderson were hanged in Sacramento on May 29th. The crime for which they suffered was the killing of A. M. Tullis, in order that Dye, who was Public Administrator, might administer on his estate. As the time grew near for the execution Dye became apparently insane, refusing to recognize any one, and uttering fearful howls. Physicians, who were considered experts on insanity, were called in, and they decided that Dye was shamming. On finding that the "insanity dodge" would not work, Dye stopped it, but was so badly frightened and showed himself at heart such a pitiable coward that he had to be held up during the execution. Anderson ascended the scaffold smiling and carried his bravado to the last. A post mortem examination of the brains of the two men was made, at the request of Dye's friends, who had strong hopes of proving that Dye was insane, and not responsible for the fiendish murder. The examination, however, failed to show any symptoms of insanity. Clark, Dye's partner, is still to be tried for complicity in the murder, and Lawton, one of the assassins, is still at large.

WE are not at all oblivious to our own manifest importance in the great, yet but partially understood, newspaper world; still we had no hope of getting a "dead head" from the "New York and Manhattan Beach Railway Co., and Starin's River & Harbor Transporta- Co.," lines to go to Manhattan Beach "any day day in the year." But such is the fact in the shape of an invitation and an illuminated card, and they want us to be there on the 14th instant, which is the grand opening day. Wonder, now, if the affair will go off right if we shouldn't personally be there Starin around that day?

Underground Telegraphy.

The Philadelphia papers publish an account of an interesting invention of a system of underground telegraphy by Mr. David Brooks, an electrician of that city. The invention was owned by the Brooks Underground Telegraph Construction Company, organized in Philadelphia in December, 1877. The sole right to the use of the system in the United States has been purchased by Gen. Stager, of Chicago, one of the Vice Presidents of the Western Union Telegraph Company, and President of the Western Electric Manufacturing Company. The purchase was made by Gen. Stager for his own personal benefit, and not on account of or for use of the Western Union Telegraph Company. Mr. Brooks, the inventor of the system, has, for some time, been considering the practicability of running telegraph wires under ground. Many experiments had been tried both in Europe and America, but with little success, as the system either proved too costly for practical use or failed on account of the absorption of moisture in the iron pipe, which interfered with the current. To overcome the latter difficulty, Mr. Brooks experimented with rosin, paraffine, shellac, asphaltum and pitch, but without success. He finally tried oil, which he used in the following manner: Taking a number of small wires, not more than fifty, he wrapped them in cotton, making each a separate medium of communication, and bundled them together in a tight netting; these were thrust into a pipe and the pipe laid; oil was then introduced into one end of the pipe and the entire space filled with the fluid, the source of supply being an elevated vessel being always kept full so as to secure a constant pressure on the oil already in the pipe. This latter plan is a success.

A NUMBER of Grant's near friends in New York, who are in constant correspondence with his party, are exerting themselves to delay his return. They had been hoping that he would not arrive at San Francisco till late in the Autumn, or early in the Winter, when it would be possible, as they thought, to occupy him on the Pacific Coast till toward Spring. The intention then was to have a triumphal tour eastward that should increase in force and influence until the conventions. They have now heard that the General expects to land in San Francisco certainly by September and possibly before. This is disconcerting all the plans, and an effort is to be made to either delay the party in Japan or send it to the Sandwich Islands, and then after a tour in Oregon and Southern California, to take a jaunt of considerable length in Mexico. Urgent letters in favor of a late arrival in the central portion of the United States have gone forward both from New York and Philadelphia. —Washington Dispatch to the Cincinnati Gazette.

THE Constitution having been adopted, all good citizens are bound to accept it as a finality, and to do all in their power to secure good laws under it. On this point there can be no difference of opinion, no matter what may have been a man's position on the subject of its adoption. Honorable and intelligent men ought to be elected to office, and this should be the only qualification demanded.—Fresno Expositor.

AN Englishman was boasting to a Yankee that they a had a book in the British Museum which was once owned by Cicero. "Oh! that ain't nothin'!" retorted the Yankee. "In the museum at Boston they've got the lead-pencil that Noah used to check off the animals that went into the ark."

"FATHER, what is a philosopher?" "A philosopher, my son, is one who reasons. But why do you ask that question?" said the father. "I thought," replied the youth innocently, "it was some one who didn't mind anything." The old man patted the boy on the head and smiled.

The Robertson Furnace.

We confess to being a little shaky on new processes for working silver ores. So many of the new-fangled theories have failed of late that one must be led to conclude that the best mode was discovered years ago. The Robertson furnace is the newest thing out. It is reported to be a brilliant success. The Reno Gazette has this to say of it:

The best judges of this country who have seen the tests made of the Robertson process, by Mr. Treadway, are thoroughly convinced that it is by far the best way of working ores, even if it is not all its inventor claims it to be. Every kind of rock which has been brought to him has been worked at a cost which indicates that any rock which has five dollars per ton in it, will pay cost. Of course there is a great difference in ores, in point of roasting, some taking more fuel and time than others, but undoubtedly the cost of working is very low. The simplicity of the work is at once its recommendation and its danger. With only three ingredients it seems almost impossible to catch the precious metals in all their chemical forms. If the process is capable of working large quantities of ore, a great revolution will take place in the mining industry in Nevada. Everybody who can raise $2,000 will buy a Robertson furnace, and if any place can be found to put the metal at a decent price, Nevada will be the richest State in the Union. It seems to be a certainty, however, that if all the vast masses of rock that contains over five dollars to the ton in silver can be made to yield it up, there will have to be new uses for the metal, or there will have to be poorer sales at lower prices.

The foregoing is taken from the Eureka Sentinel. Like that paper, we are specially quizzical about such claims of new processes, the story having become tiresome from regular and numberless repetitions. The Gazette need not fear of a lower valuation of gold and silver from the effect of thus reducing the millions of tons of low-grade ore, though we should like to see the era come to pass.

ONE of the most destructive and devastating tornadoes that has visited Missouri for many years made its appearance at Independence, in that State, on May 31. When first observed it resembled a huge inverted funnel, and laid waste everything in its track. An immense amount of property is reported destroyed and many lives lost. The persons who witnessed the terrible scene at a distance of but two hundred yards, felt no effects of the cyclone whatever. All the bodies were covered with thick bluish sulphurous mud. After continuing in its fury for a distance of three miles, it suddenly burst, and the report was like that of a volley of artillery; it then rose high in the air and changed its course. The awful happening has cast a pall of sadness over the entire community of that portion of the State.

DESPITE the precautions taken by the British authorities, cholera in a severe form has broken out in India, threatening to be as disastrous in its consequences as was the visitation in 1867. The disease is said to have originated at a religious fair at Hurdwar, where about a million of people had assembled. The streams of returning pilgrims are now carrying the disease in all directions toward their houses, and outbreaks are already reported from almost every city and village in Northern India.

GREAT excitement is occasioned in some localities by the report that silver has been discovered at Brownwood, Texas, 126 miles southwest of Dallas. An assay of the oar proves the vein a rich one, and a rush has commenced. —Iowa City Republican.

Not desiring to appear vain or o'er critical, we will inform our Eastern contemporary that according to that bright lexicon—Webster's Dictionary—his orthography of the mining terms used is slightly mixed in a mineralogical sense. "To a dictionary get thee, to a dictionary!"

IT is a singular circumstance that though any number of crowned heads have during the last century been exposedto the attacks of assassins, the only head of a state who has fallen in that way was the President of a Republic—Lincoln, and the only monarch put to death on American soil—Maxmillian, of Mexico.

THE New York Herald, referring to Gen. Sutter's condition and the efforts making to procure $50,000 from the General Government for his relief, suggests that the rich Californians who were benefited by Sutter's generosity to the Americans in early times might themselves raise twice $50,000 in an hour.

THE proprietor of the Pullman car invention reports that paper wheels have run 400,000 miles under his cars without repair, while the average running power of an ordinary wheel is from 55,000 to 60,000 miles.

IT is reported that there is the sum of £20,000 lying in the Bank of England--deposited there by some zealous botanist—as a reward to be given to the man or woman who shall produce a blue dahlia.

HON. CHARLES FOSTER has been nominated for Governor of Ohio by the Republicans.

A LADY who recently visited Mountain Meadows says that they are now the very picture of desolation. Before the Mormons murdered 131 innocent men women and children there in 1857, the Meadows were known far and wide as a paradise in the desert, with an abundance of grass, crystal streams and ever flowing springs. To-day the grass is gone, the water courses dried up and nothing but a weary waste marks the once beautiful spot. God's curse is upon it, as it is upon those who murdered the innocent emigrants, and the rude monument, upon which is inscribed: "Vengeance is mine, I will repay, saith the Lord," is there to keep green in memory the terrible scenes enacted by a murderous and rapacious priesthood. The earth, our informant tells us, is sinking, and the bones which were gathered up after the massacre have thrice been buried, but will appear to tell the tale. Settlers in the vicinity say the place is haunted, and the winds bring to their ears piercing cries for help, which echo back to the mountains and plain. —Salt Lake Tribune.

IT has been customary from time immemorial for Courts to request attorneys to defend impecunious prisoners, notwithstanding the fact that no pecuniary allowance is ever made for their services. Judge Clark, of Sacramento, requested a young attorney of that county to take charge of the defense in a case of this kind some four months ago, but the lawyer declined the honor, seeing that there was no compensation attached to it. The refusal was adjudged a contempt of Court and a small fine inflicted. On Thursday the right of the Court to compel the attorney to undertake the case was argued in the Supreme Court upon a writ of habeas corpus. The decision was against the attorney, and it may therefore be regarded as now settled that Courts have the right to demand such services from members of the bar.—S. F. Call.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

ASSESSMENT NOTICE.

BROWN MONSTER MINING COMPANY. Location of principal place of business, San Francisco, California. Location of Works, Independence, Inyo County, California. Notice is hereby given, that at a meeting of the Directors held on the 27th day of May, 1879, an assessment (No. 1) of Ten Cents per share was levied upon the capital stock of the corporation, payable immediately in United States gold coin, to the Secretary, at the office of the company, No 222 Sansome Street, up stairs.

Any stock upon which this assessment shall remain unpaid on the 11th day of July, 1879, will be delinquent, and advertised for sale at public auction; and unless payment is made before, will be sold on THURSDAY, THE 31st DAY OF JULY, 1879, to pay the delinquent assessment, together with costs of advertising and expenses of sale.

ANDREW WHITE, Secretary.

SHERIFF'S SALE.

BY VIRTUE OF AN EXECUTION ISSUED out of the District Court of the Sixteenth Judicial District of the State of California, in and for the County of Inyo, in the suit of John J. Gunn and Wm. T. Grant, Plaintiffs, against Sheldon Collins, T. P. Rundelet and Richard T. Ashman, partners doing business under the firm name and style of Sheldon Mining Company, Defendants, upon a judgment rendered in said Court on the 23d day of May, A. D. 1879, for the sum of Three Thousand Dollars, besides costs amounting to the sum of Sixty-four 65 100 Dollars, duly attested the 31st day of May, A. D. 1879, whereby I am commanded to make the amount of $3,064 65 100, besides accruing costs and interest, I have levied upon all the right, title and interest of the said Defendants in and to the following described real property, to-wit:

All those certain lodes, leads and mining claims known and designated as the Light House, the St. George, the Alpha, the Panamint Visor Hamlet, the St. Louis, the Atlantic, the Safety and the Dictator mines or lodes. Also, the Grant Springs or water right; the South Gulch Spring and the Schofield Spring. Also, 1 five-stamp quartz mill and building, with boiler, engine, pans, vats and settlers, office building, blacksmith shop, one large tent and the mill site upon which is erected said five stamp quartz mill. Also, four water tanks, and water pipes leading from said springs—all of the above described property being situated in the Lookout Mining District, County of Inyo, State of California, and standing on the records of said Inyo County in the name of Frank S. Collins.

Notice is hereby given that on SATURDAY, THE TWENTY EIGHTH DAY OF JUNE A. D. 1879, between the hours of 9 o'clock A. M. and 4 o'clock P. M., to-wit: at the hour of 1 o'clock P. M. of that day, in front of the Court House, in the town of Independence, County of Inyo, State of California, I will sell all the right, title and interest of the said defendants in and to the above described property, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to satisfy said judgment and all costs, at public auction, to the highest bidder or bidders, for cash in hand in gold coin of the United States.

WM. L. MOORE, Sheriff.

INYO INDEPENDENT.

SATURDAY, JUNE 7.....1879

MODOCK OFFICIAL LETTER.—The official letter of the week is as follows:

June 2, 1879.

J. W. Pew, Esq., Secretary Modock Con. M. Co.:—DEAR SIR: We are now running drill in face of tunnel and are prospecting by side drifts near 300-foot and 1100-foot points. Started drift at 300-foot on small clay seam, it appearing to be stringer from old stope. In running a few feet we have come into soft ground, crystallized lime and ledge matter, with some ore in the face. At 1100-foot point, from which assays reported in last letter came, we are carrying in the copper stains upon which we started and yesterday found a little ore in ledge matter. Ground at both these points works very easily, and good headway will be made in the drifts.

Hope to have something of importance to report from these points at an early day.

Our air pipe from shaft to face of tunnel is working to our entire satisfaction, doing away with blowers and giving better air than we have ever had in tunnel.

Yours, respectfully,
A. C. TIBBETTS, Supt.

KEARSARGE.—The recent fine developments in the Kearsarge, under Supt. Gray's persistent workings, are now the principal topic on the streets and elsewhere. Certain it is, that the showing made is of immense importance to the mine, and indirectly to all others on the hill. For the present, and in lieu of a report in extenso soon to be given, we may briefly state that in the long tunnel, about 600 feet from the surface croppings, is now opened a continuous vein 240 feet in length. The ledge matter at face of tunnel is 12 feet wide, in a perfect formation and carrying a vein of rich ore about one foot in width, which at three points widens to between three and four feet. Two of these ore chutes have a respective length of 40 and 60 feet. The face of the tunnel, 940 feet in, is still in ore and on the same ledge. A number of lateral drifts have been run from the main tunnel, but the principal point of interest at present is in the west crosscut, where on Thursday last was struck a stringer of rich quartz which is leading into the Kearsarge ledge proper—the one which was followed down 97 feet by the winze in the old works, the crosscut being 140 feet below the bottom of said winze. In this ledge or feeder is found small pieces of the same class of blue sulphuret ore as appears above, assaying into the thousands. Mr. Woodhull's assays of the ore from the main tunnel run from $163 in gold and silver up to $1,200 in silver per ton. The ledge casings and gangue matter contains from $9 to $30 per ton.

A TOUGH TRIP.—Sheriff Moore started out Thursday last on an official visit to Resting Springs, or Tecopa, in the extreme southeastern portion of the county—a trip not calculated to imbue a man with a perfect confidence that he would ever get through with at this time of the year. The distance by road is 300 miles, but Dad proposes a shorter cut, involving a five days' ride and crossing the center of Panamint and Death Valleys. Of the intense heat, absence of water and unknown trails of this country, it is not necessary to speak. He goes there to levy attachments upon the furnace and mill property, at the instance of Los Angeles creditors.

UNION CON.—A rumor prevails at Lone Pine that the Union Con., at Cerro Gordo, has made a heavy strike of lead ore in the long drift from the 900-level of the new shaft. Its course is southwest, and cuts under the old Jefferson deposit. The statement is made that 10 tons of ore can be taken out per day, and that the full extent of the ore body is yet unknown. Such is the generally accredited statement, but we can not vouch for it; our correspondents in that region have dried up and the ways of Belshaw's company are past finding out.

BEVERIDGE DISTRICT.—From W. L. Hunter, Esq., who was in town yesterday, we learned that he is getting matters in readiness for starting up the steam arrastras at Beveridge District. A small force has been kept at work during the Winter, and a respective depth of 50, 100 and 150 feet attained upon three of their mines, all of which have proven good so far. Chandler & Co. are working in the next cañon north and J. R. Hughes & Co. in still the next one, all in the same general gold belt and upon very promising mines.

LET UP, SOMEBODY.—The poor San Francisco Chronicle has been bull-dozed again, in its published account of the organization of a New Constitution Club at Lone Pine. In its report the localities, halls and names are fearfully mixed. The fact is, no such thing has occurred, and the Chronicle's home-made slush will do its cause more injury hereabouts than if it let our county alone altogether.

BULLION.—During the week Wells, Fargo & Co. shipped 925 ounces of Brown Monster bullion, valued at $3,000. Also, 20 ounces of gold from the Schulte arrastra, Alabama District, worth $350. Westerville's Fish Spring arrastra shipped last night 18 ounces of gold bullion, valued at about $300.

FINE SPECIMENS.—We are indebted to our old Comstock friend, "Roxy" Robinson, now a resident of Benton, for a lot of handsome specimens of the peculiar rich ores of that district. Thanks, Rox; and "may yez be happy and live long."

ASSESSMENT.—The Brown Monster Company has levied an assessment (No. 1.) of ten cents per share, aggregating $5,000, delinquent July 11; day of sale, July 31.

DEATH OF WM. T. DAVIS.—Monday morning last the town of Lone Pine was startled by the report that Wm. T. Davis had been found dead in his bed, and upon investigation such proved to be the case. From the testimony taken before the Coroner's jury and from other sources the general facts may be given that on the day previous he had been unusually hard at work, and after supper complained of fatigue, stating that he would go home and lie down. Repairing to his room he did so, and that was the last seen of him until found dead the next morning. Though no autopsy was had, it appears beyond a doubt that he died of aneurism of the heart, he having been subject to some trouble of the kind for several years past. The jury rendered a verdict in accordance. "Billy" Davis, as he was usually called, was a native of Massachusetts, and about 49 years of age at the time of death. He was a man without a blemish of character, esteemed throughout the county as a warm-hearted friend, a sober, industrious and honorable man. He came first to this county in 1862, a soldier in Gen. Evan's command, 2d Cavalry California Volunteers, and followed the fortunes of that regiment until its discharge. He then went to Nevada, where he followed his trade as a machinist and blacksmith. He was a member of Washoe Lodge, No. 8, I. O. O. F., of Washoe City (which has since surrendered its charter), and was a member of a leading brass band. He returned to the valley in 1870, we believe, and for years was an employé in and lessee of A. Parker's blacksmith shop. In March, '77, he purchased the blacksmith business and property at Lone Pine, where he has been residing ever since. He leaves no relatives on this coast, unless, as is rumored, a brother, who some years ago resided in Washoe valley. A large concourse of the people of Lone Pine and the valley generally assisted in the sad burial rites, tendering a last tribute of respect to the memory of a man whose real and modest worth left none but friends behind him. Resident ancient Odd Fellows of the valley, represented by Hon. S. P. Moffat, T. A. Gardner, John Alexander, L. Wood, John Schulte, A. Parker, Dr. J. D. Blair, Wm. M. Boyd, Geo. Burkhardt, David Thomas F. P. Ball, —— Schroeder and others, took a leading part, and conducted the ceremonies so far as possible in accordance with the impressive rites of the Order as could have been done without a regularly organized Lodge.

SLOW.—Our local politicians and political bodies seem to be afflicted with a suprising indifference and inertness, especially at this time, just preceding a general State and County election of extraordinary importance. In some counties full tickets are already in the field, while exchanges from others are full of candidate's announcements. It is conceded by many that the straight Republicans have now a majority in this county, yet its authorized body has so far taken no steps toward the calling of a nominating Convention. The Democrats have laid out their plans in usual form, as published elsewhere. There are no indications of any "New Constitution" party or candidates whatever, nor is the county troubled with any "Workingman's" organizations of either the Kearney or Chronicle stripe. In the general melee, however, the main interest that our people has lies in securing a good set of honest and efficient county officers.

FREIGHTING. — Business with the Cerro Gordo Freighting Company has received an important addition from Lake District. So far, nine heavy teams have passed through, carrying about ninety tons of general freight, including three loads of heavy machinery for the Mammoth mill. Owing as much to the company's regularity as to its comparatively low rates, the great volume of Lake District freight will pass through this way, greatly to the advantage of the valley. Supt. Nadeau has sent some seven teams to Arizona, on an ore-hauling contract for the Vulture mill. New teams are being taken up and put on the road to supply the increasing requirements, indicating a general progression in business affairs throughout this region.

HIS SCHOLARSHIP.—Master Joseph C. Harris, son of our townsman Isaac Harris, Esq., has been gone so long—since '72—to school in San Francisco that many of the youth's old-time friends had come well nigh forgetting him. However, the recent school reports of the leading San Francisco papers record him as promoted honorarily in the Boys' High School, upon examination standing second in percentage among the promoted class, consisting of seventeen. At the closing exercises, his declamation of "Bernardo del Carpio" is highly spoken of. Good for our Inyo boy, the only troublesome reflection being in the matter that we have no high schools here of our own.

WILL CELEBRATE.—Bishop Creekers are arranging for a regular, old-fashioned celebrate on the coming Fourth of July. A barbecue, oration, poems, feasting, dancing and all that sort of thing is comprised in the programme. Bishop Creek is just the locality where such an affair can be carried to the completest possible point of success, and a full attendence secured from all over the valley.

LOCATED.—Mark Brannan, a former and well-remembered "comp." of this office, is slinging type and editorializing on the Tybo Sun, Nye county, Nev. He is indulging in many characteristic editorial amenities with our old Carson friend, Andrew Maute, of the Belmont Courier.

TO PANAMINT.—The revival of operations at Panamint will compel Assessor Dillon to again officially visit the old camp. It has been neglected for the past two years, but prior to that time cut quite a figure upon the assessment roll.

THE FACTS OF THE CASE.

CAMP INDEPENDENCE, June 3, 1879.

MESSRS. EDITORS—In your last issue, we noticed an article referring to the settlers near Camp Independence, Inyo county, California, saying that the several settlers were of one mind—that was, that Congress should give them the immediate right to purchase their lands the same as other settlers upon the public domain. We are of the same mind to-day, and have not given it up; we will proceed with the business as soon as practicable.

But you go on to say, in order to get the right, we had got up petitions praying for the removal of troops, and for the abandonment of the Post, that we might be allowed to obtain title to our respective claims; that lawyers and others were liberally feed to advocate the proposition; furthermore, that the agitation of the subject was so far successful that the troops were all finally removed or ordered away, but in all other respects the lands in question remained exactly as before.

We absolutely deny the foregoing remarks, for we never saw a petition of the kind; never signed such an instrument like that. I think that no one would have signed it if presented, for none I have met with have ever seen one for the abandonment of the Post or removal of the troops; therefore, the success ought to be credited to some different party, and not to the settlers near Camp Independence. Capt. McGowan has told me personally that he himself had recommended the removal of the troops at Camp Independence; also, spoke to me in regard to a complaint made by some citizen in the town of Independence about some blacksmithing done at the Post for outsiders, and also some water matters; that is all we know about that part, but we do not deny that we have petitioned Congress praying for the title on our respective claims, but not to interfere with the 120 acres occupied by the military and Post buildings—neither the grass and wood reservations and their water rights; that the said petition only called for certain claims occupied by the settlers for the last 15 or 16 years, and which were never occupied by the troops. Some have pre-empted in the Visalia Land Office 15 or 16 years ago, and ever since have had peaceable possession on said claims; have made this land valuable; in fact, changed alkali flats into splendid meadows; all of which will show for themselves, as may be seen by going to the records of the Assessor. My taxes of late years reached as high as $130 per annum; some of the settlers paid more and some less, and nearly two-thirds of it on real estate on the lands in question, which will satisfy the public of the industry of the farmers living on said lands. Who is more entitled to a patent for their lands than people who made them valuable? Still we hear a petition will be circulated by our Assessor, Mr. Frank Dillon, for the removal of the settlers near Camp Independence. That would only be an undertaking without thought. No person would be low enough to try and drive us from these lands, knowing that we have lived thereon for so many years, raised families and spent the prime of our lives on said grounds to help develop the country. If Mr. Frank Dillon, Assessor of Inyo county, had worked on said lands the same as the settlers have done, he would have melted some of those starched collars; then Frank would not talk that way, and soon conclude it better not circulate a petition of that kind; that it would be better to circulate a petition to obtain titles for these settlers, for it would be of more value to the county of Inyo to keep industry here instead of driving it away. We shall feel sorry if that is the remedy you are going to propose hereafter; but let it come along; Congress will do what is right with us.

JACOB VAGT,
And other settlers.

COUNTY COURT.—Court met on Monday last, June 2. Thos. May, in bankruptcy, was declared insolvent, and no creditors appearing, Sheriff Wm. L. Moore was appointed assignee. The case of May vs. Mairs was called on, and upon motion Sheriff Moore was substituted as plaintiff and the case continued for the term.

PHOTOGRAPHER.—Mr. Hildreth, the popular phographer, will Monday next leave with his gallery for Lone Pine for a short stay.

THURSDAY last Hon. Thomas Fowler received four car-loads of machinery for the Empire mine mill. It will be put up as soon as possible. The Mineral King Mining District will be the chief of the State. Numerous persons are wending their way into the mountains. Hundreds of people are prospecting and laying claims. It is the general opinion that this Summer will demonstrate the fact that this district will be found to be second to none. The mines are about 60 miles east of Visalia, and a good wagon road is now almost completed to them. The confidence of those interested is firm and great results are anticipated. Hurrah for Mineral King. Eleven more carloads for the mill are now on the way. —Tulare Times.

WAYMIRE, of the Chronicle, went as a secret commissioner to examine the Comstock. They found him out; took him into all the hot drifts, showed him birdseye porphyry for rich ore, sweated him, joshed him, fagged him out and filled him up to the neck with taffy. A forthcoming issue of the Chronicle will contain an interesting report of his examination of the mines.—Stock Report.

THE coming Mechanics' Fair promises to be an improvement on any heretofore held. Application for space by future exhibitors, are more numerous than ever before so early in the season. There are new features under consideration, which, if carried out, will add greatly to the attraction of the coming fair. In view of the increased requirements of future exhibitors, an addition is being made to the pavilion at the end toward Mission street. The interior arrangements of the pavilion generally, are also to be changed—even to the music stand and the fountain. The machine space will also be enlarged in expectation of larger exhibits of mining and other machinery. — Scientific Press.

A Paying Mining Property.

Some gentlemen, residents of San José, among whom are several who were pioneers in mining in Eastern and Southern Nevada, recently obtained title to a series of mines in the old Montezuma District, about fifty miles southest of the famous Northern Belle mine, and associated themselves into a company called the Montezuma Mill and Mining Company. John Howell, an experienced mining man, and the most successful reducer of refractory ores on the coast, was put in charge of the property, which under his intelligent management has developed into a paying proposition, and the result is that next month the owners will receive a handsome dividend.

The property consists of twenty-seven locations, including nearly every known ledge in the district, of which number seven are opened in a systematic manner and are now producing bullion. The ores are reduced in a ten-stamp mill provided with a Howell rotary roasting furnace — acknowledged by all millers of base ores to be one of the most complete and successful chlorinizing furnaces extant.

Montezuma District is in a well-wooded and watered section, and near by is an inexhaustible deposit of salt, which circumstances combine to make the cost of reduction of the ores very light in comparison with districts not possessing those advantages, and the present cost of working the ores from the dump into bullion is about $12 per ton, which, as the cost of mining is also light, leaves a handsome margin of profit even on ores of an inferior grade. The rock, however, is not what might be called low grade. It is divided into two classes, and the average yield of the first class so far has been about $250 per ton, and of the second class about $60.

The mines are worked on the tribute plan—a sort of co operation between miner and mine owner—which works to the mutual advantage of both, but by which small or medium-sized veins are worked much more cheaply than under the wages system.

The mill has been in operation something over two weeks, and the run on the first 100 tons crushed produced $13,000 in bullion, and since then the ore has improved in grade. There are now some 500 tons of ore on the dumps, and the breasts in the mines are yielding faster than the mill can reduce the dumps, with no sign of decreasing either in quantity or richness. In fact, the owners begin to think they made a mistake in not building their mill of larger capacity at the outset, and feel that it will have to be increased ere long.

The Montezuma property is as yet a private enterprise, no stock being in the market. Its success is an evidence of what pluck and energy, aided by a a little capital and scientific appliances for reduction, may do in a mining way. Montezuma is an old district, the wealth of whose mines has been known for years, but owing to the intractability of the ores and the lack of facilities and proper knowledge for their treatment, the early prospectors who discovered and tried to work the mines were starved out, and the district remained in obscurity and its mines unworked until these San José gentlemen inaugurated the enterprise of the Montezuma Mill and Mining Company, which has given the district new life and brought it to light as an important factor in the bullion production of the State of Nevada.—Stock Report.

THE immigration to Minnesota during the last ten months has exceeded anything in her past history, and the immigrants, in many cases, are farmers of means from other Western States, who have been allured thither by the wonderful productiveness of the upper wheat regions. The increase in the wheat crop will be large the coming year.

The Robertson Process.

Capt. I. N. Taylor, the well-known mining engineer and metallurgist lays the following strictures upon the Robertson process:

Some of the friends of this process have said that I had done it an injustice by condemning without giving it a fair trial, and as I never condemn anything without what I consider sufficient cause for so doing, I herewith give some of my reasons for what I have said on the subject:

Some two months since I was requested to go to Oakland by some moneyed men of this city, for the purpose of making a test of this Robertson process. Prior to this, however, I had sent over one pound of Meadow Lake ore to be tested, and got a return of about $50 per ton, nearly or quite all there was in the ore. In compliance with this request, I took over a few pounds of the same ore and requested Mr. Robertson to treat it in my presence. First breaking the ore in pieces, the size of a walnut, he placed it in a common assaying furnace, heating it to a cherry red, and while in this condition, he dropped it into a solution, which he called a chemical bath; he then gave me the ore, saying the base metals were all destroyed, and that all that was necessary to be done was to pulverize it, when the gold would amalgamate.

After pulverizing the ore to a fine powder, as directed, and thoroughly washing it in a horn spoon, I failed to find the slightest trace of free gold with the aid of a powerful glass. The iron sulphurets which the ore contained were in nearly the same condition as before treatment.

I then condemned the process, so far as this particular ore was concerned. Neither before nor after the test did I believe there was any real merit in the process.

About the 20th of May, I received a letter from a gentleman in Colorado, who, being largely interested in base metals, and having seen a description of the Robertson process in the Sacramento Bee, requested me to investigate it at his expense.

I wrote to Mr. Robertson, requesting him to appoint a time when he would meet me in Sacramento and give me an opportunity to test his process on a large scale. Up to this time I have received no reply.

Both Sacramento and Reno papers claim that the most refractory gold ores in both of these places are being worked by the process up to a per cent. equal to a fire assay.

The treatment in question, by which the result is obtained, as I understand it, is to first run the ore to be treated through an ordinary rock-breaker, after which it is heated in a roasting furnace to a cherry red, when it is thrown into a chemical bath, which, it is claimed, oxidizes, desulphurizes, and neutralizes it, ready for the amalgamating pan. The chemicals used in the preparation of this bath, consist of one pound of cyanite of potassium, one pound of sulphate of copper, and ten pounds of common salt, to a ton of ore.

Now, it is a well known fact that all gold ores, in their natural condition after their crystallization in fissures, are combined with iron, sulphur and arsenic, and often with other base metals having no affinity for quicksilver. The gold can not be amalgamated until the baser metals are destroyed, and this can only be done successfully by fire.

In order to prepare ore of this character for amalgamation it must first be pulverized to a fine powder, and then roasted with great care, in order to get a satisfactory result. If the ore is put into the furnace when at a high heat, the arsenic will volatilize the gold, and both pass off in the fumes.

The heat, therefore, must be raised gradually, until a point is reached that eliminates the arsenic and sulphur, after which a temperature high enough to oxidize the iron can be added.

The furnace must be so constructed as to allow every particle of the ore to come in contact with air, while at a proper state of heat, for if allowed to remain in bulk it can not become thoroughly oxidized. Ores carrying a large per cent. of iron, such as the Meadow Lake, can not be oxidized in bulk by the Robertson or any other process; and no man who understands this subject will squander a dollar in trying it, any sooner than he would waste his time and money on perpetual motion, if he understood the simplest laws on terrestrial physics. In one case he would know that nothing could go into motion and continue unless there was present an active principal. In the other he knows that iron can not be oxidized without coming in contact with oxygen combined with fire—the only known elements in nature that will do it—and this result can not be produced any other way than by crushing the ore to an impalpable powder.

In this conclusion I will say to every miner (however much he may desire a process which will work his ores with a profit), if any man claims that he has a process by which he can work rebellious gold ores for two or three dollars per ton, by amalgamation, you may depend upon it he does not understand the subject he claims to treat of, or he is trying to play on the credulity of the mining public, and to make money out of something that he knows to be a fraud.

ENGLAND never sleeps, never loses a point. English capitalists have projected three different railway lines, aggregating 850 miles in length, into the interior of Africa, from points on the east coast. It is said that these roads will open up 1,200 miles of navigation lakes and rivers, and bring trade to 300,000,000 of people.

Grant Cramming for a Book.

It is perfectly wonderful to think of the amount of studying Grant is doing and with what zeal he is improving his mind all the time. A friend of mine, who was with him frequently in Paris, said that while there, notwithstanding he was the object of almost constant adulation, every meal a banquet, with every night a reception by some high dignitary in his honor, he yet found time to make a long and deep study of the communism of 1871 and the revolution of 1789. Every day he would gather some of the learned French statesmen and historians and talk for two or three hours on a specific part of this topic, and would then direct them to read and make notes of his investigations on the subject. At times he would go to the prisons and talk with some of the famous communistic leaders still incarcerated; or again, he would have some of the officers who captured the barricades come to him and give him their testimony on communism with a gun or petroleum can in its hand. In Spain, England everywhere, it was always the same thing with Grant—he was quiet, philosophical and contemplative, and modest under all circumstances, and though nations are waiting to do him honor, he always preferred the reserve and unostentatious society of the family, traveling friends and a few learned men of the country which he was visiting, to the pomp and display of royal honors. I predict that when Gen. Grant again rests on his native land, not only will he be the greatest living military chieftain, but he will be the greatest traveler and the best posted man on foreign affairs that has ever lived. He will be a man of the great world in the grandest sense of the term. The gentleman who told me about his Parisian habits says Grant expects to write a journal of his travels and memoir of his life when he returns, and that he will probably remain in private life to do it.—A Congressman's Account of Grant as a Traveler.

Death of General Shields.

Gen. and ex-Senator James Shields died suddenly at Ottumwa, Iowa, on the 1st instant, where the General was temporarily staying while on a lecturing tour. The deceased has long been a prominent figure in American affairs. In the early part of the present year he was elected to the United States Senate by the Missouri Legislature, to supply the unexpired term occasioned by the death of Louis V. Bogy. During the last Congress Gen. Shields was a candidate for Doorkeeper of the House of Representatives, but was defeated. His career was a somewhat remarkable one. He came to this country in 1826, being then about 16 years of age. In 1832 he settled as a lawyer in Illinois, and four years later became a member of the Illinois Legislature. In 1839 he was elected State Auditor in Illinois, and in 1843 became a Judge of the Supreme Court of the State. He took part in the Mexican war, was gazetted a Brigadier General in 1846, and was severely wounded at Chapultepec. In 1848 Gen. Shields declined the Governorship of Oregon Territory, but the next year was elected United States Senator from Illinois for a full term. In 1859 he was elected to the United States Senate from Minnesota. In 1860 the deceased came to California, and remained here until the breaking out of the war of the rebellion. He saw some service in that war until resigning his position in 1863. Soon after he settled in Wisconsin, but subsequently removed to Missouri. The General was not successful financially in his old age.—S. F. Bulletin.

WE read that the giant Farragus, slain by Orlande, nephew of the celebrated Charlemagne, was 18 feet high. Fanum, a Scotchman, who lived at the time of Eugene II., King of Scotland, measured 11½ feet, and La Marte, in his voyage to the Straits of Magellan, reports that on the 18th day of December he found at Port Desire several graves covered with stones, and having the curiosity to remove them he found human skeletons 10 and 11 feet long. Coming to more reliable evidence, it seems certain that a height of even more than 9 feet has been attained. In the museum of Trinity College, Dublin, there is a skeleton 8½ feet in height. In the museum of the Royal College of Surgeons, in England, is another 8 feet and 2 inches in height, and another in the museum of Bonn 8 feet. The giant who was shown in Rouen in 1835 measured 8 feet 4½ inches. The Emperor Maximin was 1 inch shorter. Skenkins and Platerus, physicians of the last century, saw several of that stature, and Goropins saw a girl, 19 years of age, who was 10 feet high.—Troy Times.

PEOPLE who bewail the rascality of the present generation may find some comfort in reading the following extract from a letter written by Chief Justice Marshall to Judge Archibald Stuart, about the close of the last century: "Seriously," says Judge Marshall, "there appears to me every day to be more folly, envy, malice and damned rascality in the world than there was the day before; and I do verily begin to think that plain, downright honesty and unintriguing integrity will be kicked out of doors."

SAYS JONES: "When I see Mrs. J. in the clothes yard, both arms as red as burnt lobsters, bared to the elbow and stretched high above her in their struggle with an unruly sheet, an apron over her head, her hair in her eyes and a clothespin protruding from her mouth, it seems impossible that she is one and the same with the Miss Stebbins I used to feed on peppermints and about whom I used to rave so."

W. P. C. CONVENTION.

The Workingmen's State Convention came off last week in San Francisco pretty much according to programme. The Chronicle to the contrary notwithstanding, Denis Kearney was duly elected permanent President of the Convention and of the W. P. C. If proceedings are correctly reported, this was Denis' great opportunity to prove himself the most bullying, outrageous and arbitrary, yet senseless presiding officer that ever disgraced any party's convention. It is astonishing, indeed, that such a man can have any following at all; but he does, so we'll drop that part of the subject. A full State ticket was put in nomination, but does not stay nominated very well, several of the nominees having already refused to accept. Strange enough, even Ten-per-cent. Downey won't be Governor, and thereby make sure that the N. C., for which he worked so hard, shall be properly administered—guess he will continue to exact his per cent. on loans as heretofore, regardless of the W. P. C. and N. C.

One W. F. White, of Santa Cruz, finally got the nomination for Governor, and gave warm thanks for the same, his wife having told him to do so, as he himself stated. We are glad for her sake that Mrs. W. has such a dutiful husband.

When the other nominees get done withdrawing from the ticket, and Denis gets their places filled, we will try and give the list of candidates; just for the present, it would be a waste of space.

THE Tulare jury in the case of W. J. White, for the murder of Dr. Mehring, after being out twenty hours, came to the conclusion that White hadn't killed anybody—anyway, that he was not guilty of murder as charged in the indictment. White was duly discharged, and now, as for some time heretofore, is living serenely with Mrs. W., the same as before Dr. Mehring died of heart disease, or whatever it was that caused his sudden death, and so much trouble to Mr. White.

THE Ohio Democratic State Convention, and the Greenback State Convention, met at Columbus on the 4th instant. The Democrats nominated Thomas Ewing for Governor. The Greenback convention split, and Generals Carey and Shotwood, and others who participated in it, held a meeting afterward denouncing the action of the convention, and adopted a resolution calling for another convention to meet at Toledo June 17, to nominate a new ticket.

THE President has sent to the House and Senate the proceedings and report of the Board of Officers in Gen. Fitz-John Porter's case, saying he is without power in the absence of legislation to act upon the recommendation of the report further than by submitting the same to Congress. The proceedings and conclusions of the Board are transmitted for information of Congress and such action as in their wisdom shall seem expedient and just.

NEXT Tuesday the Republican trouble at Sacramento begins. As neither of the appointed delegates for this county could borrow enough hard coin to go down on, they did better by delegating their powers to H. C. Bunker, a stalwart Republican, and well known ex-Inyoite. No instructions as to State officers, or any others, save for James Bell, of Tuolumne, for Railroad Commissioner.

ON the 10th instant, Gov. Irwin, in accordance with law, made the official canvass of the State, for the late election, showing that the total vote cast was 145,212, of which 77,959 were in favor of the new Constitution and 67,134 opposed; majority in favor, 10,825.

THE Standard is gloryfying greatly at the extent and value of the newly-discovered bonanza in the Bodie. We would like to gloryfy some, too, had we some similar local provocation.

LOOKS like Mono county wasn't going to suffer for candidates. A dozen or two have already formally announced themselves, with the P. H. B.'s yet to hear from.

EX-SENATOR SARGENT says Grant will unquestionably be the Republican nominee for President in 1880, provided he consents to take the nomination.

THE Hon. Theron Reed announces himself as a candidate for the office of Superior Judge of Kern County.

THANKS.—Representative Wigginton has our thanks for a volume of valuable public documents.

AN IMPORTANT OFFICIAL.

Under the above caption, the San Francisco Bulletin calls attention to some of the novelties in the administration of justice provided for in the new Constitution, and particularly to the District Attorney's office, remarking as follows:

"Offenses heretofore required to be prosecuted by indictment, according to section 8, Article 1, are to be prosecuted 'by information after examination and commitment by a magistrate, or by indictment, with or without examination and commitment as may be prescribed by law.' This change introduces in part the European continental system to which the Grand Jury—a distinctive Anglo-Saxon institution—is unknown. District Attorneys hereafter will exercise functions somewhat similar to those of the public prosecutors of France and Germany. They will stand at the door of the Temple of Justice, and no one can be brought before the judgment seat without their consent. In the case of powerful criminals, they will be subjected to a pressure which a Grand Jury could resist, but against which only individuals of abnormal backbone can stand up.

It follows, that in nominating for the office of District Attorney no one should be selected but a man of known independence of character, firmness and ability. With a weak or corrupt District Attorney crime will go unwhipt of justice. If he neglects to perform his duty, we do not know where any power is lodged to straighten him out. But the system has not yet been fully outlined. The Constitution has devolved on the Legislature the power to fully define the duties and responsibilities of these officers. The Grand Jury is to be summoned once a year, but it can be of little use ever again in the administration of justice, provided the new rule should be found not to be in conflict with the Constitution of the United States. Its main function in that case will be in a sense political—to ascertain how the local government is administered rather than to ferret out crime. There are several other changes, for instance, that jury trials may be waived in all criminal cases not amounting to felony, by the consent of both parties, expressed in open court. In cases of misdemeanor the jury may consist of 12 or any number under 12 upon which the parties may agree. Depositions may also be taken in the presence of the accused, other than cases of homicide, when there is reason to believe that the witness, from inability or other cause, will not attend the trial.

But the main modification is that which substitutes an individual in the person of the District Attorney for the Grand Jury. At the hands of a fearless and determined officer no apprehension of evil results need be entertained. Under the rule, the District Attorney may be regarded as one of the most important officials in the State. On him, in the main, will depend not only that the guilty shall be punished, but that innocent persons shall not be subjected to the pain and annoyance of trial for imaginary offenses."

THE other day, in San Francisco, an ex-married man, named Charles White, tried to kill his fool self because his sweety gave him the mitten. What a scarcity of men there would be if every one that got the mitten had to take a cup of cold pizen immediately thereafter! Don't you take the cold cup, young man; don't do it. Outside of Eureka, Nevada, every time a girl gets married some man has to suffer the same fate; so a mitten needn't discourage you.

THE now famous Ponca Indian habeas corpus case came up at Omaha, on the 4th inst., before United States Judge Miller, on appeal, but the Indians having been discharged without bonds for their appearance, Judge Miller refused to hear the case; and the decision of Judge Dundy, that Indians off their reservattons can not be arrested and taken back, must be the law until Congress passes some act covering the grounds.

ACCORDING to the Weekly Letter, Ben. Alverson and some more of them up at Benton don't like it a bit the way the political managers at Bodie are treating Benton in the matter of apportioning Delegates, and, in consequence, have gone right away off and organized, or prepared to organize, a regular H. B. party of their own. Benjamin, how often have we told you that he that bucketh will surely get bucked?

THE Chronicle seems to be getting tired of so many "josh" or bogus dispatches, and offers a $300-reward for the detection of the senders of such. Some Inyo smarty will get nipped yet. As everybody knows, the Chronicle won't condone a lie or fraud of any sort—except when circumstances demand it, of course.

GOV. IRWIN has issued a proclamation, dated on the 7th instant, declaring the adoption of the new Constitution.

RUSSIAN NIHILISM.

The first Nihilist societies were formed by Russian students about the year 1859, and the doctrines they adopted were chiefly derived from a book which is not generally supposed to have any Nihilist tendencies, Buchner's "Force of Matter." The circulation of this work in Russia was forbidden by the Government; but it was secretly introduced into the country, and read with avidity by the Russian youth, together with another German work, by Max Stirner, called "Property and the Individual," which had also fallen under the ban of the Russian censors. Out of these two books, the former of which preached materialism and the latter socialism, the Russians evolved the docrine of Nihilism, which they also professed to find in other popular works, notably Buckle's "History of Civilization." The new Nihilist societies were formed among the students of the Agricultural College of Petrovski, near Moscow. The Government treated the students with extreme severity; many innocent young men were confined in prison for many years without trial, and it was at this time that Vera Sassulitch, who was 13 years old, was imprisoned with his brother for three years. After the Franco-German war the Nihilists adopted the Pan-slavist cause, and thereby gained a certain amount of popularity; but the acquittal of Vera Sassulitch again directed their attention to home affairs. They turned round upon their persecutors and threatened them with death, believing that Russian society would hail them as its saviors if they should succeed in destroying the bureaucracy that fetters it.

THE Subsidiary Silver bill, introdcued by Senator Booth, has become a law, receiving the President's signature on the 10th instant. There is another silver bill pending, being the one introduced by Warner, of Ohio, which differs materially from the Booth bill. The terms of the latter, now the law, are epitomized as follows. It relates to subsidiary silver coin below the dollar, and is intended to do away with the discount upon half-dollars, quarters and ten and five cent coins. Its main features are: First, that such subsidiary silver coin may be exchanged by the holder at the office of the Treasurer of the United States, in sums of $20 or any multiple of $20, for currency. Second, that such silver coins of less denomination than one dollar shall hereafter be a legal tender for all debts, public or private, to the amount of ten dollars in any one payment. The instant effect of this law will be to raise subsidiary silver coin to par with currency and gold. The poor man's dollar is worth as much as the rich man's. The only remaining question is: How is the poor man to get his dollar so as to make the comparison?

J. J. AYRES, of the Los Angeles Express, has received the Workingmen's nomination for Member of Congress from this district. We can't say that we think he is running in or being run by a very commendable crowd—that Kearney crew—nevertheless, we do think there are a good many less capable, less reliable men even now in Congress than this same J. J. Ayres. While a member of the late Convention he did as much, if not more, in giving shape to the new Constitution than any other man. But we don't admire that part of his work worth a cent.

A BAND of Indians, supposed to be renegades from San Carlos reservation, Arizona, have been marauding for three weeks. The results to June 5, given by the military headquarters at Prescott barracks, are that Captain Byet overtook and fought the renegades in the Mimbres mountains, killing four, among them their chief Terrifia, and wounding four. So far the Indians have killed five men and run off considerable stock. The military are pursuing their usual vigorous policy and will soon have them in hand.

ACCORDING to a careful computation, the number of daily and weekly papers and other periodicals published on the surface of our globe is 23,291. Of this number there are in Africa 50, in Austria 100, in Asia 387, in America 9,129, in Europe 13,625. Among European countries England publishes the largest number of journals, viz., 2,500; after which come France, 2,000; Italy, 1,226; Austria, 1,200; Russia, 500.

THE famine in Cashmere is very serious. Great distress prevails throughout the country. Many towns and villages have been depopulated. The authorities are sending assistants. Official reports say it is impossible to exaggerate the distress the famine is causing there.

A DEEP well at Stockton, Kansas, has run dry, and is emitting sulphurous fumes. Mr. Dappin, firmly believing that the bottom had fallen into hell, maintains a position day and night at the opening, with an axe at hand, ready to kill the devil when he emerges.

Honorable Bilks.

Nobody can hereafter say that Inyo county has no new Constitution or H. B. Club duly organized of its own. Following are the whereases and resolves and appendix of proceedings as adopted and sent to us for publication by G. H. Gregory, Secretary:

Preamble and resolutions of the New Constitutional Club of Cerro Gordo, Inyo Co., Cal. Organized May 31st, 1879:

WHEREAS, The new Constitution has been adopted by the people of the State of California without regard to past political affiliations or party lines, by a large majority, and it must be conceded the brilliant victory of the 7th of May was achieved by the united efforts of the honest, intelligent and thinking men of all political parties over the combined forces of monopoly, fraud and corruption.

Resolved, That we denounce the dishonorable means resorted to by the monopolists to defeat the new Constitution in the late campaign, by threats, intimidation, corruption and fraud, and a general system of bull-dozing.

Resolved, That we can see no national or political issue involved in this campaign. The struggle is between the people and their heartless oppressors; therefore let us organize and unite together in harmony that we may be better prepared to meet the enemy and advance to victory in September next, and vote to secure the rights guaranteed in the new Constitution.

Resolved, That we extend a general invitation to our fellow-citizens of Cerro Gordo to join this club for the coming campaign, and that we will unite and work together and will use our individual efforts to elect State, Legislative and Judicial officers who will administer and enforce the laws and reforms adopted by the people as expressed in the new Constitution.

Resolved, That we will not vote for any man for the Legislature who will not pledge himself to use all the means within his power to pass laws to prohibit and discourage the immigration of Chinese into this State, and to delegate all necessary power to incorporated cities and towns to remove them from within the limits and to enforce the law which prohibits all companies and incorporations from employing them, and to use all their powers to drive them from the State.

Resolved, That we heartily indorse the sentiments of the San Francisco Chronicle in exposing and denouncing that political fraud and bogus reformer, Denis Kearney, the self-constituted dictator and bull-dozer of the sand hills, who has betrayed, sold out and deceived his blind followers into the hands of their enemies. Fire him out! Kearney and the Chinese must go.

THOMAS HENNING,
CHRISTIAN ZINKARD,
THOMAS COONEY,
Committee on Resolutions.

On motion of W. R. Johnson, Postmaster, these resolutions were unanimously adopted, and ordered to be published in the San Francisco Chronicle and THE INYO INDEPENDENT; and after three rousing cheers for the Chronicle and the new Constitution, the meeting adjourned to June 21, at 8 o'clock P. M.

[Foregoing is a grand "goak," as submitted for publication, and, in addition, we take the responsibility of absolving Bill Johnson from any real participation in the matter, even if there was any reality about it—which is dubious.]

AMONG the passengers on the five o'clock train to Virginia the other evening, was a family that was decidedly mixed. First in prominence came a negro—a regular old plantation darky—next to him sat a white woman with two small children, one about five years old and the other a babe at the breast. These two children were about two-thirds black, with one shade of white and hair just perceptibly kinky. In the next seat sat two daughters, one about 18 and the other 10, who were perfectly white. They looked like a happy family, paying no attention to the remarks made of them by fellow-passengers, and white and black children joining in calling the "nig." papa, and the Caucasian female mamma. Our reporter took out his little pencil and figured out the conglomeration thusly: The woman was originally married to one of her own color, by whom she had the two daughters above mentioned; the husband died, ran away, got a divorce, or something of that kind. The woman met the "gemmen of color," and the result was, she loved, he loved, and finally, "bof ov 'em loved." They were spliced, and the result was the production of a mixed kind of color-blending humans.—Carson Tribune.

THIS afternoon on D street a drunken Piute Nihilist attempted to assassinate Winnemucca, Chief of the Piutes. He rushed upon the old Chief with an uplifted knife, when Captain Sam interfered and grabbed the assassin's wrist, thereby saving Winnemucca's life. The old Chief was very grateful to Sam for his timely interposition, and presented him with an old brass medal given him by General Custer and valued at fourteen cents. The would-be assassin had no known motive for his murderous attempt. It was probably mere whisky frenzy.—Virginia Chronicle, June 7.

NAUGHT from naught and nothing remains. Tail from tadpole and frog remains. If a man devotes seven hours in one night to the political conversion of two leatherheads who had already made up their minds that they would not be converted, what will be the result of the September election? Two chromos are offered for the proper solution of this conundrum. —Benton Tri-Weekly Letter.

PAPER AT LAKE.—We learn that a gentleman and his two daughters are on their way from San Francisco with a press and material for a tri-weekly paper at Mammoth City, Lake District. —Bodie Chronicle.

IT is stated that a furnace for the reduction of five tons of ore per day, by the Robertson process, is being made in this city to be used at Silverado. —Los Angeles Express.

DIED.

At Big Pine, Inyo County, Cal., June 7, 1879, THOMAS E. BELL, aged 57 years.

The circumstances of Mr. Bell's death were peculiarly sad. That morning he had gone to his work plowing among his vines and trees, apparently in his usual health. About 9 o'clock he came to the house for some purpose, and in his talk with his wife and children, seemed unusually buoyant and happy. Less than an hour after he had returned to his plow, his little son saw that the team was standing still in the field, and wonderingly went to see what was the cause; the child found his father lying motionless on the ground near his plow. Running to the house, some three hundred yards distant, with the dreadful news, Mrs. Bell called some Indians at work in the garden "to come!" and ran to where her husband was lying. With the help of the Indians and the children she carried him to the shade of a tree close at hand, and did everything in her power to bring back life, but all in vain. No doubt is entertained but something like heart disease was the cause of death.

Deceased was a native of the State of North Carolina, but has passed the greater part of his life in this State, landing in San Francisco in June, 1850, just twenty-nine years prior to the day of his death. For thirteen years he has been a resident of this valley. Besides a wife and five small children, for whom he lived to love and cherish in unbounded affection, deceased leaves two brothers, of whom he was the youngest, to mourn his loss. These brothers, James and Andrew N. Bell, are prominent and much respected citizens of Tuolumne and Inyo counties respectively.

Thomas E. Bell, the deceased, though by nature perfectly unobtrusive upon public attention, was widely known, and by all acknowledged to be a man absolutely above reproach. No man has ever questioned his perfect integrity in his dealings between man and man. His highly moral and temperate habits and domestic taste, won for him the respect of all who knew him. He was industrious and enterprising almost to a fault.

So passes away the loved and loving husband, father, brother, friend; another of California's Argonauts; another of that brave band of Owens Valley pioneers; another from among our noblest men! So closes the earthly labor of a man whose strong heart never tired in doing the work of a good man. "While yet in love with life, and raptured with the world, he passed to silence and pathetic dust." He had reached the stone in life's highway which marks the highest point, when his name is read from the Grand Roll, and he is called to lay his burden down. Though the night of death crept upon him with scarce a moment's warning, we can but believe so good a man met it without dread of its darkness, or a pang of regret, save for the sorrows of the loved ones left behind.

MODOCK OFFICIAL LETTER.—The official letter of the week is as follows:

June 10, 1879.

J. W. Pew, Esq., Secretary Modock Con. M. Co.:—DEAR SIR: Total length of tunnel, 1000-foot level to the morning of the 9th, was 1,702 feet. Face of tunnel in soft, easy breaking ground with some ledge matter. Both side drifts are looking as well as ever; that at the 1100-foot point carrying the same favorable indications as stated in letter of the 6th. Have a fine wall on the east side of the drift, the whole face being in ledge matter, with occasional spots of ore. This drift is now in 18 feet, and making good headway. Drift from south end of old stope 300-foot point, is now in 85 feet from line of tunnel. Face is in good ground for ore as at any time since starting. Everything is running smoothly; good air at all points in tunnel.

Yours, respectfully,
A. C. TIBBETTS, Supt.

KEARSARGE MOUNTAIN.—The Mountain View and the Castle Bar mines, belonging respectively to J. H. Cook and P. Clinton, are now accessible by horseback, the owners having been engaged for the past month in making a trail connecting with the one between the Rex Montis and Shawmut series. About two miles of work was necessary. The Castle Bar location touches the U. S. mineral monument on the summit of Kearsarge, 13,700 feet above the sea. From the Rex Montis trail below, Cook's cabin, on the Mountain View mine, appears to form the very apex of the peak, the steep roof pitching at the same angle with the mountain sides. The mines are upon the same ledge, which crosses the summit in a general north and south direction. The ledge is reported as being one of the largest on the hill, and the immediate object of opening trails is for the purpose of shipping ore to the Rex Montis mill.

FOR A NEW REGISTER.—While we think about it, we would respectfully suggest to our Honorable Board of Supervisors, that it would be a very good thing to take steps for an entirely new registration of all the voters of this county, as provided for by law. (Section 1094, Political Code.) Such a new Great Register and registration can not be of any avail before the election of 1880, but it will be none too soon to order it, even at the next regular meeting. It requires six months' notice to be given before the new registration can begin, and as much more time in which to complete it will be none too much. All told, there are about 1,560 or more names on the present Great Register, and at least 750 of them represent voters who do not exist within our county limits—very many of them are dead and others as good as dead, having gone to Bodie.

MIXED.—The following communication doubtless explains itself—at least, we presume so. It is dated at Bishop Creek, June 10, and runs thusly:

"MESSRS. EDITORS—To-day by the hands of Messrs. Woolard & Wright the first shipment of bullion has been made from this locality. Ahem!—you bet your life!—to Lake District, which we hope will reach its destination in good shape and without molestation on the way, provided that the carriers do not stop too many times on the way or are stopped too many times on the road—I don' tknow which this may be. Why for? How is it? Can't say. You know how it is yourself. J. H. S.

COMING OUT.—In this issue the following-named gentlemen announce themselves candidates, in order of tine, offices, tickets, etc., as follows: John Crough (present incumbent), County Clerk—Democratic Convention; Geo. M. Gill, Esq., District Attorney—Republican Convention; A. R. Conklin, Esq., Superior Judge — Republican Convention, and Omie I. Mairs, Assessor—Republican Convention. Not one of these gentlemen need to be introduced to any old Inyo voter, or to mighty few if any new ones. We will try and make room for a few more announcements next week.

SCARCE.—If the result of the Assignee's sale of the Broder property last Tuesday is not an indication of the scarcity of cash in this region, then we may conclude a hundred cents in gold would bring about two cents in paper cash. The total value of the property, mostly real estate, may be roughly rated at about $100,000; all of this, subject to a secured debt of about $15,000, was sold to Judge Conklin for $500. This tends to prove two things, first, that money is very scarce here, second, that the bankrupt law is a gold bonanza (?) for creditors of bankrupt estates.

COME ALONG.—Those parties who want to be candidates for any of the numerous offices to be filled had better send in their names for formal announcement of intention while there is yet time and room. Next issue we'll have a "whole grist on 'em."

STATE TAXES.—The amount of Inyo County taxes paid to the State on account of present semi-annual settlement was $1,763 03, which was remitted by County Treasurer Isaacs on Monday last.

SCHOOL TRUSTEES.—There are three School Trustees to be elected for this School District, and for which an election has been ordered pursuant to law, to take place on Saturday, the 28th day of this month.

GONE BELOW. — V. G. Thompson, mine host of the Blaney House, went below last week with Dely, the convicted bridge-burner, in charge for San Quentin. Mr. T. is expected home this evening.

The Irving School.

WEST BISHOP CREEK, Inyo Co., Cal., June 10.

MESSRS. EDITORS: Inclosed herewith you will find notice of an election to vote a tax for the purpose of repairing our old school house or to build a new one, which you will please insert in your paper for three issues.

It is generally supposed that we have taxes enough, without voting more, but to educate the youth, and by so doing correct the morals, strengthen the mind, stimulate the energies and make better men and women mentally, morally and energetically of those that are to follow us, than we are, should be our great ambition in this world. When we build good comfortable school houses, and beautify the play grounds surrounding, we are spending our money judiciously, and taking one step that tends onward and upward. It makes my blood run cold in my veins when I hear a parent say one word against paying money to build school houses or towards keeping schools. I do hope, and feel confident, that the qualified voters of this School District will vote the tax asked for, and from time to time add to it until we have our school and everything pertaining to it in such a condition that we may all feel proud of the effort we have made.

Very respectfully, yours,
J. L. BOURLAND.

CONVENTION CALLED.—By advertisement elsewhere, it will be noticed that the Republican County Convention is called to meet in this place on the 7th of July, the same day fixed for a similar display by the Democrats. It is to be hoped that every good citizen will do all he can, first, to send good and full delegations to both Conventions and that they in turn will drop all questions of mere expediency, and name only such candidates for the many offices to be filled as they may wish to see elected. If the said good citizen won't take that much present interest in this important matter, he ought hereafter to hold his clatter if his neglect of duty permits "poor sticks" to get the offices. If you want to reserve a right to "clatter" hereafter, you must do something now to earn that right. "Put up or shut up" is the briefest way of stating the duty of every good citizen in the matter of preparing to choose rulers.

SCHOOL MONEYS.—Following is the apportionment of school moneys just made (June 10) by Supt. Symms, and closing up the apportionments for the present school year:

DISTRICTS.	APPORTIONMENT.
Bishop Creek	$63 82
Big Pine	29 72
Cerro Gordo	14 86
Darwin	49 83
Independence	41 09
Irving	37 59
Lone Pine	47 21
Milton	37 59
Round Valley	37 59
Union	17 49
Total amount	$376 79

DON'T GO.—It will be noticed in a communication and advertisement elsewhere that an election has been ordered to vote for or against a tax by which to raise funds ($600) to build a new school house at Bishop Creek, Irving School District. It will also be noted that the order is to keep the polls open from 10 o'clock A. M. to 12 M. The point we wish to make is that that won't do; not a cent of a tax so voted can be collected by law; the polls must be kept open precisely as in any general election, i. e., from an hour after sunrise to sunset. The Trustees will do well to look into this matter.

LEFT US.—Tuesday last John Alexander bid this section a final adieu, intending to seek his fortune in some of the adjacent camps northward. Though we have in times past had occasion to "lock horns" with John upon issues of a public nature, he has our warmest wishes for his success in his new field of operations wherever that may be. He is one of the original settlers of this county, and in shaping the destinies of which, including its organization as a county, has always taken an active and very often a prominent part.

NOT ANGRY.—As two or three months have elapsed since the occurrence, we have finally arrived at a frame of mind in which to speak of it in a perfectly calm and impassionate manner—cooled off, so to speak. But we would like to see the small boy that tangled up our telegraph line put under a pile-driver and mashed into the middle of the earth. We pity the parents that are responsible for the existence of such a malicious devil—that is, referring to the matter in our usual spirit of serene and unprejudiced judgment.

FOR LAKE.—Geo. Rowan has moved the whole of his extensive mercantile establishment from Benton to Mammoth City. We notice that a large portion of the loads of goods passing for Lake are for his establishment. George is popular and as straight up and up merchant as any country can boast of, and we are glad to know that his chances are first rate for a big success in Lake. See his new advertisement in this issue.

IN NEW HANDS.—The old Pioneer or Broder butcher establishment of this place is now under the proprietorship of Judge Conklin, with the same old Tom Webb as engineer in immediate charge. The Judge wants the fact known that he knows what good beef is, and that he proposes to furnish that kind only. The change in management took place last Tuesday. See the new ad.

AGENCY.—Mr. John F. Kopp, of Mammoth City, has been made agent of this paper at that important point. THE INDEPENDENT will be found on file at his place of business, where subscriptions and general orders will be received.

KEARSARGE.—Supt. Gray has to-day favored us with a beautiful specimen of ore from a new body just coming in at the face of the main 950-foot tunnel, on the ledge and level referred to last week. The piece, weighing about one pound, is peculiarly bright and handsome, being white quartz carrying gold and dotted with iron pyrites. More than half the piece, however, is heavy black and blue mineral, carrying sulphur, lead and probably some antimony—but mainly silver, as shown by the simple blow-pipe test, which causes the pure metal to stand out in globules. In truth, there can be no doubt of its very high grade, and no question but that the mill and Buckner furnace can handle it. As progress is being made the whole face of the tunnel, in ledge matter, is becoming impregnated and interspersed with these blue sulphurets, characteristic of the richest Kearsarge ores.

GONE EAST.—Mrs. Geo. McCrary and party, who were expected to pay a visit to relatives in this locality, started on the long trip thither about ten days ago; after making about forty miles of the journey, Mrs. McCrary was taken so ill that she was compelled to give up the trying journey. Sending word to her brother, Mr. Gelatt, to this effect, he made the quick drive mentioned elsewhere, in order to see her. The whole party, except her son, started on their return East. Mr. McCrary a promising young man of about twenty, came down here with Mr. Gelatt, designing to visit Arizona before returning home. His principal object in this is on account of health considerations.

NEEDS ATTENTION.—A portion of the fence encircling the Post Cemetery has fallen down, and the remainder is in bad condition. A day's work for two or three men, together with a few new posts, will restore it to passable repair. Our citizens ought to see to it by all means. In other respects the grounds are kept in good order.

QUICK TRIP.—Mr. Gelatt, of the Post, drove his little brown mare in a sulky from the Post to Genoa in 34 hours' traveling time, the distance being 240 miles. This is doubtless the quickest trip for a single horse on record for that road.

FOR BODIE.—Paul Bennett, Esq., started Thursday last on his return to Bodie, intending to move thence with his family and be back here by the 1st of July.

POSTPONED.—The day of sale on the Emigrant assessment has been postponed to July 15.

A NEW YORK dispatch to the Louisville Courier-Journal gives what purports to be a secret history of the settlement of the Vanderbilt will case. It states that the compromise had been agreed upon before hand, and that William H. Vanderbilt was compelled to accept to prevent his cross-examination by Scott Lord, Cornelius Vanderbilt's counsel. The latter had warned the millionaire that he must expect a rigid examination into his private affairs, and must not only tell how much he was worth, but in what speculation he had made or lost money since his father's death. Mr. Vanderbilt could not stand this opening up of his money bags under the eyes of the greedy Wall-street sharks, and gladly gave his brother a million dollars rather than have it done.

THE BEST SPEECH.—The Santa Rosa Democrat says the best speech made at a meeting held at Santa Rosa to form the Chronicle's new Constitution party was that of Dr. Boyce, who, when called upon for an address, approached the President, Major Brown, and said: "I intend to tell the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth—swear me." The Major declined to swear the Doctor, who then proceeded in substance as follows: "You (pointing to the gentlemen most prominent in the meeting) are all candidates for office, and have made your speeches. I am not a candidate, and decline to make a speech." The effect was stunning, and the doctor retired in silence.

IN Chicago preparations are being made to take down the telegraph wires and bury them in the ground. The new scheme involves the running of the wires through iron tubes, the wires being wrapped with cotton and the tubes filled with paraffine oil, so as to secure complete insulation.

GEN. GRANT has sailed from Shanghai for the White House, by the way of Japan, San Francisco and a swing around the circle east of the Rockies. He expects to reach the desired harbor in a trifle over twenty-one months—wind, weather and John Sherman permitting.—Chicago Times.

THE Jersey City Herald wants the office of President of the United States abolished. It insists that there is no use of it, and is convinced that it is growing more and more a disturbing element in our political system every year.

THE Zulus believe in the transmigration of souls after death into serpents, and every family has its pet snake. If this dies or strays away it is looked upon as an omen of evil.

MR. ROBERT LINCOLN and Mr. Stephen A. Douglas are both practicing law in Chicago, and both are growing in fame. Who knows but history will repeat itself in Illinois in connection with these two names.

THE President has nominated Secretary McCrary for the United States Supreme Court. It is possible that the Senate may refuse to confirm his appointment.

DION BOUCICAULT has just had a steam yacht built for him at Newberg. It is nearly 200 feet long, beautifully fitted up, and is capable of a voyage around the world.

RUSSIA is about to add a number of swift cruisers to her fleet. Every country in the world seems able to build ships except the United States.

INYO INDEPENDENT.

SATURDAY, JUNE 14.....1879

AFTER the Franco-German war the French Government was obliged to borrow 1,530,000,000 francs of the Bank of France to meet the first demands of the Prussians. The whole of this sum has been returned to the bank, the last 60,000,000 francs having been paid withing the last two months. In spite of the Commune, and of all the other political obstacles, the gigantic operation has been regularly carried on. The circulation of bank notes was never disturbed, and the bank, authorized by law, was enabled to increase its paper issue without seeing its notes suffer any depreciation. The consequence, says the Pall Mall Gazette, was the forced currency was merely nominal, and that few persons were aware that it was legally abolished on the 1st of January. After the war notes of one, two, three, five, twenty, fifty, and a hundred francs were in circulation. Gradually the smaller notes disappeared, and now it is not easy to obtain even 100 franc notes, while the metallic reserve in the bank is larger than it was at the close of the Empire.

IT is said that Caleb Cushing's estate will not pay his debts. The New York Times says of him: "He had lived to be well nigh eighty; he had been thirty-five years a widower; never had any children nor any one dependent on him; he had, to the last, extraordinary health; he had filled important and remunerative positions; had enjoyed a large practice, which should have been very lucrative, and had always lived most simply and economically. Nevertheless, he died poor, as so many men of intellect and culture have done. He had a most remarkable talent for mental acquisition—he had one of the best stored minds of his time—but scarcely any faculty for money getting."

A DES MOINES telegram to the Chicago Tribune says that Justice Samuel F. Miller, of the United States Supreme Court, in his address to the State Bar Association, spoke of the cases and opportunities which tend to develop good lawyers, and said the Beecher trial was not one of them. That he characterized a mockery—a reproach to the Court, the profession and the public. "It was a theatrical performance; the Judge, the counsel and the parties were the actors, who kept themselves before the public for three months, more by the spiciness of the play than any merit of the performance. Great lawyers are not made in that way."

IN a tavern in Calcutta there is a notice hung on the halls: "Guests are requested not to beat the waiters and servants." This recalls the supplication in a London inn: "Do not kiss the servants on the stairs; it makes them drop the dishes;" and the solemn admonition printed and stuck on the only "hotel" in Blue Dog Gulch, Arizona: "Gentlemen are earnestly requested to remove their boots before retiring."

THE London Times says of the new California Constitution: "If all the notions of the reformers who put forth their panaceas for the regeneration of the human race during the Paris Commune were embodied in a document, they would not appear wilder, more absurd, more menacing, than many of the provisions of the Constitution which now regulates the existence of dwellers in California."

THE other day Mr. Watterson of the Courier-Journal, accused Mr. Hendricks of engaging in a conspiracy to defeat Mr. Tilden's nomination next year. Hendricks' organ, at Indianapolis, pronounces this a "sheer falsehood, disgraceful to the paper which published it and to the shallow, rattling liar who wrote it."

AFTER an enthusiastic lover spends two hours' hard labor over a letter to his girl, and then mars its beauty by spilling a drop of ink on it, he first swears in a very scientific manner for a few moments, and then draws a circle around the blot and tells her it is a kiss.

RAILROADING does not not always pay. During the year 1878 forty-eight railroads were sold under foreclosure, representing $151,616,700 of capital stock, and $160,014,500 of bonds and debt.

THE Chicago people have quietly stored, in a convenient place, five tons of ammunition, in case their Nihilists undertake their promised outlawry in July.

AND now comes that Bismarck will materially restrict his offerings of silver hereafter, and, perhaps, withhold his remaining stock altogether.

MRS. BURTON thinks the Koh-i-Noor is the cause of England's bad luck, and wants it given to England's greatest enemy.

BEFORE sailing for Europe Modjeska's husband filed a declaration that he intended to become an American citizen.

WITHIN three months more English officers have been killed than were lost at Balaklava or Inkerman.

SHERIFF'S SALE.

BY VIRTUE OF AN EXECUTION ISSUED out of the District Court of the Sixteenth Judicial District of the State of California, in and for the County of Inyo, in the suit of John J. Gunn and Wm. T. Grant, Plaintiffs, against Sheldon Collins, T. P. Rundelet and Richard T. Ashman, partners doing business under the firm name and style of Sheldon Mining Company, Defendants, upon a judgment rendered in said Court on the 23d day of May, A. D. 1879, for the sum of Three Thousand Dollars, besides costs amounting to the sum of Sixty-four 65-100 Dollars, duly attested the 31st day of May, A. D. 1879, whereby I am commanded to make the amount of $3,064 65-100, besides accruing costs and interest, I have levied upon all the right, title and interest of the said Defendants in and to the following described real property, to-wit:

All those certain lodes, leads and mining claims known and designated as the Light House, the St. George, the Alpha, the Panamint View or Hamlet, the St. Louis, the Atlantic, the Safety and the Dictator mines or lodes. Also, the Grant Springs or water right; the South Gulch Spring and the Schofield Spring. Also, 1 five-stamp quartz mill and building, with boiler, engine, pans, vats and settlers, office building, blacksmith shop, one large tent and the mill site upon which is erected said five stamp quartz mill. Also, four water tanks and water pipes leading from said springs—all of the above described property being situated in the Lookout Mining District, County of Inyo, State of California, and standing on the records of said Inyo County in the name of Frank S. Collins.

Notice is hereby given that on SATURDAY, THE TWENTY EIGHTH DAY OF JUNE A. D. 1879, between the hours of 9 o'clock A. M. and 4 o'clock P. M., to-wit: at the hour of 1 o'clock P. M. of that day, in front of the Court House, in the town of Independence, County of Inyo, State of California, I will sell all the right, title and interest of the said defendants in and to the above described property, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to satisfy said judgment and all costs, at public auction, to the highest bidder for cash in hand in gold coin of the United States.

Ever since the world began one of the universal questions has been, "What shall we eat?" When Moses, the pioneer leader of the age that is far away in the dim depths of the past, started out with the children of Israel to find the El Dorado of milk and honey, they bothered him with the question "What shall we eat?" Once out in the desert, where nothing but sand below and a scorching sun above, appeared, these children murmured, and even threatened Moses. And from that time to this the universal question has been: "What shall we eat?" Science has been busy making improvements on sugar filled with animalculæ; on coffee full of chickory; on false tea; on pork full of trichinia; beef that has a tendendency to make a man gulpy; veal which makes putty-like complexions, and a vegetable diet which makes the ribs prominent. The latest thing is sawdust bread. The plan of making sawdust bread naturally follows the telephone, the phonograph and blue glass. When a man can bathe in blue glass and cure all the ills of life, talk a thousand miles and live on sawdust bread, the sublime hights of pleasure and economy have been reached. Prof. Anderson makes this discovery, and here is the recipe:

"First, free the wood from its bark; next saw it across into thin plates, and pound these plates to powder in a mortar, and mix the powder with the sawdust and thoroughly dry and boil the mass, and then grind the dried mixture into fine meal in a corn or wheat mill. The wood must be freed from everything bitter or soluble by boiling, exposed much longer in partly filled bags, and placed in running water for that purpose. The ground meal is mixed in thin, flat cakes with water and mucilage from mallows, or decoction of flax-seed, and baked. These cakes are then broken and ground fine and bolted, or passed through a fine sieve, and lastly mixed with leaven and baked for bread. The harder the wood the process of grinding and baking must be repeated."

What a revolution here! No more struggle for flour; no more domestic infelicity because of biscuit that are cold and heavy, or because there are none at all. Simply a peck of sawdust, a little mallow, a decoction of flax-seed, and the thing is complete. No more that plaintiff cry, "Please, sir, give me a penny to get some bread!" Get thee to a lumber-yard, sis; grind a plank and bake it. During cold weather the chicken coops and extra barn doors can be yanked into the staff of life. No more rolls heavy enough to mold into cannon balls; no more soggy loaves, soured with decayed saleratus and lumpy with unstirred paste balls; no more pancakes fit for soles of cavalry boots, but in their stead, light, airy, fleecy, angelic boards of sawdust staff of life.—Virginia Enterprise.

THE Deseret News of the 16th instant, speaking of the shipment of Polygamous Reynolds to the Nebraska Penitentiary, says: "He goes as a servant of the Most High God—sentenced by a human court for two years' imprisonment and a fine of $500, for obeying a commandment revealed from Heaven; and thus witnesses to God, men and the angels, that he regards a divine law superior to a human law, the latter having been framed in abrogation of the former." The News is the organ of the Mormon Church, and its utterances are authoritative. If there is any truth in the Mormon religion, and polygamy is a divine revelation, now is the time for the age of miracles to revive and release Reynolds the martyr from a Gentile dungeon.

A CORRESPONDENT reports this incident of a visit to Pompeii: We were about half way through the interesting old city, when one of our party, an American, stopped short and said: "Hold on a minute; who the devil was this Pompey, anyhow?" This is a fact.

Little Jots.

A man in Utica has been detected in the act of translating "Pinafore" into Welsh. Wghat! nvgr! wjell, hrdgly evjr.—N. Y. Commercial Advertiser.

The Norristown Herald says you can't convince a woman who is cleaning house that the woodwork is clean until she has nearly scrubbed all the paint off. But the painters must live, you know.

Andrew Jackson invariably spelled Whig with two g's, whereupon an anti-Democratic paragrapher says if "Old Hickory" were alive now he would spell Democrat with two d's and a dash.

The Sunday-school children of Brooklyn, fifty thousand strong, paraded on the 22d, to celebrate the semi-centenary of the Sunday-school Union of that city.

Why is it that many of our public men have Bright's disease of the kidneys, and but few of them Bright's disease of the brain? asks the London Telegram.

Parole, the American horse, is said to be an ugly-looking beast, with a rough coat and a head like a coffin. It is thought this is an English picture of the animal.

Ben. Franklin sold the bottle in which he imprisoned the lightning to a Jersey man. He and his descendants have been diluting it ever since, but it is said to be yet strong enough to paralyze a man at 300 yards.

A negro preacher described hell as ice cold, where the wicked froze to all eternity. Asked why, he said: "'Cause I don't dare to tell dem people nuffin else. Why, if I say hell is warm, some of dem ole rheumatism niggers be wantin' to start down der de very fus' froze."

A contemporary prints some verses entitled "The Dying Poet." But the lines don't explain whether he was pitched out of a third-story window or merely pounded on the head with a base-ball bat and kicked down stairs. However, it is gratifying to know he is dying.

They were both Indians, and on a visit to Sacramento from Nevada. Accompanied by their squaws, they paraded through K street. Each of the bucks wore a plug hat and other clothing. As they were passing up the street, a son of the Emerald Isle, who was driving a two-horse truck, pulled up his team, and to an ex-Mayor of the city thus relieved himself: "Phwat is it? Sure I thought this was the advance guard of a Plug-Hat Brigade procession, and that one was Terry and the other Howard!"

WEBSTER'S eloquent description of the British Empire is familiar to every reader, but we doubt whether it is generally realized that we, too, have a dominion on which the sun never sets. It will hardly be believed, perhaps, without an examination of the maps, that San Francisco, instead of being at the western limit of this dominion, is only about midway between our eastern and western limits; and yet it is a fact that the farthest Aleutian isle acquired in our purchase of Russian America is as far to the west of that city as Eastport, Me., is to the east of it. Between the northwestern limit of Washington Territory and the limit of Alaska there is a break of a few degrees, but, with the slightest deduction, our territory extends through 197 degrees of longitude, or seventeen degrees more than half way round the globe. Hence, when the sun is giving its good-night kiss to our western-most isle on the confines of Behring's sea it is already flooding the fields and forests of Maine with its morning light, and in the eastern part of that State is more than an hour high. At the very moment that the Aleutian fisherman, warned by the approaching shades of night, is pulling his canoe toward the shore, the wood-chopper of Maine is beginning to wake the forest echoes with the stirring music of the ax.—Rocky Mountain Presbyterian.

HOW TO ANCHOR HIM.—A beautiful young wife on the North Side has expended much ingenuity in devising some scheme to keep her husband home at nights, and it proves very effectual. She flatters her liege lord about the exquisitely dainty proportions of this feet, and induces him to wear boots about two sizes too small for him. He is on his feet all day long in town, and when he gets home at night she has a soft chair and a pair of loose, cool slippers for him, and by the time he, with great drops of agony pearling his brow, has got off his boots, he comes to the conclusion that there is no place like home after all, and has no desire to go down to the lodges, or to sit up with a sick friend. — Chicago Tribune.

SOME genius, who belongs to that class of people who are eternally finding out things that no one wants to know of, has discovered that every adult man has 1,400 square feet of lungs; or, rather the mucous membrane lining the air cells of his lungs, if spread upon a smooth, plain surface, would cover an extent of 1,400 square feet. Or a man might cut up his membrane into strips about the size of driving reins, and walk against his lungs in a foot match, 24 laps of lung to the mile.

FOUR hundred thousand persons, according to the Railway World, are employed on the railroads in the country, and five times that many depend upon the roads for support. It is also estimated that between $300,000,000 and $400,000,000 are annually paid to the employes and to the persons who furnish the companies with supplies of various kinds.

A Tough Business.

Every day reveals plainer and plainer the fact that Great Britain has the ugliest kind of an undertaken on hand in South Africa. Of all the wild tribes which Great Britain has tried to subdue, she has found nothing before like the Zulus. It is said that the present army there is as great as England's contingent in the allied armies sent to put down the Sepoy rebellion, and still more troops are called for, besides the 3,000 on the way under Wolseley. The fact that the General of the British army has been recalled from Cyprus and sent to take charge of the war against the implacable devils of Zululand, shows how great is the task which has been undertaken. So great has been the distress there that the bodies of the Britains massacred last Spring lay unsepulchered longer than did Custer's command. It is believed that Cetewayo has still some 40,000 warriors. He has burnt his rude capital and taken to the fastnesses of his unexplored country and there Sir Garnet Wolsely will have to pursue with this host swarming upon his flanks when not fighting in the open field. It is a war so full of danger and hardship and so destitute of glory that the British soldiers and their commander must hate it more than any other duty ever assigned them before. Of course there is but one termination. The Zulus will have to be subdued or killed, but surely it is a thankless task to search through the fever-laden jungles of Southern Africa for a naked foe who when found is so indifferent to life that to kill him is no victory.

BRIGHAM YOUNG, in the earlier and purer days of Utah Territory, before the Saints had been contaminated by Gentile contact, was as bitter in his hatred of lawyers as is Denis Kearney. He never missed an occasion of denouncing lawyers from the pulpit as liars and thieves. When the Gentiles came in and secular law began to be invoked in Utah, the Prophet got himself into trouble and was obliged to call in the services of that eminent lawyer, Tom Fitch, and other members of the legal profession to help him out. Like other great and wealthy Americans, Brigham left a will, but strange to say the instrument has, until within a few days since, escaped the clutches of the lawyers. But one of the daughters, a legatee under the will, has conceived the idea that the executors are stealing the estate, and has brought suit against them, and Brigham's will promises to be the fattest take ever seen for lawyers in Utah.

THE burglar who robbed the Receiver's office in Cherson of 1,500,000 roubles ($1,191,000) has been arrested. One million roubles ($794,000) were found upon him. This is a press dispatch from St. Petersburg. The Czar will not take the burglar into his back office, invite him to a seat on the sofa, order the colored boy to bring in a bottle of champagne, and open negotiations with him for the return of a percentage of the amount of money unrecovered. Not much! That burglar will be invited out into the plaza and tied up to a lamp-post and knouted. And then they will take him into court and deprive him of his civil rights and sentence him to be hanged in fifteen minutes from the date of sentence.

MINERAL WAX.—C. W Gilbert, who has just returned from Salt Lake, where he had another car-load of ore from the Linda Jo mine worked, brought some of the mineral wax recently found in Utah Territory. It is a remarkable substance. In appearance it resembles asphaltum, but its specific gravity is about the same as that of tallow. It melts at a temperature of about 150 degress, and when made into candles burns with a bright flame and emits a faint odor. The wax is found in deposits in a salty formation, in San Pete county, about 100 miles south of Salt Lake City, and it is thought that it will be valuable for a great many purposes.—Silver State.

THE Santa Rosa Democrat says the best speech made at a meeting held at Santa Rosa to form the Chronicle's New Constitution party was that of Dr. Boyce, who, when called upon for an address, approched the President, Major Brown, and said: "I intend to tell the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth—swear me." The Major declined to swear the Doctor, who then proceeded in substance as follows: "You, (pointing to the gentlemen most prominent in the meeting) are all candidates for office, and have made your speeches. I am not a candidate and decline to make a speech." The effect was stunning and the Doctor retired in silence.

A WRITER in the London Times, figures out that Italy will soon want $100,000,000 in silver for the resumption of specie payments on its fractional paper currency; Austria, $128,000,000; Spain, $60,000,000; Japan, $100,000,000, and Russia, $200,000,000. This makes a total prospective demand for the metal of $585,000,000.

GEN. GRANT is not expected in Japan until July. As the Japanese officials have arranged an elaborate and lengthy programme for his entertainment it is not likely that the General will reach San Francisco before the 1st of August.

BODIE beats the world, says the Standard, for weather. Within the past week we have had three days of heat, accompanied by a Sahara-like sand and wind storm, during which the dust sifted through our loosely-built houses like meal through a sieve, followed by three days of snow, hail and rain.

PUBLISHED EVERY SATURDAY, BY
CHALFANT & PARKER.
J. E. PARKER. P. A. CHALFANT.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.:

VOLUME X.

With this issue, THE INDEPENDENT enters upon its tenth volume and tenth year of usefulness. It still lives; it proposes to continue to do so. It is no less flourishing now than in times past; it has very high hopes it will never be any less so. It claims the respect due its respectable age—that and nothing more, unless its readers, old and new, see proper, of their own free will, to accord it something of credit for a continuous and unselfish claim to do the square thing with all mankind.

THE REPUBLICAN TICKET.

For Governor—Geo. C. Perkins, San Francisco; Lieut.-Governor—Gen. John Mansfield, Los Angeles; Secretary of State—Daniel Burns, Yolo; Controller—D. M. Kenfield, Tuolumne; Attorney General—A. L. Hart, Colusa; Clerk of the Supreme Court—Frank Gross, San Francisco; State Superintendent—Fred. M. Campbell, Alameda; State Treasurer—John Weil, Sacramento; Surveyor General—I. W. Shanklin, Alameda; Chief Justice—A. L. Rhodes, Santa Clara; Associate Justices—A. P. Catlin, Sacramento; James E. Hale, Placer; I. S. Belcher, Yuba; Garret E. Richards, Yolo; M. H. Myrick, San Francisco. State Board of Equalization, Second District—M. M. Drew, Sacramento; Third, Warren Dutton, Marin; Fourth, James A. Clayton. Railroad Commissioners, First District—Joseph S. Cohn, Tehama; Third District, C. H. Phillips, San Luis Obispo. Congressmen, Second District—H. F. Page; Third, Joseph McKenna, Solano; Fourth, Romualdo Pacheco.

TWENTY-ONE members of the present Senate are natives of Kentucky, New York and Ohio. Jones, of Nevada, was born in England; Jones, of Florida, in Ireland, and Beck in Scotland. Only twelve States are represented in the Senate by their native-born citizens, viz: Massachusetts, Connecticut, Vermont, Delaware, Indiana, Virginia, New Hampshire, New York, Pennsylvania, Tennessee, North Carolina and Georgia. The ages of Senators range from 70 down to 38 years, Hamlin being the oldest and Bruce the youngest.

THE London Mining Journal says there is decidedly a better demand for lead, no doubt in a great measure owing to the low rate of money enabling a large building trade being carried on throughout the country. There is also an improved demand for export. All this is good news for the investment of money in our leading home lead mines, at present ridiculously low in price, and many of which were never intrinsically looking so well as now.

QUITE a commotion has been raised in New York, through an order of Postmaster James, that all letters which do not contain the name of the State be returned to the writers, as some 50,000 letters are deposited daily in the New York Postoffice, with the name of the State omitted, most of which could be forwarded without a mistake. Looks like the aforesaid Postmaster James is a lineal descendant of the d. f. family.

THE New York World attacks Gen. Sherman, who, it says, has entered the political fray in an erratic fashion, as a letter-writer, to promote the Presidential aspirations of his brother, John Sherman. These bold brothers lead the Republican campaign against Grant.

A DISPATCH from Paris says Ferdinand De Lesseps, in a lecture at Ameins, stated that the first sod of the Panama Canal would be turned January 1, 1880, and that with 40,000 navvies, including some Chinese, and 15,000 Brazilian negroes, work would be completed in eight years.

THE Russian and Servian Commissioners, having been unable to arrange the boundary in the neighborhood of Koula, a Russian Captain, with 300 men, drove the Servians back to the boundary existing previous to the war.

QUEEN VICTORIA, accompanied by the Princess Beatrice and Prince Leopold, visited Empress Eugenie at Chiselhurst. The Queen had an hour's interview with Eugenie.

THE movement to elect Jefferson Davis Senator from Mississippi, in case that his disabilities can be removed, has taken definite shape.

THE New York Sun has an editorial which indicates a willingness on its part to accept Tilden again as the Democratic standard-bearer in 1880.

A SERIOUS QUESTION.

Since Judge Keyser's notable decision in the great mining debris case but little has been heard about it; it would have been still longer, perhaps, only now comes a question of politics to awaken it into life again, and very likely to cause no end of trouble. This Judge Keyser is a candidate for the office of Superior Judge of Yuba county. The Grangers of that county have given him to understand that unless he enforces his injunction against all the miners of Bear river he shall not have the office. The result of the enforcement will be to close every mine on Bear river and its tributaries, including drifting, placer, quartz and hydraulic mines. In short, it will put an absolute stop to all mining in that section, and thereby deprive many thousands of people of their only dependence for bread and butter.

The gravity of this case can not be overestimated, and in case the Supreme Court sustains Judge Keyser's opinion, our mining counties will be depopulated and bankrupted, tens of thousands of people will be made destitute, and a hundred millions' worth of property will be totally destroyed. If this Judge, from political motives, now issues his injunction, it will, of course, stop all mining in the large district covered by the injunction; and should the Supreme Court differ from this Granger Judge and overrule his opinion, the mining interest would be damaged beyond hope of recovery, in a very large amount, at least $250,000, as the entire season will be lost, and hundreds of miners will be lying idle until the Supreme Court decides the case.

This will be the result on the one side in case the Judge's desire for office incites him to issue his injunction. Whereas, on the other hand, in case he does not issue the injunction, awaiting action of the Supreme Court, no injury or damage can happen to Keyes, the plaintiff, as he states that his land is nearly ruined, and does not ask for damages at all.

The principle of this decision is such that if sustained by the Supreme Court as sound, it not only brings ruin upon the miners of Bear river, but can be made to do the same in every part of the State, Inyo county included. It means in effect, that if a quartz mill should muddy the water of any of these previously clear streams, or send down any "slickins," no matter how small in quantity, just so it was sufficient to cause any inconvenience to any land owner, the latter can stop the mill from running at all, at least for a time if not permanently. In short, the only possible result which can follow this decision, if sustained by our higher Courts, will be either the total suspension of mining within the limits of our State, or else it will place the mines at the mercy of those who may own land below, upon which the tailings must flow, or over which the water used in or pumped from the mines must pass. If this decision is the law here, it is the law everywhere, unless there are special statutes in each State, or of the United States to the contrary. Hence, it not only effects us, but also every mine in the Union where any one may own land below a mine or mill or reducing works.

THE Pacific Life now begins its seventh volume and fourth year. We have never seen a so-called sporting journal that we can more cheerfully commend to readers of all classes than the Life. Its able managers take especial pains to eschew everything of a demoralizing character, unless graphic details of actual occurrences on the water and in field and forest, are of themselves demoralizing—which they are not.

IN the list of Republican nominees given elsewhere, certain nominations for the First District had not then been made. These vacancies have since been filled as follows: Horace Davis, ex-member of the late Congress, is nominated for the same place; James L. King for member of the Board of Equalization; both of San Francisco.

THE silver bullion speculation appears to be much better organized this time than before, and London is evidently the center of the movement, as silver has been kept scarce there for months past. The last preceding speculation was sustained by Paris and opposed by London; but this time the pool seems to be immense.

SUBSCRIPTIONS have been opened in New York city to the stock of a company to be formed to lay a submarine cable from the Pacific Coast to the Hawaiin Islands and Japan. One capitalist headed the list with a subscription of $100,000. A subscription of $1,000,000 is expected from the Hawaiin Government.

THE House Committee on Invalid Pensions has agreed to report favorably a bill pensioning the survivors of the Mexican war, but in view of the fact that a majority of members are opposed to general legislation this session it is not probable that the bill will be reported until next Winter.

IN Indiana a locomotive ran over an ox team. Soon after the Legislature convened—a body of H. B. reformers—and with the above mentioned catastrophe in mind to spur them to action, at once rushed through a law designed to cinch railroads. It provided that every locomotive should sound its whistle for at least 80 rods before reaching any public crossing, and in default thereof the engineers should be held personally responsible in a fine of $50 for every default. The new law went into effect the other day; crossings are frequent and there are thousands of locomotives in Indiana. Every engineer feels that now is his chance to make a noise in the world, and seems to take especial delight in giving at least a 100-rod whistle for each 80 required by law. The result is horses are being stampeded every day; cattle ditto, while all Hoosiers are growing so deaf and ill-tempered withal at the infernal din that they can't hear themselves think, and could even wish they were dead. They are all on the ragged edge, and it is an actual fact they are urging old Blue Jeans to convene an extra session of the Legislature for no other purpose in the world than to choke off these outrageous engineers, and to forgive the one that run over the oxen, provided he will mash the man that introduced the law to make them whistle. The reformers paid too much for their whistles. It is bad.

THE victims of that terrible affair at Wheatland have both so far recovered from their dreadful wounds as to be permitted to talk about how it was they received them. Unfortunately, neither have any recollection whatever of what befell them, or any circumstances connected therewith. Neither has yet recovered sufficiently to be considered out of danger, consequently no one is permitted to question them but little as to details of the dread occurrence. Miss Heslep, the weaker of the two girls, was but recently informed as to the real cause of her injuries. She relates what she believes was but a dream, several times repeated, to the effect that two men were in her room; that one of them struck her with a club, and with his hand upon her bosom pushed her violently back upon the bed from which she was attempting to rise. She insists upon it that this was but a dream. There are some circumstances, however, that tend to sustain a belief that her dream was an actual occurrence. But whether that was but a dream or otherwise, the whole affair is as profound a mystery as ever. It is now conceded that the hints against the Roddan family did them all the blackest kind of injustice.

THE most important death yet announced from Zululand is that of the French Prince Imperial, Louis Napoleon, only issue of the late Emperor and Empress Eugenie, and heir to the throne of France under the dynasty founded by the great Napoleon. The manner of his death was not that which the gallant young warrior deserved, for it was as cowardly as assassination, and inglorious. This is the end of the dynasty, for the other branch of the family has little hope to revive or restore it. Yet, political reasons aside, there can be no Christian living but must most deeply commiserate the unspeakable sorrow of the young Prince's mother, for, as all the world knows, the measure of her own existence was the true motherly love she bore for her unfortunate son.

THE Treasury Department will now fill orders for standard silver dollars in sums as low as five hundred dollars. Under the regulations heretofore existing not less than $1,000 could be procured on orders. Persons desiring five hundred dollars in standard silver dollars can procure them by depositing their equivalent with a national depository, and in due time the money will be shipped by the Department.

THE Pacific Life states that Sylvester Knight, proprietor of the Virginia City shooting gallery, recently scored 99 points out of a possible 100 on a reduced Creedmoor target, at 95 feet distance, the bulls-eye being nine-sixteenths of an inch in diameter. He made 16 consecutive bulls-eyes and a center. The weapon used was a Ballard rifle, weighing eight pounds, and the barrel measuring 28 inches.

THE Republican Convention for the Fourth District, composed of Tulare, Fresno, Kern, Inyo and Mono Counties, is called to meet at Bakersfield on the 14th of July. Inyo is entitled to three Delegates. The only aspirant for the Senatorship at Republican hands, so far as we have heard, is Solomon Jewett, of Bakersfield.

MESSRS. HAINES and Pratt, of the Nevada & California Telegraph Co., have been at Lake District, and we doubt not will extend their line from Bodie to that place. Good; and we hope that Inyo county may rouse up to the necessity of doing something to secure its further extension this way.

MODOCK OFFICIAL LETTER.—The official letter of the week is as follows:

June 24, 1879.

J. W. Pew, Esq., Secretary Modock Con. M. Co.:—DEAR SIR: Progress on the 1000-foot level for the week ending yesterday is as follows:

Tunnel run 48 feet; total length, 1,784 feet. Drift, 300 foot, run 9 feet; total length, 109 feet. Drift, 1000 foot, run 8 feet; total length, 67 feet. Drift, 1100 foot, run 17 feet; whole length 50 feet.

We have had but one shift at work in 1000-foot drift, and but one in 300 foot for the past week, which accounts for distance made at these two points. Have one shift at work in 300-foot stope on ore, as previously reported. We are still taking some very rich ore from this point and the vein continues to look well. We are getting some very fine ground in drift at 1000-foot point, and by running a short distance further expect to cut the ledge. We are running south at the 1100 foot. As before stated, we have had a little ore in both these drifts in past running. The 1100-foot drift still presents the same appearance as heretofore, and is making good headway. We started yesterday to cross-cut the ledge to both walls, in 300-foot drift, commencing at 1000-foot point near small cave reported passed through. Have everything but ore at this point. Face of main tunnel is in good ground with some manganese and crystallized lime in face.

Yours, respectfully,
A. C. TIBBETTS, Supt.

DEATH OF DAVID NAYLOR.—In our last issue we had a reference to a shooting affair at Big Pine in which it was stated that David Naylor had received fatal wounds; further than that we could give no particulars. The report has proved only too true. Mr. Naylor lingered from Friday evening of last week until about 2 o'clock in the morning of Wednesday last, when his spirit passed away. His remains were interred at the Post Cemetery on the following day, many old friends from the place of his late residence, 26 miles distant, and from other localities, attending the last sad rites. Deceased was one of the original settlers in this valley, arriving here, we believe, in 1863. He has resided most, if not all the time since then, at his farm at Big Pine, and where he married a sister-in-law of Judge Campbell of that place, his wife and several young children being left to mourn his loss. Mr. Naylor was one of our best known and most respected citizens, and his sad ending is mourned by an entire community.

FOR LAKE.—Mrs. Rob't Trigg and family, accompanied by her mother, Mrs. Wilson, of Darwin, departed yesterday for Lake District, where Mr. T. has concluded to locate. Those two old residenters, Billy Lake and Jim Rose, have also joined the Lake-bound army. There are not many of us left here now, since Bodie and Lake broke out and this section broke down, but what there are of us are the saltiest of the salt of the land, and, like rats to a steel trap, are too firmly attached to the country to be enticed away, even by a whole ocean of Lakes.

THE NUMBER.—According to a census taken this week by School Census Marshal Thomas Parker, this district now boasts of but 37 children between five and seventeen years of age, besides an even 30 which are less than five—but these latter are of no value whatever just now in a school point of view, though we don't suppose any of them could be purchased for less than a dollar and a half apiece—nor, on the other hand, that there is anybody that would give six bits each for them, unless it would be for exportation purposes, or somehow that way.

DEPARTED.—Capt. R. W. Lusk and Col. Jas. H. Holcomb, both of Waco county, Texas, have been spending some little time in this vicinity with a view of investing in some of our mines. It seems, though, that they found nothing that they thought would justify, and yesterday morning took their departure. Mr. Alexander, of the same party, does not "give it up so," but remains in hopes of finding something yet.

ASSESSMENT. — The Hartford Silver Mining Company has levied an assessment (No. 1) of 50 cents per share. The Company have some three mines at Lee District, adjoining the Cactus and Valentine ledges, belonging to the Emigrant Company. Dr. Carson, of Darwin, has been superintending the work lately prosecuted by the Hartford Company, and is now in San Francisco.

MINNIEATTA.—The Minnieatta mill at Lookout, now the property of Messrs. Belshaw & Beaudry, is likely to be started up on the several hundred tons of tailings from old workings. Geo. Center, of Darwin, has lately been over there making assays. The last run on Minnieatta ore at the New Coso furnace, about 60 tons, resulted in a yield of between $6,000 and $7,000.

BIG RACE.—Reports reach us that a half-mile race, to come off near Mammoth City in August next, has been arranged between our famous Black Harry and Red Oaks, a noted Carson flyer, for $5,000. If the Nevada backers of Red Oaks will put up they can clean out this country—provided their horse gets away with it.

ANNOUNCEMENTS.—Harry M. Isaacs and Jas. F. Dillon, in this issue, announce themselves as candidates for nomination and re-election to the respective offices they now hold. We can make room for a few more of the same sort of notices, if circumstances seem to demand it.

SOMETHING OF THE DETAILS.—Justice Alexander, of Bishop Creek, held a Coroner's inquiry as to the cause of David Naylor's death, but we have learned no details of the evidence adduced, further than that he died of gunshot wounds inflicted by Martin Callihan, and that the latter was committed to answer. Accordingly, Mr. Beasely brought Callihan to this place and handed him over to the Sheriff to await examination, which takes place this afternoon before Justice Gardner. From other sources, however, we have the following account of the unfortunate affair: A short time since an attachment, served by Deputy Sheriff Steve Gregg, was levied upon some of Naylor's personal property, and Callihan was placed in charge as keeper. Callihan was also a lessee of a part of Naylor's farm, and had been residing thereon in a house a short distance from Naylor's for some time past. Except on one or two previous occasions the relations of the two men had heretofore been quite amicable. The exceptionable times were on one or two occasions when Naylor had been indulging in drink, which, unfortunately for himself and his business, he sometimes did to excess. Of late he would touch nothing to intoxicate for weeks at a time; then he would give way to his appetite and unfit himself for business for several days. At such times he was disposed to find fault with Callihan, and it was under such circumstances that the fatal altercation occurred. Last Friday evening Callihan was at Naylor's house, sitting with two or three others on the front porch. Naylor came up and remarked that "this looked like a hotel," or something to that effect, and soon after asked Callihan to come around by the end of the house, for he wanted to have a talk with him. The two then stepped around the end of the house, out of sight, though not entirely of hearing of those left sitting on the porch. The sum of the talk was, that Naylor thought Callihan had not done right in causing the attachment to be laid on his property. Callihan saw that deceased was under the influence of drink, though not at all enough so to cause him to stagger or to indicate that he did not understand perfectly all that he was doing or saying. Nevertheless, on account of Naylor's condition Callihan did not wish to continue the talk, telling deceased that he (Callihan) now had nothing whatever to do with the attached property (a field of hay), having resigned his place as keeper. Callihan then turned to walk away. Naylor laid his hand on Callihan's arm, holding on as if determined to make him stay and hear what else he (Naylor) had to say. Callihan endeavored to release himself, something of a struggle taking place, which ended in Naylor being thrown to the ground, though not from the effect of a blow direct or indirect. Jumping up, Naylor swore he would "fix him," and drew, or attempted to draw, a pistol (a common single barrel). At this Callihan ran into the house, passing through two or three rooms to where he knew a loaded shotgun was standing. With this in hand he then started to go direct to the front porch. Before reaching this, he was met by Naylor coming from that direction. Naylor fired at once at Callihan, but without hitting him, and then started to run back in the direction he had come. At this juncture, (according to one story) Callihan fired. According to another version, Callihan after procuring the gun, held it presented at Naylor, and was advancing upon him, when deceased fired and then started to run. By both these stories it would appear that Naylor had followed Callihan up, or, rather, had gone around and was coming toward him. Another story reverses these conditions in all that took place after Callihan started to get the gun. We do not give either as reliable. The entire charge of shot took effect in Naylor's breast and lungs, but whether from front or back we have not learned. Those who know him best claim that deceased, when at himself, was as inoffensive and as fair and reasonable a man in all respects as could be found, and are much surprised at the reported aggressiveness of his actions on this deplorable occasion. On the other hand, there appears to be but little or nothing to condemn in Callihan's actions in general prior and up to the very moment of the fatal shot.

A PAYING MINE.—Messrs. Cardes, Meier and Schroeder have been operating upon a little mine in Alabama District for some three months, and making it pay right along. They do everything within themselves, using an arrastra for reducing their ores. Their second clean-up for this month yielded 43.63-100 ounces gold, worth $13.50 an ounce, making $575.50 in all. Their shaft is down about 40 feet. They are favored in the peculiarity that they have never yet had to put in a single blast, the pick and sledge being all sufficient without powder.

AT HIS OLD PLACE.—A. C. Harvey has again taken hold of the blacksmith and wagon work of Lone Pine, at the well known shop formerly run by him and for the past two years by the late W. T. Davis. Curt. is an excellent and reliable workman.

PEACHES.—Our town market was several days since supplied with luscious, early peaches, from the Bell orchard near Big Pine. From all appearances the demand will be well supplied this season with home fruit of the best quality.

SCHOOL.—The school at Camp Independence, Milton District, will open on Monday, July 7, for a six months' term, with Daniel Crough as teacher.

COMMITTEEMAN.—Judge Conklin was appointed one of the Republican Central Committee for this Railroad Commissioner District.

THE LATEST.—Tom May shies his castor into the political field as a Republican candidate for County Assessor.

POLL TAXES must be paid during the coming week, or undergo a raise aggregating $3.

FINE STOCK.—Mr. R. W. Ford, of Bishop, accompanied by Mr. R. Watson, of Monterey, passed here on Wednesday with five head of full-blooded short horn Durham cattle, which he is taking to his ranch at Bishop. These cattle consist of one yearling bull and two heifers of the same age, and a large two-year old cow with sucking calf. He purchased them of Jesse D. Carr, who raised them at his Gabilan ranch, Monterey county, where he has a large herd of these and other thoroughbreds. The pedigree of this fine stock is of record back full eighteen generations to imported ancestors, and certified to by Mr. Carr to Mr. Ford as absolute thoroughbreds. The sire of this young bull, known as the Sixth Duke of Gabilan, has taken a first prize at every State, District and County Fair at which he has been exhibited for two years past, these prizes numbering more than a score in all. His sire again sold at an Eastern Fair for $22,000. It will be seen from this that Mr. Ford's purchase comprises as fine-blooded stock as can be found anywhere. We shall offer no description of the animals themselves, preferring that all interested in such matters should go and see them for themselves. Mr. Ford undoubtedly takes the right view as to what kind of stock-raising will pay best in this county. The average weight of these short-horn cows, full age, is not less than 800 pounds, while steers and bulls often weigh about three times as much, and yet it costs no more to raise one of these gentle animals than one "mustang," which, when raised, will weigh not to exceed one-fourth as much on an average; and a similar proportionate value is shown in favor of the Durhams over common stock when compared as dairy animals. The Mr. Watson referred to has been engaged in raising fine stock for a number of years, and comes here with an eye to making this valley his base for future operations in that line.

ORE SHIPMENT.— Col. A. S. Boley and Mr. S. D. Woodhull started for San Francisco on the 23d instant, to prepare for the receipt and sale of ten tons of ore from the Indiana mine. Sampled and assayed, the ore runs 1,000 ounces per ton in silver. It has been finely broken and packed in strong sacks. There is left on the dump at the mine about 20 tons of second class ore, assaying from 350 to 400 ounces. At Mr. Woodhuil's office, the other day, the Colonel showed us a piece of horn silver and black sulphurets from the same ledge which assayed 14,000 ounces to the ton. The Indiana has as yet been opened but 80 feet deep, but shows remarkably well. Its success ought certainly to wake other mine-owners around Swansea and Cerro Gordo. There are several other locations on the same belt to which we have heretofore referred, belonging to Mr. Woodhull, and others, who will, while at the Bay, attend to their incorporation and to the sale of certain other mining properties.

ACCIDENT. — Joseph Fernbach, proprietor of the Pioneer Brewery, and one of our oldest citizens, met with a painful accident on Sunday morning last. At the moment he was looking over some papers in the office desk, and picked up a small Colt's pistol, which, from some unaacountable reason, was discharged, the ball entering and lodging in the palm, near the wrist, of the left hand. It is so battered in among the tendons and muscles it cannot be extracted without great risk, so it still remains there. As Mr. Fernbach has been quite ill for some time the wound looked serious enough for a time, but, we are glad to say, Dr. Bicknell considers a perfect recovery now only a question of time and patient attention.

FIRE.—Shortly after noon to-day, a fire broke out in some bedding lying on the upper porch of Fromm's Restaurant. By the timely exertions of a number of citizens it was soon extinguished. The weather-boarding of the main building is considerably burned and will have to be replaced. The bedding was so nearly destroyed as to be considered valueless. Fromm had just put in a force pump, with pipe and hose; but for this it is quite possible the flames could not have been got under control. With the strong breeze blow ng, the fire, fairly started, would have swept the town.

THE UNCLE ABE.—We have heard but little about this mine for some time past, but the owners, Dodge & Hitchcock, have not been lying quiet by any means. They have run their lower tunnel in a distance of 300 feet, and have now exposed to the view of any man who desires to go and see it a streak of splendid ore, showing without a break for a depth of 170 feet. This ore carries considerable base, and it is likely a hundred tons or so of it will be brought to the Rex Montis mill for reduction.

SILVER PEAK.—From A. J. or "Jeff" Davis, who is just in from Silver Peak, we learn that the old camp is steadily progressing. Supt. Bronson has been running the mill upon some 200 tons of gold ore, with fine results. A force of eight or ten men is being worked at the Company's old silver mines, and a smaller number on the gold ledges. The Company are about putting up a new mill at Gold Springs, about seven miles from the present one.

NEW MAIL ROUTE.—Department orders have been received at the Big Pine postoffice showing that a mail route is to be established from that place to Deep Spring and Oasis P. O. (Piper's), and connecting with a line running twice a week between Columbus, Silver Peak and Lida Valley.

THE GLORIOUS.—Before our next issue the ever glorious, etc., will have come and gone again. Consult our advertisements for the proposed programmes.

RACES.—The Big Pine people are preparing for a series of horse races, a dance, supper, etc., at that place on the coming Fourth.

AND just now, while the day is hot, and the flies are bothering us, and we are in a good humor over these luxuries, we will take THE INYO INDEPENDENT by the ear and ask that paper what it means by casting slurs upon our most respected Bentonians? Has THE INDEPENDENT yet to learn that personal abuse is not political argument? Is the prowess of Col. B. B. Alverson as a buckist an important issue in the coming election? If you desire to force a side issue between Mono and Inyo for the champion buckist's belt, we will make this proposition: We will pit Col. Alverson against yourself or any man in Inyo county, putting up our note for $40 against two twenty-dollar gold pieces; the bucking to come off under the rules of the New Orleans Bucking Club or according to the style prevailing in North Carolina—you take your choice; the match to come off either in Independence or Benton, as may be agreed upon. If we go to Independence your party to pay our expenses aside from stake money or gate money. If Benton is decided upon as the place of contest your party come here on the same terms—paying your own expenses.—Benton Letter, June 26.

Our chief buckists are all Generals, Admirals and Judges. Trot out a man of equal rank, and begin arranging details. If Independence don't win, we'll double the stakes and take almost any Cerro Gordo man right off the grass and beat you dead sure.

WARNING.—We are requested by a neighbor to give notice to the unknown owner of a certain lot of hogs running about town, that if the said hogs are not kept within bounds so that they can not destroy gardens, etc., they will surely come to grief. Monday next is the last day of grace on this proposition. This is the only warning that will be given.

BONDED.—Several mines in Sylvania District, just across the Inyo range, have lately been placed under bond of sale.

DANCE.—Lone Piners are arranging for a regulation ball and supper on the evening of the Fourth.

POSTPONED.—Callihan's examination has been postponed from 1 P. M. to-day till 10 A. M. Monday.

THE weather in some portions of the State has been quite warm. The beginning of the present week, at Stockton, the mercury went up to 97 degrees in the shade; at Drytown, 102; Santa Barbara, 102; Mission San José, 97; Marysville, 94; San Luis Obispo, 107; Petaluma, 89; Woodland, 108: Napa, 92.

OF the ninety-six Registers of the Land Office over half are reporting immense increases in the settlement of the public lands in the West. The General Land Office is running behind because of the increased business of the office, which, during the past two years, has more than trebled.

THERE are now undisposed of 724,311,477 acres of public lands that have been surveyed, and 1,000,000,000 that are still unsurveyed; or, a total of unoccupied lands of 1,724,311,477 acres, which would give 43 acres to every man, woman and child in the nation.

THE Legislature of Illinois has passed a bill, which will doubtless receive the Governor's signature, making it a felony for bank officers to receive deposits when the bank is insolvent. It is a good law, and should be applied to every State.

WHAT's the matter with the Bodie Daily Standard? No copies received at Independence for a week.

FROM the last report of the Agricultural Department at Washington it is learned that there are at this time 35,740,000 sheep in the United States. In England, Spain, France and Italy, each there are probably about the same number. In New England, 3,200,000; in New York and Pennsylvania together, 7,000,000; Texas, 3,764,000; California, 6,581,000; Oregon, 1,000,000, making in the States named 20,000,000.

WM. BROWN writes from Bonanza City, Lemhi county, Idaho, to parties in Virginia City, under date of May 23, as follows; "I am sorry to inform you that Johnny Kilfoy, an old-time Comstocker, died on the 15th of this month, of consumption, on Lyon Creek, while en route from Challis to Bonanza City, Yankee Fork District. I saw him two hours after death, and Pat. O'Brien, of Gold Hill, and myself gave him as good a funeral as we could."

IT is reported that on his way to Boston this Summer President Hayes will visit the grave of his grandfather, Daniel Hayes, who lies in an old cemetery at Granby, Conn. This ancestor of the President once cut off the tail of an Indian dog, and the owners retaliated by carrying him away to the frontiers of Canada and keeping him a prisoner for two years.

OF the leading candidates for the Presidency Grant is 56, Sherman 56, Conkling, 51 and Blaine 48. On the Democratic side Thurman is 66, Tilden 65, Davis 64, Hendricks 60 and Bayard 51. Grant and Hayes were born the same year—1822. The average age of the Republican candidates is 54 years, and that of the Democratic 61.

Silver Exaggeration.

An Evening Post Washington special is told by a Western Senator that a movement to regulate the relative values of gold and silver is making through diplomatic channels, England taking the initiative in good faith and with earnestness. My informant gives it as his belief that the attempt will be so successful that within two years silver will be, if anything, at a slight premium. The grounds for this conviction are the stopping of sales of silver by Germany, the altered feeling in France, Great Britain and her dependencies, and the largely decreased production in the United States. The popular estimate of the production of the metal is absurdly exaggerated. If one were to believe the stories which come from Leadville and elsewhere, more silver lies around in sight than will, in fact, ever be taken out of the mines.

The above is a dispatch to the press from New York, and is almost a repetition of the ideas conveyed in an article on the silver question published in yesterday's issue of the Daily Stock Report.

The statement about "more silver lies around" is to the point. In Leadville when they strike a hatful of carbonate ore the discovery is heralded through the country as a bonanza, and exaggeration really seems to be inseparable from accounts of mining and prospecting operations pretty much everywhere where there are gold and silver mines. Leadville may be a pretty good third-class base ore camp, but it will never even approach Eureka, let alone the Comstock, and we doubt if its annual production will aggregate as much as that of the little mining camp of Austin, Nevada, which produces over $1,000,000 per year and has been doing so for fifteen years past. In our honest opinion Leadville is a second White Pine, only the ore is not so rich and free as in that district in its palmy days—a camp, to use an expression often employed in speaking of mushroom mining districts, that goes up like a rocket and comes down like a stick.

As we stated yesterday, and as the dispatch mentions, the popular idea of silver production is exaggerated. The product of the silver mines of Nevada is estimated as all silver, when, taking the entire State, the average of the product is at least 45 per cent gold. It is also a mistake to suppose that the increase of silver in the world's stock is greater than that of gold. Up to 1873 and '74 silver did command a premium over gold, but the onslaught made on the white metal in Germany, England and this country, depreciated the price so that at all times it has been subject to a discount as high as 25 per cent.

We believe that the dark days for silver are over, and that the time is not far distant when it will resume its old place as an equal of gold. The signs all point to such a consummation, and it is one "devoutly to be wished," for with silver at par hundreds of small mines now lying idle will be worked and employment offered to thousands of men in taking out the precious metals to be added to the wealth of the world, and which otherwise must remain untouched and useless.—S. F. Stock Report.

A LADY dropping her hankerchief in Winter street the other day, Landismann's quick eye caught the flutter of the dainty thing as it fell to the walk. Quick as thought he pounced upon it, and with doffed hat and his sweetest smile, he approached the unknown fair one with, "Madam, your hand—" He got no further. It was only Mrs. L. disguised in another new suit. Seizing the cambric as a cat would a mouse, she gave Landismann a look eloquent of scorn and contempt, remarking, "Don't stand there grinning like a sick monkey, John Lindismann; and you'd better put on your hat before you get cold. People at your time of life and bald at that, should be careful how they expose themselves." Strange that some women can't bear to have their husbands gallant to the fair sex.—Boston Transcript.

LEGAL.

ALIAS SUMMONS.

IN THE JUSTICE'S COURT OF SECOND Township, in the County of Inyo, State of California. Harris & Lhlue, Plaintiffs, against Henry Hearn, Defendant. Alias Summons. The People of the State of California send greeting to Henry Hearn, Defendant: You are hereby required to appear in an action brought against you by the above named Plaintiff, in the Justice's Court of Second Township, County of Inyo, State of California, and to answer before the Justice at his office in said Township, the complaint filed therein, within five days (exclusive of the day of service), after the service on you of this Summons—if served within the Township in which this action is brought; or, if served out of said Township, but in said County, within ten days; or, within twenty days if served elsewhere.

The said action is brought to recover of and from Defendant the sum of Two Hundred and Forty-six 33 100 Dollars, gold coin of the United States, due from Defendant to Plaintiff upon a certain promissory note, made and executed by Defendant and in favor of Plaintiffs in the said sum of $246 33-100, dated March 21st, 1879, and bearing interest at the rate of two per cent. per month from date until paid, together with costs of suit.

And you are hereby notified that if you fail to so appear and answer said Complaint, as above required, said Plaintiffs will take judgment against you for the said sum of $246 33-100, together with costs.

Make legal service and due return hereof.

Given under my hand this 17th day of June, A. D. 1879. THEO. A. GARDNER, Justice of the Peace of said Township.

SHERIFF'S SALE.

BY VIRTUE OF AN EXECUTION ISSUED out of the District Court of the Sixteenth Judicial District of the State of California, in and for the County of Inyo, in the suit of John J. Gunn and Wm. T. Grant, Plaintiffs, against Sheldon Collins, T. P. Rundelet and Richard T. Ashman, partners doing business under the firm name and style of Sheldon Mining Company, Defendants, upon a judgment rendered in said Court on the 23d day of May, A. D. 1879, for the sum of Three Thousand Dollars, besides costs amounting to the sum of Sixty-four 65 100 Dollars, duly attested the 31st day of May, A. D. 1879, whereby I am commanded to make the amount of $3,064 65-100, besides accruing costs and interest, I have levied upon all the right, title and interest of the said Defendants in and to the following described real property, to-wit:

All those certain lodes, leads and mining claims known and designated as the Light House, the St. George, the Alpha, the Panamint Viewer Hamlet, the St. Louis, the Atlantic, the Safety and the Dictator mines or lodes. Also, the Grant Springs or water right; the South Gulch Spring and the Schofield Spring. Also, 1 five-stamp quartz mill and building, with boiler, engine, pans, vats and settlers, office building, blacksmith shop, one large tent and the mill site upon which is erected said five stamp quartz mill. Also, four water tanks, and water pipes leading from said springs—all of the above described property being situated in the Lookout Mining District, County of Inyo, State of California, and standing on the records of said Inyo County in the name of Frank S Collins.

Notice is hereby given that on SATURDAY, THE TWENTY EIGHTH DAY OF JUNE A D 1879, between the hours of 9 o'clock A. M. and 4 o'clock P. M., to-wit: at the hour of 1 o'clock P. M. of that day, in front of the Court House, in the town of Independence, County of Inyo, State of California, I will sell all the right, title and interest of the said defendants in and to the above described property, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to satisfy said judgment and all costs, at public auction, to the highest bidder or bidders, for cash in hand in gold coin of the United States.

WM. L. MOORE, Sheriff.

SUMMONS.

IN THE JUSTICE'S COURT OF FIRST Township, in the County of Inyo, State of California. T. G. Beasley, Plaintiff, against M. Ashton, Defendant. The People of the State of California send greeting to M. Ashton, Defendant—You are hereby required to appear in an action brought against you by the above named Plaintiff in the Justice's Court of First Township, County of Inyo, State of California, and to answer before the Justice at his office in said Township, the complaint filed therein within five days (exclusive of the day of service), after the service on you of this summons—if served within the Township in which this action is brought; or, if served out of said Township, but in said County, within ten days; or, within twenty days if served elsewhere.

The said action is brought to recover from you the sum of One Hundred Dollars, money loaned to you at your request, at Deep Springs Valley, Inyo County, California, on June 4th, 1877, with legal interest on same amounting to Fourteen Dollars, gold coin, all of which more fully appears by the complaint herein filed.

And you are hereby notified that if you fail to so appear and answer said complaint, as above required, said Plaintiff will take judgment against you for One Hundred and Fourteen Dollars, gold coin, together with costs.

Make legal service and due return hereof.

Given under my hand this 21st day of May, A. D. 1879. D. CAMPBELL, Justice of the Peace of said Township.

The Jeannette.

The Arctic yacht, Jeannette, is fast nearing completion for her Polar expedition. She is still lying at the Navy-yard, having some strengthening pieces put into her bow for protection against the ice to be encountered. In the hold there have been placed, to keep her from being crushed together, three large double trusses, with a stanchion in the center, and hanging knees, each beam being 10x12 inches. The trusses are shaped in the form of an X, turned sideways, with the hanging knees reaching from the deck down to the kelson. These have been put in with a view of resisting the largest jam of ice they may encounter. Besides the trusses on each side of the vessel, there have been put on seven strakes of ceiling, each strake being a foot wide and about four inches in thickness, of the strongest wood for the purpose that could be procured. Two new boilers, built for the Jeannette at the Naay-yard, have been put in her, which, upon trial, proved to be without flaw or blemish, and was acknowledged to by Engineer-in Chief, Wm. H. Shock, U. S. N., to be as fine a set as he has ever seen put together, after having made a personal inspection of them. In building the boilers, they were completed in less than one month's time. There are four fire boxes to them. The engine is an old-fashioned twenty-year-old, back-action, jet condensing engine of 200-horse power. The engine and fire-room are together, there being no division of apartments between them. In addition, she carries an extra donkey pump, two auxiliary pumps, and a distilling apparatus capable of distilling 500 gallons of water a day. On each side of the boilers are coal bunkers, and with these and in the hold she can stow 160 tons of coal. On the spar deck is rigged a hoisting engine to be used for warping purposes. The cabin is tastefully arranged, and has been padded all around the inside with a heavy thickness of felt to keep out the piercing air they will have to encounter. The poop deck has been covered with three thicknesses of heavy canvas, and painted. The forecastle has also been lined with three inches of felt, and berths built to accommodate thirty-six men, though that will be a larger number than the vessel will take, as the great trouble is if there are too many mouths to feed, the food will be used up too fast. The officers and men will eat of the same food, and cooked on the same galley and in the same kettle. Pemmican, a preserved beef, will be the principal food outside of bread. It is said a man can subsist on four ounces of pemmican a day. No spirits will be used, but for drink, an abundance of beer, tea and coffee will be used. Beer, it is found, is a healthy drink for the cold countries, and a man can work better on that than liquor.

Every available place will be used in stowing provisions, etc. Two extra propellers will be carried in case of accident, and a complete outfit of machinist tools and stock to be used in case of accident to any of the machinery.

A roof has been put over the deck, and is so constructed that it can be taken down in Summer weather and replaced again on the approach of Wintry storms, the beams being morticed and fastened together with screw bolts. It is expected that the Navy Department will detail the Alaska as a convoy, though no ship has yet been designated for that purpose. The house will be placed on board the convoy and carried along. After it is set up on the Jeannette it will be lined with felt for warmth.

The ship will carry one folding boat that can be used on runners or in the water. There will also be eight Arctic tents 6x9 each, and large enough to accommodate eight men. Every man on board will be provided with a good hair mattress, pillow and blankets. She will carry a suit of spare sails, including storm try-sail, housing awning, to cover space between the poop and house on deck. The small boats are rigged with sails and boat covers. Every pound of coal that can be saved will be done so, and even the ashes will be sifted so that none may be lost. Fires will be put out as soon as she is outside the Heads, and not lit again till absolutely necessary. The vessel has a brand-new set of sails, and is provided with rolling topsails that can be furled from the deck.—Vallejo Chronicle.

She Told His Fortune.

"This is the station, is it?" he asked, as they opened the door of cell No. 5 at the Central and waved him in.

"Yes."

"Then I'm the same as in jail, am I?"

"You are."

"All right! This is the last gol darned time I'll believe anybody under oath! So go ahead with your bastile business."

He was a young man of 24, wearing his overalls in his boot legs, and before coming to town he had broken off a twig from a peach tree and placed the blossom behind his hat band and over his left ear.

"Hast thou been deceived?" inquired the reporter, as the officer got through locking the cell door.

"Hast I? Well, you'd better bet I hast I! I'm a reg'lar eight-rail fence blown flat by a tornado! I'm a goin' to commit suicide when I get out of this, I am."

A chew of tobacco and a few kind words opened his heart, and he explained:

"You see, I lost my dog in town the other day, and came in this morning to find him. Dad, the darned old basswood, told me to call on a fortune-teller and find out who stole Tige, and I was fool enough to do it—f-o-o-l enough to do it! I called on a woman back up here a mile, gin her two dollars, and says I, where's Tige? He's up here in a Dutchman's yard, says she. Then I'll burst his head, says I. You will marry rich, have lots of happiness, live to be a hundred years old, and go to heaven when you die, says she, and she stopped rolling her eyes and hawked on to them two dollars like a turkey on a tater bug."

"And you found Tige?"

"You hold on! I found the Dutchman's, and says I: Where's my dog? I don't know, says he. You're a liar, says I, and with that we had it which and t'other, and he had just flung me out of doors when the constable came along and nailed me."

"Well."

"Well, I'm in a nice fix, I am! Tige gone, two dollars gone, me in the jug, and dad planting corn with a blind eye and a lame back! We're a nice family, take us all in a heap, and you go out and bet ten to one we are! No, you can't help me any, 'less you want to leave me a lead pencil. I feel like composing a poem on a fool, and I'll write it on the wall here. Good-bye, mister—come back in an hour and I'll have a poem done and be in my grave, mebbe, for I can't bear up under more'n a wagon-load of woe."—Hawkeye.

He was just full enough to not to know a grindstone from a ribbon-block, and he came sailing along, tacking from side to side, like a ship going against the wind. He struck a dry goods store at last and tumbled in, and a pretty girl clerk came to wait on him. "Hic," he said, "you got any nails?" The girl was a little bit scared, but she told him no, that it was a dry goods store and they didn't keep nails in stock. Then he went out and started ahead again, but took a creel in himself and turned and got into the same store again. "Hic," he said, "you got any nails?" This time the girl was a little provoked. "No," she said, "a hardware store is the place to get nails; we don't keep them." Out he went again, and started off as before, but got turned around again and came back to the same place a third time. "Hic," he said, "got any nails?" Now, the girl was mad, and snapped out, "No, we ain't got any nails; you're drunk, and you want to stay away from here." "Hic," he answered, "you ain't got any nails!" "No, we haven't." "Well, (hic) if you ain't got no nails, how the deuce do you scratch your head?" The policeman took him out before her answer was sent in to his conundrum.

Perhaps it is through the development of news gathering that we hear more of them, but suicides seem to be growing more numerous than ever. One of the strangest lately reported is that of a farmer said to be worth $60,000, or thereabouts, who suddenly had the idea of killing himself because his crops were unpromising. It looks as though suicide were a mania born of the high-pressure civilization of the nineteenth century.

A new novel is called "A Lady's Four Wishes." An old bachelor says he hasn't read the book, but he knows what her wishes are. First, a new bonnet; second, a new bonnet; third, a new bonnet: and fourth, a new bonnet. From this, one might suppose the old bachelor was a married man.

When convicts are discharged from the penitentiary in Michigan they are thoughtfully provided with $7 50 on which to commence a new life. It is cited as a remarkable fact that they are just as anxious to get out as if they were to receive $8.

We are fast becoming a nation of beer guzzlers. Ten million barrels were made in the United States during the year just closed. The export of American beer increased from $25,000 in 1870 to about $150,000 in 1878.

California Gold Mines.

Hardly one-tenth of the gold quartz ledges of California which are known to exist, are worked. Not one-fifth of the gold-bearing gravel deposits of California are worked. Yet the statistics show that many of these deposits which have been worked have yielded more than $100,000 to the acre. It is a notable fact that very few of the mining interests of California figure on the Stock Boards. The great mines of Grass Valley are never called. Great mines which have cost millions to develop and the dividends of which are now swelling over a million in the aggregate, are not in the stock lists. Once a year something is heard of these mines in the annual reports; and of others nothing is heard because they are not incorporated, and the three or four men who own them have an interest in maintaining a good degree of reticence. The unincorporated mines of California greatly outnumber all those who have been incorporated. It is well to bear these facts in mind. The deposits of precious metals in the somewhat indefinite territory designated as the Pacific Coast, have only been here and there explored. The pioneer can no longer take out his ounce in an hour with an old knife and a pan. It requires capital now to open either a gravel or a quartz mine. There are millions of dollars employed in these developments of which we hear nothing, and probably never shall, unless some new quartz district, like Bodie or Lake, is discovered. Men who are taking gold out of placer mines at the rate of $100,000 an acre, seek no publicity. They pocket the net gains, and at a later day, perhaps, the public find out how A and B are able to put up large blocks of buildings in some of the principal streets of the city.—S. F. Bulletin.

The managers of Prospect Park have contracted with the Telegraph Supply Company for the apparatus for generating electricity to supply seventeen lamps. The electricity will be generated by water-power. The lamps will be so disposed as not only to light the park and the main street of the village, but it is hoped to produce some fine effects upon the waterfall. For this purpose it is believed that one lamp may be kept burning under the American fall. It is known to every visitor at the fall that on clear and still nights, when the moon is nearly at its full, a beautiful lunar bow is formed. As this can only be seen at rare intervals, however, comparatively few people have seen it. It is believed that by the use of the electric lamps, each of which is of 200-candle power, and which may be moved and adjusted as the wind may make it necessary, the rainbow colors may be always produced in the form of a very brilliant electric bow. Some experiments made here with the calcium light, three years ago, satisfied the managers that their plan is practicable.—Niagara Falls Letter.

Large Powder Blasts.—Some time since a blast was exploded in the quarry of the Glendon Iron Company, near Easton, Pa., displacing 60,000 tons of rock. The discharge was described in some of the newspapers as probably the heaviest charge not subaqueous ever fired in the country. To this a California mining journal takes exception, and says that much larger charges are frequently exploded in the gravel mines of that State. Very recently the Reservoir Ditch Company put off in their mine at Sucker Flat, Yuba county, a blast of 50,000 pounds of Judson powder, a very powerful explosive, and by which between 200,000 and 300,000 cubic yards of gravel, some of it indurated into a hard cement, were so shattered that the most of it can be piped off under the head of water there used. Occasionally even a greater amount of powder than this is exploded by the larger hydraulic mining companies, who find it economical to employ such heavy charges, as doing more proportionate execution than small ones.—Eureka Sentinel.

Resting Springs District, which lies in the southeastern part of Inyo county, is attracting the attention of mining men. The principal mine is the Gunsight, which has been opened 450 feet in depth on the vein. The ledge is from five to eight feet thick, showing richer as it goes down. Two inclines have been sunk on the vein, and several drifts run, the lower one being used as a working tunnel. The ore is chloride of silver, free milling, and carries from $75 to $150 in silver, and about $12 to the ton in gold. The company made a contract with Berry & Place to put up a ten-stamp mill. The mill is now up, and the last lot of machinery shipped, and will be running within the next sixty days. It is the opinion of Mr. Luckhart and other mining experts who have visited the property, that there is ore enough in the stopes above the working tunnel to run the mill for a year, and ship not less than $40,000 a month in bullion. —Stock Report.

They do some things in Texas with as much brevity as did Cæsar at the battle of Zela, when, having overcome the enemy so easily, he expressed it in this wise: "I came, I saw, I conquered." A fellow picked up an end of a rope with another man's horse on the other end of it, a few days since, and the citizens sent the owner of the animal the following dispatch: "Come get mare. Thief hung."

COUNTRY SCHOOLS.

A writer in Barnes' Educational Monthly discusses intelligently the importance of common schools and the difficulties encountered by teachers in inducing regular attendance and the maintaining of uniformity of text books. Another difficulty, complains the writer, arises from a mania among a certain class of farmers for acquiring all the land that joins theirs. Indeed it becomes a species of insanity, and from it men seldom recover. This is the way it works: So soon as a man, by scrimping and saving, has saved a few hundred dollars, he bargains for the farm adjoing his, and makes the first payment, giving a mortgage for the balance. Now, for years he must scrimp and scrape even more closely, to pay off that mortgage. No sooner is this accomplished than the process is repeated; and so on till death ends his work.

Meanwhile his family is denied every comfort; his wife is a slave, and his children are grown up little better than heathens. Not that the father means to be unkind or neglectful, but he is "so poor"—land poor, always with a mortgage hanging over him, always with big interest and big taxes to pay. His home can not have books and pictures, for these cost money, and he has none to spare; nor flowers, and the thousand dainty devices which make home attractive, because the overworked mother has no time nor heart for such things; and so the eternal grind, grind, grind of their life goes on, without a particle of brightness to illuminate it.

Now for the effect upon our public schools. Such a man frequently becomes the heaviest tax payer in the district. Through the renters upon his various farms he often controls votes enough to turn the scale in the district election. Now, he has himself and a colleague like unto him elected Directors. Do you need to be told what such a board will do? Poor school-houses—for why should he care more or the school-house than for his home? No apparatus; short terms of school; the cheapest of cheap teachers—one who will work twenty-six days for a month, "same as farm hands"—become the rule. Or if this man does not reach the dignity of School Director, he still has a controlling influence in district affairs, and that influence is all in favor of a penny-wise and pound-foolish policy.

The effect upon his own children is no less disastrous. They do not attend school regularly, because they are kept out to work whenever a possible five cents can be made thereby. They are seldom supplied with necessary books, for these cost money, and the money must go to lift the mortgage. They have no enthusiasm for study, for the atmosphere of their home smothers it. And the great danger is that these children will grow up to curse the world with multiplied copies of their father.

THE murder of Mrs. Hull in New York is a parallel to a celebrated murder case which occurred in Virginia City, Nevada, eleven or twelve years ago. A courtezan named Julia Bulette, living alone, was smothered in her bed by a Canadian Frenchman, the motive being robbery. The murderer, whose name was Millain, was, as in the Hull case, detected through the identification of some of the stolen property which he had attempted to pawn or sell. He was arrested, tried, convicted and executed. The only difference between this and the Hull case is that in the latter the murderer has confessed his guilt, while Millain protested his innocence to the last moment, the evidence against him being entirely circumstantial, though it was claimed that he finally made a confession to his counsel, the late Charles E. De Long.

GEN. EWING, John Sherman, Blaine, and Don Cameron are all bound together in one beautiful family tie. John Sherman's brother, William Tecumseh, married Thomas Ewing's sister and Donald Cameron married a daughter of Judge Sherman, brother of John and Tecump. Mr. Blaine's mother was a Gillespie, and the Gillespies are related to the Ewings. If these important families form a combination to walk off with all the offices in the country, ordinary people will be compelled to take back seats.

BUTLER is determined in his efforts to reach the goal of his ambition—the Massachusetts Governorship. It is said that Boston will give a heavier plurality for Butler than it did last year, but all the rest of the State has changed the other way. Whether Ben succeeds or not he will manage to keep the "culchaw" of Boston on nettles until after the election.

FAIR PLAY.

The three State Conventions that have already taken place all agree on one point, namely: that the best way to hoodwink the uncertain voter is to make him believe that he and all his poor friends are poor only because a railroad company has grown rich. The Convention now in session will doubtless pitch their tune on the same identical key. Why do they all like to harp so loudly on this string? Partly, we may answer, because they each believe it is the popular string; chiefly, because it is the only grand monopoly that the leaders in any of these Conventions can safely rail against without tramping upon their own toes or those of some of their particular friends, in the management of their own particular thieving monopolies, especially in land and water. It is a "stop thief" cry; that's all. We do not doubt for a moment but the railroad needs some "cinching," and, above all, in this matter of discrimination in freight and fares. It will do no harm in the least to investigate railroad management generally and particularly. But whether that management is as monstrous as claimed, or otherwise, it does seem too mean, too shallow for all these great Conventions to try to make it their whole sole stock in trade, and in so doing, one after the other, to wilfully misrepresent facts so as to divert attention from individual monopoly and rascalities. It has been repeatedly asserted in every one of these Conventions that the Central Pacific is actually robbing the people of this State out of a clear profit of some five to eight millions of dollars every year. Assuming that to be literally true, these Conventions, without further ado, each by turns takes the bull by the horns, and, in advance of all inquiry, such as is contemplated now in the new Constitution itself, fixes the precise proportion, almost the exact figure, to which the profits of the railroad must be cut down. All the facts considered, or even guessed at, this proceeding is indecent and unfair to the last degree. In the first place, allowing the profits to be as much as claimed, it may be accepted as a positive certainty that those profits did not come from any road or set of roads through work done wholly in this State; therefore, it was not the people of this State who have been robbed. On the contrary, it is the people of this State who are sharing in the robbery. These profits are almost wholly from the through business of the Central Pacific from freights paid—mostly by shippers and travelers of other States and countries—then used in good part in building non-paying roads in this State. We very much doubt if there is a continuous hundred miles of paying railroad, locally considered, in the State. We have heard disinterested parties, but who were in position to know something as to the facts, say that the great Southern Pacific, for instance, never has earned scarcely enough to pay for the grease used on its machinery. This, of course, is taking an extreme view, but is doubtless true in the main. Yet these demagogues in the several Conventions assembled say at once we have been egregiously swindled because the same parties happen to own a paying road outside of this State, and that consequently the receipts of all within must right or wrong be cut down one-quarter, one-third, one-half. "Fair play is a jewel," but communistic confiscation like this is no jewel, even of respectable paste. What a howl there will be should we happen to have three really honest, conscientious Railroad Comissioners, no matter of what party, who, after years of investigation, find it necessary to report that no California railroad proper has more than made a living—perhaps not that, and that these millions out of which we are said to be robbed, are millions the robbers have obtained elsewhere from beyond our jurisdiction, and brought here for a sort of common benefit.

THE cheapest railroad ride ever offered in this country, says the Salt Lake Herald, is from Kansas City, Mo., to Chicago. The distance is 500 miles, and the fare is 50 cents. The usual cost of a ticket to Kansas City, Atchinson and other Missouri river points to Chicago is $15 25. On the 23d of June the competing lines began to cut rates, and the figures by Wednesday of that week had got down to $9. Wednesday morning one road came down to $3, the others soon followed, and toward the close of the afternoon the Hannibal and St. Joseph line hung out the notice: "Fifty Cents to Chicago," and the rest followed suit.

THE mining town of Silver Reef, Utah, which was recently almost totally destroyed by fire has just met with another misfortune in the same shape. On the 23d ultimo the quartz mill of Barbee & Walker was entirely consumed by fire. As the prosperity of the place was in a large measure depended on the mill its destruction is little less than a calamity to the town.

THE HONORABLE BILKS.

A handful or so of Silurians, Honorable Bilks, or, as they liked to be called, New Constitution or Anti-Monopoly party, got together at Sacramento the other day and named a man for every State office they could think of. We do not propose to make it a business to review the characters of the candidates presented by any party, State or county; nevertheless, there appears to be such a remarkable inconsistency in their own choice for candidate for Governor, we can not refrain from calling attention to the fact. If the New Constitution Party claims to be anything in particular, that claim is its open, deadly opposition to monopolists of all descriptions; and, par excellence, it has sounded its hewgags against the land monopolist as the very worst in creation, which he certainly is, for the land monopolist takes much and gives nothing in return. But notwithstanding the racket the H. B.'s have made and continue to make as being the poor man's friend, they now select for their standard-bearer one of the largest land monopolists in this State, and a man who owes his acquaintance with the general public to no other fact in the world than that he has accumulated some 56,000 acres of farming land. We are not of those who condemn a man as unfit for public trust simply because he is the owner of a large number of acres of land, or many steamships or miles of railroad, or any other property, provided, of course, that his accumulations were by fair means. But it is very remarkable, to say the least, that this great (?) reform party, after making such an ado about rich monopolists and their consequent unfitness to administer public affairs, should take this great land-grabber as their choice and yet continues to denounce an opposition candidate because he happens to own an interest in a few steamships—an ownership, by the way, that deprives no man of his rightful share of God's footstool; the ocean is a little too large for any man or set of men to monopolize to any such extent. The H. B. organ says Dr. Glenn, its candidate for Governor, bought and paid for his broad acres. That fact, whether he froze out poor neighbors or not in doing so, will not make him any more anxious to do his part in making large land owners pay their fair share of taxation, the very point of all others now at bitter issue. Neither does it show conclusively that Perkins did not pay for his steamships. All considered, the H. B.'s organ, if not the party at large, shows an astonishing degree of cheek in this matter. In this matter, at least, they have fairly earned the title of Honorable Bilks, or bilks without honor, to speak more correctly. Here is their full ticket, save Congressmen, which they thought best not to nominate:

For Governor — Hugh Glenn, of Colusa.

Secretary of State—Lauren E. Crane, of Sierra.

Treasurer—Cyrus Jones, of Santa Clara.

Controller—Hugh M. Larue, of Sacramento.

Surveyor General—F. J. Clark, of Alameda.

Attorney General—Charles W. Cross, of Nevada.

Chief Justice—Nathaniel Bennett, of San Francisco.

Associate Justices—Alexander Campbell, of Alameda; Caleb Dorsey, of Tuolumne; J. H. McKune, of Sacramento; C. A. Tuttle, of Alameda; J. C. Burch, of San Francisco; Calhoun Benham, of San Francisco.

State Board of Equalization—First District, A. C. Bradford, of San Francisco; Second District, William. M. Crutcher, of Placer; Third District, John Kelly, of Yolo; Fourth District, Tyler D. Heiskell, of Stanislaus.

Railroad Commissioners—First District, Henry Larkin, of El Dorado; Second District, Samuel Soule; Third District, George Stoneman.

IT is believed in London that the rise in silver is due to the publication of a letter to the Under Secretary of State for India, giving the views of Lord Odo Russell, the British Ambassador to Berlin, in regard to Germany's coinage policy. The letter confirms the announcement of the German Government's determination not to sell any more silver at present, and further states that the German Government has £10,000,000 in silver on hand, which will increase during the suspension of sales; and, it is added, on the authority of Lord Odo Russel, that it is generally believed by financial men in Germany that the Government is preparing to introduce and adopt the double standard, as in France.

THE Tuscarora Times-Review says that the leaching process has been demonstrated a success with the low grade ores of that district, working $100 rock up to 96 per cent., and $40 rock up to 90 per cent.

THE President has withdrawn the nomination of George W. McCrary for the Judgeship made vacant by the resignation of Judge Dillon.

APPLETON'S Journal for July contains an array of interesting papers well contrasted in theme and mode of treatment. Perhaps the most important is Karl Blind's article from the Contemporary Review, entitled "Conspiracies in Russia," which has peculiar interest, as well as historical value, at the present moment. It gives the history of the numerous intrigues and attempted revolutions that have so strikingly marked the past of Russia, leading up to the present political troubles, which will be treated in a subsequent paper. There is a complete novelette under the title of "Ricardo," which is something more than a story, being an effective and admirable illustration of how a woman should and may be educated—the education being conducted by the masculine theorists. The heroine is a delightful character, and the story strikingly suggestive as well as eminently readable. "Reforms in Asiatic Turkey," by "One who has lived there," is excellent; two papers, under the general title of "Italian Sketches," are picturesque and amusing. Besant and Rice's novel, "The Seamy Side," is continued; there are a review of and selections from Browning's "Dramatic Idyls;" a paper describing Queen Victoria's private apartments at Windsor; a brilliant bit of satire under the head of "Moralists on Blue China" (from the Saturday Review); and a lively paper by James Payn, "The Midway Inn." The editor reviews at length the new books, and discusses entertainingly "Reflection of National Character in Literature and Art," "Town Spaces and Town Gardens," and "The Increase of Melancholy."

THE Russian Government has voted $200,000 for the construction of the largest telescope that can be advantageously made, the object-glass to be some three feet in diameter. Struve will visit this country and give the Alvan Clark establishment a chance at the contract.

FROM a recent report of the Secretary of the Treasury, it appears that the eleven States which participated in the "late rebellion" are indebted to the United States in the sum of $2,754,104 on account of "direct taxes."

SUB-TREASURER SHERMAN has shipped $17,000,000 in gold coin to the East as third-class mail matter during the past eight months. Lately the shipments have been made under a Government frank, and without cost.

Lake District.

Since our last we had occasion to visit Mammoth and surroundings, and were more than ever impressed with the magnitude and importance of the developments recently made in that district. The Mammoth mine fully warrants the name given it in every particular. They have an immense quantity of good milling ore opened out, and will have no trouble in keeping their mill running for another year at least without any further developments. A portion of their ledge is the richest kind of specimen rock. The Mammoth is a wonderfully rich mine, and situated as it is, within about three miles of the summit of the Sierra Nevada Mountains, sets aside the long accepted theory that good mines do not exist in this range. The discovery and proven richness and magnitude of the Mammoth, not only opens up a field for prospecting in that immediate vicinity, but throughout the entire length of that range. Hence the extraordinary importance of the developments in this district.

Since our visit to this place about a year ago, good wagon roads have been constructed connecting it with Bodie and Owens River Valley, and freighting and traveling facilities have increased as required. Now, instead of no mail at all they have a daily, with prospects of telegraphic communication as soon as a line can be constructed. Lake District has good mines and all the auxiliaries to become an important mining center. We believe it will. The prospects of our southern country are brightning every day.—Carson Valley News, June 27.

THAT the Convention pretending to represent the anti-monopoly sentiment of the State should put forward for Governor such a man as Dr. Glenn, one of the largest land monopolists on the Pacific Coast, occasions no little surprise and indignation. Dr. Glenn owns enormous tracts of lands in Colusa county, comprising the whole of one large grant and portions of two others, probably in all not less than one hundred and forty thousand acres. With the small land holders of that section he has made himself thoroughly hated, by his selfish and grasping action relative to a certain road which they found indispensable to their interests to build. He owns, it seems, a tract of land extending twenty-two miles along the river front, and about five miles back. This completely shuts out the farmers from the landings and communications with the boats. The Supervisors at length laid out a county road through the land, upon which Dr. Glenn sued the county for damages. After years and years of litigation he obtained judgment against the county, and the tax payers were forced to pay for the land and the building of ten miles of fence.—Visalia Delta.

AN unlucky Irishman was once imprisoned for an infraction of the law. His faithful wife visited him greatly cast down. With the intention of cheering him up, she said: "Arrah, be aizy, Pat; shure ye'll hav an upright Judge to try yez, anyway." "Ah, Biddy," he groaned, "the divil an upright Judge I want; 'tis one that'll lane a little."

THE crop of flies this year is simply enormous. The average yield in this valley is one bushel to the square foot. The reason assigned by "the oldest," etc., for this year's crop not being even larger is the backwardness of the season. Those producers who planted early lost their crops by the nips of the early frosts, and were compelled to replant; while those who planted later found their crops coming up in the midst of a late cold Spring, which very much retarded production. However, it is anticipated that with the present harvest the inhabitants or the flies will be enabled to pull through next Winter—whichever survives the Summer. And talking about flies, many people regard flies as a nuisance. Some people are so sulky and selfish that they can not appreciate the force of character displayed by the affectionate little fellow as he determinedly, persistently, and repeatedly kisses you on the side of your nose, or under your left eye, or, warily dodging both clenched fists, he darts quickly around and tackles you behind the ear with as much apparent interest in his work as though he were conferring the greatest favor in the world and affording you a sensation of pleasurable emotion that was gently and gradually bearing you into the realms of ecstatic bliss. It has long been a question of debate whether the fly was of any earthly use in this world. Most assuredly yes. As a citizen and voter the fly would probably carry things to extremes. He would vote too often and too persistently; and as a portion of the fighting element around the polls, with which he would naturally affiliate, the fly would be dangerous, because he is never whipped. Nothing short of a complete smashing of the skull will settle the fly's hash. Why, a one-armed man would stand no more show in a square set-to with a light-weight Bentonian fly than would a cat in—but everybody knows that story. The fly is sent into this world, not as a means of torture and punishment, but to teach us lessons of early rising and industry. We defy any man, woman or child to sleep in Benton after daylight or before dark—hence the fly is sent here to teach us duties of industry, energy and perseverance, and the sooner the Bentonian learns his lesson and adopts the alternative the sooner will we have a happy and prosperous community.—Benton Tri-Weekly Letter.

PERKINS, White and Glenn—one of this trio is to be the next Governor of California. Which of the three is the question. Either White or Glenn is likely to be indorsed by the Democratic Convention to meet in Sacramento early next month. There is likely also to be a diversity of opinion among the Delegates to the Convention as to which of the two should receive the Democratic support. The whole thing is, of course, a matter of policy. The Democrats will desire to cast their fortunes with the winning man. It is a humiliating admission, but nevertheless a true one. The Sentinel believes the best prospect of success lies in the direction of Kearney's candidate.—Eureka Sentinel.

Two lovers, like two armies, generally get along well enough till they are engaged, and then the powder flies—from the young girl's cheek to the young man's coat collar.

MARRIED.

At Bakersfield, Kern County, Cal., June 26, 1879, by the Rev. Mr. Peters, W. F. MONTAGUE, of Olancha, Inyo Co., Cal., to MISS EDNA L. HALL, of Brookfield, Mass.

Thus the Cerro Gordo Freighting Company receives acquisitions. THE INDEPENDENT extends a welcome and the heartiest congratulations, wishing the new team a matrimonial journey freighted with all the joys that can be crowded into a life long trip.

DIED.

What a brief sentence, and yet what a world of memories to every man, woman and child within our little world of Inyo county will crowd themselves in the minds of those who either read or hear the above. All knew him—all respected him—all loved him. Before Inyo had an existence in name he whose demise we deplore was part and parcel of what is now our flourishing valley. He was, and even now is, although dead, in connection with a few other honored names who still remain amongst us, the unwritten history of Owens Valley; a history which if written only in naked facts, void of all embellishments from the imagination, would be read with all the keen zest that would attach to the pages of romance. None more ready to repel, none braver than he to meet the attacks of the wily savage when property and life lay almost at their mercy. Since the organization of our county almost every page bears evidence of his connection with its interest, either as Sheriff or Deputy Sheriff. As Sheriff he met his death in the discharge of an official duty. No one will be more missed than dear, dead "Dad" Moore. Ever genial and generous as a man, ever faithful and true as an officer he was while living, and now is when dead; invulnerable to the shafts of slander or thought of reproach. In our hearts bright memories will always remain at the thought of our dead friend. May the grass grow green and perennial bloom the flowers over the grave of the generous, the true and noble-hearted Wm. L. Moore.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.:
SATURDAY, JULY 5.....1879

MODOCK OFFICIAL LETTER.—The official letter of the week is as follows:

July 1, 1879.

J. W. Pew, Esq., Secretary Modock Con. M. Co.:—DEAR SIR: Tunnel, 1000-foot level, was run the past week 39 feet, making total length 1,823 feet. Crosscut at 300-foot drift eight feet. Drift at 1000 foot 15½ feet. Total length, 82½ feet. Drift at 1100 foot 15 feet, making the whole length 65 feet. Total depth of winze at 300 point 25 feet. There is no change from the favorable character heretofore reported at these points. The ledge passed through near the 1800-foot point in tunnel is about 25 feet wide, 5 feet of which gives assays as mentioned in last letter. The 300-foot crosscut and winze look particularly favorable for ore, and 1100 drift never looked better.

Yours, respectfully,
A. C. TIBBETTS, Supt.

WE regret to note that we have done something to set the Honorable Bilk club of Cerro Gordo to sniffling—regular stomachaching, so to speak. They sent word to the Bilk organ of last Sunday that THE INDEPENDENT has been ridiculing them, consequently it is "not worthy of credence, and is an organ of the office-seekers and corruptionists." We wouldn't mind all this so much only we hate to see good H. B.'s misquoted by their own organ. For instance, it prints their sniffle to read: "Our club now numbers 45 members," when it is almost a sure thing they really intended it to read: "Our club now numbers 4 or 5." Anyway, that reads to people in this section better as a matter of fact than the way the lying organ got it. But it makes no difference whether it was written 4 or 5 or 45, only on account of the anguish of mind such mistakes are liable to cause such sensitive and modest souls as go to make up the Honorable Bilk miscegenation organization generally.

ASSESSMENT.—The Los Angeles Mining and Smelting Company, of Resting Springs, have levied an assessment of $1 per share. We believe this company to be a reorganization of the first one operating at Tecopa, the mill, machinery and personal property of which was lately put under attachment by San Francisco creditors. The place is some 300 miles distant from Independence, in the southeastern part of Inyo—a notice of the mines, from the Stock Report, will be found upon our first page. There seems to be no question of the real value and extent of the mines, the trouble of the previous company (if it is not the same) having been brought about by the failure of some new-fangled milling machinery. It will be seen from the item referred to that sensible reduction works are now to be put up. Upon the return of Deputy Sheriff Welch to Darwin we may expect a report of the far-off region through Mr. O'Brion's facile pen.

TO PROVE UP.—Elsewhere will be found an official notice of forthcoming final proof of a land entry in this district. A new Departmental regulation requires the publication of such notice, giving description of land, date of making proof and names of witnesses, for thirty days, in all cases before final proving up of homestead or pre-emption entries. The advertisement is prepared by the Register, and the cost of publication runs from $8 to $10, according to length of description.

WILL NOT RETURN.—We are in receipt of a private note from Paul Bennett, Esq., at Bodie, in which he states that circumstances have compelled him to change his plans as to relocating in this county, as mentioned a short time ago. He is being urged to accept the nomination for Superior Judge for Mono county, but will not do so, intending to continue the practice of his profession, in which we have reason to believe he is doing very well indeed.

A CHANGE.—Frank Clugage is reported to have bought out the entire interest of John Allman in the stage lines running from here to Aurora and Virginia. We trust he may prove enterprising enough to publish a regular advertisement and time table in the papers along the route, thereby benefiting himself and accommodating the public.

GONE BELOW.—County Judge John A Hannah left for San Francisco a few days since, to be at the commencement of the July term of the Supreme Court, on Monday next. His object is to gain admission to practice, and to become a candidate for the position of Superior Judge. He will pay a short visit, also, to relatives and friends at Napa.

CANDIDATES.—Among the candidates out in Mono is R. L. Peterson, Esq., for re-election as Justice of the Peace for Bodie, and highly spoken of by the papers. The Chronicle warmly indorses Hon. R. M. Briggs for the office of County Clerk. The position is a responsible and lucrative one, and the Judge well qualified to fill it.

THE MAMMOTH MILL...—Two 18 and one 20-animal team of the C. G. F. Co. passed through town day before yesterday, loaded with the big boilers and heavy machinery for the new Mammoth mill, at Lake District. From appearances, the new reduction works will be the finest and most extensive in the two counties.

NEW P. M.—C. F. O'Brion, Esq., is now the regularly commissioned Postmaster of Darwin, and while running his store also acts as stage and express agent, besides being a duly accredited representative of THE INDEPENDENT.

Inquest Upon the Body of William L. Moore.

At 10 A. M. yesterday, Coroner J. A. Lank began an official inquiry into the cause of the death of William L. Moore, Sheriff of Inyo county. A number of witnesses were examined, requiring the greater part of the day. The sum of the testimony adduced requires but a few words.

About 5 o'clock in the afternoon of the 3d instant, while Sheriff Moore and some others were sitting in conversation in front of Mairs' saloon, a pistol shot was heard, as if fired in the Aldine saloon, about 100 feet distant, and kept by John Langer, one of the principal witnesses in the inquiry. The Sheriff, with others of those present, immediately started on a run to the other saloon. Going inside at once back to where the billiard table stood, he there found one Mike Welch flourishing a pistol as if about to shoot Henry Tessier with whom he was quarreling. The Sheriff stepped between them, saying at the same time, "Stop it, Mike; stop it!" and laying his left hand on Mike's shoulder, with the other attempted to disarm him. At this juncture, Welch made a movement with his pistol as if to shoot or strike Tessier, who stood several feet distant directly in the Sheriff's rear. As the pistol came down it was discharged. The Sheriff, placing both hands on his left side, exclaimed: "Oh, Mike!" and partly turning, said to C. Olmstead, who had accompanied him to the spot, to "take hold of me." Olmstead then did so, and supporting him, started for the front door. At the threshold the wounded man sank to the floor, and in an instant his eyes closed in that sleep which knows no waking. At this time Welch came up, and with tears in his eyes, said: "Dad, I did not go to do it; I'm your best friend," or words to that effect, seemingly greatly affected at his own dreadful work. That is the whole of this awful story, as regards the immediate cause of death. It will be seen that "Dad," as he has ever been familiarly known, died at his post—died in the fulfillment of his duty. After a full hearing the Coroner's Jury, consisting of V. G. Thompson, A. W. Eibeshutz, O. B. Bacon, S. A. Densmore, H. Levy, and W. A. Greenly rendered a verdict to the effect that deceased was a native of the State of Carolina, aged a little over 51 years, and that he came to his death on the 3d day of July, 1879, in the town of Independence, Cal., while in the discharge of his duty as an officer, by a gunshot wound fired by Mike Welch.

The deadly missile struck a heavy gold watch in the Sheriff's vest pocket, on the left side, and, cutting through its edge nearly the full depth of the ball, passed into the body in a backward and downward direction, finally lodging against the lumbar vertebrae, where it was subsequently extracted by Dr. Bicknell, from whose testimony we also learn that the aorta was severed—of itself sufficient to cause death almost instantly.

Henry Tessier and this Mike Welch had had an altercation in the early part of the day. Tessier procured a "gun," and remarked to different persons that he was going to shoot "—— —— ——." He and Welch had both been drinking just enough to make such as they particularly vainglorious, and to breed within both a strong desire to appear as desperadoes. Tessier, probably with the view of fulfilling his threats, went into Langer's saloon, Welch being already there. The first was leaning against the counter; when Welch observed his presence, he remarked as he advanced towards Tessier that "you called me a —— —— —— this morning," drew a large silver-plated Wesson revolver and struck Tessier over the head with it. The latter then drew his revolver, whereupon Welch seized it, and begun a struggle for its possession. While this was going on Welch's own pistol was discharged, the ball going straight down through the floor. This was the shot that attracted Sheriff's Moore's attention. It was perhaps a minute later before the Sheriff reached the spot. By that time Welch had got possession of Tessier's pistol, and had both in his hands at the moment his own was discharged with such ever-to-be regretted effect.

There is no doubt felt by any person but that this result was purely accidental. Nevertheless, that fact is acceptable to none as any sort of an excuse. In the first place, such a man had no business ever to try to use a pistol, for, as shown, he was in such trepidation or naturally so careless as to discharge it both times by accident and both times to far greater risk to every other person than the one with whom he was contending. In the second place, had he not been the drunken fool he was, he would have quietly obeyed the commands of the officer without further demonstrations, knowing as he did that his opponent was then disarmed, quite a distance away, and certainly not dangerous then, if he ever had been, which seems improbable. But instead of doing so he seemed to think it necessary to make as much show of desperation as possible, and in that effort murdered a man whom he claimed as his especial friend, and a man more universally beloved and respected, both as an individual and as an officer than any other in all this county. Indeed, the feeling against Welch could scarcely be stronger were it known that he had deliberately planned to kill William L. Moore. Yet, as before stated, no one really believes that such was his intent in any degree. It may be a satisfaction to him and his adversary to know that it is a common remark that if "they both and none but them had been killed, it would have been all right, for such men are more dangerous to their friends than their enemies."

Tessser seemed to be dazed and so thoroughly frightened that he at once ran for his life, though he had not fired a single shot. It was soon known that he had run into Fromm's Restaurant, where he has been employed, and there reported that he had been shot in the head, adding, finally, that Welch had killed the Sheriff and "I had better git from here." Fromm told him he was not shot, but cut on the head, and handed him a bit of ice to apply to it. An instant later, Tessier had disappeared utterly, and though diligently searched for by the entire male population of the place, nothing whatever was found of him till shortly after dark. The building had been repeatedly scoured from garret to cellar by perhaps twenty different men, after which most of them concluded it was impossible for him to be hidden in or about it. Others thought differently, however, and among those was John Welch, who determined on an other search on his own account. Crawling under the building, pistol in one hand and a candle in the other, soon unearthed his man, who was taken to jail at once, Mike Welch having been taken there immediately after the shooting. John Welch is entitled to quite as much credit for his persistentcy in this matter as he received for what he did on a similar exciting but far different occasion years ago. But lack of time forbids mention of any further details whatever.

Some More of It.

Last May an order came from Judge Reed, then holding court in Mono county, that the regular term of his court for this county, to take place that month, would be postponed until the 8th of this month. The reasons assigned were somewhat plausible, and, in general, people accepted them as satisfactory, although the last term preceding had been passsed by default, while but very little business had been disposed of in the one preceding that which was held one year ago last May. The calendar for the May term of this year showed no less than twenty-eight cases as then made up. Some of these were of the first importance to at least one side of the parties litigant. For months previous about everything they had in the world had been tied up by attachments awaiting the adjudication that could only come through the District Court. Each day added more and more to the loss or expenses of the parties at issue, in the aggregate footing up of itself to financial ruin to the parties defendant, no matter what the final decree, whether favorable or otherwise to their claims. These litigants, if no others, felt that postponement to be a great hardship, as it certainly was. If that postponement was a hardship, we would like to know if the following order for still another postponement is not really an outrage. Here it is:

SUMNER, KERN CO., CAL., June 27, 1879.

To the Clerk of the District Court, Inyo Co., Cal., and Sheriff of said County—GENTLEMEN: You will adjourn the District Court of the 16th District, Inyo Co., Cal., to the 8th day of September, 1879, at 10 o'clock A. M.

THERON REED, District Judge.

P. S.—Of course I mean you will so adjourn when you call court on July 8th. T. R., D. J.

It will be seen that this unscrupulous Judge, Theron Reed, does not condesend to offer even the semblance of a reason for this act; not so much as to let it be known that, while engaged as usual in cussing the town of Bakersfield, he has contracted an unusually bad spell of the Bakersfield fever, and couldn't come till he had fought it awhile with chloral, absinthe, gin or what not. Or, if he had merely desired to show how liftle he regarded the rights of Inyo people, he might just as consistently have enlarged his order to the effect that as his own private affairs demanded all his attention at home, no more courts would be held in this county till the new Constitution went into effect.

He ought to be made to do his duty, else be asked or made to resign forthwith.

THE FUNERAL.—No better estimate of the very great esteem in which our deceased Sheriff, William L. Moore, was universally held need be offered than the fact that scarce a soul throughout the extent of the valley who could possibly get here but was here to-day to follow his remains to their last resting place—more especially is this true of those who, all of men, knew him best, his fellow pioneers. Though many of these and others were compelled to drive most of the night to reach here in time, they came, and from the most distant as well as every intermediate locality for sixty miles in either direction. With these came every member, able for the journey, of the Masonic order, of which deceased was a most worthy brother. The Pioneers and Masons all appeared in suitable badges and full regalia respectively, the latter conducting the ceremonies according to the rites of their order. Here, we may remark, that this is the first time in the history of this Masonic Lodge that it has ever, as a lodge, been called upon to perform such a mournful duty for a deceased brother, and, that in consequence, to most of the brethren the peculiar duties of the hour were quite as new as sad, and they were certainly sad enough. But the writer, who is not of the order, feels constrained to say that the beautiful yet mournful rites were rendered as if by veterans in their practice as well as love for their deceased brother—a fact no doubt largely due to tne ability and impressive reading by their Worshipful Master, Judge Conklin. The concourse was doubly the largest ever witnessed in this place, yet scores were not present for no other reason that it was impossible for them to obtain any conveyances. Deceased leaves no wife or children to mourn his loss, or other near relatives resident on this coast save an inconsolable brother, J. J. Moore, our highly respected Under Sheriff and ex-Sheriff; but in lieu of nearer ones, "Dad" leaves an entire community to most sincerely mourn his untimely and tragical death. But he died as he had lived—fulfilling his duty. What better tribute than that for any man or officer?

WESTON was the victor in the pedestrian contest at London, making 550 miles, with five minutes to spare.

THE FOURTH in this place, instead o proving the joyous occasion so fondly anticipated, was a day of mourning. Why, we need not here state. After the sad news reached Bishop, it was about the same there. Their grand and otherwise most pleasant celebration ended in a meeting of condolence, at which resolutions to that purport were passed and ordered published but have not yet reached us. At Lone Pine, the same statement fully applies.

LEAD.—There has been a small business in this market at 3¾ cents, although several hundred tons have been sold at St. Louis on a higher basis. The market is very strong, and is based upon the knowledge of the small amount of lead that will be produced as compared with what was estimated. Whereas, it was estimated that the production of Leadville would amount to from 20,000 to 30,000 tons, we are now advised by a very high authority that the bullion product will not exceed 12,000 tons, making only from 10,000 to 11,000 tons of lead. Utah reports a falling off of about 3,000 tons already. Missouri, as is well known, will show a large decrease, and Nevada will probably show some. As the active season will soon come on, the advance in the price of lead does not seem unwarranted, and we should not be surprised to see four cents reached, as is predicted. The reserves are already being encroached upon.—New York Mining Journal.

Mining Decision.

The following mining decision is telegraphed from Washington:

"The Secretary of the Interior has announced a decision reversing the decision of the Commissioner of the General Land Office in the case of the Iowa Mining Company versus the Bonanza Mining Company of Nevada, and laying down a new principle of great importance in mining controversies. The Bonanza Company, in January, 1876, made application for 593 feet of the Lucky Baldwin lode. The Iowa Company, holding an adverse claim, commenced suit thereon in April, 1876, by filing a complaint in the First District Court of Nevada, and causing summons to be issued. It was shown, however, that as late as May 24, 1879, service had not been perfected on the defendant, and that no further steps had been taken by the plaintiff in the prosecution of said suit. The General Land Office, on this state of facts, decided, last October, that the Iowa Company had waived its adverse claim by failure to prosecute said suit with reasonable diligence, and that the Bonanza Company was therefore entitled to receive a patent as soon as the ordinary requirements of the mining law should be complied with.

Secretary Schurz, reviewing this decision, says: 'Section 2,326 of the revised statutes provides in plain terms that the failure on the part of an adverse claimant to prosecute his suit to judgment with reasonable diligence, shall be a waiver of his claim, but it does not provide either in terms or by necessary implication that the General Land Office shall decide what constitutes 'reasonable diligence' while the suit is pending in court. The object of this law clearly was to require parties claiming an adverse interest in land included in an application for patent, to try the right of possession and have the controversy determined by the State Courts before the issuance of a patent. The question of diligence in the prosecution of a pending suit is as much a question for the determination of the Court as any other question of law or fact which may arise in the progress of the case, and one which, after the Court has acquired jurisdiction, should be left for its determination.'

The Secretary points out that otherwise the General Land Office might hold that reasonable diligence had not been exercised, and issue a patent, while the Court might give judgment for the adverse claimant, thereby producing conflict of authority and confusion of titles, and, as a consequence, further expensive litigation, etc. He therefore says:

'I am of opinion that the practice in cases of this character is for the defendant, if, in his opinion, the suit is not prosecuted with reasonable diligence, to move the Court to dismiss the case for want of prosecution, and, if it is granted, cause the judgment to be certified to the General Land Office, when a patent can be issued without conflict of Courts or the rights of parties in interest.'"—Stock Report.

M. DE LESSEPS is seventy-four years old, but he looks fifty. He has a high, bold forehead, is rather thick set, with snow-white hair and moustache, and the piercing eye of an eagle. After the completion of the Suez Canal he married Mlle. de Bragard, a very beautiful and accomplished lady only forty years younger than himself. By his first wife he had two sons; by his second, seven children, the youngest an infant. He is a member of the Academy of Sciences, and a punctual attendant at its weekly meetings. His studies are now exclusively devoted to the subject of an inter-oceanic canal on this continent.

M. GILMORE has recently discovered a ledge of kaolin in Washoe county, Nevada. Kaolin is a clay from which porcelain is manufactured, and found principally in Cornwall and China. The ledge is three feet wide at the croppings.

Edison's Latest.

Edison's late invention, the electro-chemical, or loud-speaking telephone, was exhibited last evening for the first time in this country, at the closing Spring meeting of the Franklin Institute. Its operations had never been shown in public before except once, within the last few weeks, by Prof. Tyndall, at the Royal Institute in London.

An audience, principally of gentlemen, filled the commodious lecture room. A paper treating upon the principles involves in the construction of the instrument was read by Henry M. Bentley, President of the Philadelphia Local Telegraph Company, who then conducted experiments with the improved telephone. The invention, he said, was simply an attachment of the electro-motograph receiver to the Edison carbon transmitter. He would use for this occasion the rude box which Mr. Edison had used in experimenting. If necessary, a coil to counteract induction could also be attached. The operation about to be exhibited, he said, would not be so satisfactory as what would be shown in the early future, when an open and perfected instrument would take the place of the rude box which he had brought from Mr. Edison's establishment on the previous evening. Mr. Bentley slipped a wheel of chalk upon an axle inside the little box, and as the transmissions were received from the office of the telephone company at the corner of Third and Chestnut streets, he continually turned a small crank projecting from the box. This caused the transmissions, which, under other circumstances, could not be heard at a distance of more than two or three feet from the receiver, to be audible in all parts of the house.

The speaking was as distinct as if the speaker were just at the other side of a board partition, with wide interstices between the boards, and the sound had all the characteristics of his voice. To show a comparison of voices, Mr. Bentley several times called a different speaker to the transmitter. Whistling of such airs as "Yankee Doodle," "Sweet By and Bye" and "Poor Little Buttercup," was particularly distinct and accurately transmitted. The sound heard by the audience, Mr. Bentley said, was two or three times as loud as that sent into the transmitter. The playing of a cornet came rather harshly and irregularly at first, but when Mr. Bentley had requested the performer not to hold the horn so close to the transmitter, the music was almost as satisfactory as if the player, instead of being nearly five squares away, were on the spot where Mr. Bentley stood. As in the case of the speaking, whistling and other transmissions, it would seem that only a partition full of holes or wide cracks intervened between the performers and listeners. Mr. Bentley saw no reason why people in the near future could not enjoy a lecture or concert going on at the Academy of Music by staying at home with their "electro-chemical" telephones. Being asked how far such performances could be transmitted, he replied that the question could not yet be definitely answered, but he believed they could be heard a distance of one hundred miles as well as they were heard now.

A trial of violin music was not so successful as that of the cornet, probably because the sound of the former scattered more than that of the latter before entering the transmitter. Mr. Bentley thought that the instrument was not in proper tune. The sound, nevertheless, could be instantly distinguished as that of a violin. Singing was then tried, with considerable success, but it sounded a little as if a hand were held against the mouth of the singer, or he had a bad cold in his head. As a finale, a cornet performance of some of "Pinafore's" liveliest airs came with astonishing distinctness and accuracy, sounding almost as well as if the performer were on the platform and putting the audience into the best of humor. — Philadelphia Times.

"SPIRIT PHOTOGRAPHY" is thus explained by a Rochester photographer: I take a piece of glass and on it I paste the photographed heads of such "spirits" as I wish to reproduce in hazy outlines about the head of the sitter. In the center of the glass I put nothing, but arrange the "spirits" in a semicircle. Then from this prepared plate I take a negative and afterwards a positive. When a sitter comes for photographs I take a negative just as I would any one's. When the printing is done I place the positive plate of the sitter under the positive of the "spirits," and allow the sun to print both. The "spirits" being in a semi-circle the finished photograph appears as if the sitter was surrounded by heads in the air.

A YOUNG Cherokee Indian has just given proof that the red man is capable of high attainments in scholarship as his more fortunate white brother. At the University of Wooster he took the first Latin prize—a gold medal—for best scholarship during the senior preparatory year, and for the best examination for entrance to the Freshman class at the commencement. He had sixty students to compete with.

A MACHINE for separating gold from earth or gravel without the use of water, is said to have been invented by Prof. Paschal Plant, of Baltimore. If it shall prove successful it will be of incalculable value in many parts of the country where gold bearing earth and gravel has to be transported long distances to water for separation.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.:
SATURDAY, JULY 19.....1879

THE Stock Report says that a permanent organization of the Astoria and Winnemucca Railroad Company has been effected, and at a recent meeting of its projectors a resolution was adopted authorizing the President and Vice President to employ and put engineers in the field at once. One-half the capital stock has already been subscribed. This road, if completed, will traverse the State of Nevada north of Winnemucca, on the Central Pacific, into and across Oregon, not only bringing a large portion of the great agricultural region of that State into railroad communication, but opening up an extensive mineral-bearing country in Northern Nevada and Idaho, and giving railroad communication to many mining districts already opened and worked in that section. It is evident that the company mean business, for one-half the capital stock is already paid up.

A STRAIGHT Republican ticket was nominated at Bakersfield on the 14th instant. Following are the nominations made: Judge Theron Reed was nominated for Superior Judge by acclamation, V. A. Gregg for District Attorney, F. W. Craig for County Clerk, A. O. Collins for Sheriff, V. Barker for Assessor, A. Fay for Auditor, T. R. Fillebrown for Surveyor, S. A. Burnap for Coroner, Mrs. L. S. Rogers for Superintendent of Public Instruction. The ticket is said to meet general approval. The Fourth Senaatorial District Convention met and nominated Chester Rowell, of Fresno, for Senator. H. M. White, of Tulare, was nominated for the Assembly.

NEARLY all of the efforts made to obtain water in this State by sinking artesian wells have proved successful. The Southern Pacific Railroad Company have succeeded in obtaining a good supply at Walter's Station, Los Angeles county, at a depth of forty-eight feet. The water rises to within eight feet of the surface. This inexhaustible supply of water is on the border of the desert, where the trains meet and are supplied with water for their desert trip. Artesian wells, from present indications, will increase the value of vast tracts of land, and render those productive which have heretofore been regarded as nearly worthless, in various portions of the State.

THE Secretary of the Interior has reversed the decision of the Commissioner of the General Land Office, in the case of Josefa Montatua de Serago vs. the Southern Pacific Railroad Company, involving title to lands in Los Angeles District, and awards them to the Railroad Company. Secretary Schurz, in this decision, makes the important general ruling, that if a pre-emption settler fails to file a declaratory statement within the time required by law, his preference right to purchase the land indicated by said pre-emption settlement is forfeited. This rule applies to claims under a railroad grant, as well as to claims of subsequent settlers.

THE sudden death of ex-Governor Allen, of Ohio, in Cincinnati on the 11th instant is announced. Deceased had long been prominent in the politics of the Buckeye State. He was generally successful politically, having rarely lost a race before the people. He was a man of sterling worth and great native ability. As a stumper he possessed few equals among the politicians of his day. Indeed, he was so loud and emphatic that he won for himself the sobriquet of "Fog-horn Allen."

THE Sutro Tunnel is completed, and is now receiving the water from the mines along the whole line. An idea of the value of the tunnel to the Comstock may be gained from the statement that eight hours' pumping from the Savage and Hale & Norcross combination shaft lowered the water in the mine one hundred feet. At this rate the mines, flooded for years, will soon be dry and ready for workmen. The tunnel appears to be a marked success as a feat of engineering.

THE San Diego Union, while it is always courteous in its utterances about its political adversaries, is, nevertheless, intensely Republican in its proclivities. It says of Wallace Leach, the Democratic candidate for Governor in the Fourth District: "He has been the most active, irrepressible champion of Democracy in this end of the State, and is unquestionably one of the leading representative men of that party in Southern California."

POLITICAL NOTES.

We would like to see the man who can truthfully say he has positive convictions of his own or anybody else's as to what the outcome of all this political hubbub in this State is to be—that is, which, in this mixed field of scrubs and thoroughbreds, are surest to lead in the September race. If we can find such a man we will educate ourselves to respect him all we can, because it is clear he must come of a very wise family, even though he himself might have been the fool of that same family. Anyway, it's not for the likes of us to set up for political prophets this time, and we don't do it. It's a business better suited for some Honorable Bilk. But we don't mind trying to give some idea of the number of goslings now pulling at the same polliwog, to wit, the people: First, there are the four grand divisions, namely, the Honorable Bilks, composed chiefly of the elder De Young, together with a handful of sore-eyed riff-raff Republicans and chivalry Democrats; the regular Democrat party, comprising all who are Democrats from principle, the W. P. C., or Kearneyites, who, in contradistinction to the chivalry and all others, assert themselves to be the shovelry, and, lastly, the regular Republican party, made up mostly of people who have an idea that every man is as good as another if not a little better.

The first three are in accord with each other in so far that they deem the fourth the common enemy of them all, in having rather the best hold on the polliwog than either of the others singly; but in their joint efforts to break this hold they are pulling directly against each other; neither dare let go for fear itself will be swallowed up, yet knowing if all three hold on all three will be gulped down together. So each is more and more determined to hang on and trust to luck.

The Bilks thought to shake off their greatest incubus, Dr. Glenn, and substitute a still greater in the person of Geo. Gorham. But after much wrangling and bad blood, they gave that up. So now the elder De Young is most delicately situated. He is bound to continue to denounce the Democrats for their alleged sell-out of principles in the make up of their ticket, yet in doing so reviles his own party to the same extent, because both are made up exactly alike at the head and most important part. This is bad for Charles, and not very good for either of those two parties, which, by his masterly management, find themselves compelled to fight each other pretty much as two cats hung by the tails across a clothes line. Nor yet is it any worse than if he had got Gorham in, with whom he is now in such slimy fellowship. It was but the other day his most reliable argument with which to bring odium upon the Republican party was that it had become completely Gorhamized. But now when George has about Gorhamized Charles and his party, Charles falls down and worships George as the ne plus ultra of an Honsrable Bilk. These things tend to show that Sir Charles is the most wonderful politician of the age, or its equivalent, the most unscrupulous knave.

Meantime, as a partial result of his operations, the Republicans are being racked by dangerous internal disturbances, the Democrats are miserable with uncertainties, the Bilks are mizzling from view, while Denis' shovelry are proportionately forging ahead, and everything is more mixed than ever before.

IN the present political contest, as to local or county officers, it will be understood that THE INDEPENDENT has no choice, preferences or favoritism to express for anybody. In all executive positions the term lasts for but one year, and so far as we know all the candidates in the field are competent to fill the respective positions sought for. Having no axes to grind or other hardware that needs sharpening, this journal is totally independent. The number of voters in the county is small, and the presumption is that every one knows sufficient of the men and parties before him to vote and act for himself.

THERE is just one thing to distress the retiring Khedive of Egypt. He is allowed $250,000 annually; in other words, five times the amount received by the acting President of the United States. On this sum he ought to be enabled to live luxuriously even in the gay city of Paris. But it is here the obstruction comes in. The coffers of Egypt are empty. She has no credit, and who will be found to honor the Khedive's drafts? The outlook to the deposed Viceroy is not at all encouraging, but the experience of a little adversity might teach him wisdom.

A DISPATCH from Seattle, W. T., of the 14th instant, announces the death by suicide of Theodore Newman, late editor of the German Democrat, San Francisco. He was found in the woods near Seattle shot through the head. Illness and discouragement prompted the act.

THE New York Times says the new treaty between Spain and China is certainly a liberal one. It makes great concessions to the Chinese. Hereafter, if treaty obligations are fulfilled, the Chinese in Cuba will enjoy all the right conferred upon citizens of the most favored nation. They may sue in courts, may depart out of the dominions of Spain whenever they choose, their responsibility to criminal law alone being sufficient to detain them. Those now under contract obligations must fulfill their contracts, but no more such agreements which constitute coolieism are to be tolerated, and the Chinese Government binds itself to prevent the embarkation of these contract laborers for Spanish ports.

THE work of laying the track of the Southern Pacific Railroad through Arizona, which has been suspended for the season, will probably not be resumed before November. It is the plan of those having charge of the construction of the road in Arizona to occupy the time until November in accumulating large supplies of ties, rails and other material at Casa Grande, the point to which the road has been brought, a distance of 182 miles from Yuma. This will greatly facilitate the work of building the road on its resumption during the Fall, when it will be pushed on to Tucson or even farther.

THE movement on foot in Europe for an International Congress at Rome next year, looking to the adoption of a code for the proportional disarmament of all the great military powers, progresses favorably. It is asserted that the Czar, Bismarck and Gambetta have given their warm adhesion, and letters approving the objects of the Congress have been received from 600 Protestant ministers, two Catholic Bishops, ninety members of the chief legislative bodies of the principal nations, including America, 120 Masonic bodies, and large numbers of societies of operatives, mechanics and other laborers.

ON the 12th of July the south-bound stage which left Phœnix was robbed seven miles below town by two men. Messenger Blankenship was on board and opened fire, wounding one. The robbers returned the fire, filling both hands of the messenger with buckshot. They then ordered the driver to throw down the mail and express box. Eighteen bars of Tiptop bullion, worth over $30,000, were on board, but overlooked, and the express box, containing several hundred dollars. Wm. G. Head was the only passenger. The officers are out in pursuit.

IT is officially announced that the Oregon Railway and Navigation Company, recently formed from the old Navigation Company, will immediately begin the extension of their narrow-gauge line in the direction of Idaho and other narrow-gauge roads, to be tributary to the Columbia will be built, including a line down the river to Portland. The company have already contracted with John Roach for another new steamer larger and faster than any along the Pacific coast.

WM. FREEMAN, Chairman of the Colored Republican General Committee, has received a letter from the Governor of Kansas, describing the influx of Southern negroes as steady and continuous, the greater portion coming being destitute. He says; "You had just as well make your calculations now that you will have abundant opportunity for testing the liberality of your people, as this immigration from the South on the part of colored people, in my judgment, has just fairly begun."

ANOTHER of those terrible tornadoes swept over Iowa, Wisconsin, Minnesota and Dakota last week, causing great destruction of life and property. Every town south and east of Minnesota is said to have suffered greatly. Hailstones as large as hens' eggs fell in one locality. While we sympathize with the sufferers, we are glad that no such destructive agencies ever appear in California. We shall try and content ourselves with occasional earthquakes.

THE INYO INDEPENDENT.—The years go by, and with them grows apace the age of a newspaper. For now comes THE INYO INDEPENDENT to us with another milestone marked on it to show its progress on life's road. With its issue of the 29th of June it entered upon its tenth year, and seems as flourishing and prosperous as ever. It is always a welcome visitor to the Herald sanctum, and if the good wishes of the writer could give to it and its owners the perennial waters of life they surely would be centenarians.—Esmeralda Herald.

THE INYO INDEPENDENT has entered upon its tenth year. It is a sprightly, well-conducted weekly, and has always been a most welcome visitor to the Sentinel sanctum. We hope that its days in the land may be many and prosperous.—Eureka Sentinel.

THE INYO INDEPENDENT has entered upon its tenth volume. It is a newsy and well-conducted paper. May it continue to flourish.—Belmont Courier.

Verdict of the Coroner's Jury as to the Bodie Explosion.

The Bodie Standard of the 14th instant contains the following verdict of the Coroner's Jury in the case of the recent disastrous explosion, which occurred at that place on the 10th instant:

We, the jurors, summoned to appear before I. P. Yaney, Coroner of Bodie and the county of Mono, on the 10th day of July, 1879, to inquire into the cause of the death of Thomas Flavin, Ewen H. McMillan, John McCarthy, and Frank Fiele, having been duly sworn according to law, and having made such inquisition after inspecting the bodies and hearing the testimony adduced, upon our oath, each and all do say that we find John McCarthy a native of the county of Wicklow, Ireland, aged 36 years; Frank Fiele, a native of Baden, Germany, aged 26 years; Ewen McMillan, a native of the Township of Finch, Starmont county, Ontario, Canada, aged 26 years; and Thos. Flavin, a native of the county of Waterford, Ireland, aged 38 or 40 years; and that the said Thomas Flavin, Frank Fiele and Ewen H. McMillan came to their death on the 10th day of July, 1879, and the said John McCarthy came to his death on the 11th day of July, 1879, in this county, by the explosion of the powder magazine situated near the old Standard hoisting works, in said county, and the immediate cause of the explosion is unknown to this jury. We find that all reasonable precaution had been taken by those having charge of the magazine, and that no blame can be attached to any one. From circumstances attending the explosion, we believe that W. J. O'Brien and Charles Mallory, now missing, were killed by the explosion. In view of the recent sad calamity, we would recommend, for the future protection of life and property, that all powder magazines be removed at least a mile from town.

THE Osceola (White Pine) correspondent of the Eureka Sentinel gives the following particulars of a tragedy which took place at Osceola on July 11: "A fatal shooting affair occurred here this afternoon, about 4 o'clock, between Captain Akey and Joseph Ayres, which resulted in the instant death of the latter. Ayres made an assault on Akey by calling him a —— —— of a ——, and told Akey to go and 'heel' himself, and that d—— quick, as he would take no advantage. Akey said, 'I will do it.' He went to his cabin and got his pistol and came back. Ayres was watching in the direction he went, but Akey came over the hill and when he got within about 100 or 125 feet of Ayers he said, 'here I am.' Ayres turned and fired first. Akey returned the fire, shooting at Ayres' feet. Ayres shot again, going very close to Akey. Akey then shot in the range of his breast, but to the left. Ayres snapped the third time, but missed fire. Akey's third shot took effect in Ayres' left breast, hitting about one inch inside of the left nipple, causing instant death. No blame is attached to Akey. The difficulty grew out of a tunnel location made by Akey and others." The Akey referred to above is our old friend Captain D. B. Akey, formerly of Panamint, and well known to all old Inyoites.

THE Gold Hill News tells of an interesting drilling match between a carpenter and a miner, which resulted as follows: The drilling match between Robert Large and Henry Tonkin, at the Yellow Jacket new works, resulted in a victory for Large. The conditions were, each man to strike down a hole two feet deep in a solid piece of granite, the man accomplishing the task in the shortest time to win the stakes, which were $100 a side. Tonkin struck first, and put down his hole in 51½ minutes. Large then took the hammer and forced his steel the required length in exactly 40 minutes. A considerable amount of money changed hands on the result. Large is a carpenter by trade. Tonkin is an experienced miner.

AN official of the Union Pacific Railroad says that no contract has been signed between the railroads and the Pacific Mail Steamship Company. There was an understanding, he said, about the five dollars head money on passenger traffic, but that came under a temporary working arrangement. Complaints have been made that commissions had been given, more particularly on through tickets to China, which was forbidden by the terms of the present agreement. He does not believe that any freight agreement would ever be signed again.

A TRAMPISH-LOOKING fellow, claiming to be John W. Mackay, of Nevada, has successfully imposed on the proprietor of Taylor's Hotel and other places in Jersey City during the week, getting away, leaving bills unpaid. Though dirty and unkept, his mining talk deceived nearly every one. Otto Meyer, to whom he owes a wine bill of fifty dollars, still believes he was the bonanza king.

THE two negroes, John Williams, who murdered Howard Holtzelaw, railroad agent and telegraph operator at Warrenton Junction, in July last, and Winter Pain, for killing an old negro named James Adams, near Farquhar county, were hanged at Warrenton, Va., on the 11th instant.

A Queue-rious Decision.

That man at Pocasset who killed his children as a sacrifice to the Lord was actuated by what he conceived to be a religious duty. The Mormons practice polygamy and the blood atonement as part of their religion. A Chinaman's queue is a factor in his religious belief. Judges Sawyer and Field hold that while a white criminal's hair may be cut in jail, to cut off a Chinese felon's queue is an interference with his religious liberty. The Mormons make the same plea in defense of their practices and Freeman's lawyers on his trial for murder may set up the same defense. If the authorities have the right to shear the lock of a Christian in jail as a cleanly or sanitary measure, they certainly have an equal right to clip a Chinaman's queue, which is only his hair done up in a plait. Does a Chinaman's religion exempt him from penalties in America which American citizen must suffer under like circumstances? Justices Sawyer and Field say it does. These Judges are not eminent jurists, and yet some of the best lawyers in the city say the decision is sheer nonsense. It looks like a truckling to the Chinese Six Companies. They might as well have said that the cubic-air ordinance is an interference with the personal liberty of the Chinaman, or that a ship containing Chinamen cannot be legally quarantined, because filthy habits are part of a Chinaman's religious belief, or that leperous Chinamen shall not be banished, because lerosy is a disease mentioned in the Bible. The decision causes a great deal of dissatisfaction and unfavorable comment in this city, not only among those who hate the Chinaman on general principles, but the reasoning and thinking people who cannot conceive the justice of a decision which gives to a Chinese prisoner an immunity denied to the unfortunate or criminal of our own people.

LAKE ITEMS.—James Brady, who has recently been here in the employ of Contractor White on the excavations at the Mammoth mill, and who was well known at Belleville and other mining camps in Nevada, was burned to death in his brush cabin on Saturday last about midnight. Ex-officio Coroner Eddy held an inquest on his body Sunday, and the charred remains were buried the same day. Large numbers of citizens visited the scene during the day, and the body, lying face downward, resting on the elbows and kees, presented a picture not soon to be forgotton. It is supposed that the unfortunate man went to bed late and left his candle burning. The pine boughs with which the cabin was sheltered are as combustible as matches or coal oil, and when once fired there was little hope of escape.

Prescott, situate about 28 miles northerly from Lake on the Mammoth belt, was discovered in July, 1878, and has many fine ledges, showing high grade ores. Among them we will mention the following, on which the most developments have been made. There has been but little work done in the district. On the Silver Belle they have an open cut run in, striking the ledge 12 or 15 feet deep, showing a fine body of medium-grade ore. Jackson's Queen of the West and Snowdrift show large bodies of high-grade ore. The King of the West, owned by our old friend Jake Holsinger. No work done. Croppings show up a well-defined ledge of very rich rock, all convenient for working, with plenty of wood and water; also, Washington Ledge, owned by the same, shows a fine body of low-grade ore on top. As further developments are made we will keep our readers apprised.

On Sunday afternoon last, Chas. Cavalli, a native of New York city, died suddenly at this place of pneumonia. Mons. Cavalli has been known in all mining camps since the Sweetwater excitement in Wyoming in 1867. He has a daughter living in San Francisco, and was connected with the Lorrilard family in New York. He was a fine painter and general artist, and a man universally beloved for his honest, manly character.—Mammoth City Herald, July 9.

THE indications are that Memphis, Tenn., is to be again scourged by the yellow fever. Few cases have yet been reported, but the presence of the epidemic is not disputed by the physicians, and panic has already set in among the citizens. Memphis had such a terrible experience last year that it is presumed she adopted such sanitary regulations as would guard against the fever this year, or at least confine it within moderate bounds. If the authorities neglected these precautions they are very much to blame. The Board of Health of Memphis has recommended the removal of such families from the city as have the means to get away, and, acting upon this advice, it is expected there will be a rapid diminution of the city's population. Many of those who fled from the city last year were severely censured, and there was perhaps some heartlessness shown in the desertion, but it would be indiscreet for unacclimated persons to remain and almost certainly fall victims to the destroyer. These persons have now official advice for seeking safety. In taking their departure, however, they should not forget the needs of those they leave behind, nor to provide for them as far as their abilities will admit.—S. F. Call.

IT was a warm afternoon, and young Mr. Cummagen did not go in the house, but sat down on the pleasant porch, as was his custom after ringing the bell. Her little sister came to the door and looked at him with some curiosity.

"Does your sister Mabel know I am here, Nellie?" he asked.

"Oh, yes," replied the innocent prattler, "I guess she does; she told me to come out and see how shady it made the front yard when you put your feet up on the railing."

He took them down and sat on them. —Hawkeye.

"IT'S cool to-day," said Johnny's mother. "It's school five days in the week these times," said the youthful paragrapher.

INSTRUCTIONS have been received at our Postoffice from the Postoffice Department, to use nothing but "printers' ink" in canceling stamps on letters or packages in future, as it has been found that the analine and other fancy inks used to cancel with can be easily washed off. Parties in the East are extensively engaged in this work of washing stamps and selling them again for use, and it is estimated that during the year past the Government has been swindled out of $2,000,000 in that manner.—Esmeralda Herald.

THE seizure of a Mexican war steamer by her mutinous crew, and a revolt in the garrison have served to break the monotony of life at Vera Cruz, which has of late years been exempt from revolutionary disturbances. The outbreaks may bring discredit on Mexico, but they are obviously too spasmodic to endanger the Government as long as it is in the energetic hands of President Diaz.

FIFTY tons of American meat were condemned and destroyed by the London inspectors the second week in June, entailing to the American exporters a loss of $50,000. It is said to have been kept ten days in New York before shipment, and is the first large loss resulting from the fresh meat traffic.

PRINCE JEROME is to be recognized by the Bonapartists as the Prince Imperial, succeeding young Louis, who was killed by the Zulus. His position is similar to that of Emperor Norton of San Francisco—an Emperor without an Empire, living on hope and free lunch.

MODOCK OFFICIAL LETTER.—The official letter of the week is as follows:

July 14, 1879.

J. W. Pew, Esq., Secretary Modock Con. M. Co.:—DEAR SIR: The following progress has been made on the 1000-foot level for the week ending to-day:

East crosscut, south drift, 300-foot point, run 4 feet; west crosscut 5 feet. Drift from bottom of winze, 14 feet. Drift at 800-foot point, started the first of the week, was run 23 feet. Crosscut from drift, 1100-foot point, run 14½ feet, and drift at 1100-foot point 24 feet. In the latter drift we have worked three shifts for 5 days of the week. Total lengths of above are as follows: East crosscut, 300-foot drift, 20 feet; west crosscut, ditto, 5 feet; drift from bottom of winze 20 feet; drift at 800-foot point 43 feet. Crosscut from drift, 1000-foot point, 19 feet; drift at 1100-foot point, 104 feet. The east crosscut, 300-foot point, was discontinued on reaching the east wall of the ledge and west crosscut started. In drift from bottom of winze we have had ore in face for the entire week, coming down from above and going away to the north. To-day the face of drift is in ore and looking better than at any time previous. The 1100-foot drift is maintaining its usual character, showing copper stains and fine ledge matter, as before noted. Other points are about the same as at last writing.

Yours, respectfully,
A. C. TYSSETTS, Supt.

SURVEYING PARTY.—A surveying party from across the mountains arrived here last Saturday, and after remaining a few days have moved on to Lake District, there to resume work in surveying timber lands. This party is in charge of Surveyor S. A. Hanson, one of several contractors under U. S. Surveyor General Wagner. Following are the names of the men comprising the party; S. A. Hanson, Deputy U. S. Surveyor in charge; Chas. Dakin and J. J. Morris, chainmen; Ed. Jamison and Andy Wormsly, axemen; S. W. Sidelinger, compassman; John Eledge, packer; Jas. McMaster, cook; Andy McAlpin, flagman; and Henry Hartell (boy) roustabout. A portion of this party had been out since early in April last under another contractor, sectionizing and running township lines in the Coast Range and in the Sierras from Wagy's mill, near Visalia, eastward to range 30, township 14 south, at which point Mr. Hanson took charge, but came directly to this valley to begin work, leaving a stretch of 44 miles unsurveyed between the surveys on that side of the mountain and this. It is said to be an almost impossible thing to run lines even by triangulation in the rugged Sierras included in this stretch.

ADMITTED.—His Honor Judge Hannah returned last night from San Francisco, having on the 16th instant been admitted to practice in the Supreme Court. The Judge's sylph-like form was prominent in a class of fifty, examined in open Court by Chief Justice Wallace, and out of which class fifteen failed to gain the coveted license. A few days prior the Judge had been admitted to practice in the Sixteenth District Court, by Judge Reed at Bakersfield. It is, of course, understood that all this proceeding is preliminary to Judge Hannah's regular candidacy for the high position of Superior Judge, and under its authority from the late County Convention the Central Committee will undoubtedly place him regularly in the field as the Democratic candidate.

JOINT CONVENTIONS.—The Democratic Joint Senatorial Nominating Convention, consisting of delegates from the counties of Fresno, Tulare, Kern, Inyo and Mono, meets at Visalia on the 28th instant. Our Democratic County Central Committee has authorized R. C. Broder, of Visalia, to cast the vote of Inyo. In the Assembly candidacy matter, a Democratic Joint Convention for Inyo and Mono will meet at Mammoth City on the same date, to place in all probability some Mono man in the field. The appointed delegates from this county are P. Reddy, J. F. Hutchison and J. E. Parker, all of whom will be in attendance.

THE POST CEMETERY.—A short time since we made mention of the fact that repairs were greatly needed upon the fence surrounding the Post Cemetery, and that a small contribution would be necessary to defray the expense of making the needed repairs. In response to this, Mr. Richard Hessian, of Big Pine, has sent down enough good cedar posts to more than replace those already decayed, and in so doing, together with his proffer to do more if necessary, has shown a commendably liberable spirit. It remains now for some one here to go and put these posts in place, or to raise funds enough to have it done. Will some one take it upon himself to see to this part of the business, and at once?

FOR SHERIFF.—James W. Smith, of the Black Rock Saw Mill, and a well known old-timer, "stands in" as an independent candidate for Sheriff, as will be noted by reference to his announcement elsewhere. Thus we have three candidates for the office, and out of the lot it is to be hoped that the county may be fortunate in securing the best man—who that may be we don't know.

GONE BELOW.—Our District Attorney, Judge R. B. Snelling, this morning started to San Francisco to gain admission to practice in the Supreme Court, on motion and by authority of his license from the Supreme Court of Oregon. The Judge will become an independent candidate for the office of Superior Judge.

THE FISH QUESTION.—Among the very first of our citizens to take an interest in the subject, and make a success of planting trout in the streams on this side of the Sierras, was Mr. J. W. McMurry, of Big Pine. The transplanted fish flourished in his own ponds, and in Big Pine creek the fish supply is permanent and annually multiplying—simply from the fact that the stream cannot be turned from out its banks by such marauders as are referred to in an another notice of this week, gotten up specially for the benefit and warning of the guilty ones. However, Mr. McMurry has lately paid a visit to Carson, and while there enlisted the services of the State Fish Commissioner of Nevada, H. G. Parker, who has been called by the local press of our sister State "the Seth Greene of the West." "Hub," as he is generaly known, has made a complete success of stocking the lakes and streams of Nevada with trout, catfish and perch from spawn furnished by the United States Commissioners, and sabes the business thoroughly. His expenses, merely, have been paid by the State, and he has devoted his time and energies to the noble work out of a Seth Greene-like philanthropy. Mr. Parker assured Mr. McMurry that there could be no possibility of failure in planting catfish in Owens River; that the stream was really better adapted to the purpose than several which he had stocked. He further stated that as many young catfish could be had from the Sacramento river and adjacent sloughs as could be transported, and without cost. Mr. Parker further agreed to accompany him to that point and oversee their taking and transportation, and stated that the much-abused C. P. railroad charges nothing for freight when such efforts are being made. An incidental expense will be for some six or eight cans, specially made and adapted to the purpose, which cost $8 each. Mr. McMurry proposes going after the fiish principally upon his own account, but if the residents of our valley will all stand in in a small amount each, he will guarantee to place in the river and adjoining sloughs two or three hundred of these catfish or "bull pouts," as they are called in the Southeastern States, and thus secure a great boon for present inhabitants and future generations to come. Two hundred dollars would cover all expense, so far as the public is interested. It will be remembered that some mouths since subscriptions were asked for the same purpose, it then being proposed to send Mr. Connelly to Kern county after such fish; but after the list had been raised to about $200, the project was abandoned and the money paid in refunded. This proposition of Mr. McMurry's is the better plan, as being cheaper and quite as certain of success, owing to Commissioner Parker's experience and co-operation. Mr. McMurry proposes to make the effort in September next, and we shall again refer to the subject. Meanwhile, it might be well to talk the matter up, and see who proposes to "chip in" with their two-and-a-half or five-dollar pieces.

FIRE.—At about 2 o'clock P. M. Thursday last a fire started near some out-houses on Messrs. James and John Shepherd's place, George's Creek, which, for a time, bid fair to sweep all the stacked hay, granaries, stables, etc., on the place. The wind was blowing almost a gale. At one time the flames were within thirty feet of one of a number of large hay stacks. At the same moment a Petaluma hay press was aflame, and cinders were flying in every direction; yet, by the almost superhuman exertions of Mr. Jas. Shepherd, members of the household and some Indians, the press and all the stacks were saved, or at least held intact until the arrival of neighbors from far and near gave help enough to effectually secure them. Mr. John Shepherd was a mile or two away at the start, but got on the ground in time to render much needed services. Fortunately all the harness and things of that kind usually kept in the granary were then in use; otherwise a good portion ot them would doubtless have been lost, as there was no time to spare after endangered wagons and buggies were got out of the way. As it was, including corral, adjacent fences and small buildings, the loss amounted to about $800 in value. Burning coals were blown hundreds of yards distant into the fields, but in a direction away from the dwelling, which, owing to the favorable course of the wind, would not have been greatly jeopardized even if the stacks had taken fire. The fire originated from some coals and ashes carelessly thrown out by an Indian employed about the place.

HOME AGAIN.—Col. A. G. Boley and Mr. S. D. Woodhull reached home on Thursday last, from their recent trip to tide water, where they went to dispose of some ten tons of the rich ore from the Indiana mine, situated near Swansea and owned by Messrs. Boley & Tuttle. Under the experienced management of Mr. Woodhull—who, by the way, has sampled, assayed, shipped and sold hundreds of thousands dollars' worth of ore—the lot was disposed of at the best possible advantage. The lot a veraged in value $505 per ton, gold coin. The shipment attracted much attention in San Francisco, and the effect—when followed up as it will be by much more of the same sort for the same mine—cannot fail to redound to the advantage of the Cerro Gordo region and this county in general.

BONDED.—The Golden Wreath mine, belonging to the rich Fish Spring series of gold ledges, has been bonded to Mr. A. W. Eibeshutz, for some New York parties. The present owners, Messrs. Westerville & Co., in order to quiet all question of title, have recently purchased a conflicting interest of Wm. Callahan. The property is well known as having been in years past one of the most productive gold mines in the county, and is probably to-day quite as valuable as any. The ledge is small but continuous and permanent, the ore ranging from $150 to $715 per ton in gold.

Board of Supervisors.

The Board met on Monday, pursuant to adjournment on the Saturday previous, as a Board of Equalization. Full Board present. There being no business before this Board, an adjournment was had till 3 P. M., when a special meeting as Supervisors was held to consider the matter of rebuilding the Lone Pine bridge, etc.

Following is the sum of the business transacted during the week:

Notice ordered published to receive proposals for rebuilding the said bridge. (See advertisement.)

H. P. Cartier was authorized to provide the necessary labor and materials to improve the ventilation of the County Jail.

On Wednesday the Supervisors met as a Board of Equalization and made orders to the following effect:

The assessment upon the goods, wares and merchandise of Harris & Rhine was reduced from $20,000 to $12,000.

Ordered, that the uncollected taxes upon the property, real and personal, of John Broder for the year 1878-79 be entered upon the assessment book for 1879-80 and collected in addition to the assessed taxes for that year, as provided in section 3806 of the Political Code.

The military roll for Inyo county was approved as presented by the Assessor.

With the allowance of bills as follows, for mileage and services as Supervisors, the Board adjourned to the next regular term: J. R. Westerville, $68; J. L. Garretson, $78 80; C. Meysan, $66 40.

MONO REPUBLICANS.—Through the Standard of the 16th instant we learn that the Mono county Republicans met in Convention at Bridgeport on the 15th and took action as follows: C. A. Richardson was elected permanent Chairman, and E. W. Taylor, Secretary. James Cross, of Mammoth, was indorsed as the choice for Joint Senator. In the nominations for Assemblyman, Capt. S. D. Prescott, of Indian District, was the choice. The county officers were then nominated as follows: Superior Judge, R. M. Briggs; County Clerk, J. W. Towle; Sheriff, James Showers; District Attorney, E. W. Taylor; Treasurer, E. H. Allen; Superintendent of Public Instruction, J. C. Turner; Public Administrator, T. Brodigan; County Commissioners, W. Witherell and Morris Dick. Delegates to the Joint Assembly and Senatorial Convention referred to the Central Committee.

TURNING THE STREAMS.—From the present scarcity of trout in Oak, Little Pine and Piñon creeks, as compared to the past two or three years, the main fact is apparent that the stock has been ruthlessly murdered by the wholesale, through turning of the water-courses. Circumstantial evidence points very direct to a certain party, and judging from the tone of public opinion, as generally expressed, the act will not be a safe one to repeat. We advise careful deliberation, however, on the part of those who intend taking the matter in hand; be sure you are right and then go ahead. Whoever the guilty party is, his lust for money overshadows the ordinary instincts of the lowest brute.

HIS IDEA OF THE SUBJECT.—Our town boasts of the champion five-year-old talker. The other day this young gent was giving Brown a specimen of his ability as a talkist, when Brown said: "Don't talk so much; you make me sick." "Well," said the child, pityingly, and, doubtless, with thoughts of his own catnip troubles in his mind, "if it makes you sick, you'll have to take medicine, won't you?"

FOR BODIE.—Mr. Reddy, accompanied by his old stand-by clerk and secretary, R. W. Woolard, left for Bodie on Wednesday last, going via Lake District. Mr. R. is having a commodious law office built and fitted up in Bodie, and, we presume, will make that place his law headquarters-in-chief for some time to come.

AT WORK.—Mr. John Ely and Mr. C. J. Barber are hard at work in San Francisco organizing a large company to work some of the mines in Cerro Gordo, where they have some of the best mining property in that district. Mr. Ely's long experience and success in developing valuable mines, is well known throughout the country, and insures the success of this enterprise.

SAIL IN.—It is stated that the New Constitutionalists of Cerro Gordo and, also, the voters of Bishop Creek, are agitating the matter of placing entire new tickets in the field for county officers. Whether "People's Ticket," "New Constitutionists" or what not, the more the merrier.

WON'T TRUST HIM.—The Carson Appeal says that Pearce, the Sweetwar murderer, confined in our jail awaiting trial, is very anxious that the Sheriff should let him work on the streets in the chain-gang, as he does not like close confinement. We don't think that such procedure would be a good thing for Pearce, for some fine morning he might evaporate, and then the Sheriff might have a hard time in finding him. Pearce had better stay where he is, and then the fish won't bite him.

A YANKEE who had never paid more than twenty-five cents to see an exhibition, went to a New York theater one night to see the "Forty Thieves." The ticket seller charged him seventy-five cents for a ticket. Passing the pasteboard back, he quietly remarked, "Keep it, mister; I don't want to see the other thirty-nine," and out he walked.

THE Railroad Gazette estimates that the substitution of steel rails effects a clear saving to the railroads of this country of $19,000,000. The extensive use of steel rails began in 1872, at which time nearly 11 per cent. of the rails were replaced yearly, while in 1878 only 5½ per cent had to be replaced.

LEGAL.

ASSIGNEE'S SALE.

IN THE COUNTY COURT OF THE COUNTY of Inyo, State of California. Thomas May vs. His Creditors. Assignee's Notice of Sale. By virtue o an order of sale, issued out of the County Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, in the matter of Thomas May, an Insolvent Debtor vs. His Creditors, and to me directed and delivered, and dated the First day of July, A. D. 1879, in which I was directed to sell certain property hereinafter described, I have taken possession of the following property, to wit:

Lot Number Two, in Block Number Twenty-eight, in the town of Independence, in said county and State, said lot having a frontage on Edwards street of fifty feet, and extending back therefrom preserving the same uniform width the distance of one hundred and thirty feet. For a further description reference is hereby made to the map of said town, now on file in the office of the County Recorder of the County of Inyo.

Notice is hereby given that on SATURDAY, THE TWENTY-SIXTH DAY OF JULY, A. D 1879 at 2 o'clock P. M. of that day, in front of the Court House, in the town of Independence, county of Inyo, I will sell the right, title and interest of said Thomas May, an insolvent debtor, in and to the above described property, at public auction, for cash in hand, to the highest and best bidder, to satisfy said execution and all costs.

Dated the Second day of July, 1879.
WM. L. MOORE,
Sheriff and Assignee of said Insolvent Estate.

ALIAS SUMMONS.

IN THE JUSTICE'S COURT OF SECOND Township, in the County of Inyo, State of California. Harris & Rhine, Plaintiffs, against Henry Hearn, Defendant. Alias Summons. The People of the State of California send greeting to Henry Hearn, Defendant: You are hereby required to appear in an action brought against you by the above named Plaintiff, in the Justice's Court of Second Township, County of Inyo, State of California, and to answer before the Justice at his office in said Township, the complaint filed therein, within five days (exclusive of the day of service), after the service on you of this Summons—if served within the Township in which this action is brought; or, if served out of said Township, but in said County, within ten days; or, within twenty days if served elsewhere.

The said action is brought to recover of and from Defendant the sum of Two Hundred and Forty-six 33-100 Dollars, gold coin of the United States, due from Defendant to Plaintiff upon a certain promissory note, made and executed by Defendant and in favor of Plaintiffs in the said sum of $246 33-100, dated March 21st, 1879, and bearing interest at the rate of two per cent. per month from date until paid, together with costs of suit.

And you are hereby notified that if you fail to so appear and answer said Complaint, as above required, said Plaintiffs will take judgment against you for the said sum of $246 33-100, together with costs.

Make legal service and due return hereof.

Given under my hand this 17th day of June, A. D. 1879. THEO. A. GARDNER,
Justice of the Peace of said Township.

SUMMONS.

IN THE JUSTICE'S COURT OF FIRST Township, in the County of Inyo, State of California. T. G. Beasley, Plaintiff, against M. Ashton, Defendant. The People of the State of California send greeting to M. Ashton, Defendant—You are hereby required to appear in an action brought against you by the above named Plaintiff in the Justice's Court of First Township, County of Inyo, State of California, and to answer before the Justice at his office in said Township, the complaint filed therein within five days (exclusive of the day of service), after the service on you of this summons—if served within the Township in which this action is brought; or, if served out of said Township, but in said County, within ten days; or, within twenty days if served elsewhere.

The said action is brought to recover from you the sum of One Hundred Dollars, money loaned to you at your request, at Deep Springs Valley, Inyo County, California, on June 4th, 1877, with legal interest on same amounting to Fourteen Dollars, gold coin, all of which more fully appears by the complaint herein filed.

And you are hereby notified that if you fail to so appear and answer said complaint, as above required, said Plaintiff will take judgment against you for One Hundred and Fourteen Dollars, gold coin, together with costs.

Make legal service and due return hereof.

Given under my hand this 21st day of May, A. D. 1879. D. CAMPBELL,
Justice of the Peace of said Township.

LETTER FROM ROUND VALLEY.

MESSRS. EDITORS: Quite a delegation—Olds, Evans, McGee, Goodridge, Jones, Wildassin, ladies, babies, etc., from this valley spent the 4th at

MAMMOTH CITY,

And experienced a very enjoyable time among the social Mammothites and their wild, romantic sceneries.

THE ROUTE

From Round Valley is varied and picturesque—sand, sagebrush, grass, willows, cottonwood, pine, murmuring streams of pure water, with cattle, horses, sheep, hogs, etc., grazing here and there on grassy flats and hillsides—all of which contribute to make this a very pleasant route. The distance from the northern end of Round Valley to Mammoth City is thirty miles. At the upper end of this valley Hilton & Rowlands have a station where weary travelers may get refreshing solids and liquids. Teams generally stay over night at this station, and next morning they are fresh for a big pull up the three-mile hill. After reaching the summit, you then roll down hill to Rock Creek, a beautiful stream, its green banks covered with rank vegetation, and an occasional tall pine rears its lofty top to heaven in majestic silence. The wagon road winds along this creek, through the cañon for several miles, then you emerge into Little Round Valley, where Mr. S. T. White, with his interesting family, will furnish you a good square meal. After leaving Little Round Valley,s and climbing two or three short hill, you enter Long Valley, where you will find the road hard and level—splendid sailing through almost to Mammoth. Buggy teams drive through easily in a day from Round Valley to Mammoth; and, in returning, make it in half a day.

The entire road is now the property of the Dickinson Bros. and another gentleman. They, in connection with Mr. Sherwin, who recently sold out, have expended thousands of dollars on this road. It is already in good condition, although further improvements are still progressing. This company have shown commendable courage, and their efforts should be fully remunerated. The inveterate growler who objects to paying toll should be compelled to swallow a pint of bug-juice.

From the flat below we could see Mammoth City, nestled in the cañon, looming up grandly amid the craggy peaks. We gradually ascend for several miles, and finally enter Mineral Park. This is grand. Quite a large flat, covered with a heavy growth of timber—pine, fir and lofty tamarack poles. In this "Park," or forest rather, the Fourth was celebrated, consisting of the usual exercises. A saw-mill, blacksmith shops, stores, saloons, feed stable, hotels, etc., are here in running order. From Mineral Park to Mammoth is all up-hill business—pretty steep grade. Midway is the Mammoth quartz mill, which is very complete in all its details. Twenty more stamps will soon be added, which will make it a forty-stamp mill. Mammoth is already a big camp, still apparently cool-headed Mammothites predict a grand future—that in another year or two it will be what its name implies—gigantic.

A few miles northeast of Mineral Park are the noted Casa Diablo Hot Springs. A large commodious bathing establishment is now being erected at the springs. A short distance from these springs, located in a fine body of timber, is the Rowan Bros.' saw-mill. Pine City, a short distance above Mammoth, may boast of a much better locality for a town-site, on account of the large, wide flat, abounding in timber and water. From Pine City a fine view of the Mammoth croppings and many other mines may be seen—the whole mountain side plainly indicating mineral-bearing lodes.

There are several beautiful lakes in the vicinity of Pine City. Through the courtesy of Mr. Riddle several of the Round Valley party had the pleasure of a glorious sail, in a new boat, o'er the placid waters of Lake Mary, which is about 10,000 feet above sea level. After reaching the western shore, the ladies, of course, struck out for flowers. At such an altitude, amid craggy and metaliferous peaks, one would naturally suggest the propriety of their prospecting for rich gold-bearing quartz; but no, just like woman the world over — "pretty flowers," strawberries and wild gooseberries were the hue and cry. They continued their hunt for flowers until they struck a snow bank; then and there they held a convention, meditating and speculating on the possibility and probability of there being "fragrant flowers" underneath! Meanwhile, all of the male persuasion quietly sat on a log at the lake side. However, one of the party, thinking the ladies might need assistance to bring in a grizzly or two, which they might possibly kill, followed their tracks. When within a few steps of the snow bank, the female brigade (Mrs. G. W. Rowan, of Benton, commandress-in-chief) commenced hostilities—the snowballs began to fly—fortunately, however, in another direction—ne'er a one would touch the poor innocent! This is characteristic of the sex—the dear ones were never known (read history, ancient and modern) to throw a missile with the least degree of accuracy. Knowing this, the gallant foreman, single-handed, retaliated — made the snow and fur fly beautifully, and desisted only when several sweet voices implored and cried for maternal interference—"'Nuff, oh ma!" Yet they'll clamor for "Woman's Rights." This little episode of snowballing on the 5th of July will be long remembered by the participants.

Having been in many new mining camps, we never saw a more orderly town than Mammoth—few drunks and less rowdyism. A semi-weekly newspaper, Mammoth City Herald, is published by Mr. Barnes, formerly of Benton. Your old pard, Mr. Hess Yaney, is "thar" on the staff, and was sloshing around the city, item hunting, of course. Hess didn't look a bit excited—rather despondent—sensation being at a low ebb; no cutting nor killing worth mentioning just now. Hess, like others, hoped for the "good time's coming, boys, in the swee by and bye."

The Round Valley party are under many obligations to Mr. H. Dickerson, whose kindness largely contributed to our enjoyment. Rousing cheers for Lake. JENKINS.

A Cure of Drunkenness.

The pathology of drunkenness has been thoroughly investigated. It is now well settled that it is a disease, but not one which releases the victim from moral responsibility, as insanity does. And yet in the latter stages of drunkenness, there can be no question that the victim is wholly insane. His legal responsibility is not well settled. The preponderance of authorities is that if a man commits a murder or other great crime while drunk, he is as much amenable to the law as the most sober criminal. He had no business to get drunk, and no business to become partially insane. And yet, if by more secret vices a man becomes insane, he is relieved from all moral responsibility for his acts. If drunkenness is a disease, then it becomes an interesting question whether there is any known cure for it.

Many years ago the pathology of drunkenness was pretty thoroughly investigated in this country. A series of diagrams were published, showing what effect alchohol had upon the coats of the stomach when taken to excess. These plates served a purpose by way of warning. The only cure proposed was to break right off. But here was the difficulty. The desire never was extinguished. The victim felt occasionally like saying with Rip Van Winkle after he had sworn off: "Now, this glass don't count." With the desire for alchoholic stimulants only partially suppressed, the victim never could tell at what hour this desire might not get the better of him. His old enemy might triumph in some hour of his weakness and he would go back to the slums again, or at least fall down from his heights of total abstinence. Hundreds of instances of this kind have been noted, where, after years of total abstinence, the partially reformed man went back to his old condition for a time—sometimes dying a drunkard, confessing his utter want of power to resist his appetite. Now such a man was never cured. His strong will might possibly carry him through. But all his lifetime he would be compelled to keep watch and ward over the appetite which he had chained up mentally, as a demon would be chained. The victim lives in a state of perpetual warfare. He lives in spite of his enemy, which carries off ninety per cent. of all confirmed drunkards. The inebriate asylum has no doubt done much good; but they have not cured many drunkards.

The most prominent of these institutions was that established by the Legislature of New York at Binghamton. The reports show that only a small per cent. of the patients were permanently cured, although every known advantage was secured for them. They were treated as those who were afflicted with disease, but whose moral natures needed to be quickened and the will strengthened. Great good was done by affording the patient a safe place of retreat and in offering every possible encouragement. He saw others in a like condition, making heroic efforts to recover from their almost fatal lapsing. Individuals working together for a great purpose, derived strength from the sympathy of others. Let every careful observer note within his own observation, going back as far as he can remember, all the instances of drunkenness where a thorough and saving reform was effected, one which lasted for the lifetime of the individual. He can, perhaps, recall hundreds of instances of drunkenness, but can he cite a dozen instances where the victim who had fallen into a condition of besotted intemperance was so radically rescued and set upon his feet that he did not fall again? Such instances can be counted upon one's fingers. These facts are not cited to discourage efforts for temperance reform. A vast deal of good has been effected by these efforts. The small proportion of victims rescued justify all the philanthropic efforts made in that behalf, while thousands are saved from falling into intemperate ways. Some months ago the Bulletin published very full extracts from a pamphlet written by Dr. De Unger, of Chicago, on a discovery for the cure of drunkenness. The pamphlet would not have received any particular attention at the time, had not a prominent resident of that city related many striking facts about cures arising within his personal observation. The article attracted considerable attention at the time, and set a great many inquiries on foot. The remedy as used by Dr. De Unger is a simple one, resulting in an utter eradication of the desire for alcoholic drink, and that without in any way injuring the health of the patient, but actually improving it from day to day. The medicine used is red Peruvian bark—cinchona rubra. Quinine is from the yellow bark—calisaya. Dr. De Unger says: "I use the bark from the small limbs of the red variety. Druggists call it quill bark. I take a pound of the fresh quill red Peruvian bark, and soak it in a pint of diluted alcohol. Then I strain it and evaporate it down to half a pint. I give the drunken man a teaspoonful every three hours, and occasionally moisten his tongue between the doses the first and second days. It acts like quinine. The patient can tell if he is getting too much. The third day I generally reduce the dose to half a teaspoonful, then to a quarter teaspoonful, then down to fifteen drops, ten and five drops. The medicine is continued from five to fifteen days; in extreme cases, thirty days. Seven is about the average."

Having been frequently asked if any case could be cited of a cure within our personal knowledge, the answer now is that such cases are within personal observation. The writer of the following note is a citizen well known, whose name can be privately given by way of reference. There is not a doubt that the statement he makes is correct in every particular:

EDITOR BULLETIN: I owe to the Call a life debt. About the middle of May last I read an article headed "Drunkenness Cured." I had periodically been cursed with an irresistible desire for alcoholic drink—it was in full force at the time. I procured the extract, prepared as recommended in that article, took it as recommended, and have had no desire for alcoholic drinks since—some two months; have recommended it to others, with like effect. I believe you would be doing humanity a great kindness by republishing the antidote from the Call. If you wish you may refer parties to me. Those using should be careful to get the preparation from the genuine bark referred to.—S. F. Bulletin.

ETIQUETTE IN BYGONE DAYS.—Louis Quatorz, strolling one day in the park on the arm of Mme. de Maintenon, and followed by his court of about 500 persons, came unexpectedly upon the servant girl, armed with broom, pail and duster, who had been scrubbing in one of the pavilions. She ought by rights to have made her way back to the offices of the palace by a roundabout road, but being late, she had taken a short cut, and this had brought her in view of the King. His majesty removed his feathered hat and made her a low bow, and as etiquette required that a person saluted by the King should be bowed to by the whole court, the poor wench, as she stood trembling and ashamed, received homage enough to make her well nigh mad. First the Princess and Princesses, then the Secretaries of State, the Dukes and Peers, the Knights of his Majesty's orders, Bishops, the Chaplains and lesser nobility, all had to make profund obeisance, while the ladies stopped and courtesied to the earth; finally, the King's guard had to carry arms, and a whole tribe of lacqueys bearing lapdogs, fans, cloaks and smelling bottles, had to do their duty in the same humble fashion to their colleague—this blushing girl with the broom and pail.

NOBODY can deny that Gen. Grant has shown good sense in coming to the determination not to return home until after the holding of the Republican National Convention. This will deprive those "super-serviceable" people, as he calls them, of speculating on the trip across the continent to receive him, hoping thereby also to incidentally manufacture political capital for Gen. Grant. It exonerates the General from being a party to any such scheme, if he ever was suspected of giving countenance to it.—S. F. Call.

THE School Trustees in Washington have reached the conclusion that there is too much cramming of pupils for show. A special committee appointed for the purpose have investigated the matter, and make the following suggestions: No new text books, fewer studies, more oral instructions by teachers, less show work, more of the practical, less of the theoretical.

HEREAFTER, when there is any postage due and unpaid on a letter, each Postmaster will be required to affix a special stamp of the value of the amount due.

SATURDAY, JULY 26.....1879

ACCORDING to late dispatches things are red-hot around Port-au-Prince. A general shooting affray occurred there a few days since. The cause of the trouble was in consequence of a dispute in the House of Representatives. The brother of the President was shot by another member, who took offense at the language that had been used. Petit Canal, though wounded in the arm, returned the fire and shot his opponent. There was then a general firing in the House, and the populace and the police outside fired into the building. The President of the Senate and forty other members were killed. It is also reported that the city is on fire and general disorder prevails. A wide-spread revolution is considered imminent.

JIM ANDERSON, of Louisiana-Returning-Board fame, and who is at present the local editor on the Eureka Sentinel, in noticing the arrival in that city of a Government official, deals Secretary Sherman the following blow: "Judge A. B. Levisse, Special Agent of the Treasury Department for California, called at the Sentinel office. The Judge was one of the Electors on the Republican ticket in Louisiana in 1876, and his was one of the names forged to the electoral returns."

THIS warm weather seems to be having considerable effect on the Honorable Bilks; it has brought every one of them into a fusible condition. We notice they have fused with everything and everybody that offers; among the rest with the Fresno Republicans on the candidate nominated by the latter for State Senator for this district. The Bilks begin to think it is better to fuse than to fizzle, which last would be a certainty.

ACCORDING to the oft-reiterated assertions of such H. B.'s as the De Youngs, Gorhams and all such chronic stomach-achers, every man who voted against the De Young Constitution must never again be permitted to hold any public office. It is consoling, though, to know that Charles and Georgy will still allow all the anti-N. C.'s to vote—that is, till they get power enough to prevent it.

That boy is the nephew of this whole INDEPENDENT institution, but we have some doubts whether or not that fact makes him shoot much better.

WELL! Isn't this a mess? Gorham, Aaron A. Sargent, Billy Carr (Farmer Billy) and the Honorable Charles De Young, all cheek by jowl in the Hon. Bilk party; all hurrahing for Glenn and the San Francisco Chronicle! Toot your horn, Gabriel; it's time to quit right now.

SINCE the receipt of its new power press, the Bodie Daily Standard comes out enlarged to seven columns to the page, and materially improved in other respects. We tender our congratulations at this additional evidence of prosperity.

IT is said that 10,000 people have left Memphis on account of the fear of the spread of yellow fever.

IN referring to the mining prospects generally, a San Francisco correspondent of the Bodie Standard winds up a late letter as follows:

Mono, Inyo and Esmeralda counties are field enough for a generation to grapple with, and practically as fresh and important on the score of vein mining as was California in '49 for placers. But it is not a field for people with weak knees and those who are constitutionally short-winded. There is much hard work to do, and there will be money required. The Standard and contemporaries can do very much toward effecting the end desired. There is a trunk railroad to be built from Carson or Virginia down as far south as Cerro Gordo, or else one from Mojave north. Then there will be branches here and there for one purpose or another. Owens Valley and its mountain sides are fertile in resources, while Bodie, Esmeralda, Lake, Indian and other districts will furnish the starting point, the entree to at present a terra incog. It is a country altogether scarcely dreamed of by the average Californian, who assumes at least to know about all there is worth knowing on the face of the earth or in the waters thereunder. But we'll see what we'll see.

A GREAT many papers in this State, in making an item out of the suit against this office, state the amount at from $1,000 to to $5,000. Now we wish to inform these blood-curdling quill-drivers that the amount is $50,000. Of course, if we lose, it will knock the devil out of a couple of months' profits, but then that don't amount to much.—Tybo Sun.

ON the 30th of June there were in the Treasury of the United States $353,152,577 01.

GLENN AND THE DEMOCRACY.

The leaders of the Democratic party in this State are entitled to the first prize for first-class nincompoops. If they had been hired a year ago, and had kept diligently at work ever since to devise a plan by which to do their party all the damage possible, they could not have accomplished more in that direction than they have while feverishly striving to do exactly the opposite. Look at it: A national party, as old as the nation itself—a party now controlling both Houses of Congress and three-fifths of all the State Governments—and with a solid front in all the States, California excepted; a party with a history and a name and a purpose—now deliberately placed on its knees in this State begging a patronizing smile from Charles De Young—a very "pismire of the Republican press," as Pixley denominates him—asking a few crumbs from such an organization as the Honorable Bilks! For this smile, for these crumbs, these leaders gave up their party dignity, their hopes of future party prestige. For the veriest offal they consent that De Young shall call their party a party of pickpockets, monopoly slaves—anything and everything that is mean. If there ever was a party sold out for a miserable mess of pottage, it was the Democratic party of this State when it made terms in any manner with the Honorable Bilks, or in other words, with the San Francisco Chronicle.

The fight now is, not who shall be Railroad Commissioner—the most important office in the State under the new Constitution; not who shall be the Superior Judge to interpret the new Constitution; not who shall be Congressman, who alone of all our State elective officials can say one effective word on the Chinese question; not who shall be members of the Legislature, which alone can put the new Constitution into working shape—none of these, but simply who shall be the Executive official of the State, and at the same time whether or not De Young shall be the political dictator of the State. For this every real question of principle is tabooed.

Now let any Democrat who prides himself on his party, ask himself what his party is to gain by helping De Young to carry out his plans. Dr. Glenn is the De Young candidate for Governor. For that reason and no other he subsequently became the same for the Democratic managers. Dr. Glenn, though affirming himself—and truly enough, no doubt—to be solidly Democratic in training and principle, is the head and front of the Bilk party, and is pledged to vote for and to contribute money to the same. That party claims to exist only because the Democratic party, in common with the Republican, is composed in leadership of utterly untrustworthy men. But the Democratic leaders, in pure fear of Chas. De Young, propose to help elect this Bilk candidate in hopes thereby to gain a little prestige for the pending Presidential contest. Will that hope be gratified, admitting Glenn's success? Not in the least, save in the improbable contingency that the whole of the remainder of the Democratic ticket is also successful. If none on the Democratic ticket are elected but Glenn, obviously and clearly it is a De Young victory, and one that so far from giving prestige to the Democrats, available hereafter, must have exactly the opposite effect, and utterly demoralize it for years to come. Not only that, but it makes De Young—this same "Republican pismire journalist"—the absolute dictator of all its future nominations in this State.

Glenn's election, under the peculiar circumstances, would be nothing more nor less than a most demoralizing Democratic defeat, and an indefinite lease of life to the De Young party by whatever name it may hereafter be called. Let straight-out Democrats stand in for every man on their ticket except the Chronicle's cat's paw, and they will come out with self-satisfying honor and a live party even if defeated. Let them stand in with such a crew as De Young, Gorham, Billy Carr and such like Glenn advocates, and elect but the Bilk Governor, because he has been imposed upon them as a Democratic candidate, they will not only be denied all benefits of any part of a party victory, but be laughed at besides. Setting aside all questions of personal fitness, Dr. Glenn by his own words and antagonistic party attitude and support, has no better claims for straight Democratic votes than Geo. C. Perkins, the Republican nominee.

W. W. BARNES, who lately published the Benton Messenger, now comes out with a new venture, the Mammoth City (Lake District) Herald, which is not only a fine-looking paper, but a first-class local newspaper in fact.

THE Alta asks, "Will Dr. Glenn carry his own county?" to which an exchange replies, "He ought to, for he owns most of the land in the county, and all the Hon. Bilks."

A Scarce Metal.

It appears that the metal platinum is so essential in producing the electric light that its cheapness and plentifulness form an important factor in the ultimate success of the invention. So important it is, in fact, that Mr. Edison is willing to spend $20,000 in the discovery of a platinum mine. A hundred men are now at work trying to find the mine.

Recently Mr. Edison exchanged several letters with Professor Stewart of this city on the subject of platinum, where it is likely to be found, etc. In his last reply Professor Stewart stated that in Santa Clara county, California, platinum exists in a seam of talc, encased in hard schistose rock. About two years ago men worked the mine, selling the platinum in San Francisco for $12 or $15 an ounce. They mashed up the talc and separated the crystals of platinum by some simple process. The schistose rock was so hard, however, and the seam of talc so narrow—being only from 12 to 15 inches wide—that the men were compelled to give up the work as unprofitable. But the Professor has an idea that, by the application of the proper instruments, the mine might be made to pay. The seam, although narrow where explored, might widen as depth was gained. At any rate, that probability would be in favor of the miners.

The Professor is sorry now that he did not go quietly to Santa Clara county himself, when Edison first wrote to him, get possession of the platinum mine and receive the $20,000 prize. He says he wrote to a friend of his in California about the circumstance, telling him where the mine was located, and he supposes he has got possession of it by this time. That is the way he always manages things—puts people on the road to fortune and alwas forgets himself until it is too late. The Professor wrote to Edison that in Trinity and Humboldt counties, California, in the early days, the gold was so heavily alloyed with drift platinum that the purchasers of gold dust, not knowing the value of platinum, frequently refused to buy the alloy at all. Sometimes the gold would be alloyed to such an extent that it would not fetch more than $3 or $4 an ounce. The presence of platinum joined with the gold of those localities, leads the Professor to think that a body of the mineral might be found there if looked for. No platinum has yet been found in Nevada, but there is no telling what luck might follow industrious prospecting.—Virginia Chronicle.

Lake District Items.

From the Mammoth City Herald of the 19th instant we glean the following items of interest concerning matters and things in general in and around Lake District:

George Rowan has had his store newly painted and fitted up in first-class style.

There are now in this district nineteen incorporations of valuable mining properties, all of which intend commencing work in a short time.

Doc. Benjamin and Fred. Grimmer have struck some placer diggings at the upper end of Pine City, near the head of Lake Mary. Quite a number of locations have been made.

Clint. Joyce has just returned from Clover Patch and shown us some fine specimens of gold-bearing rock. He says that the outlook in Prescott, Clover Patch and Chidago is good and daily improving.

The Foulk mine, under the management of Mr. Stewart, has commenced work, which will be vigorously prosecuted. This is valuable property, and lies immediately north and adjoining the celebrated Mammoth mine.

The toll road to Round Valley and Bishop Creek, under the efficient management of Messrs. Whisler & Dickinson, is now in first-class order for the heaviest teams.

Harry Rogers has been to work for the last twenty days on the Big Bonanza, and reports the mine looking well; with an eight-foot ledge, which shows good average assays.

James Rowan, of the lower sawmill, intends establishing a lumber yard. He will have a team and deliver lumber to all parts of Mammoth and Pine City. We understand he is about putting in a planing machine.

A. J. Wren, has just returned from the newly-discovered placer mines on Convict Creek, situated about 12 miles east of this place. He says that there is no doubt but what gold exists, and as high as 20 or 30 colors can be had to a pan of dirt. Several parties are prospecting, and it remains to be seen whether a success is made or not.

John J. Gorman, who is well known to all the boys from the southern country, and than whom no mining man enjoys a better reputation, has taken charge of the Eva May and Eureka mines at Laurel District, and is running a tunnel to cut the ledge at 100 feet. The ledge is a contact vein between quartzite and lime, crops out a distance of 3,000 feet, with an average assay of 100 ounces in silver. The Eva May and Eureka are on the same ledge, and this tunnel will prospect both mines.

The foundation for the additional 20 stamps for the Mammoth mill is being pushed forward with characteristic energy by Mr. White, the well known mill builder and contractor, and whose name is the synonym of success. It will be but a few days until the rattle of 40 stamps will be heard. John Collyer and Curt. Ober handle the mill, while Superintendent Cross does the outside work on the mine, and the affable Charley Morgan in the office. The future success of the great Mammoth mine is not a myth, but a reality.

Johnny Williams, from the Nevada saloon, on his trip up to Bishop, about 11 P. M., when about half-way between Gill's and Rice's ranch, was stopped by a highwayman, who demanded his money. Johnny told him who he was and offered all he had. The fellow recognized him, and said he did not want any of his money, and told him to go on. The second time Johnny was told to leave, he left on time.

As Green's express wagon was on the way to Pine City, yesterday afternoon with a lady passenger, they came opposite to where two men were engaged in falling a tree. He halted and inquired if it was safe to proceed, and was answered in the affirmative. Arriving opposite the tree a sudden gust of wind caused it to fall, killing a horse. The lady, with great presence of mind, sprang from the wagon in the right direction, and escaped with a sprained ankle.

Morris Burke informs us that he paid a visit to the Morning and Evening Star mines. He brought down some fine ore, the assays of which equal the average of the Mammoth rock worked last Winter, and showing some free gold. Burke, Jordan, McClain, Peters and McDonald, all old timers, have just returned from the South Fork of the San Joaquin, where they formed a new district, to be known as Delta District. From observations made during their short stay they are well pleased with the outlook.

THE LEAD MARKET.—Only a small amount of business has been reported since our last issue; sales which have been mostly of a jobbing character, not exceeding 300 tons, Common Domestic. The market continues very fine at four cents, which is the present price and at this the available stock is held. The concentration of stock in first hands, and the liberal distributive trade now in progress, all tend to give additional elements of strength to the market, and there is every reason to expect present prices to be fully maintained through the Summer months and perhaps into the Fall. The manufacturers of white lead are now holding their annual convention at Saratoga, and the result of their deliberations is awaited with considerable interest by the trade.—New York Mining Record.

TIMES are "on the improve" in White Pine county, and the mining outlook is a great deal brighter than it has been for some time past. Four mines are being worked on Treasure Hill, though the operations in none of them are very extensive, and Hamilton is considerably livened up in consequence. At Ward the Paymaster mine is successfully worked, and the camp, though not lively, is fairly self-supporting. The Star mill and mine are running at Cherry Creek, and two New York companies are operating on some mining properties in the district. Ex-Senator Spencer, of Alabama, and some other capitalists, are examining Cherry Creek mines with a view of making purchase.—Reno Gazette.

A CARD.

TO THE VOTERS OF INYO COUNTY: Being so situated as to be unable to make a thorough canvas of the county before the coming election, and as the term is short and will hardly warrant much expense, I take this method of letting it be generally known that I desire the office for which I am the candidate of the Republican Party, viz.: that of Treasurer of this County; and learning that there would be considerable opposition to me on account of my being in the employ of one of the business houses of this place, I wish it positively understood that in case I am elected I will sever such connection, and will, by a strict and careful attention to the duties of the office, endeavor to merit the confidence which places me in a position of so great responsibility.

MODOCK OFFICIAL LETTER.—The official letter of the week is as follows:

July 21, 1879.

J. W. Pew, Esq., Secretary Modock Con. M. Co.:—DEAR SIR: Results of the week on the 1000-foot level for the week ending this day are as follows: West crosscut, 300-foot drift, run 10 feet; drift from winze, 13 feet; 800-foot drift, 18 feet; 1000-foot crosscut, 6 feet, and 1100-foot drift, 21 feet. Total length of west crosscut, 300-foot drift, 15 feet. Drift from winze, 33 feet; 800-foot drift, 61 feet: 1000-foot cross-cut, 25 feet, and 1000-foot drift, 125 feet. There is no material change since last writing, excepting 800-foot drift. This is looking finely this morning. A little ore was found in starting this drift. In face of drift from 300-foot point winze we have a good face of ore, as mentioned in last letter. Have had ore for past 15 feet of running. The 1100-foot drift maintains the usual character. Started to raise on the ledge at point 75 feet from mouth of drift this morning. Face of cross-cut from 1000-foot drift has been in hard ground, but is now in clay and ledge matter. Have worked single shifts at this point for past week, which accounts for rate of progress. Everything is looking favorable on the lower level.

Yours, respectfully,
A. C. TIBBETTS, Supt.

A HARD TRIP.—Deputy Sheriff W. F. Welch started last week on a third official visit to Tecopa, or Resting Springs, to reach which he has to go across that deathly Death Valley. There are but very few men in the world knowing the various risks to be encountered, that would dare attempt to cross that valley at this time of the year, but Billy Welch is one of those men who dare do almost any dangerous thing when duty demands, and he is also one of those men who never allow the mere thoughts of danger from surroundings to become real ones, as so many unfortunate travelers seem to have done in trying to pass over this same dreadful waste, rightly named Death Valley. But he is, in short, a man who keeps cool though the mercury boils over. The details of a journey across Death Valley during the hottest season of the year will possess interest enough to publish at length, and we hope to do so after Mr. Welch's return from his present lonely expedition.

AN UNGRATEFUL SCRUB.—Not long since there came a boy—a sort of itinerant, bootless, shoeless, ragged and impecunious sheepherder—who sought and found a home and plenty of grub and welcome and employment at a ranch some distance up the creek. In due time he came to do errands to town, mounted on his really kind employer's horse. On the last occasion of this sort a party here gave him a pair of boots to carry up the creek for repairs, likewise some groceries and other things he came to get. Well, that boy is now missing from his usual haunts, and his sisters, and his aunts, and his cousins, and his employer, and the owner of the boots all miss him. The horse is also missing, and the parties who went after the missing boy missed catching him, which is why we can't be certain this account is strictly correct in details, the most important of which we haven't tried to give at all.

SUIT AGAINST BONDSMEN.—The Examiner of the 16th instant states that Frank S. Collins has brought suit in the Fifteenth District Court "against John J. Gunn, W. T. Grant and others, as bondsmen of W. L. Moore, deceased, formerly Sheriff of Inyo county. The action is commenced to recover $2,800, the value of property alleged to have been improperly sold under execution and $2,000 damages for its detention." We may state here that the late Sheriff, in cases of this kind, always exacted an indemnity bond, and that, therefore, his official bondsmen are not affected by this suit in any way.

BELL'S MILL.—Bell's flouring mill is now at work upon new wheat. Some of this, as in times past, comes badly mixed with grit and small stones. There is no machinery in use that will effectually remove the latter. It is impossible to make good flour from wheat, however good of itself, when it has to be ground up with these small stones, besides which it is very damaging to the mill burrs. Mr. Bell wishes it understood that he will not receive any more grain of that kind. Farmers must see that their wheat is kept free from these small stones, else not spend time in bringing it to be made into flour.

SNEAK THIEVES.—There are some sneak thieves prowling about here o' nights who would be greatly benefited by a small dose each of moderate-sized bird shot. They are of that sort who choose darkness to go into orchards and strip trees of ripe and unripe fruit alike, when, were they to go in daylight, they would be welcome to a reasonable share just for the asking. The presumption is, however, that these marauders are of the Piute persuason, therefore not restrained by any recollections of what Webster's old spelling book had to say about things of this sort.

WORKING TAILINGS.—Rothschild & Co. purchased a large quantity of the tailings from the gold ores of the Uncle Abe mine, as worked in the Hitchcock mill at Lone Pine, and had them hauled to the Brown Monster mill for re-reduction, an operation now going on under Mr. S. D. Woodhull's immediate supervision. It will take about a week to put through what there is now at that mill.

An Emphatic Protest.

BIG PINE, July 23.

MESSRS. EDITORS—Kindly allow space in THE INYO for a word from the citizens of Big Pine in regard to the fish in our stream, and as to the manner of taking them. We desire the fact distinctly understood that any party or parties who may hereafter raid upon Big Pine Creek and take therefrom quantities of fish for the purpose of sale or the money that may be made out of it, will do so at their peril. To people taking trout by hook and line and for their own use we have always extended a hearty welcome, and shall continue to do so; but when it comes to any repetition of such work as lately transpired, when a certain party took (we believe by unlawful means) a wagon load of fish away to sell, we shall protest—and in a manner which will prove effectual. Let this be sufficient warning, for we who stocked the stream and own the fish mean business.

Yours, etc. BIG PINE.

DISTINGUISHED VISITOR.—Our place was honored this week by a visit from Captain Joe Bowers, of Deep Springs, and Chief of all the Piutes of this region who acknowledge his authority. This is the same Captain Joe who, in the troublous times in years agone, proved himself the true frend of the whites, and on account of which friendship in time of greatest need more than one white man owes his life. For many years and up to the time of the removal of the Post garrison, Captain Joe received, at Government expense, a regular, though small monthly stipend in cash or goods and which tended to lighten his family cares very considerably. Since that date, however, he has had to depend on the limited natural resources of the forest for subsistence, except that all his old pioneer white friends, able to do so, very cheerfully contribute something to his support whenever the opportunity offers. But even with this help the Captain and his little band often find their commissary distressingly short, and have had pretty close scratching and digging to keep soul and body together, and that is how it comes that he makes the present visit. We are sorry to say the Captain got as drunk as a lord the first day he was in town, but that was because he did not understand the woeful consequences of mixing liquors after months of total abstemiousness, and not at all from a naturally depraved taste or habit. In truth, he is really a deserving old fellow, and as good an "Injun" as there is, and it is to be hoped his white friends here and everywhere will see that he does not go empty handed.

A NEW EXCITEMENT.—Some weeks ago Mr. Kelly, a Lake District prospector, started out from that region with a view of following southward the high Sierras in search of another outcrop of the great Mammoth ledge or mineral belt. We have heard many miners well acquainted with the country claim that the same geological and mineral formation is distinctly traceable from Lake District to a point in the mountains southwest from Bishop Creek, a distance of about 50 miles. In fact, it has become an accepted theory with well informed men that the fissures of Kearsarge Peak and Mammoth are the same, and late numerous discoveries in the long distance between goes strongly to prove it. However, Mr. Kelly has discovered, high in the mountains west of Big Pine and some 30 miles north of Kearsarge, a powerful quartz ledge, out of which many samples of $300 ore have been taken, and which has, it is said, $10,000 worth of ore in sight. Locations to the number of 30 or 40 have been made, and there are 40 or 50 prospectors now in the field.

RUN OVER.—Near Walters' place, Camp Independence, early last evening, John Welch got badly hurt by being run over by one wheel of the derrick wagon attached to Westerville's threshing machine. Welch was driving, and the boys having stopped for something, he kept his place with the team. Suddenly the horses started and began swinging around. In his efforts to control them Welch stood up upon the tongue, which suddenly broke and threw him under one of the fore wheels, and before he could extricate himself it passed across his breast. The wagon and all weighs about 3,500 pounds, and it seems almost miraculous that he was not killed outright. Though badly injured internally, he escapes without broken bones. Since that shooting affair some time ago and since his capture of Tessier, Jack Welch has many warm friends here, who will do everything possible to alleviate his pain and trouble in this unfortunate affair.

GONE A FISHING.—Quite a large number of our younger people started during the week for the Kern river fishing grounds. Of them, we recall the following: Mr. and Mrs. John Grangey and the Misses Eudeys, Miss Kate, and Joe and Will Schalten, John Langer, Geo. Gill and Billy Lake, besides lots of others who didn't go, but would if they could. But these latter take some little comfort in the reflection that so long as they stay quietly at home there is no danger of being bitten by a Kern river fish—or gnats.

NEWS.—We note among telegraphic dispatches that a new Postoffice has been established at "Kasson, Inyo county, California. We don't dispute anything; we are not surprised at anything since Honorable Bilks come into fashion, but we would like to know where "Kasson" is.

ON HABEAS CORPUS.—Mike Welch, held to answer for the death of our late Sheriff, comes to-day before Judge Hannah's Court on habeas corpus, S. P. Moffat, Esq., appearing as his attorney.

UPHOLSTERING.—Parties having mattresses, lounges, etc., in need of reconstruction, can be accommodated by applying to Wm. Connolly, at Woods' store. See his advertisement.

TROUBLE AT ROUND VALLEY.—From Sheriff J. J. Moore, who has just returned from a trip to Bishop, we learn of some recent events in Round Valley, of which the following brief mention may suffice until the arrival of further particulars: Thos. Williams, as administrator of the estate of Jerry Conwall, a deceased Indian, leased the decedent's ranch to Mr. Roberts. A short time ago Roberts was approached by a number of excited buck Indians, who proposed pounding him to death or thereabouts, but Roberts managed to get away, and commenced investigating the cause of their strange action. He found, to his own satisfaction at least, that one J. L. C. Sherwin had been putting the Indians up to the work and was the instigator of the whole affair. Roberts sought an interview with Sherwin, out of which the latter came with a very badly damaged head. In another affair or two, it is openly charged (and in fact, so stated by the Indians themselves) that Sherwin prompted the attacks which the Indians have made upon three different men while they were out turning the water for irrigating purposes. One of these was Mr. Turner, a landowner of Bishop Creek, and all three of them were badly beaten by the number of bucks employed for the purpose. As may be imagined, there is much feeling existing in Round Valley over the situation. Our informant states that Sherwin has now gone to Bridgeport or Bodie, taking with him a squaw once belonging to the defunct Jerry, possibly with a view of securing for her the ranch.

HOW HE KEPT COOL.—We are not, after inspecting the situation, in the least surprised that Jim Shepherd had his canvas pants so badly damaged by the fire at his place last week. He stuck to his post worse than Casabianca did to the burning deck, or about the same. He set out to save a hay press standing within four feet, and on the leeward side or end of a hay-stack burning fiercely, and did save the said press, not for itself alone, but because if that went so would everything around. One would think the prospect would have discouraged a salamander, so hot and hopeless did it appear. But no salamander ever had a dozen or so of active mahalas, or Piute ladies, throwing buckets of water on him to cool him off, as James did, and that's wherein he had the advantage of the salamander, and whereby he was enabled to save the press and much other property, but not his canvas breeches, upon which, we believe, there was but little if any insurance.

LITTLE PINE CREEK.—We are in receipt of a communication from G. W. Todd, of "Toddy's Ranch," in the foot-hills and bordering Little Pine Creek. In his note, Mr. Todd intimates that possibly he is the one referred to in an article last week stating that some person had been turning the creek and destroying trout, and proceeds in a humorous and convincing way to deny and such imputation to him. We do not publish the letter, for the reason that G. Washington is entirely off; no one has ever thought of his doing so and his name has never been mentioned in that connection.

BULLION SHIPMENT.— On Tuesday last, Supt. Holt shipped per express a bar of Rex Montis bullion, weighing 72 pounds and valued at $1,000. This was the result of two or three days' run (the first for this season) of the mill upon ore from the Shawmut, or old Silver Sprout ledge. The mill is still, and will be for some time to come, occupied upon ore coming regularly from the same ledge, and, together with that being taken from other mines of the series, may be kept running right along. The outlook for the Rex Montis, especially under Mr. Holt's practical hands, is exceedingly hopeful.

THE PRISONERS.—The County Jail, now that a ventilating grate has been put in for the benefit of both cells, is far less a "sweat box" than heretofore, and the two prisoners, Tessier and Welch, especially the former, are dragging through time in comparative comfort. Welch shows the effects of his confinement, or regrets at the terrible occurrence in which the two were actors far more than Tessier, even to the extent, as some think, of the partial unsettling of his mind. A brief interview yesterday did not, however, tend to make us think such was the fact.

FINE SPECIMEN.—As fine a specimen of carbonate ore as we have seen for many a day is a piece of about three pounds weight taken from the 1000-foot level of the Modock, and sent to Mr. S. D. Woodhull, of this place, for assay. His certificate shows its value to be 2,180 ounces of silver. We are assured quite a quantity of ore, some of it much richer even than this beautiful specimen, is being taken from the same deep level. The present prospects of the Modock are decidedly encouraging.

CERRO GORDO.—The newly-constructed refining works at Cerro Gordo are now in full operation, as is also the furnace. A still more pleasing and encouraging fact is in the shape of a brief notice posted at Harris & Rhine's store, in this place, and reading: "Ten more miners wanted at the Union Con. mines, Cerro Gordo." We are much inclined to believe that Cerro Gordo will soon be "on deck again," bigger than ever.

RETURN OF AN OLD TIMER.—Many old friends are pleased to once more greet Frank Blaney, who, after many years' sojourn in Texas, is now again at his old home. He finds here very sad changes since the time when, as a mere child, he hopefully bid farewell to the nearest and dearest to him on earth, but of which he finds now not one to give a mother's, brother's or sister's welcome.

TO MEET.—Inyo Lodge No. 221, F. & A. M., meets to-night at the Masonic Hall, for work and the transaction of other important business.

SATURDAY, JULY 26.....1879

IT is a confirmed report that the President has appointed ex-United States Senator Alexander Ramsey to succeed McCrary (resigned) as Secretary of War. Ramsey is a native of Eastern Pennsylvania. When a boy he learned the carpenter's trade, but having an ambition for knowledge, he soon abandoned that business and graduated at the Easton Manual Labor College. He then applied himself to the law and removed to Harrisburg, where he engaged in the practice of his profession. About forty years ago he was elected Clerk of the Assembly and became a favorite with Thaddeus Stevens, then a leader of the Whig party. For one term he represented the Daupin and Lebanon District in Congress. During the administration of President Fillmore was appointed first Territorial Governor of Minnesota, removing to St. Paul, where he has ever since resided. When Minnesota was admitted into the Union Ramsey was elected to the United States Senate, in which body he served two terms, being succeeded in 1875 by McMillan. In the Senate he was for a long time Chairman of the Postal Committee. He is not at all a showy man, and took little part in the debate on general questions, but he has high executive ability, and will, no doubt, make an honest and able War Secretary. He is about 65 years of age, but owing to a good constitution, he is yet in vigorous health, physically and intellectually. —S. F. Chronicle.

THE quinine manufacturers are naturally indignant at the passage of the bill removing the duty, and like most angry people are a trifle illogical. They assure the Southern members that the price of the drug will go up instead of down; that in place of $3 35 per ounce the price will be $5; and in the same breath declare that they have withdrawn all orders for bark, and will in all probability cease manufacturing altogether. Why? Manufacturers do not usually close up business just when the profits are doubling. If, too, as they assert, the Philadelphia firms have sold the drug at a small profit, which they might have made extortionate, and also refrained from adulterating it out of conscientious regard for the well being of the American people, why do they not persevere in their philanthropy now, when, as they threaten, we are apt to be poisoned with bad cinchona, and they can save us without loss to themselves? Their threats and forebodings may prove true or not, but they will not alter the popular verdict that their monopoly has been selfish and extortionate.—N. Y. Tribune.

IN a recent decision the Commissioner of Patent says: "As the law now stands patent agents do not sustain the same relation to the Patent Office which attorneys of courts of record sustain to the courts. The latter are permanent officers of the courts, retained by parties in particular cases; but the patent agent is not an officer of the Patent Office. He is connected with the office only by means of the particular cases in which he is employed. The law seems to prescribe no qualifications, either of capacity, character, age, sex, or citizenship, or any other kind, for patent agents. As there is, under the law, no restriction in the employment of patent agents, so, under the rules, there seems to be none in their discharge."

IT is rumored in Washington that the wife and daughters of ex-Senator Stewart, of Nevada, are to return to that city and reinhabit that great pile of sandstone that is known as Stewart Castle. It is the largest and most expensive house in Washington, and cost $300,000. It has been closed since the expiration of the Senator's term of office in 1875, and has been advertised for rent at the modest sum of at first $20,000 per annum, and later at $15,000 and $10,000. But no one has had the money to pay such a rental and keep up house besides, for it will require several thousands a year to heat it alone.

ONE of the young attaches of the Chinese Legation, Chin Wan Tom, and who is called "Mister Tom" in society here, is, according to a Wasington paper, a great favorite among the ladies, and there is getting to be a genuine craze for his attentions. He wears the costume of his country, but is a very dainty dresser, and no lady in America has finer silks and satins than he, or is fonder in displaying them. His "pig tail" is very long and he is proud of it, dressing it with the greatest care, and the end of the braid is generally decorated with a satin ribbon.

AND now the tragic death of the lady who fell over Niagara was seen in a dream by a Hartford person two nights before the accident, and a medium in Chicago declares that the name "Chastine Cox" was distinctly revealed to him as that of the murderer of Mrs. Hull, nearly a week before he was found. The regret is that those premonitions and prophecies are always kept a profound secret till the event predicted has occurred. It is always seen beforehand afterwards.

"WHAT made you quit the East?" said a man to a new-comer. "I got into trouble by marrying two wives," was the response. "Well," said the other, "I came out here because I got into trouble by marry only one wife." "And I," added a bystander, "came here because I got into trouble simply by promising to marry one. But my trouble is over now; another chap took the job off my hands by marrying her."

AMERICAN BUTTER IN ENGLAND. American butter seems to be following the course of American cheese in winning favor abroad. At the late meeting of the Royal Agricultural Exhibition prizes were offered for American butter, one of which was awarded to John B. Murray, of Delhi, New York; another to John Stewart, Anamosa, Iowa.

PROPOSALS TO FURNISH MATERIAL FOR THE LONE PINE BRIDGE.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT IN pursuance of an order of the Board of Supervisors of the County of Inyo, State of California, made on this Twelfth day of July, 1879, the undersigned, Clerk of said Board, will receive sealed proposals for material to be used in rebuilding the Lone Pine Bridge, until MONDAY, THE FOURTH DAY OF AUGUST, 1879, at 12 o'clock M. of said day; bids to be opened between the hours of 1 and 2 o'clock P. M.

Specifications and Conditions:

FIRST—Bidders will submit proposals to contract for furnishing Seventy-two Piles, to be delivered on either side of Owens River, at the point where the former bridge was situated. Said Piles to be of not less than 12 inches in diameter at the largest end; twenty-four of the same to have a length of 22 feet each; 24 of 18 feet, and 24 of 16 feet in length.

SECOND—Timbers as follows, to-wit:
27 Pieces 10 x 12, 16 feet long;
1 " 12 x 14, 16 " "
2 " 12 x 14, 26 " "
39 " 8 x 12, 12 " "
38 " 6 x 12, 12 " "

THIRD—Sawed Lumber as follows, to-wit:
16 Pieces 4 x 6, 14 feet long;
48 " 3 x 6, 16 " "
38 " 3 x 6, 12 " "
38 " 2 x 6, 12 " "

Also, Planking to cover space of 228 x 14 feet; said Plank to be of any width, 5 inches in thickness and 14 feet in length, either hewed or sawn.

Separate bids for each lot as specified to be submitted. All material to be delivered at the bridge.

The successful bidder or bidders will be required to execute good and sufficient bonds for the faithful performance of contract.

The said Board reserve the right to reject any or all bids.

JOHN CROUGH,
Clerk of the Board of Supervisors.

PROPOSALS FOR BUILDING ...THE.... LONE PINE BRIDGE.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN, THAT IN pursuance of an order of the Board of Supervisors of the County of Inyo, State of California, made on this Fourteenth day of July, 1879, the undersigned, Clerk of said Board, will receive sealed proposals for the work of constructing the Lone Pine Bridge up to the hour of 12 o'clock M. on MONDAY, THE FOURTH DAY OF AUGUST, 1879—said bids to be opened between the hours of 2 and 3 o'clock P. M. All bids must be sealed and indorsed "Proposals for Building the Lone Pine Bridge."

Contractors will be required to comply strictly with the plans and specifications on file in the office of the County Clerk, which are now subject to inspection and where copies can be obtained.

Said Bridge to be located upon the site of the burned bridge across Owens River, about four miles from the town of Lone Pine. Contractors will be furnished with necessary timbers and material, and will be authorized to use all available iron, bolts and spikes now on hand from the old bridge. Also, the contractor or contractors will be allowed the use of the Pile Driver belonging to the County; provided, that the same shall be returned uninjured and in good order.

The party or parties to whom the contract may be awarded will be required to execute good and sufficient bonds for the faithful performance of said work.

The said Board reserve the right to reject any and all bids.

JOHN CROUGH,

GONE BEFORE.

Still the heart and hushed the breath.
Tell, Oh! tell me, is this death?
And yet I know, for on his brow
The damps of death are gathering now.

Close the dark eyes that stare too much,
And fold the hands with a gentle touch;
A friend of the people has passed away,
And Inyo's Sheriff lies dead to-day.

Another of Inyo's Sheriffs killed!
Another true heart forever stilled!
These were the startling lines we read,
Another of Inyo's Sheriffs dead!

And many will read it and simply say:
"Another good man has passed away;"
For few outside of our county will know
The bitter anguish, the sincere woe

That filled each heart as the lines we read:
"Another of Inyo's Sheriffs dead!"
For we mourned him not as a Sheriff alone,
But as a dear friend that we long had known.

And months and years may come apace
Ere another as noble will fill his place;
But perhaps 'tis best, Oh! who can tell?
For they say He doeth all things well.

They have borne him away to his last long rest,
With cold hands folded o'er a lifeless breast.
Hands that were ever ready to do,
A heart that was loving, faithful and true!

The friend that we loved has gone before,
And in memory alone lives the image of MOORE!
For his body is lying lonely and cold
At Camp Independence in the graveyard old.

None were more faithful, more loving, more true,
And none more sincerely regretted than you.
Long we'll mourn thy loss, thy fate deplore—

—BERRYL STAR.

TWIN DISGRACES.—The War Department has given orders to move cautiously against the Sioux and avoid a conflict if possible. This is just what the Indians want. Sitting Bull is over the border with a force of braves almost equal in number to the entire army of the United States, and if Miles obeys orders the redskins can murder and pillage the settlers without the latter having even the shadowy protection that Miles with his small command might be able to afford. There are two things in this country that are a disgrace to it. One is Mormonism, polygamy as practiced in Utah in defiance of law, and with only feeble attempts on the part of the Government to stop or punish it, and the other is that a few thousand blood-thirsty devils of savages can annually invade the frontier and rob and kill settlers while the country hasn't an army strong enough to cope with them; that instead of being punished, the Indians are fed and petted on the reservations when cold weather and the consequent privations drive them from the warpath. They go to the reservations and are there fed and warmed by Government bounty, while many of them have the scalp locks of murdered white men, women and children hanging at their belts as a mark of their prowess. The plains will never be free from Indian troubles until Indians are fought on the principle on which they themselves make warfare—overwhelmed by numbers and shown no quarter. Indians are natural cowards, and, once his tribe is soundly whipped and made to feel the white man's power, his wolf nature shows itself, and there is no more abject creature on earth than an Indian.—S. F. Stock Report.

STATE elections will be held this year in the following order: Kentucky, August 4—State officers and Legislature; California, September, 3—State and Judicial officers, four Congressmen and Legislature; Maine, September 8—State officers and Legislature; Ohio and Iowa, October 7—State officers in part and Legislature; Maryland, Massachusetts, Minnesota, Mississippi, New Jersey, New York, Pennsylvania, Virginia and Wisconsin, November 3. Governors are elected in all the States named except Mississippi, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Wisconsin.

Bi-Metalism in Germany.

Germany has been brought to a halt in the work of demonetizing silver. It must be remembered that all the old silver still in circulation remains a legal tender for its par value as before. This silver is substantially all in the form of thalers, which have never been presented, but are in general circulation at their full value. In point of fact, therefore, Germany has reached that point where bi metalism is as practically in operation as it is in the United States. The old silver thalers, with which the German people have so long been familiar, remain the legal tender and general currency of the people.

The Government is met by the astounding figures of the loss already sustained by the calling in of the smaller coins. The loss sustained already in the silver demonetized and sold—that is, sold for gold—is somewhere about $23,000,000, and this without any possible hope of compensation. There are now outstanding silver thaler pieces to the amount of 415,000.000 marks. This is equal to 100,000,000 of our American silver dollars. The bullion value of these coins as compared with their coin value is 7 per cent. less than our silver dollars. Considering that Germany has yet in circulation 100,000,000 of silver dollars of full legal tender, and that the Government has postponed indefinitely calling them in, there certainly can be no fear to be apprehended in this country from any excess of silver money. In addition to the $100,000,000 of silver in thaler pieces, Germany has in circulation $50,000,000 in subsidiary silver. The population of Germany is not greater than that of the United States, and yet Germany keeps $150,000,000 of silver coin in circulation, and $100,000,000 of that sum a full legal tender on a par with gold.

Germany has paid dearly for the demonetization of silver, and has given two official notices: (1) That the calling in of the thalers has been postponed indefinitely, and (2) that even the silver called in and melted down into bars will not be sold, at least during 1879. The demonetization of silver has therefore been brought to a close, and Germany has now practically in force the policy of bi-metalism, the proportion of silver in the form of thalers being equal to $100,000,000 of our money. This action of the Government is considered insufficient, and it is now strongly urged that there be an increase of silver coinage, and that the silver now held by the Government and heretofore offered for sale to be recoined and put into general use and general circulation. This is but another step in the direction of bi-metalism. With $150,000,000 of silver already coined and in general use, a withdrawal of all silver from sale, and a resumption of silver coinage, Germany shows how severely she has suffered from demonetization, and how firmly she arrests its progress and inclines to the adoption of bi-metalism. The banks and bankers of Germany, as well as those of France, seem to differ widely from the Gold Ring in New York and from Zach. Chandler as to the advisability of the largest possible use of silver as money. They seem to be afraid of ruining the country by an increase of metallic money in the form of legal tender silver, and yet Germany has four times as much silver in general use as exists in this country. It does not seem to terrify the German banks or the German Government that silver exists in such enormous quantities there in the form of money, while the comparative pittance of 30,000,000 of silver dollars locked up in the Treasury at Washington is regarded in New York as some terrible menace to the country—Chicago Tribune.

COL. TOM BUFORD, who killed Judge Elliott because the Judge had decided a case against his (Buford's) sister, has been found guilty of murder. His defense was insanity, and, in order to establish that he was insane, evidence was introduced which showed him to be an overbearing and bloodthirsty bully. The insanity dodge did not work, and Buford was convicted, notwithstanding that great influence was brought to bear to save him, even the local minister so far forgetting his sacred calling as to preach sermons in his behalf while the case was on trial. As in this State, jurors in murder trials in Kentucky can fix the punishment in cases of capital conviction, and Buford's was fixed at imprisonment for life. And as he is so insane that when he has a grievance against a man he invites him to drink and then shoots him down like a dog, he ought to be kept during his life where he will not have a chance to repeat any such a pleasant little freak of insanity—or whisky, an ungovernable temper and a revengeful nature.—S. F. Stock Report.

REPORTED RICH STRIKE.—As near as can be learned, though it has been kept exceedingly quiet and strictly a secret, a rich and valuable discovery has been made inside the limits of Esmeralda Mining District, which, when made public, will surprise the most sanguine, and open the eyes of those who have always known it was there. The find consists of a gold ledge, as near as can be ascertained about ten feet in width, and as far as discovered one thousand feet and more in length. It is what is called a blind ledge, and is equal in rinchness to the best find in Bodie, or the old glittering chambers of the Del Monte. This may be a false alarm; be that as it may the time will yet come, and in the near future, when rich finds within the limits of Esmeralda, will be chronicled; mills will be built, a city will spring up and Esmeralda will be herself again.—Esmeralda Herald.

THE DOLLY VARDEN VS. LITTLE ROSA. The parties in interest are the Hoosac Mining Company and George A. Sayers. The Hoosac applied for a patent on the Dolly Varden lode; Sayers filed a protest on the ground that the survey of the Dolly Varden conflicted with a mine of his called the Little Rosa. It so happened that the sixtieth day being allowed for filing the protest fell upon Sunday, and Sayers was not ready to complete his survey and make out the necessary papers until Saturday, and then did not have them finished until 7 o'clock P. M. When finished, his attorney immediately sought out the Register, Mr. Immel, but did not succeed in finding him until precisely 10 o'clock P. M. He then offered him the proper protest and fee, which the Register refused to receive. On the next day, Sunday, being the sixtieth day, Mr. Immel could not be found and the papers were filed by J. J. Work, the Receiver. It was ruled by the Commissioner of the Land Office that the tender made to the Register was illegal, being after office hours, and the filing being made on Sunday, it being the last day, was also illegal, it being a legal holiday. From this ruling an appeal was taken to the Secretary of the Interior, the points relied upon being that it the last day being Sunday, filing was prohibited, then all Sundays intervening throughout the sixty days should be excluded, and that the Register had a right to receive the papers on Saturday night, and file them at any time before 12 o'clock that night. The Secretary reversed the ruling of the Commissioner, but upon what ground it is not yet known.—Eureka Sentinel.

A NEW STYLE OF QUARTZ MILL.—A new style of quartz mill, or properly speaking, the application of power in a new manner for the reduction of quartz in a battery, has lately been invented. The power is intended to be applied by a water wheel on the shaft, on which are placed the cams. The cams strike the ends of the levers which are constructed on the trip-hammer principle, being supported by standards (with a loose socket) at the center, and the opposite end attached to the stems of the stamps. With the water wheel the cams strike the ends of the trip-levers, driving the stamps fast or slow, according to the regulated speed. The model is quite simple, and a mill on the plan could be built cheaply and would be admirable as a prospecting arrangement, although it can be used for a mill of large size. The inventor believes that the reducing capacity of this mill, per stamp, will be much greater than when the power of the cams is applied directly to the stamps.—Eureka Sentinel.

THE FASTEST MILE TO WAGON.—Edwin Forrest has trotted the fastest mile that has ever been made to wagon. He was driven by Mr. Bonner on the exercising track on his farm. The first quarter was trotted in 34 seconds, the half in 1:08, the three-quarters in 141¾, and the mile in 216½. This great performance was made on a three-quarter track, which is much slower than a mile track, and besides the horse carried Mr. Bonner, who weighs over 180 pounds. When Edwin Forrest trotted at Utica last Summer, before Mr. Bonner bought him, such good judges as George B. Alley, Charles Kerner and Ephraim Simmons said he was the fastest trotter they had ever seen. The way the horse is now performing proves that they were correct in the opinion they formed of him. Considering that this was a three-quarter track, to wagon, and carrying such weight, it is the greatest performance ever made by a trotting horse.—New York Herald.

THE BOY'S PRIDE IN HIS FATHER.—"There were two men got into a fight in front of the store to-day," said a Northern man at the supper table, "and I tell you it looked pretty hard for one of them. The biggest one grabbed a cart stake and drew it back. I thought sure he was going to knock the other's brains out, and I jumped in between them."

The family listened with wrapt attention, and as the head paused in his narrative, the young heir, whose respect for his father's bravery was immeasurable, proudly remarked:

"He couldn't knock any brains out of you, could he father?"

The head of the family gazed long and earnestly at the heir, as if to detect evidence of a dawning humorist; but, as the youth continued with great innocence to munch his fourth tart, he gasped and resumed his supper.—Rockland Courier.

IT is not surprising that alarm exists in New York at the appearance there of the yellow fever. The epidemic is raging at Havana—as many as one hundred and seventeen persons having died in one week—and the commercial intercourse of New York is so intimate with Havana, that it will be hardly possibly for the former city to escape the fever entirely, let her enforce as rigid a quarantine as she may. In this connection it is announced that some of the National Board of Health of the United States are now in Havana for the purpose of studying the symptoms of yellow fever.

CHANGE OF SUPERINTENDENT.—James Cross, Superintendent of the Mammoth, has been superseded by William Hardy, formerly Superintendent of the Oph r. Mr. Cross will retire from his position with the feeling on the part of most people who are familiar with the subject, that he did all that he could to put the property in shape which was badly botched at the start and before his time.—Stock Exchange.

IT would appear that China is intent on becoming an important factor among the naval war powers of the world. The Armstrongs have just dispatched from England four more formidable gunboats to China, making eight of these formidable little vessels, each carrying a 38-ton gun. They are splendid floating engines, and have a fine sea-going capacity. "Although they were built for China in anticipation of war with Japan," remarks the London Observer, "is it not possible that they may be used against ourselves? Sooner or later China, a vast reservoir of human life kept in by old rotten dykes, will burst its barriers, and the New World will be flooded with Chinese as the old was swept by the Goths, Vandals and Huns. This day is not likely to arrive in our own years; but when it does come, as it must, it will be sad for civilization if barbarians possess a navy superior in scientific respects to that of the civilized world which they have marked out for plunder."

THE Western Union Telegraph Company has in project an improvement which will greatly facilitate its business, but which will require the outlay of a very large sum of money to accomplish. James Gamble, the Superintendent, states that the company will shortly begin the placing of a "No. 4" wire between Omaha and Ogden. This wire is nearly a half an inch in diameter, weighs 790 pounds to the mile, and is heavier than any other telegraph wire in use on the American continent. "No. 6" is now used for much of the distance between Ogden and San Francisco; but on some of the sections "No. 8" or "No. 9" is used—on which sections the company now proposes to substitute "No. 6," to be used throughout as a quadruplex wire.

THE New York Times says it has received a long letter from Paris on the inter-oceanic canal project, in which it is predicted that the shares will be taken by Frenchmen in twenty-four hours when they are put on the market, because of confidence in De Lesseps, he being a wealthy man already, and seventy four years old. The writer thinks the canal will be an accomplished fact in ten years, and says De Lesseps is astonished at the opposition manifested by Americans when he showed his good will by offering to make Gen. Grant the honorary President of the company.

THE question whether Cetewayo will surrender or not is of little importance, as in the event of his proving stubborn the British can place his brother, Oham, who surrendered some time ago, in possession of the lower and far more fertile part of Zululand, and by assuring Oham some little support at the commencement of his reign, to establish a complete bulwark between Cetewayo and the British colonies. The continuation of the war would be an arduous and fruitless task, as beyond Ulundi the country is a wilderness, where the difficulties of transportation would exceed anything yet experienced.

GEN. WALKER estimates that the coming census will add ten millions to the official figures of the population of the country—making it 48,000,000. This will probably be well ascertained in time for use in perorations at the Presidential Conventions. It is barely possible some of the orators will call it 50,000,000.

THE detectives are still working on the Roddan mystery. The negro Williams was brought down to Wheatland from Marysville a few days ago, and after a rigid examination by Detective Bedford and others, was taken back to the County Jail. He will have his trial at Wheatland in a few days. The girls are doing well.

A LEDGE of tin ore, said to be one hundred feet wide, is reported to have been found near Albany, Oregon.

BY WAY OF CHANGE.

We fancy something "solid" would, by way of change from politics, be good reading. So here are some facts and figures pertaining to the labor and cost of living questions in the Eastern States, as collected by the Massachusetts Labor Bureau. In Massachusetts in November, 1878, there were 28,500 persons out of employment. A year later the census showed a reduction to 23,000. Taking that State as the criterion for the whole United States, it is shown that not to exceed one per cent. of the whole population began this last winter unable to obtain employment. This is certainly vastly better then political reformers would have us believe. The following is from the tenth annual report of the Bureau above referred to:

"The following is the per centum of increase of wages in 1878 over 1860 in the several trades: Agricultural laborers, per day 33 per centum, per month 15; manufacture of arms, 19; artisans' tools, 38; blacksmiths', 47; bookbinding, 14 to 17; boots, 26; boxes, 13 to 38; bakers, 13 to 38; brickmakers, 9; building trades, 16; cabinet making, 6 to 16; carpet making, 23; carriages, 30; clothing, 8; dressmaking, 19; leather making, 28; linen and jute manufacture, 20 to 28; machinery manufacture, 27; metallic fine work and jewelry, 25; millinery, 23; musical instruments, 8; paints, 28; paper 41; printing, 30; silk manufacture, 45; soap and candles, 13; stone working, 8; manufacture of woolen goods, 33; worsted goods, 22. The following are the occupations and the percentage of decrease of wages: Bleaching, dyeing and printing of cloths, 3 per centum; preserving meats, pickles, etc., 2; envelope making, 11; ship building, 32.

The returns from 63,515 employes in the occupations considered, in the cities and towns visited, show the average weekly wages on a gold basis, were twenty-four and four tenths per centum higher in 1878 than they were in 1860.

It is found that the prices of groceries have advanced over 1860, 7 per centum; provisions, 28; fuel, 5; boots, 18; rents, 25; board 49; while dry goods have fallen 9 per centum. On all the items entering into the cost of living the average price was 14½ per centum higher in 1878 than it was in 1860. The following figures show the per centum which the prices of the following articles in 1872 exceed the same in 1878: Groceries, 43; provisions, 17; fuel, 44; dry goods, 40; boots, 21; rents, 105; board, 37. On all of the above items the average per centum of cost in 1872 above the same in 1878 was 54 per centum.

The results of the investigation relative to wages and prices are as follows: Wages have advanced, compared with 1860, 24.4 per centum, and the cost of living 14.5 per centum, which, on its face, shows a pecuniary advantage to the workingmen of 9 9-10 per centum.

Careful inquiry was made by the officers of the Bureau of 345 retail dealers in ten cities and towns containing a population of 530,000, to ascertain the amount, quality of goods purchased now compared with the same several years since, together with the ability to pay for the same. From these inquiries the following conclusions are reached: That the workingmen of Massachusetts, in the majority of cases, have the best quality of food, though not in so great quantity and variety as in previous years; that they are practicing a rigid economy in purchases of clothing, dry goods, boots and shoes, house furnishing goods, and fuel; and that the majority continue to pay their bills promptly.

Comparing this state of affairs with the previously ascertained relations of wages and prices, which shows in 1878 an advance over 1860 of 24 4-10 per centum in average weekly wages, and an average advance in cost of living of 14½ per centum, which means a pecuniary betterment of 10 per centum in the general condition of the workingman in Massachusetts in 1878 as compared with 1860, no account being made of the decrease in hours of labor in many industries—it would seem almost like stating an axiom to prophesy that, with a revival in business, a gradual decline in the prices of provisions, etc., and no cut down in wages, the condition of the workingman in that State, within a comparatively short period, will be better, considering all circumstances, than it has ever been since the foundation of the Commonwealth."

What is true of Massachusetts in this respect, there is ample reason for believing to be true of the whole country.

SENATOR BLAINE, it is stated, will not stump Ohio. It seems that the campaign in Maine promises to be a very active one on all sides, and the Republicans feel that they are far from being sure of a victory. The succession to Hamlin in the Senate is the great bone of contention. Congressman Frye and Reid and ex-Congressmen Eugene Hale and Peters are candidates. Mr. Blaine is acting as peacemaker. Another reason that Mr. Blaine has for not going to Ohio is that Gen. Ewing is his cousin, and there exists between them a warm, personal friendship.

TICKETS.

The absurd law got through the 22d Legislature by John F. Swift, mixes things up so much as to leave a doubt how independent candidates, for instance, are to have their tickets prepared. One point is clear, however, and that is, no name of a candidate must appear on regular party tickets in lieu of any regular nominee of such party. In other words, the new law requires each organized party to have its ballots plainly distinguished by a vignette or printed words at its head. And, supposing by way of illustration, that the Hon. Bilks have nominated a full ticket and prepared a ballot with a suitable vignette; that upon this regular ticket John Doe's name appears as their candidate for Sheriff; and suppose that Richard Roe, being an independent candidate for the same position, or the regular nominee of any other pafty, no matter which, should have his name substituted on the regular H. B. ballot in lieu of the aforesaid John Doe—Richard Roe would, in so doing, be answerable for a misdemeanor. But, as we understand the matter, Richard can accomplish the same result, and take the whole of the H. B. ballot save in the substitution of his name in the place of John's, provided he leaves off the H. B. vignette or distinguishing heading, and uses some other, as "Richard Roe—Independent candidate," to show that he does not present it as a regular H. B. ticket, with the view of defrauding the H. B.'s into voting for him for Sheriff instead of their own chosen Bilk. All, then, that independent candidates will have to do in order to get their names on party ballots so that they may be voted for in common with those of any regular party or parties will be: (1) To write their names in in place of this particular opponent, or, (2) have it printed in on any or all the regular party ballots, but in no case without leaving off the distinguishing head or vignette adopted by such parties and substituting any words or device they may choose to show that it is not exactly the same as the regular ticket.

IT seems that the conversion of the Desert of Sahara into an inland sea might not after all be so much of a blessing to the continent of Africa as was claimed when the project was first broached. At a recent meeting of the French Geographical Society at Paris, Dr. Cosson, a member of the Institute, commbatted the scheme with numerous arguments. He did not believe the climate of the interior of Africa would be changed by the artificial sea. Its shores would be as arid as those of the Mediterranean in Tripoli; but if the climate should change, the date crop, which is the principal support of the natives, would be ruined. The routes of the caravans from Tunis and Algiers to the interior would also be destroyed and the whole inland trade deranged. Dr. Cosson also predicted that the pressure of the mass of water would produce perturbations in the subterranean currents which feed the artesian wells in the oases, and might cause them to fail and thus entail the loss of hundreds of thousands of palm trees. His views as to the climatic influence of a Saharan sea were opposed by other members of the socety.

WE are in receipt of a circular from the Secretary of the Pacific Coast "Bureau of Information and Colonization," whose office is at 230 Montgomery street, San Francisco. From this we learn that this organization was incorporated April 9, 1879, with a capital stock of $1,000,000, divided into shares of $100 each, upon which it has been decided to call in the sum of $10 each, payable at the rate of $1 per share per month for ten months. The object is to encourage immigation to the Pacific Coast. The organization is official and has been indorsed by nearly every prominent citizen on the coast. It is doubtless an honest and well intended effort to benefit the whole coast in the way of inducing a larger population. Some way, though, we can't but believe our State in particular is suffering far more for new channels of industry for what labor we now have rather than for more people to share in the very few such industries we do have.

THE fishermen convicted of trespassing on the Pyramid Indian Reservation were arraigned before Judge Hillyer, in the United States District Court on the 22d ult., for sentence. A fine of $1,000 was imposed on one of the defendants, J. S. Sturgeon. The sentences of the others were deferred in order to give their counsel, Gen. Clarke, time to prepare an appeal to the United States Supreme Court.

AT last Alaska has begun to show some returns from her numerous mines. The steamer California has brought from the Territory $40,000 in treasure from the Cassier mine. The salmon fishery is immense. The Sitka cannery has put up 4,000 cans of salmon already. A five stamp quartz mill is running on gold quartz, and another set of five stamps will be immediately added.

THE bids for supplying the United States Mints with silver bullion were opened at the office of the Director of the Mints in Washington on the 24th ult. About 600,000 ounces were offered. All offers for delivery at Philadelphia which were not above the market rate were accepted, and those above rejected. Offers received from San Francisco were in excess of the market rates, and were declined by the Department. The bidders, however, were offered the price regarded by the Department to be the market rates, but they all refused to accept; hence no purchases were made for delivery at San Francisco. All others were made for the Philadelphia Mint, which aggregates about 300,000 ounces. The Department anticipates having to do the largest proportion of silver coinage during the present month at the Philadelphia Mint, owing to their inability to procure silver at the market rates for the Western Mints.

THERE is some talk in England of making changes in the land system so as to devote a larger area to the production of food, and do away to a great extent with the dependence of the United Kingdom on America for bread. Thirty years ago the importation of food into Great Britain amounted to only $55,000,000. Last year the importations of food were valued at $505,000,000, for 33,000,000 of people, against 26,000,000 in 1840. The total amount paid by the British for food (the home product is $1,152,176,095) is $1,657,176,095, and the demand for foreign agricultural products, mainly from the United States and Canada, is increasing rapidly. For that reason the subject of utilizing the great area of idle lands in the hands of the great landholders of the kingdom is being agitated, the idea being to make the soil yield 50 per cent. more food than it does at present.

THE Prince Imperial is said to have been a fine gymnast, a good runner, an admirable horseman, and accustomed to vault into the saddle with the greatest ease, without touching the stirrup. His nerve and surefootedness were something quite wonderful. Last year when he had disabled his arm by a scald, so that he was obliged to wear it in a sling, finding himself on board the Osborne, he ran along the bowsprit and back again, as though he were walking along a road—a feat which much surprised and not a little alarmed those who saw it. Upon another occasion, when some friends were staying at Chiselhurst, he suddely appeared, no one knew how, astride on the topmost ridge at the gable end of the house, and suddely rising, ran along this ridge to the other end. In fact, scarcely a day passed but he displayed some daring trick of this kind.

TWENTY-TWO years ago the Banner quartz mine at Norris Ravine, Butte county, caved in, entombing two miners at the depth of 250 feet. The cave was so extensive that, after several days of fruitless exertion to reach the buried men, it was found impossible to do so, and the mine was abandoned. Recently a new shaft was sunk and a drift run which tapped the old works. After pumping out the water the old drift was entered, and at the extreme end, sitting together and leaning against the end of the drift, were the skeletons of the two men, nothing but the bones and gum boots they wore (which were still on their feet) remaining. Their appearances indicated a quiet death, probably from suffocation.

A TELEGRAM received by C. Deweese, Jr., of the firm of Moore, Hunt & Co., San Francisco, announces the death of the brother of the recipient, T. F. Deweese, at Pleasanton, Texas. Deceased was stabbed by Charles Lempke, with whom he was quarreling, and James Ord, son of Gen. O. C. Ord, Department Commander. Ord was arrested on a charge of being accessory to the duel, for the alleged loaning of a knife to Lempke during the fight, but gave bonds and was set at liberty. Deceased was a native of Virginia, and by profession a lawyer. For the last seven years he has lived in Texas, practicing law and raising sheep. He was also formerly a Deputy U. S. Marshal in that State.

A NEW regulation relative to insufficiently stamped letters went into effect on the 1st of July last. The law before existing required the Postmaster, where such letter was deposited, to forward it to its destination, accompanied by a way-bill stating the amount to be collected. Now all the Postmasters throughout the country have been supplied with brown stamps of various denominations, and when an insufficiently stamped letter is received at the delivery office, these stamps are placed thereon to the amount due, and for which the Postmaster has to give an account to the Department the same as for other stamps. When a person sees a letter coming out to him stamped in this manner he may make up his mind that he has to pungle.

A fire is raging in the forests near Mineral King, Tulare county. It was started by a lady setting fire to a tree to burn a coon out. Two or three thousand acres of good feed have been destroyed by it and it is still spreading.

Advices received at the Republican headquarters, in San Francisco, indicate that the contest has narrowed down, in a number of counties, to a fight between Perkins and White.

BY the Justice of the Peace of San Jacinto, who has just arrived, I get full particulars of the fatal shooting which occurred near San Gorgonio Monday night, the 28th ult. Gen. Bouton arrived at San Gorgonio, on the cars, at 9:30 P. M. He was met by his partner, S. C. Collins, when the two started in a light wagon for their ranch in San Jacinto Valley. About three miles from the station they were halted by three men and their hands chained behind them. Collins was chained to his wagon wheel with the chain about his neck. With a chain around Bouton's neck, they started to lead him off to the brush, but had gone but a short distance when Bouton got his hands loose. The man in the rear, noticing his movements, at once cried "Halt!" when Bouton wheeled and shot him. Then, turning, he shot the one in front. Bouton then ran to the wagon to release Collins, when the third man came leisurely walking up the road, thinking, probably, that it was his party doing the shooting, when Bouton fired and felled him. Bouton and Collins at once put whip to their horses and drove to Justice Kennedy's office, about nine miles from the scene, when a posse was started. They found that Wakefield had mounted his horse and ridden about half a mile, then dismounted and died. An inquest was held on the body. The jury returned a verdict that he came to his death from a gunshot inflicted by Gen. E. Bouton in self-defense. The two men who are still at large are said to be Bill Covington, well known in this valley, and one Tripps, of San Diego county. Deputy Sheriffs McKinney and Thomas left here on last night's train to join in the pursuit. Wakefield's body was brought here this morning and taken charge of by his relatives, who live in San Bernardino. An old business feud is said to be at the bottom of the trouble, and it is believed that the murder of Bouton was intended.—Los Angeles Express.

THERE was a tremendous explosion in the Central Pacific Railroad shops at Sacramento on the 18th ult. Two of the six huge boilers which furnish steam for the works exploded, utterly demolishing the brick boiler house. Huge pieces of iron flew in all directions, passing through walls, and demolishing everything in their course. Nearly every pane of glass in the windows of all the buildings forming the square were broken. Fortunately but few men were about the shops, and only a few were hurt. According to the latest report, only one man (J. M. Keyes) was killed. The loss is estimated at from $10,000 to $15,000.

THE surveyors of the Southern Pacific Railroad Company are being closely followed up by the staking party, which is now this side of Fort Cummings and near the Messilla Valley, on the Rio Grande. It app ars as though they are trying to steal a march on the New Mexico and Southern Pacific, or the Texas Pacific, by the way they are silently pushing their work without making any noise about it.—Messilla News.

MARRIED.

At Bishop Creek, Inyo County Cal., July 27, 1879, by the Rev. A. Clark, FRANK LAURENCE to Miss HETTY J. HARDY, both of Independence.

IN MEMORIAM.

Resolutions Adopted by Inyo Lodge No. 221, F. & A. M., July 26, A. L. 5879.

WHEREAS, It has pleased the Great and Supreme Architect, before whose infinite wisdom and goodness we most humbly bow, to take from among us our much beloved and esteemed Brother, William L. Moore, hence to that bright celestial Lodge to which all good Masons hope to at last arrive, we, though deeply grieved, humbly submit, believing that our mortal loss is his immortal gain.

Resolved, That by the death of our most excellent brother our Lodge has lost one of its best and most beloved members, the community a zealous and efficient public officer, a most worthy and honorable man and his kindred a kind and affectionate relative, whose blameless life is worthy of our lasting memory and emulation.

Resolved, That a vote of thanks be tendered to the Pioneers of Inyo County, and also to the many citizens and friends who so kindly rendered their aid previous to and at the burial of our deceased brother.

Resolved, That this memento be spread upon the minutes of the Lodge, published in THE INYO INDEPENDENT, and a copy hereof be enrolled and presented to the surviving brother of our deceased member.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.:
SATURDAY, AUGUST 2.....1879

THE KEARSARGE.—Monday last we paid a visit to the Kearsarge mine, and find the situation to be about as follows: At about 800 feet from the mouth of the tunnel a winze is being sunk to further develop the extensive body of ore exposed in top and bottom, and for about 60 feet in length in the tunnel near that point. This ore body for about 20 feet in length, as shown in the roof of the tunnel, is from 12 to 28 inches in width. Supt. Gray is satisfied it is but the top of the ore chimney, which, as already shown by work in the winze, materially widens as it goes down. The tunnel at this point is very nearly 500 feet from the surface. We do not doubt but quite a bonanza of very good ore lies above as well as below the tunnel. But the intent of present operation is, not to take out ore as it is found, but to demonstrate whether or not this is a real "Comstock." The country rock is granite, but for more than a 100 feet in the crosscut no granite is found at all; instead there are innumerable clay seams, with more or less quartz and streaks of paying ore besides the larger body above mentioned, interspersed in trap rock. It is evident that the ledge or ledge matter is not less than 100 feet in width. The pitch is about 30 degrees westward into the mountain, and no hanging wall proper has yet been found. From a point a few feet back from the winze a tunnel or crosscut is being run directly in line for the Cliff mine. This crosscut is to determine the exceedingly probable fact that the Kearsarge and the Cliff ledges are one and the same; in short, that all the numerous ore seams thereabouts, which have been worked on the surface, are but off shoots of but one large ledge. We feel a solid conviction that the Kearsarge will at no great depth below the 900-foot tunnel prove itself to be a monster ledge indeed.

WELCH'S CASE. — Wednesday last Mike Welch, under commitment for the murder of Sheriff Moore, was brought before County Judge Hannah upon a writ of habeas corpus, praying for release from imprisonment on the ground that the committing magistrate had failed to examine witnesses as to his guilt of the crime charged in the complaint, or in other words, that he was held upon a waiver of examination instead of testimony establishing the presumption of guilt. S. P. Moffat, Esq., appeared for the prisoner and Judge A. R. Conklin for the people, in the absence of District Attorney Snelling. After an exhaustive argument on the part of counsel, his Honor refused the writ and remanded the prisoner to jail to await the action of the Grand Jury. In so ruling the Judge stated that it was the common practice to hold accused persons when examination had been waived, and if there was a point of law in the matter it could be soon decided upon appeal to the Supreme Court, which is now in session.

THE BIRDS.—Owing, probably, to the mildness of last Winter, this Summer birds innumerable and of many kinds are fairly overflowing the valley. Grain and growing corn suffer from their depredations. One species of little rascals haunt the orchards, and levy tribute upon every ripening apricot, nectarine, peach, plum or pear—seeming to claim the right, as it were, after having cleared the trees of worms and insects. A pair of house swallows, after much discussion, pertubation and preliminary surveying, appropriated a nook in the ceiling of THE INDEPENDENT office, built themselves a habitation and have brought forth a brood—or at least one youngster. He is a regular pet; looks wise as a frog, and seems to be engaged in bossing the old birds while they are proceeding with the second crop of little ones.

RELIEF WANTED.—A note, and confidential at that, from one of the Kern river fishing party, states that they have in the aggregate caught and eaten nearly a million "speckled beauties," and they "can't get their shirts off for the bones." This remark applies to the gents only. If they are getting so poor in flesh that the bones stick out, it's time a relief party were sent out. We never before heard of the "speckled beauties" having such a disastrous effect in so short a time.

THE INJURED.—Jack Welch, so badly hurt by being run over, as mentioned last week, is slowly navigating about. Jos. Fernbach, who has had a very serious time with his wounded hand, has passed the dangerous point and is slowly recovering. He will come out with a good hand and arm yet, thanks to Dr. Bicknell's skill and careful attention.

PERSONALS.—Among our town's visitors of this week were J. J. Gunn, of Lookout; M. W. Belshaw, of Cerro Gordo; the Diaz Brothers, of Lone Pine; Johnny Ullrick, General Superintendent of the Clugage Northern Stage lines; My. Harmon of Darwin, and several Lone Piners, Big Piners, Bishop Creekers and others.

THRESHING.—Westerville's threshing machine has begun operations for the season, having started out during the week. It is now at George's Creek, and will work up the grain stacks as it proceeds northward. Owing to the greater acreage, the yield will be unusually heavy. A larger proportion of barley has been raised this year than ever before.

NEW FLOUR.—Bell's flouring mill has just turned out its first lot of flour from wheat of this season, of surpassing good quality and excellence.

BULLION.—On the 28th ult. the Rex Montis shipped per Wells, Fargo & Co., its second bar of bullion, for this run, valued at $1,000.

NOT HIGH ENOUGH.—After several days' trial of the refining works at Cerro Gordo, the whole operation proved eminently successful except that it was found that the smoke-stack was not high enough to give a draft as strong as desirable. On this account, and not for the reason that made the Arkansas man build his "chimbley higher," the works are shut down that the stack may be made high enough. It will be in full blast again in a few days.

LAST DAY.—Next Tuesday is the last day of grace for unregistered voters to get their names on the printed Great Register—without which they won't be allowed to vote, next election, if some authorities interpret the New Confusion properly. We believe, though, they can vote on certificate the same as heretofore, although the Bilk Constitution does not say so.

COMPLETE.—The Republican ticket is now complete in all the State, the several District and county nominations to be voted for in this county, the nomination of S. D. Prescott, of Indian District, Mono county, for Joint Representative, completing the ticket. As mentioned elsewhere, that part of the Democratic ticket is not yet complete.

NEW.—Under the head of New Advertisements this week will be found that of E. Chenot, of Camp Independence. He is an extensive dealer in hay, grain, flour and farm produce of all kinds, besides having always on hand a well selected assortment of general merchandise.

NEW TERM.—Our annual announcement of the beginning of the school year at St. Vincent's College, Los Angeles, will be noted elsewhere. The St. Vincent bears an enviable reputation as one of the best institutions of learning in Southern California.

NO REPORT.—As yet no report has been received here of the action of the Democratic Convention, called to meet at Mammoth City last Monday to name a man for Representative for Inyo and Mono. It is high time that the ticket should be completed.

CARD.—Under the proper heading among the advertisements this week will be found a card from Mr. Geo. H. Hardy, Republican candidate for the office of County Treasurer. If elected, Mr. H. will make a thorough-going officer.

A CHANGE.—As will be seen by notice elsewhere, the well known Lone Pine firm of Macarter & Edwards has been dissolved. Mr. Edwards continues the business, while it is rumored that Mac will go to merchandising at Big Pine.

THANKS.—This establishment is under obligations to Mr. S. A. Densmore for the first and best watermelons of the season, so far as our experience goes, and also for peaches ad gustum.

MEETING.—The Democratic County Central Committee is called to meet at the Court House on Monday next. See notice.

FOR JOINT SENATOR.—The Democrats of this Senatorial District have nominated S. C. Poage, of Fresno county, for State Senator.

CANDIDATE.—See announcement elsewhere of Jas. Cavanagh for the office of County Assessor.

HEAT IN THE SUTRO TUNNEL.—The temperature of the Sutro Tunnel is so high that the operations therein are greatly retarded. In the south lateral drift but one shift of four men are working. These work in ten minute shifts, at the end of which they retire to the drift connecting with the Hale & Norcross incline, where the temperature is cooler by about 15 degrees. In the north lateral drift the temperature is not so high, and three shifts of six men each and one boss work there. When they become overheated they retire to the Combination drift to cool off. In that drift the temperature is only about 90 degrees. In the main tunnel the temperature is 110 degrees.

The connection with the Savage mine is being enlarged in order to obtain a greater supply of fresh air. The temperature at this point is over 100 degrees. For some days past the men working there have enjoyed the use of the cooling station at the 1600 level of the Savage; this could be reached by ascending the pump shaft for about 60 feet above the tunnel level. But they no longer enjoy that privilege, and are now compelled to seek their own drifts to cool off. A blower is being put in place at shaft No. 2, and pipes connecting with the headings of the drifts are being laid. This work will be finished in a week or ten days, and the air in the drifts will be cooler by some 10 degrees. It being impossible to use machine drills at present, all the boring is done by hand drills.—Lyon County Times.

HANDICAPPED.—President Hayes' veto of the Chinese fifteen-passenger bill is a very serious load for the Republican voters to carry. In Senator Sargent's speech, the other night, he did not assert with his accustomed force and positiveness that there was no excuse for leaving the Republican party to secure a restriction on Chinese immigration. While paying Horace Davis a handsome compliment for the zeal and ability he manifested in working for that bill, he was evidently oppressed by the recollection that a bill passed by Congress, which would have given us substantial relief had it become a law, was prevented from becoming a law by the President, and that the President was supported in his veto by the bulk of his party friends in Congress. While it will be admitted that even greater credit is attached to Messrs. Sargent and Davis for their advocacy of the anti-Chinese bill in defiance of the recognized leaders of the party—with the exception of Senator Blaine—the circumstance that legislation, so nearly consummated, was defeated by the Administration they support, places the party in an embarrassing position.—S. F. Call.

A Bad System.

The H. B. organ labors to show that land monopoly is a benefit to the State. It tells us how many acres Dr. Glenn cultivates, how many men he employs, how much wheat he produces, and how many ships it will furnish cargoes for. The conclusion to be drawn from the H. B. argument is, that one hundred Dr. Glenns would make California a rich and prosperous State. The fallacy of this argument lies in the fact that Dr. Glenn's system of land monopoly is being applied in California just as it is going out of use in all other parts of the civilized world. A hundred years ago France was held by a landed aristocracy, with a middle class for tenements, and serfs or peasants as laborers. The proprietor drew a princely income from his lands, while the farmers and peasants toiled for the pittance that kept the laborers in working condition. Twenty years ago the land in the Southern States of the Union was held in the same way. Laborers there were called slaves, and held in servitude for life. The planters were like Dr. Glenn, and the slave much like the coolies he has employed in past years. England has clung to a similar land system up to the present time; but its most conservative journals admit that the system is a failure, and that a change must come. The monopoly which the H. B. organ eulogizes is passing away in other countries. It has been tried and found to work disastrously for the masses, though it may give wealth and importance to the few. While admitting that Dr. Glenn is a very respectable representative of that system, we condemn the system. It is not in harmony with our institutions. Instead of having one hundred men in this State and one million coolies, we would have a million men each managing his own little farm. These large ranches are little better than deserts in all essential respects. There are no homes on them, and in the nature of things cannot be. The laborers—white, yellow or black—come and go with no other interest in the soil than to get their wages. The system is one which will impoverish any State which permits it to flourish.—S. F. Call.

Lake District Items.

Every idle man wanting work had it furnished him this morning by the Mammoth Company. There are but few idle workingmen to be seen on the streets.

From the gold fields in Convict District we hear encouraging reports. There are about 15 men at work. The deepest shaft is down about 18 feet. Sluices will be ready for business in two or three days. As far down as any company has yet gone gold has been found, and the boys are confident that if they can reach the bedrock they will not want for collateral.

From John Robinson, just in from Mountain View District, we learn that some large and well defined ledges have recently been discovered there. Mr. R. has some rock with him which closely resembles in its character the blue sulphuret rock of this district. He and his partner, Mr. Hitchcock, have made two locations, one of which is described as being 100 feet wide. The district is situated about ten miles north of this place, on the head of Dead Man's Fork of Owen's river.

There is quite a number of men engaged enlarging and improving the Mammoth Company's ditch leading from the lakes to the mill. They are also putting in new flood gates. All preparations are being made for a long and successful run as soon as the mill is put in proper condition.

NEW CHICKEN DISEASE.—A lady of Washington recently observed that her chickens, an unusually healthy brood up to a short time ago, had been attacked by some mysterious disease that caused them to stagger about for a few minutes, fall and soon become lifeless. She threw half a dozen of the dead ones out into the street, and a number of the others kept dropping off one at a time. She informed a gentleman acquaintance who was passing of her trouble, and asked his opinion as to what the disease could be. He was about as much astonished as she had been. Presently he noticed some fragments of apparently decayed peaches in the chicken yard, and, when the lady said they were brandy peaches that she had thrown out, he understood the whole thing in a moment. The dead chickens were only dead drunk! By that time one of them began to kick a little, and in a few hours they were all sober.—Sacramento Record.

ALFALFA.—So popular has this vigorous forage plant become in this county, that no farm, where water can be procured for irrigation, is considered complete without an alfalfa field. Almost the first thing that a new settler in either of the colonies does is to level off two or three acres of land and plant it in alfalfa. It is safe to say that there are over 20,000 acres of alfalfa growing in this county at present, and this acreage will be largely increased, if not doubled in the next twelve months.—Fresno Expositor.

THE population of Bodie is augmenting at a rapid rate. We now have six regular stage lines running in—two from Carson, one from Virginia, one from Sonora, one from Mammoth City, and the local line between here and Aurora—beside numerous fast freight lines, all of which, stage and fast freight, generally come in heavily loaded and go out light. We do not think there are far short of 6,000 people here at present, in which are indeed some excellent families. There is quite a large "floating" population, but they do their floating principally about town, and seldom float away.—Bodie Standard.

THE Japanese keep raw meat fresh in hot weather by placing the raw flesh in porcelain vessels and pouring on it boiling water, whereby the albumen of the surface is quickly coagulated and forms a protection against the further action of the water, so as to prevent the access of air and consequent putrefaction of the meat.

FOR SHERIFF.

AT THE SOLICITATION OF MANY friends, the undersigned hereby respectfully submits his name to the voters of Inyo County, as an Independent Candidate for the office of Sheriff and Ex-officio Tax Collector.

A CARD.

TO THE VOTERS OF INYO COUNTY: Being so situated as to be unable to make a thorough canvas of the county before the coming election, and as the term is short and will hardly warrant much expense, I take this method of letting it be generally known that I desire the office for which I am the candidate of the Republican Party, viz.: that of Treasurer of this County; and learning that there would be considerable opposition to me on account of my being in the employ of one of the business houses of this place, I wish it positively understood that in case I am elected I will sever such connection, and will, by a strict and careful attention to the duties of the office, endeavor to merit the confidence which places me in a position of so great responsibility.

OFFICIAL.

PROPOSALS TO FURNISH MATERIAL FOR THE LONE PINE BRIDGE.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT IN pursuance of an order of the Board of Supervisors of the County of Inyo, State of California, made on this Twelfth day of July, 1879, the undersigned, Clerk of said Board, will receive sealed proposals for material to be used in rebuilding the Lone Pine Bridge, until MONDAY, THE FOURTH DAY OF AUGUST, 1879, at 12 o'clock M. of said day; bids to be opened between the hours of 1 and 2 o'clock P. M.

Specifications and Conditions:

FIRST—Bidders will submit proposals to contract for furnishing Seventy-two Piles, to be delivered on either side of Owens River, at the point where the former bridge was situated. Said Piles to be of not less than 12 inches in diameter at the largest end; twenty-four of the same to have a length of 22 feet each; 24 of 18 feet, and 24 of 16 feet in length.

SECOND—Timbers as follows, to-wit:
27 Pieces 10 x 12, 16 feet long;
1 " 12 x 14, 16 " "
2 " 12 x 14, 26 " "
39 " 8 x 12, 12 " "
38 " 6 x 12, 12 " "

THIRD—Sawed Lumber as follows, to-wit:
16 Pieces 4 x 6, 14 feet long;
48 " 3 x 6, 16 " "
38 " 3 x 6, 12 " "
38 " 2 x 6, 12 " "

Also, Planking to cover space of 228 x 14 feet; said Plank to be of any width, 5 inches in thickness and 14 feet in length, either hewed or sawn.

Separate bids for each lot as specified to be submitted. All material to be delivered at the bridge.

The successful bidder or bidders will be required to execute good and sufficient bonds for the faithful performance of contract.

The said Board reserve the right to reject any or all bids.

JOHN CROUGH,

PROPOSALS FOR BUILDING ...THE... LONE PINE BRIDGE.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN, THAT IN pursuance of an order of the Board of Supervisors of the County of Inyo, State of California, made on this Fourteenth day of July, 1879, the undersigned, Clerk of said Board, will receive sealed proposals for the work of constructing the Lone Pine Bridge, up to the hour of 12 o'clock M. on MONDAY, THE FOURTH DAY OF AUGUST, 1879—said bids to be opened between the hours of 2 and 3 o'clock P. M. All bids must be sealed and indorsed "Proposals for Building the Lone Pine Bridge."

Contractors will be required to comply strictly with the plans and specifications on file in the office of the County Clerk, which are now subject to inspection and where copies can be obtained.

Said Bridge to be located upon the site of the burned bridge across Owens River, about four miles from the town of Lone Pine. Contractors will be furnished with necessary timbers and material, and will be authorized to use all available iron, bolts and spikes now on hand from the old bridge. Also, the contractor or contractors will be allowed the use of the Pile Driver belonging to the County; provided, that the same shall be returned uninjured and in good order.

The party or parties to whom the contract may be awarded will be required to execute good and sufficient bonds for the faithful performance of said work.

The said Board reserve the right to reject any and all bids.

JOHN CROUGH,

A Wonderful Valley.

Capt. Rhodes, of Esmeralda county, arrived in this city yesterday and will remain on the Comstock a day or two. He is owner of what is known as Rhodes' Salt Marsh, but it is much besides a salt marsh—is a perfect laboratory of mineral wealth. The valley owned by Capt. Rhodes contains 4,140 acres. It is quite level and is surrounded on all sides with high volcanic mountains. It is situated about fifteen miles northwest of Columbus and some six miles northeast of Belleville.

In this little valley is a sufficient amount of salt to supply all the markets of the United States, if not the whole world. A foot or two below the surface is found a solid floor of pure rock salt, as firm and as transparent as ice. Indeed, when the sand that covers the surface is stripped off the salt below bears a close resemblance to a field of ice. In many places little streams of water bubble up through the mass of salt, and very frequently deep pools are found which look just like the air holes in a frozen lake. The salt made at the marsh is perfectly pure. When a tract of ground has been stripped of the surface soil the salt water rises over the bed of rock salt to the depth of a foot or two. Then crystals of salt begin to form on the surface of the water, and as they form they sink to the bottom. If the salt is to be fine, for table use, workmen stir these crystals about with shovels as they settle to the bottom, thus breaking them up. For use in working silver ore coarse salt is as good as fine, and the solid formation may be dug up with picks if necessary, but the loose crystals are more readily handled, and as much salt of that kind is formed as can be disposed of.

Not only are there inexhaustible stores of salt in this little valley, but immense stores of borax. This borax is of the finest quality known, and two or three cents per pound more can be obtained for it in Europe than for any other borax sent to that market. Splendid specimens of tincal, or natural crystals of borax, are found in the marsh imbedded in the clay near the surface. Immense quantities of the sulphurets of magnesia (epsom salt) and sulphate of soda (glauber salt) in a pure state are also found. Nitrate of potassa (saltpetre) is found but the extent of the deposits is not known.

Common potash is also found in great abundance, and among the curious specimens to be found are what are called "cotton balls" (borate of lime) and fibrous crystalline borax. Also there is found an abundance of an unknown mineral. It is something described in none of the books. It does not appear in the shape of crystals, yet has a regular form of its own, presenting the appearance of branches of coral. It is thought that this may be some new salt. It may prove to be of more value than anything yet found in the valley. A quantity of it will shortly be sent East for examination.

The proposed branch railroad to Bodie would pass within twenty-five miles of this wonderful valley of minerals, and a side track would then give an outlet to the markets of the world for all the products that have been named.—Virginia Enterprise.

An old resident of our town, a man actively engaged in the pursuit of business, and who is now in the enjoyment of comparatively good health, has but one lung, and is now and has for the last thirteen years worn a tube in his side between four and five inches in length. We refer to Mr. A. H. Barnes. For the last thirteen years certain, and probably for the last thirty years, Mr. Barnes has lived, most of the time enjoying tolerable health, raised a large and healthy family, and is now as active and energetic business man as we have in our place; and all this time with one-half of his lung tissue so entirely destroyed as to be nearly if not entirely useless.—Reno Journal.

How to Explore for Minerals.

Mr. J. E. Clayton, mining engineer, contributes to the Salt Lake Tribune the following items on prospecting for minerals:

1st. Examine the gravel and boulders of the mountain streams, and note carefully the structure and character of the gravel wash. This will reveal the geological formations that are intersected by the stream. Try the sands at the head of the gravel bars for free gold, or for any crystallized minerals, etc. If the structure of the quartz boulders or other vein stones are favorable, go up the stream until the geological zone is found that has produced the quartz or other metal-bearing minerals. Then follow the supposed mineral-bearing zone on its line of strike and make especially careful examinations wherever eruptive dikes are found intersecting the formation.

2d. When a lode or vein is found, note carefully its relation to the country rock, especially any differences in the opposite walls of the vein. Then follow it on the line of outcrop, and note carefully those points where the best ores are seen, so as to determine the position of the best ore-chutes before making any location on the lode.

3d. The first work should consist of shallow cuts across the lode at intervals of 50 to 100 feet, or, if the vein is small and partially covered by soil and debris, a trench along the line of outcrop is preferable. If the surface tracing is satisfactory and the true line and strike has been determined, then survey your claim and stake off the boundaries according to the requirements of the United States laws.

4th. The work of exploring the vein underground is the next thing in order. To do this intelligently, you must select that point on the line of outcrop where the best ore is found, then sink a shaft on the lode following the angle of dip, keeping both foot wall and hanging wall exposed if possible. If the lode is too wide for this to be done, then follow the best ore streak of the vein itself, and at every 50 feet in depth make crosscuts to the walls of the vein. After 100 feet has been reached, run levels each way from the shaft on the line of the vein, in order to determine the extent or spread of the ore-chute or chimney on the horizontal line. When the limit of the ore body on the horizontal line has been ascertained, then sink 100 feet more, and drift right and left as before. If more than one chimney of ore is found on the line of the vein, a shaft should be sunk on it and drifts run as above stated, being careful to confine all the exploring work within the walls of the vein itself. When enough has been done to prove the character, size and quality of the vein, it will then be time to determine the position, character and extent of the "dead work" necessary to work the mine to the deep. These questions should be settled by careful surveys, made in the lights of all the local facts and surroundings, such as the geological structure of the country rock, the probable amount of water to be raised, the lowest point of drainage by adit or level, and most convenient point for delivery of the ores to the surface, etc.

The last part of the preliminary exploration of any mine is to determine by actual tests, what are the best methods of reduction, and the extent and kind of reduction work needed, etc.

5th. After all these preliminary facts have been thoroughly ascertained and clearly defined, the unavoidable risks of mining will have been met and fully overcome. All subsequent operations are simply matters of skill and business management, and the capitalizing of the mine becomes a mere matter of business detail.

The requirements are as follows:

1st. The preliminary exploration must have ore enough out and underrun, or otherwise exposed, to give at least two years' work for reduction works of an extent sufficient for the average annual output of ore.

2d. The reduction works must be suited for the best treatment of the ore.

3d. The exploration of the mine must be pushed ahead of extraction of ore, so as to expose at least one ton of ore in new ground, for every ton extracted from the previously explored ground.

4th. Before erecting reduction works, the ore exposed in the mine should be so thoroughly tested as to guarantee a net profit sufficient to pay the whole cost of such works.

5th. The mine being well opened, and the reduction works or plant established, the general success of the enterprise must depend upon the efficiency of the general business management.

The State Department at Washington has telegraphed information of the safe return of Minister Seward to China. He carried with him especial instructions from Secretary Evarts to obtain an interview with the Chinese Minister of Foreign Affairs and other high dignitaries of the Imperial Government as soon as possible after his arrival in Peking, and to bring to their attention the desire of the United States Government for such modification of the Burlingame Treaty as will provide for placing restrictions upon Chinese immigration to the United States. His instructions are of a specific and urgent nature.

The report of the California Treasurer to the 30th of June shows that in four years the State debt has been reduced $356,214 29, and that it is now less than $3,500,000, and that there is in the Treasury the sum of $1,488,450 64. The Treasurer claims that in the same time the assets of the State have been increased in the sum of $1,099,371 57.

A Queer Discovery.

The New York Tribune gives a detailed account of the process through which animal life is suspended for an indefinite period and restored at pleasure. The inventor is one Signor Rotura, who for many years has made a study of the flora of South America. His present field is Australia. In connection with James Grant, who has a freezing chamber on one of the headlands of Sydney Harbor, he has been operating on dogs, cats, lambs and other domestic animals. A slight puncture is made in the dog's ear and two drops of a South American vegetable poison is injected. In three or four minutes the vital functions are suspended; the frame becomes rigid; the heart ceases to beat; the tail no longer wags; the dog is dead—so dead that decomposition would set in if the body were not frozen into hardness of stone and brittleness of glass. The dog is laid away on a shelf in the refrigerator, and remains there for weeks and months, until it is the pleasure of Signor Rotura to resuscitate him. Then the subject is immersed in a tub of warm water for ten minutes, and brought back to blood heat. A few drops of the antidote to the poison are injected with a silver syringe. In five minutes intelligence returns to the eye, rigidity leaves the limbs, the tail is gently wagged and the dog barks and trots off as though nothing has happened.—Virginia Enterprise.

New Route Over the Sierras.—Messrs. Potts and Hall, of Minaret, start in a few days to look out a new route from this place to Merced on the Southern Pacific Railroad. Mr. P. has been over a portion of the road and found it practicable for a good wagon route. He thinks there will be thirty or thirty-five miles to build to connect with the Yosemite stage road. Should the route be deemed passable, Mr. Hall will immediately commence a survey. He has the assurance of sufficient means to build a good wagon road by the citizens of Merced. Should it be built it will pass through a country rich in the wildest, grandest and most picturesque scenery in the State, passing within a short distance of the famous Minarets and the largest living glacier in North America, and reducing the distance to San Francisco about fifty miles.—Mammoth City Herald.

The boy stood on the barn yard fence, whence all but him had fled; the flame that lit his father's barn shone just above the shed. One bunch of crackers in his hand, two others in his hat, with piteous accents loud he cried: "I didn't think of that!" A bunch of crackers to the tail of one small dog he'd tied; the dog in anguish sought the barn and 'mid its ruins died. The sparks flew wide and red and hot; they fired the crackers in his hand and eke those in his hat. Then came a burst of rattling sound—the boy! where was he gone! Ask of the winds that around strewed bits of meat and bone, and scraps of clothes and balls and tops and hooks and yarn, the relics of the dreadful boy that burned his father's barn.—Springfield Union.

There is a mass of very loose writing in the Eastern press on the "coming mining craze." "There is going to be a great excitement and the mania will ruin thousands of investors," is the burden of the editorials. Well, after the "mania" has slain its thousands, gold and silver mining will go on and increase, making the people who trust in the mines rich. If the press so loud and liberal in predictions of a sort of mining pestilence will take the trouble to show their readers the difference between stock gambling and mining they will materially reduce the list of ruined.—N. Y. Bullion.

Imitation meerschaum pipes are now manufactured from potatoes in France. A peeled potato is placed in sulphuric acid and water, in the proportion of eight parts of the former to one hundred of the latter. It remains in this liquid thirty-six hours, to blacken, is dried with blotting paper and submitted to a certain pressure, when it become a material that can be readily carved. The counterfeit is said to be excellent. An imitation ivory, sufficiently hard for billiard balls, can be made by still greater pressure. A resemblance of coral is obtained by treating carrots in the same manner.

The water is now rushing through the tunnel and over the falls on Tunnel avenue. If averaged at five gallons per second, 300 a minute, 18,000 an hour, 432,000 a day, would make an outpouring for the past thirty days (since its advent) of 12,960,000 gallons; and the entire flow from the tunnel, diverted in various ways, at an average of 40,000 gallons per hour, would make altogether 28,800,000 gallons of water drained from the Comstock mines since the 30th of June. And still it comes—red hot.—Sutro Independent.

The Boston Herald says that in a recent letter to an old friend, Gen. Grant said it is his intention to go directly from San Francisco to Galena, Ill., where he still has a house, and that he shall not take part in any demonstration calculated to make a part of the "boom." His plan is quietly to await the course of events, and there is little doubt that if a loud call be made to summon him from his retirement he will accept it.

The somnambulist, who walked out the window of a two-story house in Reno, a few days since, and was seriously injured by the fall, is reported as improving, and will undoubtedly recover.

THAT ELECTION LAW.

Last week we made some reference to the provisions of that absurd Swift election law, particularly with reference to the matter of registration. Upon looking at it more closely we find that it is essential to the exercise of the right of franchise that the voter's name should appear on the printed Great Register. Here is the section in full of the Act in "relation to elections, approved March 30, 1878," touching the point in question, the essential part of which we italicize;

SEC. 3. Section twelve hundred and twenty-seven of said Code is amended so as to read as follows: Section twelve hundred and twenty-seven. If the name be found on the Register in use at the precinct where the vote is offered, and the vote is not rejected upon a challenge taken, the Inspector or Judge acting as such, must, in the presence of the Board of Election, place the ballot, without opening or examining the same in the ballot-box; and no person shall be allowed to vote whose name is not on the Register in use at the precinct.

So, if any unregistered person wishes to vote at this next election it will be necessary for him to register at once, that his name may thereby appear upon a printed supplement, No. 2 of the Great Register, which, for the accommodation of such dilatory citizen, will probably be ordered printed so as to include all registration up to and within say a week of the day of election. Strictly speaking, the time for registration closed last Monday; and the copy of such names as do not appear on the printed Register used at the May election, is now in the printer's hands, and will appear as a supplement thereto. But, as before intimated, a second supplement may be issued; so let all unregistered persons wishing to vote next month come on and get registered.

THE NOMINEES.

From an extended report of the proceedings, giving by the Mammoth City Herald of the 30th ultimo, we learn that the joint Democratic Convention placed regularly in the field Capt. I. G. Messic for the Assembly. He is as thoroughly well acquainted with the mines of Inyo and Mono as any man who could have been put up, and a most acceptable nominee to the Democrats.

For the same position, the Republicans have in the field S. D. Prescott, of Indian District, a well informed, popular and thorough-going man. It has been stated that he would resign the candidacy and Joe Wasson put in his place, but such does not appear to be the case so far.

The Mammoth City Convention also nominated Jas, E. Parker, of this paper, for State Senator for the Fourth District. The regular convention authorized to place a Senatorial candidate in the field had met at Visalia some days previously and nominated S. C. Poage, of Fresno; hence it is hardly necessary to state that Mr. Parker declines the honor, with thanks.

OF the three candidates aspiring to represent this (the Fourth) District in Congress, two—Col. Ayres (Workingman) and Pacheco (Republican) are quite welll known by reputation at least to about all the voters of the district; the Third, Wallace Leach, Democrat, of San Diego, is, on the contrary, quite a new man to the great majority. We are unable to introduce him to our readers any further than to say that he appears to be quite a talented man and a good speaker, though quite young in years, being less than thirty years of age. He recently delivered a speech in Bodie, and is credited with having made an excellent impression.

COPYING an article from this paper, the Bodie Standard adds:

We acknowledge the good wishes, and trust that the next power press destined for the mountains will find its way into the office of THE INDEPENDENT, which, for ten years, has sustained the dignity of a well-conducted city paper—in the meantime never missing a single issue.

Thanks. And now we will say that, dull as things in this county now are, we truly believe, the time is not very far distant when THE INDEPENDENT will not only need, but will have a power press that it may keep pace with the country.

IOWA has taken a novel step in relation to her railroads, and one that might profitably be imitated by other States. She has divided the railroads of the State into three classes, and allows those earning $4,000 a mile of road to charge three cents a mile for passenger fares, those earning between $3,000 and $4,000 three and a half cents, and those earning less than $3,000 a mile, four cents. The classification has just gone into effect, and is to continue a year as an experiment.

OUR DARWIN LETTER.

DARWIN, Aug. 6, 1879.

MESSRS. EDITORS: One of the astonishing peculiarities of an Inyo climate in midsummer, when the "orb of fire" stands so near perpendicular over one that a bald-headed man's brain-house will make no shadow when the thermometer records 125 to 130 degrees, is the fact of man's being able to work out under the aforementioned orb with apparently little suffering from the extreme heat. In Eastern cities, when the thermometer goes up to 95 or 100 degrees, working in the sun amounts to about an invitation to a desire to settle up life's score and try the life "behind the cloud," as sunstroke is the rule and not the exception. This difference in favor of our State can principally be attributed to the dryness of climate, which, in a measure, neutralizes the effects of the heat here, while in the East humidity of atmosphere is the cause of its telling effects on man. One would naturally think that in connection with a dryness of atmosphere, there would be a corresponding dryness of the inner man; but such is not the fact, unless one commences early in the day to imbibe. Ample evidence can be obtained to prove that the man who starts on foot say for a tramp in Panamint valley in the morning, will reach a further distance in a given time without water than he who commences drinking upon the start. Water, of course, would be indispensible for a long journey, but for a trial I think the man who drank little or none would win, and go the fartherest. Nevertheless, in the second place, this "dryness of climate" does not prove that Inyoites pass, ever pass a chance to take a little of the "exhilerater," even if they fell on the way. In fact, to live in Inyo county and not drink, is with many an evidence of lack of culture and a species of refinement; consequently we "all do it," and when you run against a peaked-nosed, pale-faced, lank and weak-legged form within her borders, but him down as one who came here with acquisitiveness large, a penurious nature, and one who never drinks good whisky unless somebody else foots the bill or puts up the coin. Such are the frames who carry around in their clothes consumption and other dry maladies, when the savior of their dying forms lays around loose on every corner, provided they accept him in time. Whisky, whisky! thou gloomy remedy against too far gone cases of consumption, etc., may thou still hold thy Satanic face and influence up to the gaze of mankind, and keep it up until the great God of Nature can at one fell swoop eternally knock the bottom from all the manufacturing stills in our land, and banish thee forever. But so long as God's creatures demand the beverage and do not yet experience a "change of heart." and believe that

A little cocktail now and then
Is quite essential for the men
To get an appetite for bread,
Not yet ten minutes out of bed.
With that belief the're bound to take it—
A new belief alone can shake it.

And, so long as the cocktail fancy prevails and is looked upon as a means of salvation, the dealers have the right to sell the glorious beverage tinctured with the silent poison from the "worm of the still," which, however, if judiciously used, would exercise no serious or damaging influence.

Well, well, Messrs. Editors, I started in to tell you about a recent trip made to the Modock mine in company with our present District Attorney, R. B. Snelling, C. Mason, from Snow's Cañon, R. H. Robertson, of San Francisco, now opening up a mine near here called Eureka No. 2, with promising results, and the writer. We were successfully landed at Lookout, having been carried over the beautiful Argus range in one of Frank Fitzgerald's stage rigs, who makes regular trips from Darwin on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Sundays. The only stopping place on the road for water and refreshments is at Madame Brunels, a jolly, good-natured and interesting little French woman, who meets all that pass with a smile and sends them on their journey rejoicing.

On reaching Lookout we found a goodly number of Lookouters looking out for us. Upon the following day, by permission of Supt. Tibbetts, we were escorted through the lower levels of the mine by his able foreman, Mr. Childs. The present management is, without doubt, the most efficient and best this company has ever had. It seems to have been the study of Messrs. T. and C. from the day they took charge to have continually in view in all operations economy, and to utilize, as far as possible, nature's forces, and so successful have their labors been that the whole bottom level of the mine is now being well ventilated without a cent of expense per day, with good air flowing in and through all its drifts and raises. The general impression one gets from an extended ramble around in the mine is favorable, with a little ore in nearly all the drifts, and in some the prospects are looking well. There is method and system in all work now being done, and the best of human judgment displayed in all operations. System, economy, together with constant watchfulness both inside and out of the mine, is the watchwords of the Modock managers, and when Supt. T. announces in his official letter that he has "struck it," it will prove to be solid truth, and I believe if the company will stand by him but a short time longer, and will continue their present grip, their labors will be crowned with substantial reward. The work yet to be done and still in the prospective, will require still several months to perform, so we may look for continued activity at Modock for a long time.

In the evening the citizens gathered at Messrs. Birchett & Parker's store en masse, in front of which was built a rousing bonfire, which lit the part of heavens covering Lookout as never before.

The meeting was called to order by a neat little speech from Constable Fitzgerald, who, after his brief but pertinent remarks, introduced Mr. R. B. Snelling, who, in his plain way, informed them that he was not there to make a political speech, but simply to give them a friendly talk, and to tell them that he would be a candidate for the office of Superior Judge of this county, running as an Independent candidate. This end of the county has not been "fired up" much by stirring speeches from the candidates for office; consequently the voters judgments have not yet been warped and twisted, and they will doubtless all vote as their conscience dictates.

After Mr. Snelling's remarks were concluded a lively little discussion took place between Messrs. Barron, Fitzgerald and Kehoe, as to the merits of the three Gubernatorial candidates. Mr. B., as an advocate for Geo. C. Perkins, claimed it showed good business judgment upon Perkins' part to raise the price for a cabin passage from Los Angeles to San Francisco from $12 to $15 upon the completion of the railroad, as the Railroad Company were taking away his trade and he did not sympathize with any rings, etc.

Fitzgerald, as an advocate of the election of Dr. Glenn, claimed he had a perfect right to own all of God's acres he could, if he paid a fair market price for them, and he would go further and take the advanced ground that the Doctor had as much right to ride two parties as a man in the circus to ride two horses; that the people had invited him to take this method of riding into the Governor's chair on Sept. 3, and that the Doctor would get away with the balance of the racket by a large majority.

Kehoe said that the fact of W. F. White being a poor man was all the proof he wanted that he belonged to no swindling schemes, and was evidence of his having sympathy with the poor by not having risen much above them in a financial point of view, and that the man who said that his whisky and beer were not as good as Jack Gunn's or Jo. Birchett's, had drank too much of theirs to appreciate his.

The arguments advanced by each were both forcible and interesting, and the meeting was closed by a few remarks from Snyder McGraw, from Slate Range, who dwelt at some length upon what he believed would be the grand result, viz: that one of the three men would be Governor, if he did not die.

We should be most happy to see some of the faces this way of official aspirants before election day. Their presence and actions will go far towards crowning them with victory.

Yours, truly,
C. F. O'BRION.

WITHDRAWN.—Capt. S. D. Prescott has withdrawn as a candidate for member of Assembly. The name of Joseph Wasson has been suggested as his successor. The matter is in the hands of the County Committee, and a better selection could not be made.—Bodie Standard.

We think so, too—the County Committee is a splendid selection.

THE moment the yellow fever appeared in Memphis, the merchants of that city shipped all their breadstuffs on hand to other points, and now the Government is feeding the poor people. Neither last year or this has the State of Tennessee made any effort to assist its own people.

THERE are said to be 30,000 telephones now in service in this country, and only 500 in England.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

TO THE VOTERS OF INYO COUNTY.

AT THE TIME I CONSENTED TO BECOME a candidate for the office of Superior Judge of your county, I was the only person therein eligible to the position. It was desired that the office should be filled by one who was identified with our people, rather than submit to an appointment by the Executive of some gentleman foreign to our county; hence my candidature. This contingency is now happily passed, and there are two other gentlemen who are eligible to the position, and are seeking your suffrage, namely: Judge John A. Hannah, your present County Judge, and Judge R. B. Snelling, your present District Attorney. The exigency, therefore, no longer exists which requires me to continue as a candidate. In retiring from the field I desire to express my thanks to the Republican party for the honor which they conferred in making me their nominee, and my gratitude to our citizens in general for their universal expressionsof favor in my behalf.

A. R. CONKLIN.

TO THE VOTERS OF INYO COUNTY.

FELLOW CITIZENS—I AM AN INDEPENDENT candidate for Superior Judge of Inyo County, and adopt this method of announcing my candidacy, because of the geographical difficulties which prevent my making a personal canvass in every portion of the county in the brief time left before the day of election. It would have been much more congenial to my wishes to visit every place in the county, and meet my fellow-citizens in person; but this pleasure, in some instances, I must forego, for the reasons stated.

Having neglected to qualify myself for the Judgeship by admission as an attorney of the Supreme Court of the State, at the time of the Democratic County Convention, I was not then enabled to present my name for the place. But I have since qualified in that essential, and am now in the field.

I am known personally or officially to most of you. I have been a practicing attorney for thirty three years, in the old States, in California, in Oregon and in Idaho. For the last five years I have filled the office which I still hold, of District Attorney of Inyo, and am proud to be able to challenge criticism of my official conduct and professional capability. I have never framed an indictment which did not withstand the test of the Court and the law; have never drawn a legal writ that was found faulty.

I have no connection or affiliation with any clique or ring; have no special friends to unduly reward; no enemies to unjustly punish. If elected, I will bring to the discharge of the duties an honest purpose and an impartial mind, without bias or prejudice for or against any; and every case shall be determined in just accordance with the law and the right. Superior Courts under the New Constitution should be exceedingly careful in the determination of cases brought before them; to so decide as to secure suitors against the contingency of reversal of judgment by the Supreme Court, and to this end I should direct my utmost ability in the knowledge of the law upon the principles of justice. My long and large experience as a practicing lawyer, together with the consciousness of possessing the Jeffersonian qualifications of honesty and capability, are the strong points on which I depend for your favorable consideration of my candidacy.

In conclusion, Fellow Citizens, I beg to assure you of my earnest appreciation of the kindness and favor I have received at your hands during the six years I have been a resident of Inyo county, and I take this opportunity to express my heartfelt gratitude therefor. As I have endeavored in the past to serve you zealously and with unremitting devotion to your interests, and rights, and welfare, so I can solemnly pledge myself to do in the future, should you respond to my plea, in this, by electing me to the position to which I aspire, at the coming election in September. As your District Attorney, I have served you faithfully and well. If you should further honor me by an election as Superior Judge, I shall continue to serve you with all the fidelity of my nature and all the ability at my command, and the greater and deeper will be my gratefulness for such a token of your esteem and approbation.

With profound sentiments of high regard for you all, I have the honor to be your fellow citizen and friend,
R. B. SNELLING.

SAD.—Through a private letter from San Francisco to Postmaster Hardy we learn that Mr. John Lentell, one of the original miners and merchants of this section, now a resident of Oakland, has just undergone a second amputation of a leg, this time above the knee. These operations were made necessary on account of an incurably diseased condition of the bone, with which he has suffered greatly for several years past. Though he is getting along nicely, as regards the immediate effects of the operation, the chances for his restoration to anything like perfect health is considered quite problematical. He has many old friends here to extend him their warm sympathy in his misfortunes.

SEEING THE COUNTRY.—We received a call this week from two young gentlemen who are doing the country a la Mark Twain. One of them, Frank M. Ward, San José, a banker's clerk, is roughing it for health's sake, while the other, Frank Dibert, of Johnstown, Pennsylvania, is a traveling correspondent of one of the Eastern papers. They have been on the go mostly on horseback continuously for the last five months. They go hence to Bodie; thence home.

A NEW COMPANY.—Through the exertion of John Ely and C. J. Barber, a new company has been formed to purchase the San Lucas and other noted mining properties of Cerro Gordo. Col. Raymond, Mr. Ely's old partner, and Mr. Jewell, another noted mining man and capitalist, passed through on Thursday last and are now on the hill.

FILLED OUT.—The complete election tickets for this county are given this week. In meeting on Monday last the Democratic County Central Committee indorsed the nominations of S. C. Poage and I. G. Messic for the Legislature, and placed upon the ticket the name of Hon. John A. Hannah for Superior Judge.

BULLION.—Supt. Holt, of the Rex Montis, on the 7th instant, shipped two bars of bullion weighing 120 pounds, and valued at $2,000.

MODOCK OFFICIAL LETTER.—The official letter of the week is as follows:

August 4, 1879.

J. W. Pew, Esq., Secretary Modock Con. M. Co.:—DEAR SIR: The following progress has been made on the 1000-foot level for the week ending today:

South drift, 300-foot point, run 11 feet; drift from winze, 11 feet; 800 drift, 19 feet; crosscut from connection drift, 1000-foot point, 30 feet. Upraise from drift, 1100-foot point, raised 16 feet. Total length of south drift, 300-foot point, 130 feet. Drift from winze, 54 feet; drift, 800-foot point, 94 feet; crosscut from connection drift, 75 feet. Total height of upraise, 1100-foot point, 35 feet. We are still carrying a fine face of ore in drift from winze, 360-foot point; have one hundred tons of ore in sight at present, showing a good prospect for a continuance. The drift at 800-foot point is looking very favorable for ore at this time. No change of importance at other points to note.

Yours, respectfully,
A. C. TIBBETTS, Supt.

FISH SPRINGS.—Westerville's arrastra, under the management of Matt Stewart, resumed operations during the week, but after grinding about one and a half tons of ore, the shaft of the water wheel broke and shut down operations for repairs. A $150 gold bar wasshipped yesterday as the result of the ore reduced.

REGISTRATION.—A supplemental Grea Register will be closed up at the Clerk's office on the 20th instant, so that all registrations must be completed before that date. Let unregistered votes bear this fact in mind.

ANNOUNCEMENT.—Read the card of Judge R. B. Snelling, Independent candidate for Superior Judge, published in this issue.

SHORT.—Our usual local melange is cut short and brief this week, on account of an over-crowd of reports and advertisements.

SOLD.—The Uncle Abe mine, at Alabama District, has been sold to San Francisco parties.

Mammoth Items.

From the Mammoth City Herald of the 2d instant we glean the following items of interest:

We were shown some rock from Prescott District yesterday which assays over $8,000 a ton. That portion of the country is attracting the attention of capital, and promises ere long to take a leading place in the ranks of bullion producing camps. Rumor has it that a mill is to be put up there this Fall. Wood is plentiful and water power easily obtained.

News from Laurel District is of the most encouraging character. Supt. John Gorman informs us that rich ore has been struck in the Ida May mine. Every mine now being worked shows a marked improvement each day.

Lone Mountain District is situate about 110 miles southeast of Lake. Mr. Buchanan, who has just returned from there, reports having made five locations, the average assays of which were $118 64, one going as high as $288 94. A furnace will be erected in the course of two months.

Any person not visiting the Mammoth mill for a few days would be surprised at the rapidity with which improvements are being made. The older portion of the mill is being braced in such a manner that no danger need be apprehended of a similar accident to that of last Winter, when the weight of the snow broke down a portion of the pan room. Braces of the most substantial character are in place in every portion of the building. On the new addition work under the supervision of Mr. White, the contractor, is being vigorously prosecuted. Masons busy at the stone foundation for the immense engine, carpenters on the huge timbers and graders digging out a foundation for the addition of the ore room. The mill, when finished, will be one of the most complete 40-stamp mills in this or any other State. John Collier, the Superintendent, informs us that the mill will be in running order by the 15th of next month.

THE Virginia Chronicle advises everybody who can afford it to flee to the mountains for recreation, and says there are within a day's journey from Virginia many beautiful places, like Lakes Bigler, Donner, Independence, Webber and other delightful resorts in the mountains easy to reach and not very expensive to stay at. This is good advice, but we beg leave to suggest Lake District as far superior in point of scenery and other enjoyable attributes to either of the places named. We have here all the beauties they possess, besides elements of grandeur visitors there never dreamed of seeing. We have a chain of limpid lakes, with a roaring cataract 175 feet high; a bald mountain peak nearly 13,000 feet above the sea; perpetual snow banks at our very doors in which to cool our champagne the hottest day in the year; wild flowers on the banks of our lakes that would fill the most learned botanist with delight; lofty peaks and crags, from which views may be had that rival the Yosemite, and finally, enabling business to be combined with pleasure, the greatest gold and silver ledges on the earth's surface. There isn't any taffy about this. It's the true busines from the base up.—Mammoth Herald.

THE cause of the present depression in stocks and the consequent financial difficulties is not hard to determine. The north end developments on the Comstock—those of Union Con. especially—have seriously disappointed the public. Then the postponing of the draining of the flooded mines and the liberal selling of shares by those holding the control of the south end group. These causes combined affected the whole Comstock lode, and forced the depression in value of the shares in its mines many millions of dollars.—S. F. Alta.

NOTES OF DESERT TRAVELING.

Death Valley—Resting Springs, Etc.

Deputy Sheriff Wm. F. Welch returned a few days ago from his third trip in the past two months across Death Valley to the mining district of Resting Springs. Though most everybody has heard of Resting Springs and of the dreaded Death Valley, there are but few indeed even of our own citizens who can claim any knowledge in detail of either, though both are part and parcel of the modest limits of our own county territory. We don't say it to raise envious feelings in the bosoms o people whose powers are contracted in any of those seven-by-nine Eastern States, but here we have a county big enough to give its officers full 300 miles of square riding between the county seat and an out-lying camp they have to visit occasionally on official business—yet neither point is much if any nearer than 50 miles of the county extremes on a projected line from the two. But, without further remark, we here give a synopsis of Mr. Welch's notes of travel on these trips:

a hundred miles from my starting point, on the evening of June 15, 1879. The boys—Tom Hubbard, Gomer Jones and others—gave me a hearty welcome and everything needed for the trip in view, for which this place is the real point of departure. Tried to get Captain Tom of the Panamint Piutes to go with me as guide; the Captain was in the midst of a bloody war with the Armagosas, living on the route, and was afraid he would have to kill some of them if he went out there, so he couldn't think of it. Thought I would have to give it up and return, as it would be about the same as suicide to go without a reliable guide. But a young man named Arthur Smith, who had been over the route once, volunteered to see me through, so, with him for guide and with all necessary supplies, started ahead on the following morning. Five miles of steady climbing brought us to the summit of the Panamint range, whence, thousands of feet below us, stretched like the illimitable sea—no bounds apparent to vision to its vast expanse, save directly eastward, the direction of our route, the murky outlines of the distant mountains forming the opposite shore of this dread ocean of burning sands. It needed none of its Death Valley legends to make this view, my first, impressively, not to say oppressively, grand. Descending for several miles we arrive at what was once known as "Johnson's Ranch"—its former proprietor, by the way, being the same Johnson so foully murdered by the Kern county Yoakums. Resting an hour or so, we continued to descend to a "depth," shown by Lieut. Wheeler's observations to be finally reaching a point known as Bennet's Holes, so named in memory of one of the party of '49ers who crossed this way. There are several of these "holes," all affording good water, and surrounded with excellent bunch grass. This place is about 25 miles from Panamint.

FIND THE OLD MAN OF THE DESERT.

We had been encamped in this silent spot but a short time when we were greatly astonished to see a man making for our camp. Stopping, in due course, a little ways off, he soon had the packs off his animals, by which time I had addressed him in the usual style of the desert, ending with: "What on earth are you doing in this place?" His reply, in brief, was that he was one of the few survivors of that ill-fated band of emigrants who tried to find a road to California across this waste in 1849, and in which so many men, and women, and children and animals had perished; that he had spent a good portion of almost every year from 1849 down to this 1879 in wandering, mostly alone, over these wastes, vainly but ever in confident hope of finding that legendary

GUNSIGHT OR BREYFOGLE SILVER MINE.

His name, he told me, was Stockton, and a very intelligent gentleman I found him to be. We spent the greater part of the night listening to his deeply interesting reminiscences of his own and others' terrible experiences in this famed region. He was confident he would find the particular object of his long search, though he was now on his way to Los Angeles to ascertain the assay value of numerous fine ore specimens picked up in his recent wanderings—but none of these specimens fulfilled the solid silver requirements of the mythical, simon-pure "Gunsight." Early the following morning we took opposite directions, our course being straight across the valley to that place of dreadful memories where so many of those emigrants died together, and the remains of whose wagons and bones of animals yet lie scattered about through thirty years' decay. The day was cool and pleasant, and the distance but 30 miles, so we made it without notable inconvenience. We found a passably good camping place. But there was a constant underground rumbling, giving us all the time the uncomfortable sensation that the earth was about to crumble to the depths below. It didn't cave for all that. The next day's travel of 40 miles, through a waterless stretch of heavy sand, brought us to a wide but shallow stream which sinks and rises again every few miles. Two more days of hard and intensely hot traveling brought us to our destination,

BIRD SPRINGS.

In Summer these springs become entirely dry, so this is no route for anybody to try during that season. The next evening found us at the

RESTING SPRINGS,

where I found a number of old acquaintances, among whom was Geo. Turner, agent yet of the C. G. F. Co., and to whom, likewise Supt. J. B. Osborne of the Gunsight, I am indebted for everything to make our stay pleasant in all respects. Resting Springs owes its name to those emigrants who remained here several days to recruit their sadly worn stock before trying the unknown horrors they soon after met. It is quite a nice little place of some thirty white population and double that number of aborigines. There is one store, blacksmith shop, boarding house, a gin mill or two, a few dwelling houses and miners' shanties, besides the just completed and superior dwelling occupied by Supt. Osborne and lady, and a Davis Pulverizer, which last, by the way, has proved a most expensive bilk. There is a small stream of clear water running in front of this dwelling, and two reservoirs in the place, one of which is used for general bathing purposes, and well used, as may be supposed, since the mercury has a habit of getting up to 112° in the shade and without straining itself in the least; once, for a fact, it never stopped climbing till it got to 122°, and that in as good a shade as the place afforded! The Gunsight is a

WELL DEFINED LEDGE

of about three feet wide, and for which Foreman Sam. Cunningham firmly believes there is to be a magnificent outcome at no distant day. Its ore is principally of a purely milling character—a fact, unfortunately, not fully realized till the company had expended a large sum in trying a fraud of a Davis Pulverizer and a 20-ton furnace located six miles distant at once quite a place, now totally abandoned. It will be seen that mistakes like these are costly when I say that it costs five cents a pound freight from San Bernardino here. The company now have a 10 stamp mill on the way here, and which is now due. Circumstances demanded an immediate and so early next morning we were on the road, well supplied with every needful thing our kind friends could command. About noon we reached Nelson's Ranch, and there found a fellow who, unfortunately, knew a great many things—among the rest, of a "cut-off." We took Mr. Sabe Mucho's advice and his cut-off, and thereby we came mighty near being cut off, mules and all, from the enjoyment of all further earthly tribulations; that is, we came near perishing for lack of water, in which case the mules would also have been lost, and on this account, our fate must have caused some regret, more or less. We got off the course; by sundown, when we should have found a camp and plenty of water, our canteens were as dry as a powder-horn—and so were we, likewise the mules. But there was no help for it. All that night we plugged along till break 'o day, and we did the same through sand and a roasting sun till almost night again, and not a drop of water all that time. Smith had been indulging somewhat while at the Springs in fire-water, and had with him a bottle of Shaffer's Best; these facts, together with his nervous temperament, made his thirst most intense; and it was still further aggravated by his almost incessant talking and cursings of men who invent cut-offs, and of people who were fools enough to take cut-offs. I thought at times that before this thing ended there would surely be one Smith less in the world. The burden of his talk was of the cool waters of Panamint—not a pleasant topic to me, just then. We reached Furnace Creek at last, my guide getting in nearly a mile ahead. "Oh," said he, as I came up, "you can talk about your whisky, but there is nothing, NOTHING like water!" The remainder of the journey home was over the ground already described, and was made without events worthy of mention.

MY SECOND TRIP

to Resting Springs was via a different route, and with a two-horse buggy, but solitary and alone. My first camp, and a very poor one at that, was at Post Office Springs, 30 miles from Darwin. Here the the "side-winder" rattlesnake abounds, and will make himself quite at home in your blankets at any moment during the exceedingly warm nights always experienced on the desert at this season. I am told their bite is certain death, though I never tried it further than on this night, while dozing, I got a strong nip on the finger from a large ant, which, for a time, made me see visions of side winders, full grown. The next evening, July 18, I got, after a 40-mile drive up [down?] Panamint Valley, to Lone Willow; good water, no feed; no green thing but one large willow tree, and one of the very last places where water might be expected. The next day and part of the night gave me 60 miles of dry and fiery driving to Leach's Point. I started with 10-gallons of water, nevertheless, my team nearly famished. It was five miles thence to Nadeau's road, on which I traveled till I again got to Resting Springs. After reaching this road it was 15 miles to a pool of brackish water known as Owl Holes. Thence the road descends into Death Valley, where no thermomter can measure the July heat unless, to judge by my own sensations, it will get up something like 10000000°. The next point is so named because the waters are too villainous for even a pet side-winder; animals compelled to drink it become sick even unto death if they take a full dose. It is said to be nearly as much to be dreaded as the hack-drivers of the great watering place after which this place takes its name. Here, in the middle of Death Valley I spent some time in vainly trying to catch a

WHAT IS IT?—

a little, snow-white, chipmuck sort of an animal—a little larger than a chipmuck, and with a tail much like a rat's, only that it is more slender, yet quite 12 inches long, and ends with a comparatively large tuft of hair. About 10 miles prior to reaching the Armagosa river—here a miserable little "river" of brackish water about 14 inches wide—the San Bernardino road comes in. A day's travel thence, continuing on up the valley, brought me again to Resting Springs. Found there quite a change: that "Pulverizer" torn down; a 10-stamp mill in course of construction; piles of rock salt, which is quarried out of a mountain of it some 40 miles distant. This salt, piled up, fools many an amateur "rock sharp." "How much will that white looking quartz go per ton?" they often ask, and are astonto find out. Wood used here all comes from Timber Mountain, Lincoln county, Nevada, 50 miles distant. I returned home over the same route, and never met a soul, going or coming. I soon had to go the same trip again, being the third time. Found the mill about ready to start, and everybody hopeful. Returning, and when at a point this side of Willow Springs where poor lay in his lonely grave, I discovered that the cayotes had so nearly succeeded in unearthing his remains that his shirt was visible. With a broken shovel left on the ground by the boys who buried him, I tried to fill his grave, but was only partially successful so overpowering was the stench in that great heat and my exhausted condition. Moving on, I was contantly beset with what I still knew to be a delusion: that I was driving no less than six mules when I had but two I can, after this, well understand why so many men leave their bones on those deserts. Let no stranger ever attempt to traverse any portion of them, in Summer season especially.

JIM COLEMAN

LETTER FROM LAKE DISTRICT.

MAMMOTH CITY, July 28.

MESSRS. EDITORS—This morning your correspondent, in company with Messrs. Tobin, of San Francisco, J. Caldwell, Morris Burke, J. A. Parker and several others, proceeded to the Mammoth ore house, and by the kindness of the genial Jim Cross were permitted to take in the famous Mammoth mine. We therefore "caged" ourselves as snugly as so many clothes-pins, and were elevated a distance of about 800 feet to the second level, where we were nicely dumped without soil (except to the soles of our boots), and where we met Jeff. McLellan, who extends a brawny hand to everybody, and who by the assistance of Jim Cross, piloted us through the main tunnel, crosscuts, lateral drift and chambers.

THE MINE.

This Mammoth mine is truly named because of its huge dimensions, for never before has it been the pleasure of your correspondent to see such a massive body of ore within well-defined walls as is developed in the Mammoth. The immensity of this mine is almost beyond comprehension, although a man may be in the mine, and yet in passing through the numerous crosscuts and drifts, he will loose the way without a guide. Let it suffice to say that $125,000 have been expended upon this mine alone, which has unearthed the largest body of ore on record, all of which will pay well for reduction, and part of which is very rich.

OTHER MINES.

There are numerous other well defined mines in this district, which if they were in Bodie would be quoted at $10 or $15. About fourteen of which are incorporated; among the most prominent are the Armstrong, Jordan, Head-Light, Monte Cristo, Silver Popelas, Lake View, Red Cloud, Alpha, True Blue, Don Quixote, East Mammoth, Tiger, Monumental, Grand Cash; all of which are working small forces of men, and who are developing rich deposits nearly ever day. Morris Burke, our Mining Recorder, is kept quite busy recording new locations, ore locations, tunnel sites and notices of assessment performed. Morris is now making up for some lost time during the dull months of last Winter.

NEWSINESS.

Mammoth City now supports two first-class country newspapers, viz: the Mammoth City Herald, formerly the Borax Miner, and lately the Benton Messenger, owned by W. W. Barnes, but now owned by R. D. Bogart and the former proprietor. Brother Bogart arrived a few days ago and stepped into the editorial sanctum, which he says he found in good shape, and commenced driving the editorial quill, which told in the first issue that Bogart had arrived, and with Brother Barnes at the mechanical helm and Brother Bogart behind the quill, we feel quite sanguine that the Herald will be a success. The Lake Mining Review, formerly owned by Hoole & Elliott, is now "propritored" by Mr. Cluskey, of San Francisco, whom we are told is an old timer at the press, and whom we think will not be in the rear, providing ability and capital will do the business. Mr. Cluskey's material and press arrived by Bauting's last fast freight team, and his first issue will soon be unfurled in every parlor and hall in the city. Who said Mammoth City was dull?

BUSINESS AND PLACES.

Business is moderately good and getting better. There are several incorporated mines, besides multifarious prospects. The business houses are enumerated as follows: Six general merchandise establishments, flour and hardware stores, two clothing houses, three variety and two drug stores, two breweries and two livery stables, s x hotels, five restaurants, twenty-two saloons, six lodging-houses; besides the private dwellings and business houses and residences at Pine City, and Mineral Park not counted. We have a corps of three physicians, three policemen, a jail, and a school in full blast, superintended by Mrs. Powell.

POLITICAL.

State politics runs low, and in comparison with county politics they are below par. The number of candidates more than triples the number of offices sought for. We have in Mono county a Republican ticket, a Democratic ticket and a full-fledged Workingman's ticket, besides the congenial P. B. Taylor, an independent candidate for Sheriff, he being the present incumbent, and whose claims are as good as four aces. Republicans think the State has "an easy-going thing," because the Democrats say so, and have already "give it up."

INS AND OUTS.

The stage line owned by Hank Blanchard, running between here and Bodie, is doing a pretty good business, making three trips per week, connecting at Bodie with stages to Carson and Sonora. Mr. French, of Fresno Flats, is running a tri-weekly saddle train, bringing Mammoth City within 28 hours' ride of San Francisco. The principal part of the freight comes in by the Cerro Gordo Freight Company's teams, while Elder's Fast Freight gets a reasonable portion. Some parties are doing a small business in packing goods from Fresno Flats, Madera, on the S. P. R. R., being the nearest railroad point to Mammoth City, and is destined at no distant day to become the entire shipping point for this place and other points in Nevada east of this place. For fear of occupying too much valuable space, I will say just keep cool and say nothing until the Mammoth mill makes one run on "pay grit," and the name of Mammoth City will be familiar in the homes of 10,000.

PATIENT.—Near Vincennes a man got on the train with his wife and two children. One of the little ones, a boy three years or over, was fretful and weepful, and his father did his best, in the tenderest, patientest manner, to quiet the child and put him to sleep.

How the little fellow did cry, and kick and throw things around! He had been crying that way, the man said, all day long, and he couldn't imagine what ailed him. He "allowed he had the earache."

The passengers were full of sympathy, for which, as they strove to express it in various ways, the father appeared unspeakably grateful, and the the boy indignantly repelled.

One man gave him an orange; the boy hurled it spitefully into the face of his sister, sleeping in the mother's lap, and the terrified young lady added her wail of fright and pain to the general chorus. A lady gave him her smelling bottle; he dashed it on the ground more fiercely than ever.

We handed the poor little innocent our pocket-knife; away it went out of the car window, and the urchin wailed more indignantly than ever. All the time the father never got cross nor grew impatient, but "allowed he could hush him off to sleep after a bit."

And by and by, sure enough, the pain and impatience yielded to the father's patient soothing, the little head dropped over on the father's shoulder, the broken sobs became less and less frequent, and finally died away, and the poor little fellow began to forget his troubles in sleep. The passengers settled back in their seats with a look of contentment on their faces, and all was stillness save the belching of the locomotive and the rattling of the cars over the rails.—Hawkeye.

THE scene at the Del Monte is one of life and activity. The foundation for the engine is nearing completion, and when finished will be as "solid as rock." The cap stones are all out and holes are being drilled in them for the anchor bolts; these bolts setting from 16 to 26 feet in the solid masonry; the angle bolts are imbedded 36 feet, making a foundation when done that will never move, and will last for all time. Carpenters are busily engaged in tearing down that portion of the building covering the gallows-frame, which will also be taken down to give place to a gallows-frame in proportion to the new machinery. The new frame will be 40 feet high. The blacksmith shop, which is now under the same roof as the machinery, will be moved to a shop built for the purpose, in order to give the necessary room required for the new machinery. Back of the main building an excavation is being made for a large tank which will supply all the water used. Packers are busily engaged bringing in and piling up cordwood, and have on the ground at present about 2,000 cords—enough to last eight months at least. At the drain tunnel work is being pushed vigorously. The tunnel is in about 350 feet, leaving a distance of 60 feet to run in order to tap the main shaft. The character of ground encountered in the tunnel is extremely hard, making progress necessarily slow, though it is expected the drain will be completed in about two weeks.—Esmeralda Herald.

KEARNEY made a rather neat point on the H. B. organ, at the German Club meeting, Friday night, when he drew a last year's paper from his pocket and read an article condemning the land system of the H. B. condidate, which it now extols as the greatest good of the State. A paper which has no principle, and reflects only the interest of the moment, naturally contradicts itself as it becomes its interest to adopt this or that policy. It boxes the political compass once in about four years, condemning to-day the men it praised yesterday, and vice versa. Last year the organ professed to be opposed to Chinese immigration, but this year it brings from a 55,000-acre wheat-field a man who employs them by the score, and who pretends that he cannot get along without them. Of course, while advocating the election of the great landgrabber and Chinese employer, it is silent on the question of Chinese immigration. To support Glenn and oppose Chinese immigration, would require an exhibition of effrontery which even the organ is not prepared to make. The people, it is sometimes said, have short memories, but when things are burnt into their hearts, the scar is apt to show itself in after years.—S. F. Call.

ACT OF LOVE.—Each one of a thousand acts of love costs very little by itself, and yet when viewed altogether, who can estimate their value? What is it that secures for one the name of a kind neighbor? Not the doing of half a dozen great favors in as many years, but the little every-day kindnesses, neither of which seems of so much consequence, considered in itself, but their continued repetition sheds a sunlight over the whole neighborhood. It is so, too, in the family. The child whose good offices are always ready when they are wanted—to run up stairs or down—to get chips or rock the cradle or to run on an errand and "right back"—and all with a pleasant look and a pleasant temper, has a reward along with such good deeds. If a little girl cannot take her grandfather on her lap, as he takes her on his, she can get his slippers, or put away his book, or gently comb his thin locks; and, whether she thinks of it or not, these little kindnesses that come from a loving heart, are the sunbeams that lighten up a dark and woeful world.—London Reader.

THE electric light is going West at a rate that would have delighted the heart of Horace Greeley. It is now used to light up a mine in Straitesville, Nev. The miners are delighted with it, as they can work as well as they could in daylight. Other mines are being fitted up for its introduction. This looks like running the electric light into the ground.—Detroit Press.

"TOOK WATER."—In consequence of considerable loud talk on the part of certain race-horse men, J. J. Williams, trainer of the running horse Black Harry, came from Mammoth prepared to back his favorite. He returned yesterday hugely disgusted, stating that it was all very cheap talk, for neither the Bridgeport mare nor any other animal of Mono seemed anxious to tackle our Bitter Creek Johnny. Black Harry's backers offer to put up from $1,000 to $5,000 against anything in Mono county.—Bodie Standard.

ONION PARTIES IN IOWA.—Onion parties are all the rage. Six young ladies take an onion with them into a room and one of the number takes a bite of it. Then a young gentleman is admitted, and, after kissing all of them, if he fails to tell which one of them bit the "ingun," why then the girls are all compelled to kiss him, or he is compelled to kiss all of them, and we forgot which. The play will have a big run here if the onions hold out. A chromo goes with the play.—Mount Ayr Onward.

IT may be of interest to beer drinkers to know that over 40,000 pounds of glycerine are used annually in the United States for mixing with their favorite beverage.

A CARD.

TO THE VOTERS OF INYO COUNTY: Being so situated as to be unable to make a thorough canvas of the county before the coming election, and as the term is short and will hardly warrant much expense, I take this method of letting it be generally known that I desire the office for which I am the candidate of the Republican Party, viz: that of Treasurer of this County; and learning that there would be considerable opposition to me on account of my being in the employ of one of the business houses of this place, I wish it positively understood that in case I am elected I will sever such connection, and will, by a strict and careful attention to the duties of the office, endeavor to merit the confidence which places me in a position of so great responsibility.

Joe Wasson Accepts.

[From the Bodie Standard, Aug. 12.]

Mr. Wasson, upon his return from a trip to Indian District, first learned that he had been selected as the candidate of the Republicans for the Legislature, to fill the vacancy created by the declination of Capt. Prescott. After thinking the matter over carefully, and upon consultation with our leading mining men, he has concluded to "accept the situation," which he does in the following characteristic letter. The responsibility which the representative of this great mining section will assume in the first Legislature under the New Constitution, the provisions of which must be formulated into laws, is fully understood by Mr. Wasson, as is clearly evinced in his letter of acceptance. From the first he has been a firm believer in this country, has studied the subject deeply, and has done as much as any one man to bring it to the favorable consideration which it is now receiving. His own deep convictions as to its great value has enabled him to convince others—far more to their advantage, and to ours, than his own. In this same connection, he has now in contemplation a very comprehensive work, which shall embrace the results of a careful personal inspection of every mining point of interest in the great mineral belt of four hundred miles in length, in which Mono, Esmeralda and Inyo counties are embraced, which shall be elegantly finished and embellished with the most correct maps and engravings, and be in every way superior to anything yet attempted in that line. As we remarked before, Mr. Wasson's faith in this country and knowledge of its wants are such as would make him the most acceptable representative in the Legislature who could be named. His letter of acceptance is as follows:

BODIE, Mono Co., Cal., Aug. 12, 1879.

To Chas. A. Richardson, Esq., Chairman of the Central Committee of the Republican Party of Mono County, Cal.—DEAR SIR: Your committee having accepted Capt. S. D. Prescott's withdrawal of his name from the ticket with respect to the State Assemblyship for Mono and Inyo counties, and substituted that of the undersigned, it doubless devolves upon me to take some formal notice of the fact. I think it is to be regretted that Capt. Prescott took the step in question, but of course he knows his own business best. He is an earnest, honest, hard worker in anything he undertakes, and would have most creditably represented this section of the State in the forthcoming Legislature. I have known him intimately for over thirteen years, and have never met his equal as a constructing engineer, miner or prospector—a man as willing to work with his hands as with his head.

Regarding myself in this connection, I hardly know what to say, never having held, or even asked for office of any sort, either elective or through appointment. My mission seems to have been for the past twenty years, to help everybody else, so to speak, in that direction. I did not ask for this favor—did not dream of the distinguishing honor so suddenly thrust upon me. But chiefly in consequence of the near approach of the election, I have concluded to accept it, and do what I can toward the success of the entire ticket, and therefore I would have you consider me under all the obligations the nomination may imply.

From the national standpoint, one need not be ashamed of the Republican party. The term of the present administration has more than one-half expired, and outside of merely differences with respect to party policy, there is scarcely the slightast blot to be recorded against it. It was the organization that first recognized and legislated for the simplest as well as the general rights of the prospector and miner, and gave us one or two of the best laws on that subject that could possibly be secured at the time. These laws apply to all the States and Territories where mining is followed. All further legislation on that subject, however, should probably be best left to the States or Territories individually, whose inhabitants are best qualified for conducting their own local affairs. At no time since early in 1867 has the Republican party of California presented a more united front and stood such a fair show of success, and therefore comes the feeling of responsibility on the part of those selected for places of public trust, in view also of the adoption by the people of a new organic act replete with radical reforms, expressed or implied, on so many leading topics of government. All this, it is useless to deny, renders the present the most "off year," so called, of all in the history of California politics, and will suffice to put the ablest and brightest of public functionaries on their mettle and who at the same time have the public welfare at heart. As for myself, I have thought of little but the mining interests of this section of the State, dismissing mere partisan politics and everything else, as it were, from my mind. If I have, in any way, succeeded in interesting the outside world in these affairs, more than would have occurred in the natural course of events, I am only too thankful on the score of self-interest alone. And I feel safe in saying to your Committee, moreover, that that sort of work on my part has only fairly begun. I believe that vein mining on this coast is as much in its infancy, all things considered, as was the placer interest in 1849; and that the former is ten-fold more important than the latter ever could be in the nature of things. The placers were practically exhausted in half a generation—the quartz, in its various forms, will tax the intelligence and labor of the people for centuries to come. Mono and Inyo counties alone possess a fresh field for capital and labor, of almost incalculable promise, four hundred miles in length and one hundred in breadth. The great Sierra Nevada and White ranges of mountains, to say nothing of the intermediate districts, of which Bodie is a superior type, have scarcely had a pick sunk into them, and all this pertains in a great measure to the two counties in question, to say nothing of the rich and extensive agricultural interests involved, Owens River valley alone possessing arable lands and irrigation facilities sufficient for the creation of fifty times the present number of its farms and homes. When one stops to consider the vastness and importance of this territory, and that it is allowed but a single Representative, and that in the Lower House of the Capital, the question is serious enough for any right thinking person seeking the position; in view, too, of the hostility that has manifested itself toward the mining interest, or what amounts to the same thing, and is still asserting itself in the political way. For the time, the mining counties are weak; they are undergoing a new birth, and need every fostering element. In times past, and even at present, however, they have constituted a reliable, and very extensive cash market for the farmer, fruit raiser and manufacturer, and all this through their precious metals alone. When the time comes for utilizing every variety of their metallic resources, California, and this back-door section of it especially, will take her proper place in the list of States. Where there is discord and dissatisfaction, there should be peace and greater prosperity, and I think the duty of a Representative should be, first, to look out for his own section and its every interest, and carry out the wishes and instructions, if any, of his constituents, provided the terms imply no infringements upon the rights or injustice against neighbors. Just now, moreover, our Atlantic States friends are investing most lavishly in our mining securities, and it would be suicide to throw the slightest obstacle in the way of the continuous introduction of this foreign capital, fresh blood, muscle and brains. This revival of mining interest in the East is largely the result of railroad connections, and to further that influence we need a steam highway through these natural passes from Carson to Cerro Gordo. The best qualifications for a legislator at this stage of the situation is a thorough knowledge of his own country and its wants, and his highest duty should be to do all the good he can from that stand-point. I have, Mr. Chairman, written and published a great deal, first and last, concerning Mono and Inyo and vicinity, and am surprised to find how little there is to change or retract; and, if health permits, whether elected or not, it has been my purpose to go again over the whole ground personally, and to give to the people in good shape the result of my observations—chiefly for my own benefit, no doubt. As this is the only speech I intend to make during the campaign, and as there is no expense for brass bands or other disturbing influences, a chromo is implied for every vote I may receive, whether it be cast by Republican, Democrat, Workingman or H. B. Yours truly,

JOS. WASSON.

H. M. S. PINAFORE.

A Brief Review of the Plot—Its Laughable Scenes and Funny Incidents.

This new comic opera which has turned the heads of nearly all the people in England and America and which is to be presented to a Los Angeles audience this evening for the first time, was written by W. S. Gilbert and the music composed by Arthur Sullivan, both of England. The production is a broad burlesque, full of polished thrusts at English civil service snobbery and human nature generally. From beginning to end it is good-natured, jovial, grandiloquent and farcical—in fact, the embodiment of rollicking fun. Many pretty solos and some very vivacious choruses are interspersed through the score, and the whole is full of "movement"—nothing drags; nothing is stale or tedious. The scene is laid on board Her Majesty's Steamship Pinafore off Portsmouth. The plot turns upon a love affair between Josephine, the captain's daughter, and Ralph Rackstraw, an able seaman of the ship's crew. The scene opens with a chorus of the sailors:

We sail the ocean blue,
And our saucy ship's a beauty;
We're sober men and true,
And attentive to our duty, etc.

Little Buttercup, a bumbo woman in fantastic attire, comes on board at the conclusion of the chorus, bringing a basket of notions and singing:

I've snuff and to-bac-cy,
And ex-cel lent jacky;
I've scissors, and watches and knives,
I've ribbons and laces,
To set off the faces
Of pretty young sweethearts and wives.

The sailors help themselves pretty freely from the contents of the basket, and all seem in excellent humor, when a wet blanket is suddenly thrown over their spirits by Dick Deadeye, an ill-favored, hump-backed and one-eyed sailor, who precipitates himself upon the scene and croaks through a colloquial part.

Next appears a youth

——, Whose faltering feet
With difficulty bear him on his course;
It is the smartest lad in all the fleet—
Ralph Rackstraw.

Ralph sings a ditty about the Nightingale, and it is plainly to be seen that he is in love. Indeed, he very frankly admits the fact to his shipmates and Buttercup and declares his passion for the Captain's daughter. He seems to think his cause is hopeless because the lady is so much above him in station, and in this the rest agree with him, though their sympathies are enlisted in his behalf.

Then the gallant Captain comes on deck, splendid in cocked hat and gold epaulets. He salutes his crew in the most condescending manner, and they respond in a chorus laudatory of him. The Captain, who finds his own praises a congenial theme, continues with a little solo in the same strain, saying:

Tho' related to a peer,
I can hand, reef and steer
Or ship a selvagee;
I am never known to quail
At a fury or a gale,
And I'm never, never sick at sea.

At which the crew inquire:

What, never?

And the gallant Captain responds:

Well, hardly ever.

Our reader may have heard the gag used a few times heretofore.

After the sailors have given a grand chorus and marched away, the Captain is left on the quarter-deck somewhat pensive, and Little Buttercup creeps up and tenders her sympathy and asks him to confide in her. He responds:

"Yes, Little Buttercup, I'm sad and sorry; my daughter Josephine, the fairest flower that ever blossomed on ancestral timber, is sought in marriage by Sir Joseph Porter, our Admiralty's First Lord, but for some reason she does not tackle kindly to it."

This introduces all the characters. Sir Joseph comes aboard amidst a great to-do, and proves a stuffy old fellow, a hundred times more egotistical and unbearable than the Captain himself.

The beautiful Josephine wavers awhile between love and pride—the former inclining her to Ralph Rackstraw and the latter to Sir Joseph. In an interview she even goes so far as to reject a proposal from the able seaman, though it is evident she does so much against her real inclinations.

Ralph, disheartened at his rejection, bids adieu to his shipmates, and is in the act of placing a pistol to his head to blow his brains out, when Josephine, relenting, rushes in, saves his life and proclaims her love. (Tableau.) A plan for an elopement is made up then and there between the two lovers.

But Dick Deadeye betrays the plan to the Captain. As the lovers, followed by the sailors, are about to leave the ship that night the Captain comes in and frustrates the scheme. Sir Joseph also comes aboard at that time, and though he don't understand the exact meaning of the scene, proclaims his astonishment "as they may learn from the expression of his eyes." When he finds out the true state of affairs, he orders Ralph Rackstraw to be taken to the dungeon. The lovers sing some plaintive songs at each other, and, just as Ralph is about to be borne below, Little Buttercup comes forward and makes a revelation. She says:

When I was young and charming,
As some of you may know,
I practiced baby farming.
Two tender babes I nuss'd,
One was of low condition,
The other upper crust—
A regular patrician.

Oh, bitter is my cup!
How ever could I do it?
I mixed those children up,
And not a creature knew it.
In time each little waif
Forsook his foster mother;
The well born babe was Ralph—
Your Captain was the other!

This puts a new face on matters. Sir Joseph refuses to pay court longer to Josephine, the daughter of a common sailor. Ralph is introduced in the gorgeous epaulets, while the aforetime Captain is correspondingly degraded. The lovers are reunited. Even the Captain and Little Buttercup make love at last and are happy. And so are the sisters and the cousins and the aunts—and so are the sisters and the cousins and the aunts.—Los Angeles Express.

EARLY BIRDS.—Sometimes we eat too many cucumbers for dinner, or take too late an oyster supper, which inclines one to get up pretty early in the morning in order to catch that never-to-be-forgotten "first worm"—from the still. While waiting for our morning admixture of one-bit poison, enter elegantly dressed San Franciscan with a 20-cent. bamboo cane, and a "button-hole"—a little flower stuck in his coat by the girl who is fool enough to love him—and he says: "Barkeep, I haven't got a cent; can't I get a cocktail?" The barkeep, at first a little oblivious, and to obey the instructions or orders of his employer, says: "No, never!" "What, never?" says the seemingly indignant H. B. The barkeep noticing that he had a "button-hole," and having so much regard for the same, relents to a certain degree, and in a somewhat subdued tone, says: "Well, hardly ever!" Then both exchange knowing looks, as of the two long, lost brothers, and the barkeep says: "Old pard, drink with me!" The cocktail goes down ye H. B. gullet, and within five minutes he becomes the most intelligent politician in the room, because he is the loudest-mouthed and talks from the principle, you know.—Bodie Standard.

LEGISLATIVE REPRESENTATION.

The many and multiplying newspapers of Mono still profess to lack information and understanding as to who are the regular candidates for the State Senate from this district. At the risk of some repetition we may state the following general facts:

Prior to the Legislative session of 1873-4, Mono and Inyo counties were coupled with Tuolumne, the district having two Senators and three Assemblymen. Under this, "old Tuolumne," with its noted unanimity of purpose when it came to securing offices, generally overslaughed this side; but on three occasions Inyo and Mono received a representation. In '67, Mike Meagher ("the gintleman from Eenyo") got in; in '69, Jim Mooney was "sent" from Mono; in '71, D. B. Curtis, of this county, was defeated; in '73 Inyo was accorded an Assemblyman in Mr. Parker.

The great apportionment bill of the Twentieth session came up, transferring political power from the mining to the agricultural counties and the cities. On the basis of population, according to the 10th U. S. census, 7,400 people were required to secure one representative in an Assembly of eighty, and 14,800 for a Senator. Inyo and Mono, with a population of 2,200, secured one Assemblyman—but with a sacrifice on the matter of Senator. Tulare and Kern, with a population four times as large, got but one Assemblyman also. The Fourth Senatorial District was made up of Fresno, Tulare, Kern, Mono and Inyo. It was supposed that the Senator would hail from one of the two large counties, while the other would elect its Assemblyman.

Subsequent to this, Dr. Griswold, of Mono, was elected, and in turn Inyo sent to the last Assembly S. P. Moffat, Esq. We mention this simply to show the common law which has obtained between our two isolated mining counties, of alternating with the office. The coming session is due to Mono, and it is a gratifying fact that Mono has put forth two of its very best men—Joe Wasson on the Republican side and Capt. I. G. Messec for the Democrats. In the election of either our county will be ably, intelligently and effectively represented.

The regular nominees for State Senator are Dr. Chester Rowell, of Fresno, on the Republican side, and S. C. Poage, Esq., of Kingsburg—both in Fresno county—on the part of the Democrats. The Republican Joint Convention met at Bakersfield, and was represented by every county except Mono. The Democratic Convention met at Visalia, upon the preliminary motion of the Tulare county Democratic Central Committee. That body made some political laches in its movements, but all the counties were finally represented by delegates or proxies except Mono, and the nomination was regularly made.

The Mammmoth Convention, called to agree upon a Mono candidate for Assemblyman, also nominated for State Senator Mr. J. E. Parker, to his utter surprise and astonishment, and who immediately declined the honor. The latter fact was promptly published by us; and, while he appreciates the good words and indorsements of the Mono papers, must deprecate their judgment when they even refer to the possibility of his being a candidate under the circumstances and in the face of his positive declination.

The Senatorial candidates, Messrs. Poage and Rowell, manifest considerable demagogism in their published cards and articles; both, unfortunately for their standing in these counties, are strong new Constitutionalists. We do not doubt, however, that the successful man will take readily to the suggestions of our Representative and act with him where the special and peculiar interests of this side are concerned. An energetic mining member is generally worth a dozen of the average city or cow county legislator.

An exchange remarks: What good times Congressional Investigation Committees do have, to be sure? The Hard Times Committee in luxurious quarters in the Palace at San Francisco; the House Committee on Rules disporting in the surf at Long Branch, and the Wallace Committee investigating election frauds in the South at Providence, Rhode Island. Congressman is coming to be synonomous with deadhead.

It is stated as a fact that many of the Democrats in Sonoma county, the Democratic stronghold of the State, will vote for Perkins instead of Glenn.

OF INTEREST TO LABORERS.

If anybody knows anything at all about the cause of the labor depression on this coast or anywhere else, that anybody is hereby requested to notify Congressman Hendrick B. Wright of the fact. He is to be found at the Palace Hotel, San Francisco. Hendrick did a great deal of laborious chin work in the House of Representatives during the late extra session. Finally, he got so he wasn't feeling very well, and thought a little trip would do him good. He told the House what he thought about it; so, to please the exhausted man, it was moved and carried that a Committee on Hard Times be appointed with full powers to draw upon the United States Treasury for necessary funds, and to travel around the country, even unto the Pacific Ocean, and ask all sorts of fool questions about what people thought was their unbiased opinions as to the cause of hard times. Hendrick was put in as the boss or chairman of these searchers after unpleasant truths. He was further authorized to take along some other Congressmen as make-weights and to give the thing a dignified air, and also his own and their sisters and cousins and aunts. And they came, lots of them. The committeemen also brought along some of their wives; and right now they are all hard at work at the Palace asking questions about this thing and that, and how to get to the Big Trees and the Yosemite. It is another of those Congressional junketing affairs like we had last year in the celebrated Committee on Indian Troubles, the same that got the "little Injun" in a room at the Palace and made him "heap dance," so that they could determine what ailed Chief Joseph up on the Columbia. It would seem, though, that they did some good, for Chief Joseph soon after laid down his cannons and went to writing letters to Secretary Schurz. We can only hope that Hendrick will do as much, and find out what joint is out of joint in the times, and what kind of ointment will do for a remedy.

An Indiana lady who has been keeping a book of college statistics for more than twenty years, says that thirty-seven per cent. of girl graduates die within two years after they take their diplomas. This is a startling statement, and should suggest to the managers of our educational institutions a revision of the ordinary course of study. Young ladies, says the Call, graduate from seventeen to twenty-five, a period in life when the rate of mortality should be at its lowest. It may almost be said that no one should die at that age except those who have inherited organic diseases or are victims of accident. The physical law teaches us that there is no effect without a cause, and consequently every death is the result of some natural law. In old age people die simply because the forces of Nature are exhausted. The machine has run down and it stops. But under fifty death comes from some violation of the laws of health, either on the part of the person thus prematurely cut down, or on the part of ancestors. Consumption, heart disease and scrofulous humors sometimes do not develop until the approach of maturity; but these inherited diseases certainly cannot furnish any large proportion of the number Death gathers in in their early prime. The idea that thirty-seven of each hundred girls who graduate from our schools die within two years is frightful. If the statement be true, the conductors of our seminaries for girls have much to answer for. No such mortality can possibly result except from gross violation of Nature's laws.

Should a Railroad Commissioner, who is yet to be elected, take a notion to die after he is elected and installed, his office, as we are warned by the great Bilk organ, would actually be vacant, and that if the Governor has no other powers in shaping railroad legislation or control, he would surely at least be required to appoint the lamented functionary's successor. And in view of this momentous possibility, this Mrs. Toodles Bilk organ says that that successor might be a railroad man; hence, all good citizens must vote for the powerful Bilk of Colusa, who would not think of appointing that sort of a man. Well, wouldn't it be better not to worry and take on too soon about the possible dying of a Railroad Commissioner? Did anybody ever hear of a Railroad Commissioner dying in this State? Is it reasonable to suppose a Railroad Commissioner would die during his term of office, anyway?

Quebec has had a riot among the ship builders. It is a war of races; the Canadian French element and the Irish being the chief combatants. In the Provinces there are no public schools, properly, and but little homogeneity, and as a consequence there is always sects, which have not been brought together in youth, and therefore have not acquired the same habits by association. The divisions in their lives are very distinctly marked, and always will be in such a case.

TAFFY.

Copying an article, wherein it is stated that the farmers of this State prefer Chinese labor because it is the cheapest, and that for that reason they (the farmers) will support Glenn, the great Bilk organ says:

> The criticism is most unjust to the farmers of the State. To a man, they would, under ordinary circumstances, give the preference to white over Chinese labor. But under the iniquitous and oppressive system of railway discriminations, they are compelled to consult their own interests to the extent of employing labor which will enable them to get their produce to market at such a cost as will leave them a living profit. So far as the curse of Chinese labor under which the State groans is concerned, that curse was entailed upon us by the railroad corporations which imported coolies by the thousand to build their roads at the least possible expense, and when the work was done turned them loose upon the community to compete in the labor market with white men. Let the responsibility rest where it rightfully belongs—not upon the industrious farmers, who are compelled by the policy of the railroad company to employ cheap labor, but upon the overshadowing monopoly, who were under no such necessity. Had it not been for the wholesale importation of coolies by the Central Pacific Railroad, the State would not to-day be afflicted by the curse of Chinese labor confronting the white man in every field of industry.

There were over 100,000 Chinamen in this State before the first shovelful of earth was turned up for the Central Pacific Railroad. We doubt if that company ever imported a single Chinaman expressly to work upon that road; they could get plenty of them without, and did get them. They also turned a great many of them loose afterwards; and they were cursed roundly by everybody for not turning all they had loose in the same way.

The bulk of the wheat-growing farmers of this State, from Stockton to Glenns's stronghold in Colusa, are wholly independent of the railroad for shipping facilities for their produce, the majority of them having water communication right at their doors, so to speak, yet they give their freights by the hundred thousand tons to the railroad notwithstanding the competing rates offered by independent schooners and other river craft. The truth is that Glenn and all other farmers who employ Chinaman in preference to white men, do it simply because they find that class of labor the most profitable. Even admitting that the railroad does charge higher freight rates than the water craft, and that that is the reason, as the Chronicle says, that farmers are compelled to use the cheapest labor to meet this extra expense, therein comes this pro-Chinese argument, namely: that farmers along the Sacramento find this Chinese labor the most profitable and reliable, and such being the fact will continue, like Glenn, to use such if there was not a railroad in the State, or if freights were reduced to a song. If profitable against high rates it would certainly be no less so in case of low freights. And, in any case, the organ's bosh does not excuse its candidate for Governor, for he ships all his freights by barge and steamer, and is not "oppressed" by the railroad, nor compelled by its falsely-alleged higher freight rates to raise his profits by aid of Chinamen.

The obvious effect, if not the intent, of such taffy as the organ is giving its deluded Bilks in this whole matter, is to prove that Chinese labor is essential to the welfare of farmers in general as well as to Dr. Glenn, who makes no denial of the fact that he takes that kind in preference to "blanket white men," although he does say all the time that he is opposed to "Chinese immigration"—the same way, no doubt, that he is also "opposed" to land monopoly: that is, that he is sincerely opposed to both these curses when either conduces in the least to the profit of any other than himself. If the Chronicle keeps on a little longer with its special arguments to suit Glenn's case, it is bound to prove not only that land monopoly is a most commendable thing, but that Chinese labor is the salvation for California farmers. Out on such Bilks.

It now appears that the work of constructing the Panama Canal has been declared "off," for the present at least. De Lesseps announces in a circular that the issue of 800,000 shares of the Panama Canal stock has not been covered. He says that he might convene a meeting of subscribers and start a company with them, but he prefers, being certain of success, to wait until more light has been thrown on the value of the attacks that have been directed against the scheme at the last moment. He says he will soon visit this country, and on his return will set the company on its feet. The subscribers are therefore informed that they can withdraw their deposits whenever they like. Their present subscriptions, however, will give them the right to shares when the company is eventually constituted.

Some sensational scamp "across the water" thought he would raise a little commotion on this side by telegraphing the death of Mrs. Nellie Grant-Sartoris. But later news states that it was a false report. However, another "party by the name of Sartoris" has "climbed the gold stair;" hence the announcement of the demise of Nellie.

The coal burners at Eureka, Nevada, took a notion that their wishes were far superior to the constitutional rights of other people, and resolved that no coal should be sold or purchased in that country except at prices of their own dictation. To carry out their doctrine they gathered in large numbers and proceeded to dump wagon loads of coal belonging to other parties not of their Union into the sagebrush. Finally, the Governor ordered out the militia to argue with those war-like gents. So far, no collision has taken place, but no doubt but some of these Italian gentlemen will learn something to their general advantage if they persist in their outrageous stand. The Stock Report expresses our views thus: "In their own country these men received but the merest pittance for their labor; in Eureka they have been enabled to secure a remuneration for their labor magnificent in proportion to what they were capable of earning at home, and which has enabled a large number of them to return to Italy with an amount of money that there constitutes a small fortune. And because they have had the opportunities, because they have been allowed to go on the public lands of the United States and denude them of timber and engage in a profitable business under the protection of American law, they band together and by by force violate the laws and interfere with the rights of men who are citizens of the country, here to stay. They would receive very little pity or sympathy if the indignant people of Eureka should rise against them en masse and shoot them down as if they were so many dogs."

On the afternoon of the 18th instant those Eureka coal burners, referred to elsewhere, collected to the number of about 100 at Fish Creek, where there was a large lot of coal belonging to other parties, and refused to let it be hauled away. A number of officers and specials, nine or ten in all, went to the ground to protect the teamsters. The Italians became greatly enraged, and being well armed, fired on officer Rich, the ball grazing his scalp. At this the officers opened fire, and killed five, and wounded six of the strikers at the first fire. The others fled like sheep. The militia had been relieved from duty a short time previously, but were at once ordered in again, ready for any emergency. There are full 2,000 of the strikers, and most of them are as desperate as they are ignorant. So there is no saying how the business is going to end.

Once upon a time there was a factor entered into American politics which was known as nulification. There is now applicable to California politics a word somewhat similar in sound—stultification. A party professing to be the exponents of an organic instrument that pronounces against land monopoly and Chinese labor, trying to elect for Governor a man who has monopolized 60,000 acres of land and who employs Chinese labor whenever and wherever he can make it available. Are not the members of such a party appropriately named Honorable Bilks?

In his Stockton speech Judge Terry gave up the fight, virtually acknowledging that Dr. Glenn's case was helpless unless White would withdraw from the contest. Of White he said: "I want it understood that I have no personal objection to Mr. White. Mr. White's course in the convention satisfied me, and if I believed that Mr. White was a stronger man than Mr. Glenn, I would vote for him." The Chronicle's charges against White thus fall to the ground, a mass of campaign lies.

Hendrick B. Wright, Chairman of the Hard Times Committee, says he intends to try to push through Congress his bill, supplemental to the Homestead law, authorizing the Government to loan $500 to each settler on public land. Hendrick is a brick, and don't care who knows it. He is surely trying to make folks think he is the very man that invented the Honorable Bilks.

The Workingmen display about as much consistency as the Honorable Bilks. In Sacramento they have nominated Thomas McConnell for State Senator. McConnell was in the Constitutional Convention and voted against the eight-hour labor clause.

Joseph D. Lynch, of the Herald, and W. A. Spaulding, of the Express, Los Angeles, had a little "unpleasantness," firing nine shots, some of which hit the wrong parties. Neither of the principals were hurt, of course.

The idea of cutting a ship canal through the Isthmus of Panama is at least three and a half centuries old. Phillip II., of Spain, had a route carefully surveyed by some Flemish engineers, but never pushed the matter.

A. M. Loomis leaves in a day or two for Leadville, Colorado, to join an old acquaintance in business there. We hope he will be as successful as he anticipates.—San Luis Advocate.

A Provisional Government has been established at Sitka, Alaska.

THE "CHRONICLE" THEN AND NOW.

The San Francisco Chronicle, in its issue of February 2, 1878, said of Glenn, of Colusa, when he was endeavoring to get a bill through the Legislature enabling him to poison geese on his domain:

> If a man owns and monopolizes the cultivation of 50,000 acres of land, when it ought to be divided up among 300 families who are without any land, but anxious to get it, what right has he to complain of the geese as a nuisance, who, by a monopoly of the land, is a far greater nuisance to the landless, shut out by his greed from the chance of securing homes? It seems to be a square fight between a bad nuisance and a worse one—the geese and the monopolist—and the Chronicle is decidedly in sympathy with the geese.

That is what the Chronicle thought and said of Glenn, one year and a half ago. Now it declares that Glenn is not a monopolist, and that he is just the man to enforce the anti-land-monopolist Constitution. But let us read what the Chronicle said about Perkins four years ago. Turn to the issue of June 18, 1875, and you will find the following:

> George C. Perkins, formerly a Senator from Butte county, would make an excellent candidate for Governor, and one for whom every Republican would most willingly put forth his best effort.

Scranton, Pa., has a Mayor named Powderley, who is imbued with the same spirit that actuated Gen. John A. Dix during the civil war. Gen. Dix wanted the man shot who dared to "pull down the American flag," while Mayor Powderley has had his indignation aroused because a circus came along which displayed the English colors above the American. The attention of the patriotic Mayor being called to what he thought to be a "constructive" insult, he sent a peremptory order for the offensive banner to be hauled in, or put in its proper secondary place. There is no telling what sort of an explosion would have followed had not a rain storm came up, which caused both flags to be taken down and in to keep them dry. It was the general impression that the proprietor of the circus was ignorant that he was violating a rule of national comity in giving the English flag the precedence. It will not do for foreign showmen to disrespect the "Stars and Stripes," If they do, they will awaken Yankee indignation and subject themselves to unheard of complications.—S. F. Call.

It is very evident that Germany contemplates a return to the double standard. The report that official negotiations for a monetary convention with the United States had been opened is denied, but is admitted that preliminary negotiations looking to the re-adoption of the double standard are in progress. Silver demonetization has been a costly experiment to Germany, and has been the cause of great financial distress to the people of that country by decreasing the volume of money.—Stock Report.

JIM-JAMS.—A few days ago a young mahala got to rushing into peoples' houses in a terror-stricken manner and carrying on in a way as to make it manifest she was suffering from a powerful attack of jim-jams or snakes in her boots. The officers had to lock her up for a night or two, since which her people have taken her off into the country, whether to try to cure or kill her is uncertain; but the indications favor the latter contingency, as they believe she is locoed, and will bewitch some of them. It is said she keeps all on the keen look out to defend themselves from the hosts of little devils she is supposed to have ordered to go for them. Every time she looks in the direction of an Indian, big or little, that Indian, already for the onslaught of the expected devils, begins with a stick, or anything he can get his hands on, to smite the air with tremendous vigor and persistency, and in so doing imagines that he is fending off any attacking imp. As this exercise seems to give them considerable relief no one ought to object. This Mary, or whatever her name is, has been indulging in much strong drink for a long time past, knowing right where to go and get a good supply any time of the day or night, and that unfortunate knowledge is what has brought this misfortune upon her.

THE BROWN MONSTER PROPERTY. Capt. Eudy started on the 18th for San Francisco, where he goes with the view of arranging terms with the stockholders of the Brown Monster Mining Company, by which he may run that property a year or so on his own responsibility and at his own expense. In this we hope he may be successful; he has always made that property pay something over running expenses and is the only man who has ever done so. He has an abiding faith that it can be made to pay far better than it ever has heretofore, and we believe he is right, provided he can go ahead with the work as his untrameled judgment dictates, though, to do this, will involve the expenditure of a considerable sum in doing certain necessary dead work to get "down" on the ledge and extract the ore to better advantage than has heretofore been practicable. In view of this and other obvious facts we feel confident the company will be doing a wise thing to give the Captain the whole thing as proposed. He will make it a valuable property; at least, if he can't prove it to be such we know of no man who can.

MORE OF THE SAME SORT.—Incidents growing out of the operations of drunken Indians and those degraded whites who supply the whisky, are becoming too common to pass unnoticed. The other day a big buck got gaoriously drunk as usual, and to give proper vent to the exhuberance of his proud feelings, mounted his horse, and, leading another, got to charging at full speed through streets and alleys, during which he came as near as possible of running directly over small children. Soon after, Sheriff Moore and Deputy Welch arrested him in his wild career, though Mr. Injun swore in round though rather broken terms that he would do as "he — pleased." But, after all, he pleased to take lodgings in the county jail, his horses faring better by being given a place and plenty to eat in a livery stable.

SUICIDE.—News was brought to town the first of the week that a sheepherder had been found dead about twelve miles from Big Pine, with a bullet hole in his head. At first it was thought that he had been foully dealt with. Coroner Lank was notified of the occurrence, and proceeded immediately to Big Pine, for the purpose of ascertaining the facts of the case. From the evidence adduced at the inquest the jury rendered a verdict "that deceased was named Jermaino Scallier, a native of France, aged about 22 years, and that he came to his death from the effects of a pistol shot wound inflicted by his own hand." He had been in poor health for some time, and recently had met with some financial losses, which, undoubtedly, were the cause of the suicide.

THE RENO PROCESS.—Certain well known traffickers in Indian whisky in various parts of this valley are doing all they can to invite the introduction of the "Reno process" of enforcing the laws of decency. It is universally conceded that that process is the only one giving the least hope of salvation for the miserable white vagabonds who coin money by selling whisky to their betters, the Piutes. It is a cheap reducing process and simple, merely an application of a coat of tar and feathers to the patient; in extreme cases it may be necessary sometimes to add a slight application of horsewhip. There are many very good citizens who are just now advocating giving the treatment a trial—and in other places than Bishop, too.

CORRALED HIM.—It has been known for months, if not for years past, that Larry Dugan, as well as two or three others, has been driving a lucrative business in supplying Indians with whisky. The other day, thanks to the vigilance of Deputy Sheriff W. F. Welch, Larry was caught in the act and marched off to the sweat-box. The next day he appeared before Justice Gardner, and pleading guilty to the charge, got off with a fine of $50 or 30 days in chokey. Through motives of economy, Larry choose the latter alternative.

FOR JUSTICE.—Wm. C. Snodgrass, in this issue, announces himself a candidate for the office of Justice of the Peace for this township. Mr. S. has had experience enough in that office to well qualify him for the duties of the position.

MODOCK OFFICIAL LETTER.—The official letter of the week is as follows:

August 18, 1879.

J. W. Pew, Esq., Secretary Modock Con. M. Co.:—DEAR SIR: Operations for the past week on the 1000-foot level are as follows: South drift, 300 foot, run 19 feet; drift from winze, 300 foot, run 10 feet; drift north, at 800 foot, run 15 feet; west crosscut, at 1000 foot, 5 feet; drift from raise, at 1100 foot, run 4 feet, and drift south from 1100 foot, 9 feet. Total length of south drift, 300 foot, 156 feet; south drift from winze, 98 feet; north drift, at 800 foot, 122 feet; west crosscut, 1000 foot, 105 feet; north crosscut, 1000 foot, 5 feet; drift from raise at 1100 foot, 21 feet, and south drift, 1100 foot, 134 feet; drift north at 800 foot continues in very fine ground, following clay seam on the footwall. Ground in 1100-foot drift appears to be changing for the better to-day. Drift from winze at 300 still keeps in ore and presents a fine showing. Other points are not materially changed since last writing.

Yours, respectfully,
A. C. TIBBETTS, Supt.

PAINFUL ACCIDENT.—A friend, writing from Round Valley, says: "Mr. C. H. Parsons, an estimable citizen of Round Valley, met with a painful accident the other day. While pasturing out some horses in the corral, one of them let fly his heels and struck Mr. Parsons in the face, fracturing his jawbone. He was unconscious for some time, when his brother and nephew came to his assistance; after which Mr. P. inquired "what had happened to him." Not being hitherto very robust in health, this last shock has fearfully affected his entire system. However, it is consoling to know that Mrs. Parsons has lately returned from a protracted visit East (accompanied by her sister, Miss Simmons,), both of whom will strictly and patiently attend to our afflicted friend. * * * *

Mr. Birchim's haystack, containing forty tons of hay, also the Smith Bros.' hay press, were entirely destroyed by fire the other night. It is supposed to have been the work of an an incendiary.

KASSON.— Will somebody be kind enough to rise up and inform the puzzled Postmasters throughout this county where "Kasson Postoffice, Inyo county, Cal.," is situated? Not a mother's son of them knows where to send letters so addressed, although such an office, according to a late dispatch, was established in our midst, but not a soul knoweth where to look for it.

SCHOOL MONEY.—State Superintendent Carr has just made the apportionment of school moneys for the year. Out of the whole sum of $235,-880 36, Inyo county gets but $414 20, being the smallest share of any county in the State, except Alpine and Mono, which get $117 72 and $404 39 respectively. The basis of the apportionment is $1 09 per child.

THE Chronicle admits that Dr. Glenn and many other farmers employ Chinese labor, but excuses them on the ground that they are compelled by railroad discriminations in the transportation of their products to economize in the employment of labor. If railroad freights and fares were reduced fifty per cent. to-morrow, Glenn and his class would still employ Chinese labor and still find an excuse for so doing. The farmers use sugar; perhaps they give their farm hands sugar in their coffee—providing they give them coffee —and if the railroad discriminations were removed the Chronicle would be telling us that Glenn was compelled to employ Chinese because the San Francisco sugar refineries charged an exorbitant price for sugar. The attempt to fix the responsibility of the employment of Chinese by the farmers on the railroad company is ridiculous. The Pacific Mail steamers bring the Chinamen here, and they would not be brought here if there was no demand for them, and their employment by such men as Glenn is what creates the demand which causes them to be brought.

A manufacturer might have the excuse of brisk competition for his employment of Chinamen, but their introduction into the industry of farming—an industry on which the prosperity of the country ought to rest—is little less than a crime, and for such introduction Dr. Glenn and his class are responsible. Their attempt to shift that responsibility on the railroad company is only a confession of their guilt. —Stock Report.

THE State or nation which repudiates its public debt can scarcely hope to recover from the obloquy. Mississippi was guilty of this long before the war of the rebellion, and it is remembered against her to this day, and always will be remembered to her detriment. It is strange that with this example before her, Tennessee has virtually declared for repudiation. At the election recently held on a proposition submitted to the people by the Tennessee Legislature, to adjust her debt by paying one-half, it was voted down. The creditors of the State had previously agreed to receive one-half the debt in satisfaction of their claims, with a reduction of interest to four per cent. The opposition to the proposition is attributable to two causes. First, a majority of the people voted against it because they want to repudiate the entire debt, and second, the minority wanted it rejected because they want to see the debt paid in full.—S. F. Call.

A DISPATCH from Virginia City states that the troubles between the Mechanics' Union and the Virginia and Truckee Railroad have been compromised, and that the Union gains every point it demanded. If the truth is stated, it is a funny comment on personal liberty in the United States and it demonstrates that where labor organizations are concerned, all the liberty is on one side and none on the other. The dictation by force that a man shall not work for such wages as he chooses to accept, or shall not work at all unless he consents to join a certain organization, is contrary to the spirit of American institutions and an outrage on the rights of individuals.—Stock Report.

FROM DARWIN TO PANAMINT.

DARWIN, August 16.

MESSRS. EDITORS: On the evening of the 14th instant took passage on one of the Kern and Inyo Stage Company's light, airy and comfortable Concord wagons, and soon found myself at Junction Station, 16 miles distant, making excellent ttme, as the company have the best of stock, and humane and gentlemanly drivers. Junction Station, the prettiest on the road, where the weary traveler finds beautiful growing poplars, willows and flowers, is kept by Mr. J. P. Taylor, Division Agent of the stage line. Here we found Mrs. T., as usual, in company with her sister, Miss Belle Reynolds, awaiting the arrival of the stage, with a well filled table of the necessaries of life, well prepared; in fact, one of the best points on the line to get a square breakfast and supper at reasonable figures, which always tastes homelike, which fact, in connection with another, that the reception extended by the hostess, is warm, cordial, and pleasant makes Junction Station a lovely little "oasis" out in this barren and desert-like country.

At this point found Mr. LeCyr on his way to Panamint, with the following persons, viz: Mr. Guiterrez, Secretary of the Leota Gold, Silver, Mining, Smelting and Water Company of Panamint; also, Secretary of the Hidalgo and Golconda Mining Companies, of Darwin. Mr. G. was accompanied by Mr. S. Gumbiner and assistant, who comes up under the company's employ as amalgamator and millman for the Leota. Mr. G. is well and favorably known in this State and Nevada in his profession, and in securing his services this company have used excellent judgment and have given proof to all interested in the success of their undertaking that they mean legitimate business, and intend to leave nothing undone, which will in any way contribute to crowning their efforts with success. At 10 o'clock P. M. left the hospitable roof of Mrs. T. for the famed Panamint, and after about one hour's drive found ourselves at the head of Sheppard's long, narrow, winding cañon of probably 12 miles in length, the descent of which was most successfully made, as LeCyr had the ribbons, with only one important accident to chronicle, the loss of one bottle of O'Brion cocktails. The subscriber takes this method of calling attention of "county candidates for offlce" to the fact of its being a superior electioneering, campaign document, convincing, satisfying and appetizing, and sold by the following parties in this county, vis; at Birchett & Parker's and J. Gunn's, Lookout; Johnson & Co., Cerro Gordo; C. Shultz, Lone Pine; Mairs' and Thompson's, Independence; Stoutenborough's, and the undersigned's in Darwin. It will be found a good healthy Democratic drink which the most radical Republicans enjoy. Following are some of the persons who have tasted the angelic beverage and still live: Mr. Jim Smith, Independent candidate for Sheriff; R. B. Snelling, Independent candidate for Superior Judge; J. F. Dillon, Democratic candidate for Assessor; Martin Mee, Omie Mairs, A. Eibeshutz, Billy Welch and Western Inyo generally.

The Panamint Valley was crossed between 1 and 3 o'clock A. M., and when we realized the fact of our being several hundred feet below the level of the grand old Pacific, traveling over what was once an inland sea, but now more like the "Valley of Death," spoken of by Bunyan, with no light but what few dim rays little Mother Earth permitted the moon in its last quarter by reflecting the sun's rays, as might be expedient, in our sleepy, tired and cramped condition, our thoughts could not be very grand, but more or less gloomy and peculiar.

At 4 A. M. commenced the ascent of the celebrated cañon up to the present center of attraction in this end of Inyo county. To appreciate this part of the journey the grand old cañon, made, doubtless, before Adam underwent his celebrated surgical operation, must be seen to be appreciated—from top to bottom attractions never cease. One moment on either side of its sky-towering walls the beautiful green and soul-inspiring arbors of wild grapes, under whose roof of leaves the gurgling, sacred music of the cool, sparkling brook comes tumbling down, kissing each little pebble as its silvery drops fall over them; and then another stretch of living poplars and varigated herbage, all tend to make one feel the ever presence of Divinity, and truly appreciate the glorious contrast between this sublime scenery and the desert waste below, and enjoy this narrow path to the Silverado of Western Inyo. At 1 P. M. on the 14th instant reached our journey's end, and a most happy welcome greeted us through the silvery tones of the dinner bell. Here we were most cordially received by Prof. Cherry, Manager Cummings, and his son, who acts as his Secretary, and we felt at once that we were at home. After dinner, started out on a tour of observation, and see what was being done. The first place visited was the mill, and after one has gone through it from top to bottom, and noted its massive proportions, one cannot but exclaim, "perfection!" For design, style and conception of architecture, perfectness in all minutia of detail, it stands out unrivalled as the best made, and most perfect quartz mill on the Pacific slope, of "no age, but for all time"—a living monument, more glorious than simple marble, to the noble hearted man who built it. Peace to the soul of P. B. Bell, its architect and builder. Its original cost was $320,-000, but has been purchased by the present company for a mere drop in the bucket, as compared with the original outlay.

Nature has been lavish in supplying this point with the articles of diet upon which a mill must feed, viz: a good supply of good water and wood for a century, and residents unite in saying there is a plenty of mines, and all have ore in them; and, granting this to be a fact, the future success of the Leota Company can hardly be questioned. Mr. Guiterrez, Secretary and a stockholder, came up from the city with full powers to act for the company as in his judgment might seem most judicious, and, as a result of his visit, matters in all particulars pertaining to the company have been satisfactorily adjudicated, and the ground-work laid from which will result a perfect understanding between the company and all parties owning mines, so far as the working of their ores are concerned, and your many readers will soon have the pleasure of knowing through bars of bullion the proof that Panamint was not dead but only sleeping. Our party was most fortunate in selecting the time for our visit, as Manager Cummings, as jolly a Scotchman as has come over from the land of the thistle, had everything in readiness to commence a short run, and the 16th day of August the stamps that had rested for years commenced to again pound up ore with their former ease and pleasure, and Panamint was "born again," having taken on a new lease of life under the care of a management which proposes running slowly but surely. In the language of the poet—

"For he who sees his well-filled vessel drop,
Although a drop in portion be but small,
Should thence occasion take the leak to stop,
Lest frequent droppings drain him dry of all.

Moreover, he who would to greatness rise
A course not much unlike to this should keep;
He ought not low beginnings to despise,
Nor strive to walk before he learns to creep.

By many cares together brought the hand is filled;
By many handfuls we may gain a sheaf;
By many sheaves the barn is fraught—
Thus oft by little do we much obtain."

The only mine (out of some 50 which have actual owners to-day not counting the Old and Leota Companies' mines, although Mining Recorder Russel informs me that the books show at one time some 200) was the Cliff, owned by the old stand-by Inyoite Gomer Jones, and his partners, Messrs. McDonald, Miners and Lane. The boys have, I believe, a fortune in this one property, containing 1,500, with ore cropping the whole distance, and are now having some 60 tons worked by the Leota Company, which will probably yield them at least $200 per ton. Messrs. Russel, Clark, Hubbard and many others claim to have some fine mining properties, and all unite in pronouncing this a rich mineral point, propose to stay with their mines, and all fully believe they will ere long have ample means to go after the "girls they left behind them." The Leota Company own seven mines, and will soon commence developing them. The Old Company have some eight mines, all patented, and lying idle.

Found some old acquaintances here, among whom was Geo. Phillips, engineer, who has been putting the machinery all in order; Mr. C. H. Clark, his assistant, and the only man who has a lady in the camp. Also made the acquaintance of Mr. Johnston and P. J. Couzzins, who hold positions of responsibility here.

Viewed from all standpoints, the future of the Leota Company certainly looks bright, and their success is certain, as I believe their intentions are to work their mill and mines in the light of a business proposition, and not as a stock speculation, as they fully believe their property and opportunities have ample merit, and propose to be governed by the principle in all business—"To do unto others as they would have others do unto them."

Before concluding this article, I feel it my duty to call attention again to the able and business manner in which Mr. Guiterrez has performed the duties intrusted to his charge by the Trustees, and they can never be too lavish with praise in his behalf. Matters of great importance to the company were pending; the feeling at the mines between the company and miners was not harmonious and pleasant—confidence in the company itself in the minds of the people was facking. Mr. G. has harmonized all conflicting elements, perfected titles to all the mines and reeived possession of them, satisfied interested parties of the stable condition of the company's finance, and leaves Panamint carrying along with him the confidence of her citizens in what he has said and done, and the company and Trustees cannot but exclaim, after his report is made to them: 'Well done, thou good and faithful servant." Mr. W. C. Smith, one of the former owners of the company's mines, has been placed in charge of all mining operations—a most worthy and efficient appointment.

Yours, truly,
C. F. O'BRION.

A REPORT comes from Salt Lake that the Mormons are assuming a warlike attitude. In a speech in the Tabernacle on the 11th instant, Apostle Joe F. Smith told the Saints the time had come for them to arm themselves, and counseled them to buy the best. He also alluded to the Tribune as being one of the causes of the Saints' troubles, and said it must be wiped out, to which all the brethren responded with a loud "amen." The recent action of the Government and the imprisonment of Apostles by the heirs of Brigham has inflamed the fanatics, and they thirst for blood. Prompt action on the part of the Government in backing up its officials is what is necessary in Utah to-day. It has already trifled too long with this twin relic.—S. F. Bulletin.

BODIE now stands well ahead of any district on the coast in the way of profits on mining. The aggregate of dividends from the Standard and Bodie, all of which have been disbursed within two years, is $2,150,000, of which $600,-000 was for the first year, ending with August, 1878, and $1,550,000 for the second year, ending August, 1879. The entire assessments against the mines of Bodie District, which have been levied in the past, and which are now pending, amount to $1,429,600, leaving the dividends largely in excess of all expenditures which could possibly be brought in, and a large balance in favor of mining in the district.—Carson Tribune.

NEWS has been received in Berlin from Stockholm announcing that the steamer Vega, with the Arctic explorer, Nordenksjold on board, has been freed from the ice, and safely passed Behring's Straits.

SATURDAY, AUGUST 23.....1879

IT is difficult in the present day to realize the fact that wheat was at one time unknown in America; yet prior to the discovery of this continent by Columbus there was no cereal in America approaching in nature to the wheat plant. It was not, observes the American Miller, until 1530 that wheat found its way into Mexico, and then only by chance. A slave of Cortez found a few grains of wheat in a parcel of rice and showed them to his master, who ordered them to be planted. The result showed that wheat would thrive well on Mexican soil; and to-day one of the finest wheat valleys in the world is near the Mexican capital. From Mexico the cereal found its way to Peru. Marie D'Escobar, wife of Don Diego de Chauves, carried a few grains to Lima, which were planted, the entire product being used for seed for several successive crops. At Quito, Ecquador, a monk of the order of St. Francis, by the name of Fray Jodoso Bixi, introduced a new cereal; and it is said that the jar which contained the seeds is still preserved by the monks of Quito. Wheat was introduced into the present limits of the United States contemporaneously with the settlement of the country by the English and Dutch.

FIGHTING LOCUSTS IN RUSSIA.—A Russian paper gives an account of a plague of locusts, near Elisabethpol, which forced a detachment of troops on the march to retrace their steps. They settled so thick on the soldiers' faces, uniforms and muskets, that the major, driven to desperation, ordered firing at them for half an hour, but this produced no effect, and a march back was ordered. The swarm covered an area of 35 square versts.

THE largest bridge in Europe will be completed next year. It will cross the Volga in the Government of Samara, Russia, on the Siberian Railroad. The river at the point of crossing is four miles wide in the Spring, and 4,732 feet wide in the Autumn. The cost of the bridge will be $3,500,000. Twelve piers, 85 feet high, at a distance of every 364 feet, will support the structure.

THE exports of cheese from this country are fast mounting up in the millions. Last week, for the first time, they exceeded the exports of bacon, having been shipped at the rate of a million pounds a day.—N. Y. Tribune.

FOR SHERIFF.

AT THE SOLICITATION OF MANY friends, the undersigned hereby respectfully submits his name to the voters of Inyo County, as an Independent Candidate for the office of Sheriff and Ex-officio Tax Collector.

JAMES W. SMITH.
n474td

A CARD.

TO THE VOTERS OF INYO COUNTY: Being so situated as to be unable to make a thorough canvas of the county before the coming election, and as the term is short and will hardly warrant much expense, I take this method of letting it be generally known that I desire the office for which I am the candidate of the Republican Party, viz.: that of Treasurer of this County; and learning that there would be considerable opposition to me on account of my being in the employ of one of the business houses of this place, I wish it positively understood that in case I am elected I will sever such connection, and will, by a strict and careful attention to the duties of the office, endeavor to merit the confidence which places me in a position of so great responsibility.

GEO. H. HARDY.

TO THE VOTERS OF INYO COUNTY.

FELLOW CITIZENS—I AM AN INDEPENDENT candidate for Superior Judge of Inyo County, and adopt this method of announcing my candidacy, because of the geographical difficulties which prevent my making a personal canvass in every portion of the county in the brief time left before the day of election. It would have been much more congenial to my wishes to visit every place in the county, and meet my fellow-citizens in person; but this pleasure, in some instances, I must forego, for the reasons stated.

Having neglected to qualify myself for the Judgeship by admission as an attorney of the Supreme Court of the State, at the time of the Democratic County Convention, I was not then enabled to present my name for the place. But I have since qualified in that essential, and am now in the field.

I am known personally or officially to most of you. I have been a practicing attorney for thirty-three years, in the old States, in California, in Oregon and in Idaho. For the last five years I have filled the office which I still hold, of District Attorney of Inyo, and am proud to be able to challenge criticism of my official conduct and professional capability. I have never framed an indictment which did not withstand the test of the Court and the law; have never drawn a legal writ that was found faulty.

I have no connection or affiliation with any clique or ring; have no special friends to unduly reward; no enemies to unjustly punish. If elected, I will bring to the discharge of the duties an honest purpose and an impartial mind, without bias or prejudice for or against any; and every case shall be determined in just accordance with the law and the right. Superior Courts under the New Constitution should be exceedingly careful in the determination of cases brought before them; to so decide as to secure suitors against the contingency of reversal of judgment by the Supreme Court, and to this end I should direct my utmost ability in the knowledge of the law upon the principles of justice. My long and large experience as a practicing lawyer, together with the consciousness of possessing the Jeffersonian qualifications of honesty and capability, are the strong points on which I depend for your favorable consideration of my candidacy.

In conclusion, Fellow Citizens, I beg to assure you of my earnest appreciation of the kindness and favor I have received at your hands during the six years I have been a resident of Inyo county, and I take this opportunity to express my heartfelt gratitude therefor. As I have endeavored in the past to serve you zealously and with unremitting devotion to your interests, and rights, and welfare, so I can solemnly pledge myself to do in the future, should you respond to my plea, in this, by electing me to the position to which I aspire, at the coming election in September. As your District Attorney, I have served you faithfully and well. If you should further honor me by an election as Superior Judge, I shall continue to serve you with all the fidelity of my nature and all the ability at my command, and the greater and deeper will be my gratefulness for such a token of your esteem and approbation.

With profound sentiments of high regard for you all, I have the honor to be your fellow citizen and friend, R. B. SNELLING.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT THE following named settlers have filed notice of their intention to make final proof in support of their claims, and secure final entry thereof, after the expiration of thirty days from the date of this notice, to-wit, namely: on MONDAY, THE FIFTEENH DAY OF SEPTEMBER, 1879, at 10 o'clock A. M., by Joseph L. Garretson. Homestead Application No. 93, for the S. W. ¼ of Section 31, T. 6 S., R. 33 E., and names the following as his witnesses: John R. Westerville and Alexander McCloy, of Inyo Co., California.

Also, on the same day, will be heard at 11 o'clock A. M, Homestead Application No. 96, of Alexander McCloy, for the N. W. ¼ of Section 5, T. 7 S., R 33 E., and he names the following as his witnesses: Joseph L. Garretson and John R. Westerville, of Inyo Co., Cal.

And it is hereby ordered that said hearing be had before Hon. John A. Hannah, Judge of the County Court of the County of Inyo, State of California.

Prevision and Faith.

The two great articles in Dr. Glenn's creed are first, land monopoly; second, coolie labor. The second is the legitimate corollary of the first. One is the natural sequence of the other. Glenn owns as much if not more land in Oregon as he does in California. In Oregon his chief business is stock-raising. Now there are no emergencies in stock-raising which render it necessary to engage suddenly 300 or 400 harvest hands. Therefore the employment of coolies on Dr. Glenn's Oregon ranch must be accepted as illustrating his true instincts and predilections. According to the Oregon papers, nearly all the men employed on Glenn's stock ranch are Mongolians. The whites are few and far between, like the overseers on a plantation in ante bellum times.

A correspondent of a Sacramento paper adds another illustration of what Glenn is aiming at. It is stated upon reliable authority that his two eldest boys understand Chinese, one speaking it quite fluently. It is not mentioned where this familiarity with the Mongolian tongue was obtained—whether at the Colusa or the Oregon ranch. But it is clear the Chinese are in sufficient numbers on both ranches to make it the prevailing language in either place. Now Chinese is not a language acquired for literary purposes. A knowledge of it is and must always be of great commercial value to large employers of coolie labor. Dr. Glenn is probably the largest individual employer of Chinese labor on the Pacific Coast. The fact that his two children are learning the language indicates that he is preparing to employ them in still greater numbers, and without the intervention of a middleman or Chines boss. Of course if land monopoly is to increase in the future as in the past, the Mongolian element will be the only available class of labor. Dr. Glenn may have the prevision that such time is coming. Neither Dr. Glenn nor any of his class is likely therefore to earnestly assist in checking Chinese immigration. If the people are in earnest in their efforts to obtain the abrogation of the Burlingame treaty, they ought not to confer upon such a man the highest office within their gift. The election of Glenn would undoubtedly have the effect to cast ridicule on every effort hereafter made at Washington to suppress or restrict Chinese immigration.—S. F. Bulletin.

A CURIOUS fact is reported from Tulare county: Wheat is now growing near Hanford, where four years ago the water of Tulare Lake stood ten feet deep. In the four years previous to last April the lake has receded five miles. Since last April it has receded one mile. Much of the land thus reclaimed is excellent for a wheat crop this year, it requiring no irrigation save the seepage from the lake. On the land reclaimed from the lake are found evidences of former occupation, remains of a cabin and corral, and irrigating ditches can be traced running in straight lines, and some of them extending into the lake, and apparently still further under the waters.—S. F. Bulletin.

IN August, 1851, just 28 years ago, the first locomotive was landed on this coast. Isaac Parker, now a property holder in Seattle, W. T., and a machinist by trade, was engaged in its construction at the Globe Iron Works, in South Boston, Mass., in 1850, and was subsequently employed to bring it out to San Francisco and set it up. The locomotive was intended for hauling sand in the streets of San Francisco, and it weighed twenty tons. Proving too heavy for this service, it was subsequently laid up, and a few years thereafter sold to the Sacramento Valley Railroad Company, when its name was changed from "Elephant" to "C. K. Garrison."

KATE CHASE SPRAGUE.

How the Lady Looked as She Listened to Conkling's Speech.

She wore a dress of some Oriental fabric, a band of embroidery and fringe in warm Eastern colors trimmed the sleeveless jacket and overskirt; a tiny bonnet, of which I only remember the feathers, covered her dainty-shaped well-poised head, and a dotted lace veil was tightly drawn over her face, which has lost the glory of its expression. I should not have known her. The countenance used to be full of high bred repose, and there was a spirituelle delicacy in the contour of her face which never failed to fascinate, a tenderness about her mouth, a sad, introverted look in her eyes, which gave extraordinary interest to her attractive appearance. I don't know if the change lies in the style she has recently adopted for dressing her hair, or if it is in her bonnet or because she has grown stouter, or what, but she has changed and so greatly altered that I did not recognize her. Alphonso told me it was she, and a friend who had known her from her youth confirmed the statement, and together we three marveled at the alteration in the face of this once so beautiful woman. I noticed as a peculiarity that she carried two—indeed, I think three—fans; one a luxurious gray feathered affair, which in her slender hand went back and forth with an idle, lazy, sleepy motion, its feathers just ruffled enough to stir a breeze; the other was a blue-papered Japanese trifle, and she fluttered one of a dark material. She was much observed during the evening, and I noticed more than one lorgnette directed toward her who for nearly a quarter of a century has been a star in the social horizon. During the winter Mrs. Sprague has lived in a rented house on K street, and goes but little into society; indeed, she has led rather the life of a recluse. There are three or four children, handsome and well trained.—Corr. Cincinnati Enquirer.

CHEAP VENTILATION.—At the Mount and Vancouver mine they have adopted a very cheap and efficient method of obtaining a supply of pure air. Their shaft is 1,400 feet deep and consists of two compartments. The south compartments is a downcast and the north an upcast. They have a drift running west a distance of 450 feet, and in order to supply the miners working in the face of this drift with pure air a partition has been made which extends along the drift fr m the shaft. This partition is made of inch boards and now extends out along the drift a distance of 200 feet. The air descends the south compartment of the drift to the end of the partition, where it turns and moves east along the north compartment of the drift and thence up the north compartment of the shaft to the surface. Although the partition extends but 200 feet, yet it causes a good circulation of air at the face of the drift 250 feet beyond. The partition will be carried forward and will be kept near the face of the drift as the work progresses. In order to leave room for the car-track the drift was widened two feet on the south side before the partition was put in.—Enterprise.

THE BRITISH CHANNEL TUNNEL.—The great tunnel under the British Channel with which it is proposed to connect England and France, has not yet been fairly commenced, but the engineers have sunk a shaft near Sangatte, in order to ascertain the depth and currents of the water. When the preliminary experiments are concluded the work of making the tunnel itself will begin. The shaft now being sunk has a diameter of nine feet, and is to go to the depth of 260 feet. Work in the shaft has been suspended for the last three months, as the water comes in so rapidly that it has been necessary to construct a machine which will extract 600 gallons per minute, or double what the machine first used could remove. The shaft has already been sunk to half the proposed depth. The walls of the shaft are being lined with small oak planks, with a backing of concrete. The earth which has been excavated is of a white, chalky nature, and very hard.

A BALTIMORE Professor has a patent for a suit of flying clothes. By working the arms the man in the clothes mounts heavenward. Water-proof pantaloons and jacket are in one place. To this is fastened a reservoir made of oiled silk, and stretching from shoulders to waist. To each arm is attached a wing made of silk, with steel ribs. After the mortal has essayed the flight of a bird, and is high in air, he hoists a sail. A mast four feet long is jointed with this back, and a triangular sail is set so as to be regulated by his feet. When the sail is raised the arms are motionless, and the gentleman in the air air booms along like a center-board yacht under a spanking breeze.—Virginia Enterprise.

AN inquisitive Yankee asked James Keene what his business was, and the latter replied he was a farmer. The farmer said he didn't begin to look like a farmer, when the wheat speculator replied: "Appearances are often deceptive, my friend. Doubtless, from my dress and white hands, you would take me for a resident of some city, but I give you my word that I have made my living of late by raising wheat." The Yankee neglected to ask him how high he had raised it.

AN Englishman with a note-book in his hand was hit on the head with a clam-shell by a careless boy, as he came off the boat. He immediately went to the Delevan and wrote a chapter of his impressions of America, entitled "How Albany strikes a stranger."—Albany Journal.

OLD MINING CAMPS.—An old mining camp, in the growing hours of dusk, has the air of the most peaceful acquiescence with the ways of Providence. There is nothing else like it in the universe. The sleepiest fisher-village that ever clung to black cliffs above the lazy breakers and the white shore, will rouse when shoals of herring fill the bay, or when the Winter storms come with their wild rage, bearing some doomed ship on the foaming rocks; the sleepiest village of the valley grows, though slowly, by increase in the value of lands, and the drift of improvements in the community. But the old mining camp is a mystery to the thoughtful inquirer. If a man moves away there his house stands and rots into a pile of kindling wood. Yonder was a pretty garden on the slope, but the progress of the mines has cut the water ditches, which now cannot reach it, and so it is neglected and barren. Here is a building—solid brick walls, iron shutters, door which would withstand a siege—it was a bank once, where exchanges could be had on London, Hamburg, and all the great centers of trade; now it is plastered over with red paper signs, and occupied by a score of narrow-lidded, yellow Chinese. Yet there are quiet, shaded cottages, and the most lovely of homes in almost every one of those old mining camps. Take a little turn, apart from the decaying business center of the town, and you will find what would delight the most care-hardened traveler. Quiet men sitting on the doorsteps, and watching that last quiver of sunlight in the pines which is so eternally new and glorious; fair women in Summer garments of white, standing by fragrant pillars of roses; chubby-faced children, full of healthy merriment, slipping in or out among the trees, or playing on the terraced bit of grass plot beside the grape trellis. Ah! we have at last found out the charm of many a mountain town which cynical tourists delight to deny. There are abiding places, and homes of men here also, even as in the fairest of valleys.—Eureka Sentinel.

ROCK DRILLING BY ELECTRICITY.—The application of electricity for the purpose of drilling or boring rocks has been suggested by M. Gaston Plate, the inventor of the process of engraving on glass by the same agency, which was made known in 1877. In the latter process, one of the electrodes conducting an electric current of high tension, being brought in contact with the glass, in presence of saline solution, acts like a graver or diamond, by tracing grooves in the surface of the glass, and even digs into it quite deeply. In spite of its great hardness, rock crystal can also be attacked by the same method; and, if not engraved regularly, it at least cracks into small fragments, and is finally disintegrated. Under conditions analogous to these, the electric current might be substituted for diamonds in the operation of drilling rocks. M. Plante states that electrodes of platinum would not be necessary, for here it is not the metal of the electrode that is affected, but the silicious matter, in contact with a saline solution. Metallic points or projections, suitably located at the extremity of the drill, isolated on a part of its length, and actuated by a rotary movement, would lead the electric current to the surface of the rock to be pulverized, and would thus replace those numerous and expensive diamond which are set in the head of the drills employed in the present system of rock boring.—Scientific Press.

DR. GLENN, the Democratic candidate for Governor in California, has been compelled to admit that he employs Chinese, and that he farms 55,000 acres of land by servile labor. He is, in short, one of the land monopolists who have done more than all other causes combined to retard the growth of California, and to give a basis to the senseless chattering of Kearney and his dupes.—Chicago Tribune.

JULES COILLARD, of Bakersfield, picked up in the woods a giant powder cap. To ascertain if it were explosive he pried into it with his pocket-knife. The loss of four fingers convinced him that it was.

THE "CHRONICLE."

While we do not feel in the least disposed to uphold Rev. I. S. Kalloch's recent essay to "fight the devil with fire," and which led to his probably mortal wounding at the hands of Charles De Young, we cannot but utterly condemn the course of the latter in his every act leading up to this dreadful culmination. For years past—aye, from the day he was born, it would appear—this man has been assiduously sowing the wind, and now comes his legitimate harvest of the whirlwind. The only wonder is that he himself has not long ere this had meted to him exactly the same reward for his own innumerable offendings against decency that he has but now awarded with a bloody hand upon the first who has met him in his own mode of warfare.

The course of this man De Young, or of his journal, for which his own name is synonymous, is most remarkable. The paper has had no superior for journalistic enterprise. Its success has been quite wonderful. Its influence has been great, almost without precedence. Yet it is certainly true that that influence is almost exclusively attributable to the fact that it has always appealed almost exclusively to the very meanest attributes of human nature—by exciting curiosity to read of the weaknesses, the short-comings, the crimes, the lusts, the vanities of society. It has lived and flourished as a "puller down" of the good quite as often as the bad, hunting its victims among the good with the same ferocity with which it impaled the bad. Though many degrees above the Mazeppa in its aims as a legitimate newspaper, yet it descended even below that black sheet in pandering to "polite," pruriency. For the silver that it might thereby bring to its coffers, it has sneaked into innocent and unsuspecting households and deliberately wrecked their future peace and happiness. It waxed powerful and rich by spreading the vilest scandals of the day. It has pursued good men with the most devilish malignity and perseverance. It has even desecrated the grave in pursuit of its revenges. Neither age nor virtue nor feebleness nor sex could divert its malignant hunt for the sensational. It has, without question, caused more deep and lasting and uncalled for heartaches than all other publications in this State combined; and worst of all is, that though even when honestly misled into grievous errors of any kind, it never in any nameable instance had the manliness, so to speak, to attempt partial amends by acknowledging its error.

It has become a power in politics, not by force of its reasonings or arguments, but by holding the rod of terror over its helpers. To that fact, and that almost alone, does it owe the leadership of its present or recent powerful following. In this very canvass it has sent influential lieutenants into the field to do its bidding, not that they loved their master or respected its position, but they feared to disobey its mandates. Immunity from its attacks was the wages for their services. At least, such we believe to be the fact in the case of more than one of these powerful Chronicle H. B. lieutenants, or strikers, like Gorham, Terry, Cole et al. And with such aid, and by the most intrepid and astonishing misrepresentations of facts, it has nearly succeeded in making itself the absolute political dictator of this State. Like a hunted fox whose cunning will send a pack of green hounds yelping on the track of a poor rabbit instead of his own, so this unscrupulous paper has succeeded in this political canvass in sending thousands of well meaning people barking on not only a wrong trail, figuratively and comparatively speaking, but one that is perfectly cold. All this it has done by sheer force of the most mendacious lying.

Believing all this as we do, there is no question but the continuance of such a widely circulated paper as the San Francisco Chronicle as heretofore conducted, must, sooner or later, have an effect absolutely disastrous to the virtue and morals of an entire people. De Young's most cowardly blow gives us this cause for rejoicing, viz: That while we do not wish for the destruction of his paper, the welfare of the community demands the utter destruction of the peculiarly blighting influence of its owner, as superinduced by the outrageousness of his journal. In that way, Parson Kalloch is vastly more a promise of good to this people, now that he is shot, than Kalloch as a living preacher of the Gospel ever was or will be—that is, if his destruction should work that of his assailant as well as his own.

THE SAN FRANCISCO ATROCITY.

No merely personal affatr which has occurred since the death of James King, of the Bulletin, in 1856, has excited such general and intense feeling as that which took place in San Francisco last Saturday morning when Charles De Young attempted to deliberately assassinate I. S. Kalloch, the Workingman's candidate for the Mayoralty of that city. The main facts are probably by this time known to about every reading person in the United States; but there are doubtless some who have had nothing of the particulars. For the benefit of such we will give the important details.

Goaded beyond human endurance at the senseless and merciless personal abuse showered upon him by the Chronicle, Kalloch, in a public speech, retorted upon the De Youngs, giving in substance the story of the meaness of their origin and natures, as published by Napthally in the Sun some five years ago. The sum of this was that these De Youngs sprung from a mother who was among the lowest of the low; that their sisters were no better than the mother, and that they themselves were lecherous scoundrels of the blackest die. Kalloch's excuse for retorting in this way was that not alone because of their outrageous villification of himself personally, but becaus ethey had dragged his venerable father from the grave to point out that he, while alive, was no better than his ill-begotten son. Kalloch gave notice that the Sun story with additions would be republished in full in the Open Letter of the following Tuesday morning. De Young notified him by letter and messenger that his (Kalloch's) life should pay the forfeit.

The De Young brothers, it appears, spent all of the following night in discussing their plan of action. In pursuance of the plan agreed upon, Charles took a seat in a coupé on Saturday morning, bent upon hunting Kalloch and shooting him on sight. After failing to find the object of his search at several different places where he called, he finally drove to the Metropolitan Temple, and saw Kalloch in the act of getting into a buggy. De Young sent a messenger boy in uniform to him with a message that "there was a lady in the coupé who wished to see him." Kalloch, without a moment's hesitation or apparent thought of danger, stepped at once to the side of the coupé. When within a few feet of the door, the curtain of the window was pushed aside and a shot fired full in his breast. Turning to run back into the building he received another shot in the thigh, De Young by this time being in full view, standing on the step of the carriage with a large revolver in his hand. The bystanders had taken in the situation by this time, and soon upsetting the coupé, began to drag about and kick De Young, in a frantic endeavor to kill him at once. Almost by a miracle, as it would seem, officer Knight finally succeeded in getting the wretched assassin from the hands of the mob and to a place of safety in the city prison. The news, of course, spread as if the air was a universal telegraph. Kalloch's wounds were at first supposed mortal, one of the bullets, as subsequently discovered, having lodged just above the heart, and where at last accounts it still remained. He may recover, but his chances are most slender.

It was the general anticipation that Kalloch's followers would try to take the law into their own hands, and that a general and most bloody riot would ensue. But, as much to the general astonishment as to the credit of the Workingmen's leaders, all—Kearney included — counseled against violent measures of any kind. Nevertheless, should Kalloch die, as he is liable to at any moment, the merest accident may cause bloody scenes, for there are thousands only too anxious for a chance to begin.

THE Bodie Standard expresses our views first rate in this: "The excitement in San Francisco over the shooting of Kalloch by De Young has about subsided, and it is every way probable that Kalloch will recover. There was nothing in the quarrel between these two men which should have enlisted popular sympathy on either side. They probably told much truth about each other, and had De Young given Kalloch any sort of a show for his life, he would not have been blamed very much for shooting the preacher for calling him and his brother 'two bastard sons of a prostitute.' Kalloch has a most unsavory reputation, but this affair is likely to make him Mayor of San Francisco. Should this be the result, we anticipate one of the most corrupt and disreputable administrations from which that city has ever suffered."

LATEST reports say that Kalloch is in a very fair way to recover from his fearful wounding. Of course he will be elected Mayor. But he would have accomplished more for the general good if he had headed the biggest kind of a procession to Lone Mountain.

ASKED TO STEP DOWN.

At a great sand-lot meeting held on the evening of the 24th, the Workingmen gave expression to their feelings in regard to the attempted murder of their leader by the unanimous adoption of two sets of resolutions, one set of considerable length, the nature of which can be understood from this clause:

Therefore, let us, in mass meeting assembled, with uplifted hand to Heaven, swear that henceforth, each and several, we will neither take nor countenance the Chronicle. That we will not patronize nor leave a cent with any firm or house, if we can help it, who takes or publishes in the murderer's organ, so help us God.

The other relates to Glenn and White in particular, and is as follows:

WHEREAS, Hugh J. Glenn has consented to allow his name to be used as a candidate for the highest position within the gift of the people of the State of California, by a party having its origin in the corrupt brain of the assassin, Charles de Young; and

WHEREAS, The candidature of said Glenn is warmly and bitterly espoused by that barnacle of the body politic, the San Francisco Chronicle, the circulation of which in our midst can be naught else but a libel upon the good morals, intelligence, integrity and fair name of the people of the city and State; and

WHEREAS, The greatest and most unbearable evils affecting the welfare and well-being of the State are Chinese employers and land monopolists; and

WHEREAS, It has been demonstrated that beyond the peradventure of a doubt that said Glenn is the fosterer and representative of Chinese immigration and land grabbing; be it

Resolved, By the twenty thousand voters in solemn conclave assembled here to-day, that we most urgently and emphatically demand of Hugh J. Glenn to withdraw from the Gubernatorial contest, as his association with a band of cowardly assassins must and should lead to ignoble and dishonorable defeat.

Resolved, That all citizens, no matter of what political faith, be invited to unite with us in securing an honest administration of affairs by elevating to the position of Governor of the State that pure and incorruptible citizen, Wm. F. White, the honest farmer of Santa Cruz.

A LIVELY shooting scrape took place at Bodie, in which one man was killed and two others seriously wounded, on the evening of the 22d instant. From the Bodie Standard of the 23d instant, containing a full account of the affray, we obtain the following facts in relation thereto: "Some time ago a company of miners located a claim on Silver Hill, southwest of the Goodshaw shaft, which they named the Owyhee. Here a shaft was sunk and work done of considerable extent. A few days ago the company commenced another shaft, north from the Silas B. Smith, and have since been sinking. The Jupiter hoisting works are located about eight hundred feet in a northerly direction, and the stakes of the Jupiter are outside, on the south of the location claimed as the Owyhee. Geo. Daly, Superintendent of the Jupiter, caused a small house to be placed over the new shaft, claimed as the Owyhee. The men who claimed the latter were in a cabin some hundred feet further south, and were well supplied with arms. On the evening in question, John McDonald, foreman of the Jupiter, was fired at by an unknown party and narrowly escaped being killed. After this attempt on McDonald's life, he returned the shot and the man disappeared. Several desultory shots were fired from both parties, and at 10 o'clock the Daly party made an assault on the claimants, who were entrenched in a dug-out covered by the cabin, about 100 feet from the shaft. The assault was so unexpected that the assailing party were in possession of the cabin in short order. In the melee John Gough, one of the claimants of the Owyhee, was shot and killed, and Thomas Hamilton and Patrick McDermott, wounded. Geo. Daly was arrested and taken over to Bridgeport, accompanied by a strong Sheriff's posse, and lodged in jail."

Trial of Wm. Pierce.

The trial of Wm. Pierce, who killed Sam Halsey at Sweetwater, is going on at Carson City, to which place Mr. Reddy, his counsel, obtained a change of venue. The following from the Carson Appeal of the 26th, gives all the details that have reached us:

District Court—By request Hon. Wm. M. Seawell, Judge of the Third Judicial District, presiding.

State vs. Wm. Pierce. On motion of defendant's counsel, P. Reddy, and by consent, the trial of this cause was continued until Wednesday, 27th instant, at 2 o'clock P. M., in order that the depositions of witnesses in this cause be taken before the committing magistrate might be produced, they not being on file in this office.

P. Reddy and N. Soderberg, counsel for defendant; Thomas Wells, M. A. Murphy, A. L. Greeley, M. A. Driesbach, counsel for prosecution.

Jurors in attendance are excused until 2 o'clock Wednesday.

An attachment was ordered for three defaulting jurors.

Court adjourned until to-morrow morning at 10 o'clock A. M.

DE YOUNG waived examination, and is held to appear before the County Court without bail. Mike sticks close to the inside of the city prison, too, all for his health's sake.

A QUESTION.

County Clerks quite generally throughout the State have shown a laudable desire to give all citizens a chance to get their names on the Great Register up to the latest possible day. Until the present absurd election law came into force, as it is now for the first time for a general election, registrations were receivable up to the last hour of election day, and parties so registering could get in their votes on certificate. But the absurd law changes all this. No man can vote unless his name appears on the printed Great Register. So to meet this new requirement, many County Clerks have had supplements printed, containing all registrations made after the 1st, and up to the 20th of August. This answers all requirements of the absurd law as regards names appearing in print, and unless the matter of the date of such delayed registrations becomes a bar, there is no doubt at all but such registrations are entitled to vote. But the aforesaid absurd law seems clearly to mean that no registrations made after August 1 can give the right to vote at the next ensuing election, even though the names do appear in the printed supplement. That is the question to be decided. If Election Boards should refuse to receive votes from registrations made after August 1, they do so in violation of one plain right under the law, and, we opine, would, by so doing, be incurring quite as much risk of vitiating the precinct returns as if all such votes were accepted; at least, the denial of duly registered votes might be held as an illegal disfranchisement. The whole matter is pending a decision in Judge Daingerfield's (12th District) Court. In default of the timely news of an adverse decision, we do not see anything better to do than to receive all registered votes without regard to date of registration, if otherwise legal. But it is by no means conclusive that will not be finally adjudged illegal.

LET those Democrats who, from some inexplicable reasoning, expected their party to make a point in aiding the De Youngs to elect their great Bilko-Democratic candidate for Governor, glance over the Chronicle's ante-election returns from almost every county in the State and note how completely the Democrats are hid away under the assumed immense "N. C. P." vote. Then let them guess from the way their actual weight is now so utterly ignored what an "immense" share of the glory, and official emoluments and patronage and honors would fall to their share, supposing the Bilk organ was to succeed in electing its leading Bilk, which it has not an earthly show of doing by H. B. votes alone. Undeniably, if the Bilk organ has the power to hoodwink voters into electing even the head of its ticket, it has the power to arrogate to itself and mythical party every particle of the benefits of the achievement and all the glory. It would be the King, indeed, so let no would-be Bilk Republican or Demorat forget it.

THE discussion of the merits of the numerous candidates in the pending contest has been confined so very exclusively to two or three of the leading ones, that the great mass of voters must cast their ballots for most of those they support, no matter on what ticket, without knowing anything at all about some for the most important offices. Such is the case with most of the aspirants for the Supreme Bench. Of the whole number we hear little or nothing about the alleged merits or demerits of more than one or two. In the latter category we find the name of Jarrett T. Richards, a Republican candidate for Associate Justice. From the statements of the Santa Barbara Press, where Richards lives, we are constrained to believe he is just the sort of man who ought not to be elected. His general unfitness for the place is asserted to be such that the Republicans of his own section will not vote for him at all. We think it quite a certainty that a better choice can be made, since there are so many candidates against whom nothing is being said.

BURIED YESTERDAY.—From the undertaker's books we find two burials recorded yesterday: that of Hugh Johnson, a cook in the Gold Hill Restaurant, and David Love, the Inyo man already mentioned as very ill. In the case of Mr. Love it is proper for his friends in the East to know that to the last he never suffered from want; that his Inyo friends and acquaintances who were familiar with his history, aided him whenever he wanted—sending him to the Hot Springs for treatment and on returning he was never refused in any town he chanced to be. It was his pride and the consciousness of dependence which hastened the end of poor "Dave." Hugh Johnson leaves a wife and two children in Canada.—Bodie Standard, Aug. 18.

A STATEMENT appeared in the morning paper last Sunday to the effect that in the Bodie Miners' Union, a motion to "hang Geo. Daly on first appearance in Bodie was carried without a dissenting voice." This remarkable assertion has caused considerable comment, and upon inquiry of several of the leading members of the Union, we learn that no such motion was ever adopted by that organization.—Bodie Standard.

AT the election next week all the tickets will contain the words, "Against Chinese immigration." The object of this is to show the Eastern people how unanimous the people of California are on this subject. But how strangely in contravention of this would it be for the people of this district to elect Pacheco to Congress, a man who has a public record in favor of Chinese labor.—Fresno Expositor.

Yes, and Dr. Glenn, Bilko-Democratic candidate for Governor, and Henry M. Larue, Bilko-Republican candidate for Secretary of State, both of whom have the finest living record on this question of any private gentlemen in the State—the first in unknown numbers on his ranch, the latter not less than 120 at work on his mining grounds in Sierra county. Oh, certainly; "let's get out of this!"

EVEN the killed and wounded and Honorable Bilks and everybody will be glad "when this cruel war is over." We half-way believe we can tell pretty nearly how it is going to foot up in the main, but for fear of accidents, we will only risk the prophecy that full two-thirds or more of all the candidates in the State will not be elected, and most of them will be Bilks or bilked.

Register of the U. S. Land Office.

Hon. R. M. Briggs having resigned the position of Register of the United States Land Office, the President has appointed Hon. James E. Goodall to fill the vacancy. Judge Goodall is a lawyer by profession, was at one time County Judge of Mono county, and recently a member of the Board of Supervisors. Judge Briggs' resignation takes effect August 31st, and it is doubtful if Judge Goodall's commission will be received before October 1st. During the interim no business can be transacted in the Land Office. We would suggest to the Inyo and Kern county papers to call the attention of their readers to this fact, so that they may not be put to the expense of a useless journey to Bodie.—Bodie Standard.

POLITICAL ADVERTISEMENTS.

CARD TO THE PUBLIC.

MESSRS. EDITORS:— In justice to myself, as well as to many not personally acquainted with me, yet desirous of my election (if adjudged worthy) to the office of County Treasurer, I deem it but right to ask you to give place to the two notes hereto appended. Respectfully,

GEO. H. HARDY.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 13, 1879.

To whom it may concern: Mr. Geo. H. Hardy has been in my employ for a number of years, and I have found him at all times to be temperate in his habits, strictly honest and faithful in the performance of his duties, as well as capable of managing business and of keeping books.

Respectfully, J. S. ROTHSCHILD.

2808 LAGUNA STREET, SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 13, 1879.

To whom it may concern: I hereby take pleasure in recommending Mr. Geo. H. Hardy as a man eminently fit and thoroughly competent to fill the office of Treasurer of Inyo county. Having tested his clerical ability and conscientious course in the discharge of all duties for years, I feel perfectly qualified to pronounce upon his fitness for said official position.

I have been induced to offer the above testimony on learning that some party has made the malicious charge of "incompetency" against him.

J. P. M. PERHAM.

UNREASONABLE PERSECUTION.

INDEPENDENCE, August 29, 1879.

Editors Inyo Independent—DEAR SIRS: It is indeed humiliating to think that a worthy and honorable citizen should be persecuted, and that for no other possible reason than unfortunately having to serve on a jury, and decide according to evidence and his own judgment.

This party is Geo H. Hardy, candidate for the position of County Treasurer. I am credibly informed that certain prominent citizens of Cerro Gordo are trying their utmost to defeat him, for reason above stated. By giving this article space in your valuable paper you will do justice to Mr. Hardy, and greatly oblige, 480-1 AN OLD CITIZEN.

TO THE TAX-PAYERS OF INYO COUNTY.

All will acknowledge that one occupying an official position should follow a strict line of duty; that he should have no friends to favor or enemies to punish.

More particularly is this true of an Assessor, who by the nature of his office is made the judge of valuations of the property of the citizens, who to a large extent are at his mercy. All will acknowledge that property of equal values should be assessed at equal rates. Has this been done under the administration of the present incumbent, who is again soliciting your votes for a re-election? The following, taken from his assessment roll for this year, furnishes the best answer to the question. The said assessment roll discloses the fact that the following properties, the values of which are known to a large portion of the tax-payers of the county, have been assessed as follows, viz.:

G. C. Alexander, Bishop Creek, has half breed horses assessed at $50 each. W. A. Rose, Independence, half breed horses at $40 each. W. D. Clark, Black Rock, half breed horses at $25 each. D. B. Curtis, Fish Springs, half breed horses at $40 each. W. A. Baker, Big Pine, 160 acres of land at $5 per acre. Richard Hessian, Big Pine, 160 acres of land at $7 per acre. J. M. McMurry, Big Pine, 140 acres of land at $7 per acre, 160 acres at $6 per acre. P. Reddy's law library at $500. P. W. Bennett's law library at $1,000. P. Reddy's homestead and improvements at $1,800. Thos. May's saloon and dwelling house at $2,800.

The above are only a few of the discrepancies to be found on the assessment roll of Inyo county for the year 1878-1879, and further comment is unnessary.

INVESTIGATOR.

VOTERS, ATTENTION.

Being a candidate on the New Constitution Ticket for the office of Assessor of Inyo County, and being fully convinced that I have no chance of being elected to that responsible office on account of my late announcement, and fully believing that it is for the best interests of the Democratic Party, of which I am an humble member and with which I have always affiliated, I hereby withdraw from the political contest, and in favor of J. F. Dillon, the regular nominee. Most respectfully, yours,

N. L. APPLE.

MODOCK OFFICIAL LETTER.—The official letter of the week is as follows:

August 25, 1879.

J. W. Pew, Esq., Secretary Modock Con. M. Co.:—DEAR SIR: The following progress has been made on the 1000-foot level for the week ending to-day:

South drift, 300 foot, run 16 feet; north drift, 300 foot, 12 feet; north drift, 800 foot, 17 feet; north crosscut, 1000 foot, 18 feet; south drift, 1100 foot, 12 feet. Total length of south drift, 300 foot, 172 feet. North drift, 300 foot, 90 feet; north drift, 800 foot, 144 feet. North crosscut, 1000 foot, 23 feet; south drift, 1100 foot, 144 feet. The face of the north drift, 300-foot point, continues in ore, as at last report. At a distance of 18 feet in this drift ore came in at the top and at half the present length of drift the top, bottom and face was in ore. At a short distance from this point we cut through the ore in the top of drift and have since had it about two-thirds up in the face, also in the bottom, with little variation. The apparent course of this ore vein has been downward and into the hill, following the direction of the drift. At the completion of 100 feet in the drift we shall explore it to ascertain its extent at this point. The ore at the face of drift appears much stronger and is in better ground than at any previous time. Assays from this drift, made to-day, run as follows: No. 1, 70 per cent. lead, 136-08 oz. silver. No. 2, 41 per cent. lead, 194-40 oz. silver. No. 3, 37 per cent. lead, 155-53 oz. silver. No unfavorable change at other points in the mine.

Yours, respectfully,
A. C. TIBBETTS, Supt.

GOT BACK.—Jas. Shepherd and Jas. Moffit got back a few days ago from their long and arduous pursuit of those horse-thieves. They got both of the stolen horses, but one of them had been so horribly abused by the thieves that he soon after died, notwithstanding earnest efforts made to relieve his sufferings and to recuperate him. He was bruised and cut in such a way as to lead to the belief that after being ridden nearly to death, he had been thrown over a precipice and left to die by inches. They were found in the mountains near Caliente, at the camp of an old Mexican whose only business at that particular place was to harbor horse-thieves, and take care of stolen animals. Jim Moffit, while searching alone for some track of the stolen animals, stumbled on this hiding place, and soon found himself face to face with a number of the cut-throats, one of whom he at once recognized as one of the thieves for whom he was searching. This was an old Frenchman, of whom he had received descriptions by parties along the road who had seen him and his partner in possession of the stolen horses. But the gang had the drop on Jim, so he did not think it advisable to attempt any arrests just then. After getting away by telling them some plausible story to account for his visit, he found one of the horses grazing some distance away, and brought him into Bakersfield, and in company with Mr. Shepherd, who had been hard at work in another direction, returned to the thieves' camp that evening but only to find they had taken the alarm and left for parts unknown. The disabled horse was found and taken to Bakersfield, but only to die soon after. It seems that this Frenchman and his Mexican partner are the same who passed though this valley some weeks ago with a lot of stolen animals, but which were recovered from them near Benton, they themselves eluding arrest. While coming back they fastened on the Shepherd horses, as related heretofore. Quite recently we hear that a party of Mexican bandits are raiding in Tulare or Kern county, and it is altogether likely that gang is composed in part of the same lot seen by Moffit in the old Mexican's camp near Caliente.

HIS CARD.—As will be seen by his letter given elsewhere, Jos. Wasson, candidate for the Assembly, finds it impossible to visit us in this section before election, and, therefore, has to address his friends by letter instead, and by card, which appears under "New Advertisements." But immediately after election, let the result of that be as may, Mr. Wasson and Capt. Prescott propose "to do" Inyo county from end to end on a tour of mining inspection, and to procure facts to be presented in Mr. Wasson's forthcoming book which is intended to introduce to the world every material fact relating to the mining and all other resources of this entire region. There are no two men who men better calculated to do that very work than these. Both are mining men of many years' experience, while Wasson has few or no superiors as a writer.

IN LUCK.—Through a private letter we learn that 10,000 shares of the Sultan Hill mine, Indian District have been sold to Eastern parties at $3 per share. This mine is in good part the property of Captain Prescott and Joe Wasson, the former being superintendent of the property, and the latter one of our candidates for the Assembly. Both of these gentlemen, the Captain particularly, have had a long and hungry fight of it in their endeavors to develop this most promising property, and none who know them but must be glad indeed that good fortune is beginning to reward their efforts.

SOLD OUT.—W. B. Hutchins, or "Billy Hutch," for short, has sold his "Star Billiard Saloon" business at Bishop to Messrs. J. T. Brunty and Wm. Kilby, late of Ventura county. Billy goes to Lake to try his fortunes. The advertisement of the new firm appears in this issue.

FUNNY.—Out of the nine candidates for county offices indorsed by the Cerro Gordo H. B. Club, all voted against the New Constitution except one.

SQUAW MURDERED. — On Monday night last a well known mahala, one "Maria," was murdered by some of her people. The following morning the body was found partially covered up in the brush a little east of Harris & Rhine's warehouse, the throat being cut from ear to ear. From various sources we have the following: Something over a year ago, a young mahala, known as "Mrs. Snelling," was murdered near Camp Independence. Until the present, that affair was wrapped in unusual mystery, as it was reported that the foul deed was the work of some white person, aided by one or more Indians, and that death was produced by aid of poison. It is now stated by the Indians that the poison was administered in whisky given by this Maria, and that both were furnished by a white man, whose name we shall withhold, though this alleged white accomplice ran away from here some months since on account of a shooting affair in which he was party. The brothers of that mahala then resolved on avenging her death, and it was through them and on that account that this Maria came to her death. Maria was a hard-featured and much disipated squaw, and stands accused by some of her people of having murdered more one than of their number, and was an object of no little dread to many of them. On this account numbers of them express themselves greatly pleased that there is nothing more to fear from her. But she leaves behind several brothers who are reported desperate characters, and determined on avenging her death. Those best posted in Piute local affairs anticipate that the murdering business among them does not end with Maria.

SETILED.—We are told that the threatened difficulties as to the ownership of the "Gold Hill" ledge, at Cerro Gordo, have been satisfactorily arranged, and that there is every probability of that most promising ledge, and a number of others adjacent, passing into the hands of a wealthy company whose future operations will put a vastly different aspect on business affairs in this region. Should this very probable result take place, the credit for the same will be due almost exclusively to Messrs. John Ely and C. J. Barber, who have been endeavoring to accomplish something of this kind ever since early in the Spring. Reliable opinions rate two at least of these ledges as of most extraordinory extent and character.

MINING MATTERS.—We understand that the old original Crysopolis Company, who allowed most, if not all their titles to lapse, have recently purchased a number of them back from the parties who relocated them, paying therefore some five or six thousand dollars cash. They also have submitted an offer to re-imburse all outlays of the parties who have undertaken to refit the old Crysopolis mill property. Our information is not precise enough to justify an attempt at giving particulars of names, etc., but the sum of what is above stated is correct; leading us to think the company propose to undertake work again in earnest. All these ledges lie in sight from this place on the opposite side of the river.

EVERY DAY.—Thanks to Mr. Clugage, of the Northern Stage Company, this section from this place north now enjoys the material benefit of a daily mail, Sundays included. Three out of these seven weekly trips are made at the company's expense, the Department allowing pay but for four. The mail now comes here before 7 in the morning and leaves at half-past 2 P. M., the same day, giving ample time for immediate replies to correspondents. Mr. Clugage is entitled to real thanks for his enterprise.

PATENT ISSUED.—Mr. E. Chenot, at Camp Independence, has received notice from Register Briggs that U. S. Patents have at last been granted for a series of mines on Kearsarge mountain belonging to the Con. Virginia Company. There are five of these mines, and not one but gives excellent promise. It is the intention of the company to begin permanent work on their property as soon as circumstances will permit; but, as the ledges are all at a great altitude, it is not likely anything of importance will be undertaken before next season.

ALL RIGHT AGAIN.—A Piute acquaintance informs us that "Tule," the mahala who had the severe attack of jim-jams, is "all right now; heap too much whisky; that's all that was the matter with her; she no loco."

CARD TO THE PUBLIC.—Eleswhere, under the above caption, will be found a note each from Messrs. J. S. Rothschild and J. P. M. Perham, indorsing Mr. Geo. H. Hardy in particulars there explained.

SEE TO THEM.—It is much to be hoped election officers will take special care to correctly make up their returns for this election. There has scarcely ever been an election here but some stupid blunder of that sort has caused one or more precincts to lose their vote, although specific instructions are printed with every poll list.

WITHDRAWS.—As will be seen by a card published under "Political Advertisements," N. L. Apple, H. B. candidate for Assessor, draws out of the contest in favor of J. F. Dillon, the Democratic nominee.

THE DIFFERENCES.—Under "Political Advertisements" will be found several notices of interest to voters, among the rest one relating to certain assessments as recorded on the Assessor's books.

A CHANGE.—The extreme warm weather by which we were sweated so long has given way to some that is decidedly "Fallish," especially of nights and mornings.

ENCOURAGING.—We learn that the developments in the Kearsarge winze are continually of the most satisfactory character.

LEARNING SOMETHING.—Two or three or more Indians learned something last week up at Bishop that will likely benefit them considerably. They and some four or five others got drunk as usual, and going to Mr. T. K. Hutchison's house, made such demonstrations as to greatly frighten Mrs. Hutchison, who, with her little boy, finally retreated to her bed-room. The Indians followed and endeavored to break in. Mrs. H. put her little boy out though the window that he might go for his father, who was in the fields quite a distance away, she meantime "holding the fort" as best she could against the maudlin wretches. The boy did his errand on time, and the father and another man were in a remarkably short space of time at the house hammering knowledge into the howling brutes. Two of them got so much of this that it was thought they would never get over it. They were not killed, however, nor mortally injured, but the wonder is that they were not. And it is a subject of common wonder that drunken Indians have not long ere this committed outrages upon the whites as they so often do each other, of a kind to lead to very seeious trouble. In such an event the white vagabonds who supply them with whisky, or are suspected of doing so, will come to grief very summarily.

CURIOUS.—County Clerk John Crough mailed all the election blanks in good time and proper shape to each and every precinct in the county. As shown by receipts received, all reached their proper destinations except the package for Bishop Creek. Nothing has been heard of this, so duplicates have been made out and duly forwarded. As it is positively known that the missing package was properly placed in the U. S. M. way-sack at this office, it would seem some P. M. has overlooked the address, and it may be the Bodieites or some other amarugions up that way have captured these blanks and think they've got the drop on us. Some of our candidates, too, begin to feel a little interest in knowing whether all the several packages of ballots have been received by the parties to whom they were respectively addressed, the contrary, on several instances, appearing to be the fact, as the receivers have made no sign, which would have been the proper thing. We guess, though, that the ballots will be found "thar or tharabouts" when they are wanted.

OBLIGATIONS. — Master Henry Walters, of Camp Independence, has again placed this establishment under obligations for a really superior lot of products of his skill as a gardener. And here, too, in a lump we must acknowledge several similar favors from John Kispert, of George's Creek.

ORIGIN OF TOLL ROADS IN CALIFORNIA. Many years ago in California, when the placer mines began to fail, or as was then a popular term, "peter out," the "partners" (always two or more) would be sorely pushed for the means of making grub. (It is always grub in the mountains, hash in the valleys—the terms are synonymous.) In those days the miner's Saturday's clean up would be squandered the following Sabbath day. The firm of a petered placer mine shoulder their picks and what little grub they could still run the cheek of the company for at the diggings trading post, and boldly strike out on a prospecting tour. Arriving at some secluded little valley, after a fruitless search for the color, weary, spiritless and exhausted, they would camp for the night. Next morning the leader of the party would crawl out of his blankets with a brilliant idea, as well as something else in his head. "Boys," he would say, "here is a valley of an acre and a quarter, plenty of wood and an abundance of good mountain water—let's open a toll road." He would be laughed at first, but a few explanatory words would soon demonstrate the importance of his proposition. One of the party would be dispatched to the settlements for a whipsaw and a printed rate of tolls. The necessary lumber would soon be whipped out, and a gate erected across the mouth of the cañon gorge. Subsequent mineral discoveries further beyond would necessitate travel on the line of the new toll gate. Pack animals would first find their way up. These would be followed by teams, the drivers of which would have to build their road as they went, but they would have to pay toll all the same. A Summer's travel, with the assistance of the teams and the teamster's shovels, make a tolerable toll road. In a year or so some inquisitive duck begins to question the right of our self-constituted company to collect such enormous tolls. But the sagacity of the ruling spirit is equal to the emergency. He straightway seeks the necessary quarter to hunt up an imaginary charter. No record of such instrument can be found. There has been carelessness in keeping the books. The Legislature is in session at Sacramento. The (by this time) President of the East South Slide and West Jump Off Turnpike Toll Road Company, capital stock $500,000, hurries to the capital city, where the judicious use of about as much money as one would expend in having a good time anyhow, secures the passage of a bill authorizing Pig Toed Pete, Lop Eared Joe, and One Eyed Bill, and their heirs and assigns, to construct and maintain a toll road between Sure Mire Creek and bottomless Ravine.—Tri-Weekly Bentonian.

THE irrepressible Springer, M. C., from Illinois, explains to a reporter why Mr. Tilden is given to whispering and confidential communications. He says that the old gentleman sees so much company that he is compelled to converse in a low tone in order to save his larynx and prevent the thyroid cartilage from impinging on his trachea. This is entirely satisfactory.—Eureka Sentinel.

LETTER FROM JOS. WASSON.

BODIE, Cal., Aug. 24.

MESSRS. EDITORS—Since I wrote you last, the fact became apparent that the time between then and election day was so short that to attempt the tour of Inyo county, as hoped, would leave me no time to do half justice to the situation either here or there; so I have concluded to do what I can here, where the bulk of population is, and let the more settled precincts be taken care of by friends and acquaintances. I may—expect, in fact—to go over to Lake District a day or two this week, where, like in Bodie, the population is all new and the vote hard to forecast. Everything here, however, appears to be very favorable to me, but everybody and everything is in such a hurry and jumble, with respect to every-day business affairs, that unless specially looked after, politics will be overlooked. Until very recently, and that within a limited circle, I never was in a place of such importance, where the people talked or cared less about politics, either State, national or local. I had gotten into the same groove myself, and had almost swore never to take more than a voting interest in the filthy pool. Certain of my friends sort of bulldozed me into this candidacy at the eleventh hour, and fearing any farther changes would be trifling with the ticket as a whole, I concluded to accept and do what I could to get elected. Moreover, I have tried hard and persistently to bring this out of-the-way section of the State to the notice of the world at large, and while I may not have any great claims on party or people, I feel there is no inconsistency in accepting the trying position. I have only had, as yet, but mere glimpses of Inyo county—a small inland empire in herself—but I saw enough to make me want to return at the earliest possible moment and take a thorough look at the mining districts, old and new, and gather all the reliable data concerning them for publication in durable form. By the middle of next month the weather will be more tolerable, and if nothing happens to prevent, I will go as far as Cerro Gordo, at least.

Whoever goes to the Legislature from these counties—and especially Mono—will have no enviable task to perform, providing he enters upon it with a will and endeavors to do his whole duty. Inyo county is to some extent legislated and provided for, and settled in the grooves, but this county is but the creation of a year past, as it were, and is all confusion—chaos, you may say, but growing like mad, nevertheless. Quite a city has sprung up here, without scarcely the most nominal police or other authority. Lake District is another case, only on a smaller scale as yet. Then comes the question of the new Constitution itself, from which all legislation must date and be founded upon; containing doubtless, many excellent reforms, etc., but also much that would puzzle a Philadelphia lawyer to rightly interpret. At best, the office of legislator, either great or small, is not an inviting one. In a canvass for it, it is usually overslaughed, or given second place—the county offices are the ones fought for, although they are merely routine, or ministerial sinecures, because there is more 'in" them. The best he can do, the legislator's motives are often misconstrued, and he comes home threatened with a shower of stale eggs. But I did not intend to write you more than a short business letter, Messrs. Editors, and I will close this gentle appeal with the request that if the good people of Inyo county know what is entirely good for themselves in this connection, they will give me from three to five hundred majority, regardless of race, color, or previous condition of servitude. The outside world, I am sure, have but the faintest conception of the imprisoned and at the same time important characters of the country in question. By constant hammering, however, its resources will yet be unlocked, and all concerned may be happy yet. The overdone districts of Mono will drive hundreds of prospectors and mining men over into Inyo, so that what is our loss will be your gain. Hoping it will be unanimous, I am

Yours, truly,
JOS. WASSON.

HENRY, upon being asked how many boys there were in his Sabbath school class last Sabbath, replied: "If you multiply the number of Jacob's sons by the number of times which the Israelites compassed Jericho, and add to the product the number of measures of barley which Boaz gave to Ruth; divide this by the number of Haman's sons; subtract the number of each kind of clean beasts that went into the ark; multiply by the number of men who went to seek Elijah after he was taken to Heaven; subtract from this Joseph's age at the time when he stood before Pharoah; add the number of stones in David's bag when he killed Goliath; subtract the number of furlongs that Bethany was distant from Jerusalem; divide by the number of anchors cast out at the time of Paul's shipwreck; subtract the number of people saved in the ark, and the remainder will be the number of boys in the class." How many were there?

HERE is a copy of a mining notice eceived a few days ago by Recorder Rapp, with a request that it be recorded: "Know all men that the undersigned, an individual of limited means but unlimited expectations, hereby locates, claims and intends to hold and work 1,500 feet on this ledge, containing gold, silver, copper, iron, feldspar, and spar the barkeep, together with other precious metals too numerous to mention; together with all the dips, spurs, angles and triangles, ranging from vertical and perpendicular to horizontal, and will work the same according to Hoyle and the laws of the United States of America. The undersigned is induced to make this a close corporation of one, as he is anxious that the next poor devil who comes along may have a fair show at all the extensions, if he can find them. To be known as the Elephant ledge. Signed on the ground, this 12th day of August, 1879. Lin C. Doyle."—Nevada Transcript.

FOR SHERIFF.

AT THE SOLICITATION OF MANY friends, the undersigned hereby respectfully submits his name to the voters of Inyo County, as an Independent Candidate for the office of Sheriff and Ex-officio Tax Collector.

JAMES W. SMITH.

n474td

A CARD.

TO THE VOTERS OF INYO COUNTY: Being so situated as to be unable to make a thorough canvas of the county before the coming election, and as the term is short and will hardly warrant much expense, I take this method of letting it be generally known that I desire the office for which I am the candidate of the Republican Party, viz: that of Treasurer of this County; and learning that there would be considerable opposition to me on account of my being in the employ of one of the business houses of this place, I wish it positively understood that in case I am elected I will sever such connection, and will, by a strict and careful attention to the duties of the office, endeavor to merit the confidence which places me in a position of so great responsibility.

GEO. H. HARDY.

TO THE VOTERS OF INYO COUNTY.

FELLOW CITIZENS—I AM AN INDEPENDENT candidate for Superior Judge of Inyo County, and adopt this method of announcing my candidacy, because of the geographical difficulties which prevent my making a personal canvass in every portion of the county in the brief time left before the day of election. It would have been much more congenial to my wishes to visit every place in the county, and meet my fellow-citizens in person; but this pleasure, in some instances, I must forego, for the reasons stated.

Having neglected to qualify myself for the Judgeship by admission as an attorney of the Supreme Court of the State, at the time of the Democratic County Convention, I was not then enabled to present my name for the place. But I have since qualified in that essential, and am now in the field.

I am known personally or officially to most of you. I have been a practicing attorney for thirty three years, in the old States, in California, in Oregon and in Idaho. For the last five years I have filled the office which I still hold, of District Attorney of Inyo, and am proud to be able to challenge criticism of my official conduct and professional capability. I have never framed an indictment which did not withstand the test of the Court and the law; have never drawn a legal writ that was found faulty.

I have no connection or affiliation with any clique or ring; have no special friends to unduly reward; no enemies to unjustly punish. If elected, I will bring to the discharge of the duties an honest purpose and an impartial mind, without bias or prejudice for or against any; and every case shall be determined in just accordance with the law and the right. Superior Courts under the New Constitution should be exceedingly careful in the determination of cases brought before them; to so decide as to secure suitors against the contingency of reversal of judgment by the Supreme Court, and to this end I should direct my utmost ability in the knowledge of the law upon the principles of justice. My long and large experience as a practicing lawyer, together with the consciousness of possessing the Jeffersonian qualifications of honesty and capability, are the strong points on which I depend for your favorable consideration of my candidacy.

In conclusion, Fellow Citizens, I beg to assure you of my earnest appreciation of the kindness and favor I have received at your hands during the six years I have been a resident of Inyo county, and I take this opportunity to express my heartfelt gratitude therefor. As I have endeavored in the past to serve you zealously and with unremitting devotion to your interests, and rights, and welfare, so I can solemnly pledge myself to do in the future, should you respond to my plea, in this, by electing me to the position to which I aspire, at the coming election in September. As your District Attorney, I have served you faithfully and well. If you should further honor me by an election as Superior Judge, I shall continue to serve you with all the fidelity of my nature and all the ability at my command, and the greater and deeper will be my gratefulness for such a token of your esteem and approbation.

With profound sentiments of high regard for you all, I have the honor to be your fellow citizen and friend,

R. B. SNELLING.

INYO COUNTY.

Its Past, Present and Future.

[Written for the Weekly Call by Hon. S. P. Moffat.]

Among the youngest of the counties of our State is the county of Inyo, which completed its organization in 1866, at which time it contained a population of less than one thousand, with a property valuation of between $300,000 and $400,000. Its history prior to that, particularly that portion termed "Owens River Valley," embraced more than the usual experience of frontier vicissitudes and dangers generally experienced by the enterprising, the hardy and brave, who universally form the vanguard in wresting from its wilds, its desolation or its wilderness, new countries remote from the centers of civilization, and opening up the unpromising fields as a new home for the enterprising, the industrious and the courageous.

In 1861, the territory now forming the prosperous county of Inyo contained but a few stock men, who, braving even then the well known dangers of hostile Indians, brought their herds for pasture in Owen's Valley, and a handful of the still more hardy and venturesome prospectors. From that time on, and up to 1865, it was almost a continued warfare between the few settlers, with occasional assistance from the United States troops, with the Indians, a branch of the Piute tribe, a tribe possessing all of an Indian's cruelty and savagery, yet having the merit of genuine courage, proved by many a well-contested battle, which ended only when the field became one of carnage and blood, and not always was the victory withheld from the dusky warrior. Notwithstanding the number of inhabitants continued to increase. The Indians received in the early Spring of 1865 their most severe and final repulse at the hands of the settlers, made up as it was chiefly from the prospecting and mining classes.

In the meantime rich discoveries were reported in the Inyo mountains, upon the strength of which towns were laid out and built up, and mills were constructed, without any knowledge of the extent of the ore bodies, other than that derived from the most superficial workings. As a natural and almost inevitable consequence the mills failed to remunerate their more plucky than intelligent owners, which will be the more readily understood when in connection with a mere surface exhibition of rich but naturally rebellious ores, together with the cost of procuring and placing the machinery upon the ground, all of which had to be hauled by teams from Los Angeles, two hundred and fifty miles distant, at an expense of from eight to eleven cents per pound. Of course the mills failed to pay by reason of the great expense incurred in their erection, and also and chiefly from the undeveloped condition of the mines, and from the difficulty of saving the metal really in the ores by the inexperience or ignorance of those in charge.

As a natural result of such a mining craze, the towns which were built up on the foundations of hope and rich croppings, notably, "Owensville," "San Carlos," and "Bend City," show less to-day, as evidences that they ever had an existence, than the buried city of Pompeii. In the Fall of 1864, what is now known as the Kearsarge mines, situated in the Sierra Nevada mountains, and nearly due west from Independence, the county seat of Inyo county, were discovered, and upon the faith of which the town was started.

The discovery of those mines attracted much attention from mining men from Virginia City, who, in the Spring of 1865, purchased the series of locations now so well known under the above name.

A new impetus was thus given to the mining activity of the country. In the session of 1865–6, by act of the Legislature, the county of Inyo was formed, being carved out of the counties of Tulare and Mono.

The territory embraced within the county lies east of the Sierras, the summit of which forms its western boundary, and the State line its eastern. Northerly and southerly it extends from township line between townships five and six on the north, and the sixth standard line on the south, and contains from 11,000 to 12,000 square miles.

It is a country where extremes meet. A country of startling contrasts, such as are to be found probably nowhere else on the continent. A country of rugged and giant peaks, among which are Mounts Whitney, Tyndall, Brewer, of the Sierras, and many others but little less in elevation and grandeur, and upon which the snow of ages forever rests, and forming a giant wall upon its west, as if to shut it from all connection with the State of which it forms a part, marked by precipitous and sharp outlines and deep chasms, such as to render an ascent to their summits from their eastern slopes almost an impossibility. A country where, to the eastward of those peaks pointing heavenward, the earth's surface sinks hundreds of feet beneath the level of the sea, as in that valley, once the valley of mystery and fear, known as Death Valley. A country of beautiful and fertile plains and of forbidden wastes. A country of almost Arctic frosts and torrid heat. Its principal and almost only valley capable of settlement for agricultural purposes is the valley of the Owen's river, which takes its waters from the Sierras, nearly opposite the head waters of the San Joaquin, and flowing thence a distance of not far from one hundred and fifty miles, when it becomes lost in Owen's Lake.

In this valley, and within the county of Inyo, there are in cultivation about twelve thousand acres of land, from which are produced annually upwards of 20,000 bushels of wheat, 19,000 of barley, 13,000 of oats, and 50,000 bushels of corn, together with a proportional amount of other productions usually produced by the general farmer. It also gives pasturage to large numbers of horses, cattle and sheep.

In fruits, apples, pears, peaches and grapes, particularly the last two are abundant. Whatever the farmer produces from the soil meets with a ready sale, and at prices that would be considered princely by the farmers in the large grain-growing valleys west of the Sierras, grains rarely selling for less than three cents per pound, while fruits and vegetables bring corresponding prices. The valley from which the above is produced is about seventy-five miles in length, and from two and a half to five miles broad. The farming lands are not, however, in the valley of the river proper, but on the numerous small mountain streams flowing down from the Sierras on the west, from which the waters are derived for the purposes of irrigation. The waters of the river, with a comparatively small outlay of money, could and should be utilized for the purpose, by which means thousands of acres of valuable land could be made to return a rich harvest to the farmer, and a sure remuneration for the capital expended in such an enterprise. The chief interests of the county, however, center in its mines, as it is from that source the farmer finds his market for the produce of his farm and his orchards. Heretofore there has been but one really successful (financially) mining enterprise prosecuted in the county—that is now known as the Union Consolidated Mining Company of the Cerro Gordo Mining District, which lies in the Inyo mountains, being a continuation of the White mountains, and running southerly therefrom and forming the easterly wall of the Owen's Valley. That property is or was composed of smelting ores, from which not less than $10,000,000 or $12,000,000 have been already extracted. Latterly the galena ores have given way to a great extent to silver ores. Owing to that fact, and also to the low price of lead, the company have erected refining works in connection with the furnace, which has just got into successful operation. By the use of the refinery the company preserve the lead, which is used in place of galena in reducing their rich silver ores.

In the same district are other noted mines, amongst which may be named the Ygnacio and the San Lucas, both rich in silver; also the Palma, a very large and rich gold mine. The latter is an old location, upon which prospecting has been carried on spasmodically, but not until quite recently has work been done with any order or system. Unfortunately it has become complicated by being bonded to two different parties, so it is now closed up, and will probably remain so until the rights of the parties are determined. Even with that drawback the district shows greater activity than for the last several years, and no doubt seems to exist in the minds of the best informed that it will in a short time exceed its most prosperous days.

To the south of Cerro Gordo, Darwin, Lookout, and Panamint, at one time offered strong inducements for the investment of capital, and which was liberally, if not intelligently, expended in their development. The developments thus far have not justified the hopes of those who so liberally expended their money. Yet all those camps are kept alive by those who have faith in their richness, believing they will prove true to their first promise, and yet reward their owners as did the Bodie mines of our sister county of Mono.

The Kearsarge series of mines and the Rex Montis, in connection with other independent locations, are situated in the Kearsarge Peak in the main Sierras, directly west from the town of Independence and about ten miles distant. The ores of this district are free milling s lver ores, similar in character throughout, and carrying at times a large amout of gold. The Kearsarge, containing several distinct surface locations, has been worked at intervals, with varied results, since 1865, during which it has yielded a large amount of the richest grade of ore, the proceeds from which have been expended in a desultory and unsystematical manner. For the last two years, however, under a change of ownership and management, work in the way of development has been conducted in a more orderly manner, and the result to-day is conclusive that they have, at a depth of 700 feet, an immense mine of great richness and value. As an evidence of the faith of its value and permanence, a tunnel has been started from near the company's mill to tap their veins at from 1,500 to 2,000 feet, and so precipitous is the mountain as to require a tunnel of only about 2,000 feet in length.

Of the Rex Montis, also containing numerous locations, nearly the same thing may be said, save that little has been done until within the last three years. That company also are now running a deep tunnel, which is expected to strike the first mine in the series at a depth of about 400 feet, and the last at 2,000 feet from the surface. The peak in which these mines are situated is 13,700 feet above the level of the sea, and all of the mines, both of the Kearsarge upon its southerly and the Rex Montis upon the northerly slope, are at such an elevation that work upon the surface can be carried on only for a few of the Summer months, for which reason the work of development has been necessarily slow, that they should be opened to such a depth by tunnel, by which means the severe cold and great snow fall of Winter would be no bar to their continuous and successful workings.

Taking the present outlook of Inyo altogether, its future prosperity is not problematical—it is a certainty. With the Inyo range on the east, forming an unbroken chain of mountains fully one hundred and fifty miles in length, every mile of which on both its eastern and western slopes shows ores rich in the precious minerals, with the vast Sierras on the west, which by many are predicted in a short time to prove themselves to be the vaults containing the largest and richest deposits of ores to be found on the coast, a prediction that bears every fullfilment from the recent rich workings of the Mammoth, in Mono, also in the Sierras, and distant northerly from the Kearsarge about eighty miles, with numerous promising discoveries, intermediate, and still on thirty or forty miles to the north of the Mammoth.

It is safe to say that the county of Inyo will shortly recover from its numerous set-backs and black eyes, and assume a position second to none as a rich mining county, and where enterprise and intelligence will meet with a sure reward. Even as it is to-day, nowhere in the State is there a greater degree of contentment and prosperity existing than in this county, or a greater faith in its future, notwithstanding its isolation, shut off as it is from the centers of capital, without a railroad or even telegraph within its limits, and requiring a stage ride of 160 miles to reach one. With all those drawbacks it is now receiving a greater degree of attention from experienced mining men, than at any time heretofore; and it is safe to predict that the county of Inyo is upon the eve of entering upon a degree of prosperity second to no other locality, and instead of being a byword, as in the past, it will be a new El Dorado for the legitimate miner.

ACCORDING to the Sacramento Record-Union the total number of acres assessed for taxes in Sacramento county is 610,466. Out of this total acreage assessed nearly fifty per cent., or 309,902 acres, is in the possession of 83 persons who own more than 1,000 acres each. This statement, however, by no means thoroughly indicates the actual state of affairs. When we examine the list in detail we find that while there are 83 who own 1,000 acres and upwards each, there are 15 who own 2,000 acres and under 3,000; 7 who own 3,000 and under 4,000 acres; 4 who own 4,000 and under 5,000 acres; 1 who owns 5,000 and under 6,000 acres; 1 who owns 6,000 and under 7,000 acres; 2 who own 7,000 and under 8,000 acres; 1 who owns 8,000 and under 9,000 acres; 1 who owns 9,000 and under 10,000 acres; 1 who owns 12,000 acres; 1 who owns 14,000 acres; 2 who own over 20,000 acres each, and one who owns over 43,000 acres.

TILDEN must be a festive cuss this year, as he is Summering at Yonkers, bathing at Rock Island, and dining at Newport, besides running the politics and elevated railroads of New York, and the mineral regions of the Northwest. Who credits the stories about his being feeble?—Pittsburg Post.

CINCINNATI is already making efforts to have the National Convention next year held in that city. The Commercial calls the attention of the committee of both parties to the magnificent hall there.

CHALFANT & PARKER.

J. E. PARKER. P. A. CHALFANT.

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 6 1879

IN considering the present condition of the Mormon question, the defiant attitude of the Saints must be taken into account. They are talking wildly about their political rights, and announcing in their official newspaper that they will not "bow down as serfs to Government appointees, nor lick the bribe-stained hands of imported satraps." John Taylor distinctly informs the Government that "he does not intend to surrender"—not one solitary concubine, we suppose. "We shall contend for our liberties," says the organ of the patriarchs; "we propose to pursue happiness in our own way." Of the meaning of this there can be no doubt. It is explicit, if not alarming. Its puts the Mormon Church in a position of absolute hostility to the Government of the United States. It is about time, when matters have reached this pass, to stop talking about religious liberty as secured by the Constitution.

THE telegraph states that Hendricks has not receded from his expressed resolve not to play second fiddle again in the coming Presidential contest. He had deliberately informed a New York Sun reporter that the Democracy cannot use him once more in that way. Hendricks has studied the President al prospects pretty thoroughly, and comes to the following pretty correct and sensible conclusion: "One condition of success next year is a candidate for the Presidency whose record it is not necessary to disown or explain away. With such a candidate, for whom there is no need to apologize, we will win, and not otherwise. The Republicans of Indiana are almost solid for Grant. There isn't much in the Sherman boom in the West."

ADVICES from Hayti state that the Liberals captured two mail steamers. The Provisional Government at Port-au-Prince sent troops against the Liberals at Gonaives. After a bloody struggle Gonaives took fire. Two-thirds of the town was burned and the remainder was pillaged. After the defeat at Gonaives, Borer Bazelais and his adherents embarked for Jeremie, which pronounced in his favor, and where he intends to make a stand. Gen. Monpoint, aided by national troops from Port-au-Prince, recaptured Cape Haytien, thus depriving the Libberals of two strongholds in the north. The Gonaives and Cape Haytien country is in a fearful condition. A fire at Jacmeal caused immense losses.

THE mosquito plague on the Eastern shore of Maryland must be very bad. The Superintendent and train hands of the railroad near Cambridge declare that the mosquitoes have been so thick as to obscure the light of the sun, and that lighted lamps have been necessary at mid-day in the stores and counting-room. A newspaper correspondent writes: "Never in the history of Tyaskin have the mosquitoes been so thick as they have been during the past week. There is no rest night or day; our only remedy is smoke! smoke! And we have smoked so much that our old women and young women, too, look like dried beef on the hoof."

UP to the latest dates the total number of cases of yellow fever at Memphis is 873, of which 453 are white and 420 colored. Total deaths 233, being 183 whites and 50 colored, or 40 per cent of whites and only 12 of blacks. Instances are numerous of persons who had the fever in past years being stricken again. Last year the total deaths to September 4 were 804. In New Orleans but six deaths have been reported.

IT seems to be a foregone conclusion that Jeff. Davis is to be the next Senator from Mississippi, notwithstanding the fact that his disabilities under the law have never been removed.

THE cost of the Zulu war is now estimated at $22,500,000. With this and the Afghan war to pay for, the English budget is expected to show a deficit this year of $30,000,000.

THE New York Tribune says it looks as though Tilden would be the Democratic nominee for President, and that the Republican contest is between Grant, Blaine, Sherman and Washburn.

THE murderers of the Chisholms, are now being tried in the Circuit Court in De Kalb county, Mississippi.

BEN BUTLER should be appointed chief engineer of the proposed Panama canal. His experience with the Dutch Gap canal in Virginia, during the war, renders him eligible to fill the position.

THE Atlanta Constitution says: Senator Conkling is even more bitterly opposed to the shot-gun policy than formerly.

THE COUNTY RETURNS.

In the table, elsewhere presented, will be found the returns more or less complete from all the precincts in this county except Panamint. It is estimated that place may poll not to exceed 30 votes, and likely to give a majority for the Democratic ticket. But no matter how it goes, it cannot change known results affecting county officers. In several instances no returns were made of the vote for State officers, but enough is shown to make it quite certain that Glenn carries the county by about a dozen votes or less. Yet the Republican candidates for subordinate State offices get a majority on the other side, perhaps larger than Glenn's.

But the rule of contraries is still more marked in the vote for members of the Legislature and county officials. Rowell (Rep.) leads Poage (Dem.) for State Senator something over 90 votes, while, on the contrary, Messec (Dem.) leads Wasson (Rep.) for the Assembly between 30 and 40 votes. Hannah, (Dem.) for Superior Judge, leads Snelling (Ind.) over 200 votes, while Smith, (Ind.) for Sheriff, falls but 45 votes short of that for both the regular nominees. Crough (Dem.) leads Rittgers, (Rep.) for Clerk, over 200, and, per contra, Hardy (Rep.) leads Isaacs, (Dem.) Treasurer, about 100, and similar conditions hold with respect to all the remaining officers. It is clear from this that partisan bias cuts no figure whatever in the vote for county officers.

The officers elect are as follows: Democrats—Hannah, Superior Judge; Crough, County Clerk, and Laird, District Attorney. Independent—Smith, Sheriff. Republicans—Hardy, Treasurer; May, Assessor; Thompson, Coroner; Seeley, Surveyor. Symmes, for School Superintendent, belongs to the latter party, but was the regular nominee of both the Democrats and Republicans.

THE most remarkable invention of this or of any other age is duly chronicled by the Columbus (Ohio) Dispatch. It is based upon the electrical properties of the fur of cats. With a battery of 128 cats the inventor succeeded in generating a current so strong that it instantly polarized all the lightning arresters and demagnetized all the switchboards on the way to Omaha. The operators all along the line were terror-stricken, and rushed from their offices. Eighteen hundred and nine glass insulators were broken and as many poles shattered as if by lightning. A great deal more damage would doubtless have resulted if the copper rod over which the battery was suspended had not suddenly become red hot and burned the tails off the cats and let them drop. When only a moderately strong current of electricity is desired, it is obtained by densely populating the small floor of the cage, which is made of sheet copper, that being the best conductor. The electricity thus generated charges the copper floor of the cage, and as it cannot pass off to the ground through the glass insulators it seeks its exit over the wires that are connected by soldering to each end of the copper plate. For generating a powerful current, the cats are carefully and securely tied tail to tail in pairs, and by the loop thus formed they are suspended from a heavy insulated copper rod that passes longitudinally through the cage, to the end of which are attached the telegraph or telephone lines.

FOLLOWING are the names of a few of the papers from which De Young quotes to show that they think cowardly assassination is an eminently proper way to get rid of enemies: Stockton Herald, Virginia (Nev.) Chronicle, S. F. Examiner, Winnemucca (Nev.) Silver State, Nevada Tribune, Sonoma Index and Red Bluff Sentinel, besides a number of Eastern papers.

A MEMBER of the Cabinet is reported as saying that Secretary McCrary will not retire from the War office until the meeting of Congress in December next, if he does then. Judge Dillon's resignation was to take effect on the 1st of the present month, but his successor, whether McCrary, or some other, will not be appointed until Congress meets.

A HIGHWAY robbery was perpetrated near Nevada City on the 1st instant, in which a passenger named Wm. F. Cummings was killed and the express and passengers relieved of everything valuable. A wild excitement prevails throughout Nevada county, and it is scarcely possible that the murderers can escape capture and lynching.

DUDLEY HASKELL deliberately shot and killed George Schwartz in San Francisco on the morning of the 2d instant. It was apparently little else than a cowardly murder. Haskell has, at different periods, been a resident of Aurora, and was well known in that region.

JUDGE WALLACE has admitted Chas. de Young to bail in the sum of $25,000.

DISGRACEFUL.

Mr. Tibbles, the heroic editor of Omaha, who forced Justice, in the shape of Judge Dundy, a few months ago, to take off her bandage and deal fairly with Standing Bear, is now in the Eastern States, and has inaugurated an effort to raise money to enable the Poncas to carry up an appeal to the United States Supreme Court to obtain possession of their homes.

Here are the facts: The Poncas owned the land since the settlement of the country by the whites. They have been confirmed in their titles by three separate treaties. They had never been at war with the Government; never had once violated a treaty. They were civilized; had farms, trades, schools, churches which they built and supported. A few sharp dealers in Washington wanted this property. They first tried to persuade the Poncas to remove to the Indian Territory. Failing in that, they induced ten chiefs to go and inspect the land to which they wished them to emigrate. The men went and found that the Indians already there were dying like sheep. They refused to lead the tribe there. The Commissioners then refused to give them money or interpreters to go home unless they would yield. The chiefs persisted and started off penniless to walk home, a distance of 1,200 miles. When they reached home the Commissioners were before them and had the tribe ready to start. When they heard the account brought by their chiefs they refused to go. The troops were called in to compel them, and the whole tribe were literally driven from their homes, which were theirs by every law of God or man, to a malarious district. There were 715 of them; 200 died in a year. The ring took possession of all their stock and cattle, sold it by auction, sold the houses, and, it is asserted, kept the money. Besides this, they applied for and got an appropriation of $2,500 for removing the Indians.

Standing Bear, with about thirty others, came back to their farms, saying that they could but die in any case and they wished to die in their old homes. They were arrested, and would have been returned to the Indian Territory but that the whites of Omaha interfered, carried the case into court, where Judge Dundy discharged the Indians, declaring that no case had ever been brought before him of such gross injustice, or calling so much for sympathy. It is now proposed to carry the whole affair into the Supreme Court and to decide whether an Indian has any rights which a white man is bound to respect. This is a move in the right direction. Bring the red man under the protection of the courts and give him the ballot, and the problem is solved, and there will be an end of such wholesale rascally outrages as this of the Poncas has been.

PREPARING FOR WINTER AT THE MAMMOTH.—The Mammoth Company, under the energetic management of Supt. Hardy, are driving work ahead in all directions. A full force of men are extracting ore from the mine, and the mule and the cars are rushing it down to the new ore house at the rate of 60 tons a day. The new tramway is making rapid progress, a large force being employed in blasting out the road bed. This tramway is to be different from the old, in that it will be sunk in the ground most of the way, and covered to protect it from the snows of Winter. The foundation being laid at the mouth of the lower tunnel for the new air compressor is nearly completed, the machinery has all arrived and in a few days everything will be in readiness to commence work with the Burleigh drills in the lower workings. Down at the mill work is pretty generally confined to putting on the finishing touches. The engine and boilers are being housed in, and the smokestack is at last securely in place. The engine is nearly put together, and presents quite an imposing appearance. Yesterday a pair of rock-breakers was set up, and from the appearance of the Mammoth quartz they will be needed.

The company's teams are hauling heavy timbers from both saw mills, and storing them at the mine for use during the Winter. They have also a large force of wood-choppers getting out fuel for the Winter, of which some 5,000 cords will be needed. Altogether the Mammoth folks are getting things in ship-shape, and under the new regime everything goes like clockwork. —Mammoth City Herald.

SENATOR JONES asserts that the deepest mine in Leadville is down only 120 feet. The mineral deposits lie flat and are of immense size. Many fortunes have been made there, and the Sena or says it is the best place for a poor man to prospect in, with more chances of striking mineral than in any other district. In fact, all the chances are in favor of striking ore by digging, and when once struck there is no trouble in extracting it. The city at present contains about thirty thousand people and still growing.—Eureka Sentinel.

A CUBIC inch of gold is worth $210—a cubic foot, $362,880; a cubic yard, $9,797,762. This is valuing it at $18 69 an ounce. At the commencement of the Christian era, there was then in the world $427,000,000 in gold. This had diminished to $57,000,000 at the time America was discovered. Then it began to increase. Now the amount of gold in use is estimated to be $6,000,000,000. Yet all this welded into one mass would be contained in a cube of twenty-six feet.

Certain candidates were withdrawn after the ballots were printed and distributed, but were still voted for; such, with their respective substitutes, are marked with an asterisk (*), and coupled with a "brace."

REVENUE AGENT LATHAM writes from Alabama that two witnesses for the Government against "moonshiners" were whipped recently almost to death, and almost compelled to leave De Kalb county, and that in Marion county an armed band of distillers and their sympathizers compelled the United States Commissioner, a Deputy Marshal and two Deputy Collectors to leave the county, but the party being reinforced returned. The illicit distillers of De Kalb county compel all persons who visit them to work for a time, thus making an accomplice of every one who otherwise could be a witness for the Government.

THE New York Tribune says: "The long-looked-for 'better times' are undoubtedly here at last. Conversations with our leading business men give fresh assurances that the country is entering upon an era of great prosperity. Trade and industry are reviving in all parts of the country, and a better feeling prevails than has existed at any time since 1873. The beneficent results of resumption are being felt, and while they are enjoying them it will be hard work to convince the people that it is a good time to vote against the party which has secured resumption."

MR. FRANK DIXON, of Yazoo, Miss., a brother of Capt. Dixon, has reached Washington. He declares that the assassination of his brother was carefully planned and that Barksdale lay in wait for his victim and shot him from behind. He says also that the Independents of Yazoo county will put a ticket in the field, and that serious trouble is expected.

MOLLIE MCCARTY, the noted California racing mare, which was taken East some time ago for the purpose of participating in the Saratoga races this Fall, is permanently disabled. Great achievements were expected of this animal, both by her California admirers and those of the East. How the misfortune came about is not stated; but one thing is positively asserted—that she will never again cope with the noted flyers either at home or abroad.

THE French President, M. Grevy, is reported, in some respects, as resembling Gen. Grant. While President of the Chamber of Deputies he rarely did more than ring a bell, and as Chief Executive of France he never opens his mouth. He has recently made a tour in the south of France, but would not consent to deliver any addresses.

JUDGE BARNUM, of Chicago, delivered a decision on the 1st instant that the militia law enacted by the last State Legislature, prohibiting the carrying of arms by organizations, except under a permit issued by the State authorities, is void. The ground of the decision is that the law conflicts with a Federal statute in force since 1792.

THE Secretary of the Interior has denied the application of John H. Stanly for a reconsideration of his former decision, and ordered a patent to issue to Maria Brias de Hegriers, confirmed by a part of the Entre Napa ranch, in Napa county, California.

THE Sprague mansion at Canonchet has been ordered sold. Mrs. Sprague declares she will never give it up. It cost $500,000.

VICTOR HUGO'S PREDICTIONS.

The Millenium in the Twentieth Century.

While a great majority of parliamentary notables were yesterday at Nancy assisting at the unveiling of the Thiers statue, MM. Victor Hugo and Louis Blanc were delivering speeches at the Chateau 'Eau Theater. The object of the meeting was to raise funds for the workmen of Marseilles. Victor Hugo, who presided, made the first speech. "The sixteenth century," remarked the venerable Senator, "was the century of painters, the seventeenth that of writers, the eighteenth that of philosophers, and the nineteenth will be the century of apostles and of prophets. In the twentieth century, war, the scaffold, hatred, royalty, frontiers and dogmas will have died all out; but men will exist. Our children will enjoy this splendid century." Having prefaced his observations in this style—with which all who are acquainted with the great poets late utterances are familiar—Victor Hugo set forth the means by which this glorious end was to be attained. "There are people," said he, "who have nothing in the world. On the other hand there is a world waiting to be colonized and civilized. Therefore, cut isthmuses, turn deserts into seas, lay down railways. No one will contest your right to occupy the land." Considering that Africa is specially in view, this might appear a somewhat startling assertion, but the Paris public know Victor Hugo, and delight in the presence of their poet. The details of his speeches are never harshly criticized. "These African plains," continued the author of "Les Miserables," "are worthy of being French, since they were once Roman. They are now in a state of barbarism; they are occupied by savages. Turn them out." A few sentences further he adds: "Let us all feel citizens of equality, men in fraternity, and sprits in liberty, and let us love those who love and those who do not love us." Possibly among the latter might be included the savages who are to be "turned out of their possessions." However this may be, Victor Hugo was loudly cheered at the end of his speech.—Corr. London Telegraph.

STATISTICIANS ask too much when they wish us to believe that the working people of the United States receive from two to four times as much wages as the same classes in Europe, while paying much less for the necessaries of life. Business is improving in this country, and the price of labor has advanced somewhat during the past year, but there is not such an immense difference in this regard between Europe and America as two to four hundred per cent. The publication of such statements does harm by bringing to our shores the labor of Europe on false pretenses. We want immigrants of the right kind. We have land enough for them to take up at merely nominal prices, but we do not want to fill our cities with thousands of mechanics and laborers lured here by misrepresentation. It is a wrong to the parties thus deceived, and a serious injury to our own working people. It benefits nobody but transportation companies.—Ex.

THE END OF THE WORLD.—A lecture delivered at the Berlin University some three months ago by Prof. Dubois-Reymond bears the ominous title, "The End of Our World," and says that every movement upon our planet, with the exception of ebb and and flood, which are caused by the attraction of the moon, is occasioned by solar heat. As, however, the sun loses every year a portion of his caloric, science has lately come to the conclusion that he will not exist as an emitter of warmth longer than for seventeen million years to come. During that space of time our earth will grow colder and colder, in proportion as the solar heat shall diminish. The ice will advance from the poles to the equator; the earth's population will gradually recede before the advancing glaciers; the sun will become less and less luminous, until he will present the appearance of a darkred ball; and finally ice will annihilate all vitality on our planet.—N. Y. Sun.

THERE is a man in Paris who makes a living by attending funerals for the sake of the black crape and gloves distributed on such occasions. The sale of these brings him in five francs daily, and for a dollar a day a man may live like a millionaire in Paris.—N. Y. Mail.

IT is asserted that the Democratic Congressmen from Illinois are moving with a view of sending a solid Hendricks delegation from that State. Morrison and Townsend are credited with being prime movers in the matter.

MODOCK OFFICIAL LETTER.—The official letter of the week is as follows:

Sept. 1, 1879.

J. W. Pew, Esq., Secretary Modock Con. M. Co.:—DEAR SIR: Results of operations on the lower level for the week ending to-day are as follows:

South drift, 300-foot point, run 22 feet; north drift, 300-foot point, 15 feet; north drift, 800-foot, 16 feet; north crosscut, 1100 foot, 16 feet, and south drift, 1100 foot, 16 feet. Total length of south drift, 300 foot, 194 feet; north drift, 300 foot, 105 feet; north drift, 800 foot, 160 feet; north crosscut, 1000 foot, 39 feet, and south drift 1100 foot, 160 feet. Have started a crosscut west from drift north, 300-foot point, and shall further explore the ore body. We have been running in on this drift. Have had ore from the first 18 feet to present face, 87 feet. North drift, 800 foot, still presents the same appearance, carrying clay seam in face, and holding its course towards the ground we are running for. North crosscut 1000 and south drift, 1100 foot, continue to improve as we advance. Face of latter is in crystallized lime and manganese, looking favorable for ore.

Yours, respectfully,
A. C. TIBBETTS, Supt.

GRAND JURY.—Following are the names of the Grand Jurors, as drawn for the present term of the County Court, which meets on Monday next, as per adjournment from the 1st instant: J. B. HEROIC TREATMENT.—Up at Cerro Gordo a few days since a much troubled Indian came into W. R. Johnson's store and informed the sympathetic proprietor that his (the Indian's, not W. R. J.'s) squaw was "heap, heapa sick; eat 'em heap too much dead hoss," and wanted some "whitee man medicine." Dr. Johnson arose equal to the emergency. He fixed up half a bottle of castor oil and eleven pills, which prescription was duly administered. Bill has never seen that squaw since, but he is perfectly satisfied that he cured her.

KEARSARGE.—Reports continue to come of rich developments being made in the Kearsarge, as depth is attained in the winze at the 800-foot point in the long tunnel. From the top to the present depth of 35 feet the ore chute has rapidly widened and increased in richness. In fact, some of the finest ore ever taken out of the mine is being extracted, considerable of it showing free gold. Supt. Gray and Mr. Frank are daily expected from San Francisco.

ACROSS THE RIVER.—Mr. John Gorman, one of the most successful smelters who first operated at Darwin, and some other mining gentlemen of experience, are expected here shortly from Lake District. They come with the view of erecting reduction works for the ores of some of the mines just across the river opposite this place, provided they find the prospects as good as represented, of which we entertain no doubts.

INCORPORATION.—On Thursday last was filed in the County Clerk's office articles of incorporation of the Indiana Mining and Milling Company. Capital stock, $1,000,000, divided into 50,000 shares of the par value of $20 each. Directors—Caleb H. Maddox, Hugh Mauldin, Hampton S. Field, Chas. S. Humphry and Francis H. McConnell. The Indiana is the famous Boley & Tuttle property, situated near Swansea.

STRUCK ORE.—The Independence Tunnel, at a distance of some fifty feet from the mouth, has cut into a blind ledge containing some very fine looking ore, but as yet nothing is known of its extent. At a point 100 further it will cross the lowest ledge on the line having a surface outcrop, one of Supt. Holt's original locations, the ore of which assays high as $180 per ton.

TOWNSHIP OFFICERS.—In this precinct the vote for Justice of the Peace stood: Wm. C. Snodgrass, 43; T. A. Garner, 13; J. Vagt, 2; "Dontcareadam," 1. For Constable, Thos. Webb, 21; W. James, 21, besides a lot of scattering votes for J. Vagt and others.

LIVELY.—Mr. S. A. Densmore, just returned from a visit to Mammoth City, says that place has become exceedingly lively again, and the highest hopes are entertained for a grand outcome of mining operations.

ASSESSMENT.—The Kearsarge has levied assessment No. 3, of 25 cents per share, delinquent October 6. This would indicate the prosecution of work on the lower, long tunnel during the coming Winter.

FOR THE CITY.—Mrs. A. W. Eibeshutz started Monday last for the city, for the purpose, if we are not misinformed, of being present at the wedding of her sister, Miss Rothschild.

JOHN CHINAMAN.—In this place there were 97 votes hinting that John Chinaman had better stay at home, while there was but one asking him to come over.

HIS REMARK.—"Oh, Laird, have marcy on us!" was the substance of George's remark when the returns came in from Bishop.

RUSTLING.—And now very soon there will be much rustling around, tribulation and vexation of spirit on account of the necessity for an entire new set of official bonds. Old ones won't do, though some might be had cheap. The unfortunate officers elect must file bonds within ten days after receiving certificate of election. In all the offices, more especially those of Tax Collector and Treasurer, the bonds required by law are enormously high and out of all proportion to the real responsibilities of the positions. Our next Representative in the Legislature should secure a material modification of State requirements in this matter. In the meanwhile our property owners should not be backward in helping to make up the required amounts.

DISTRICT COURT.—His Honor, District Judge Reed—the high, faithful and conscientious public officer that he is—has ordered another postponement of Court for this county until the November term. Nineteen months without a Court in this county, yet we haven't heard that Reed has declined any portion of his $15 a day salary. Meanwhile accused persons can rot in jail; property tied up with attachments can go to the dogs, and important civil suits remain undetermined at the convenience of his royal highness.

LUGUBRIOUS.—One would think that a ticket for Salt River was one of the most lugubrious things ever seen. Some of the holders act as if they would never smile again. Yet we have seen the same parties, in times past, when conditions were reversed, smile all over at the effect of one of these tickets—but that was when the other fellow was the recipient.

AT BISHOP.—The vote at Bishop for Supervisor, vice Garretson (term expired), shows 87 for David Olds, to 46 for Garretson. For Justices of the Peace, J. E. Swan received 56 votes, F. Randolph, 45; S. G. Sneden, 16, and Geo. C. Alexander, 55. For Constables, Wm. Goodman got 83 votes,—Hilton, 43, and Geo. S. Drake, 51.

A JOB.—A prominent candidate who got badly "left" in the late battle of ballots applied to a well-known citizen for a situation of some kind. "Certainly, I can fix you," was the reply; "You just take your shot gun, get some grub and go into the mountains and hunt—and I'll give you half you kill."

ANSWER TO "KILLER."—No, the new Coroner will not employ inn-experienced "killers." Still, if you will work cheap to begin with, he may hereafter give you a small job in making subjects for him to "set on," by way of practice, out of some of his delinquent boarders.

SUPERVISOR, 2D DISTRICT.—Following is the vote for Supervisor for this, the 2d District: Independence, E. Robinson, 68; O. I. Mairs, 17; T. A. Gardner, 1; J. R. Westerville, 1. Fish Springs—Robinson, 8; Westerville, 19; T. J. Goodale, 2.

ANNIVERSARY.—Next Tuesday will be the twenty-ninth anniversary of the admission of California to the Union. Can't we get up a ball or some jollification by way of observance?

TO CANVASS.—The Board of Supervisors meet pursuant to law on Monday next to canvass the vote, until which is done it is impossible to give anything like the full returns.

THIRD DISTRICT.—So far as reported the vote for Supervisor in the 3d District stands: Olancha—H. Bellows, 5; Wm. Walker, 8. Lone Pine—Chris. Dockweiler, 5.

FINE FRUIT.—Mr. W. A. Baker, of Big Pine, favors us with a box of the very largest peaches we have yet seen, although they are from seedling trees.

FOR JUSTICES.—Dr. Gelcich and Paul Houard were elected Justices of the Peace for Lone Pine.

ON A VISIT.—Mrs. Geo. W. Rowan, of Mammoth City, is spending a few days in this place.

IT is with great pleasure we arise to say that the Colton Semi-Tropic does know something, after all. It knows where "Kasson Postoffice" is, and responds to our recent query as to the whereabouts of that office in the words and figures hereto appended, viz:

To this agonizing wail we answer that this office is situated on the Colton and Fort Mohave mail route. That the route has just been established and that service will be commenced on the 1st of October. That letters so addressed are ordered sent to the Colton Postoffice. There, now, do you feel better?

HELPING THE JUDGE.—The Rev. V. Edward Everett Hale tells of a Judge who was preparing a law lecture, and had every chair and table in his study covered with open books, from which he was collating material. His sister, Miranda, undertook to put the apartment in order, with the following result: "Biddy, her chief of staff, eager to be of use, shut up all the books and put them on the shelves. Miranda returned to the room in horror, and cried: 'We shall both be killed when he comes home!' 'Niver ye fear, mum,' said Biddy, 'I'll make it all right.' And, sure enough, when the Judge saw the room, Biddy had produced thirty law books from the shelves, and opened them in imitation of the aspect she had found them in, and he was left to go on with his lecture as best he might with the aid of precedents of Biddy's selections.—N. Y. Independent.

AT a legal investigation of a liquor seizure the Judge asked an unwilling witness: "What was in the barrel that you had?" The reply was: "Well, your Honor, it was marked 'whisky' at one end of the barrel and 'Pat Duffy' on the other end, so that I can't say whether it was whisky or Pat Duffy was in the barrel, being as I am on my oath."

THE following is an extract from a recent work by Dr. C. Alberto, a celebrated Italian physician: "The marine air," says the learned doctor, "produces the same benefit as that of the mountain, but each has a different modus efficiendi; the former acts more forcibly and energetically on the constitution, which retains some robustness and internal resources to profit by it, while the second acts more gently with slower efficacy, being thereby more suitable to the weaker and less excitable organizations. From this important distinction the conscientious physician, who takes the safety of his patient much to heart, ought to be able to discriminate whether the alpine or marine atmosphere is the better suited to the case he has before him."

THE New York Tribune says that the watch which Gen. Washington had made in London for widow Martha Custis, and presented to her just before their marriage, has been added to the collection of relics at Washington's Headquarters in Newburg. Mrs. Washington wore the watch several years, and then gave it to a favorite niece, who in turn gave it to her son. The gentleman, a Virginia planter, found himself so poor at the end of the civil war that he was obliged to sell the heirloom. The case of the watch is of gold, inlaid with white enamel. Over each figure on the dial, beginning with "I," is a letter, altogether forming the name "Martha Custis."

THE evils of pauper immigration, to which Mr. Evarts has directed public attention, have been strikingly illustrated at Castle Garden. A lunatic, who has been confined in a Swedish mad-house, is brought across the sea by a mysterious agent and placed under the care of the Commissioners of Education. Another poor wretch, without wit enough to earn his bread, is sent to this port by the municipal authorities of a Prussian town. Very elastic ideas in regard to American charity must be entertained abroad when the almshouses and insane asylums are emptied in this manner.—N. Y. Tribune.

A MATCH is a small thing, and a box of them costs but a trifle; but the small things make up the world, and the match brought into the internal revenue the comfortable sum of $3,250,000 last year, the largest amount ever realized from that source. This is due to an increase in the business, caused to some extent by a foreign demand. This is a tax that nobody feels, yet an attempt was made last year to abolish it, and doubtless from now on the cry will be raised to give the poor man free matches.

THE murderer and bulldoser Dixon, recently killed in an affray in Yazoo City, Miss., has been made a blessed martyr and saint. Dixon memorial fund and a monument are now in order. The Treasurer of the National Emigration Aid Society might be able to spare for this purpose the cash he was expected to send to the negro refugees in Kansas.

A CHICAGO paper says that a Michigan railroad man has built cars for a prairie road with an arrangement for disconnecting the gearing and running by wind when it is favorable. After a trial of several weeks the cars have been pronounced perfectly satisfactory. In an ordinary breeze they can run fifteen miles an hour under sail.

A LITTLE four-year-old girl, going to church with her mother for the first time the other Sunday, saw the long-handled contribution-boxes passed. With great wonder in her face, and to the great fun of all about her, she broke out in the loudly whispered exclamation, "Mamma, mamma, what makes them pass the corn poppers round for?"

A MARSHFIELD man, who lost his good character some time ago, was severely handled by some of his former friends. "I know it, boys, I know my character's gone—lost entirely. And," he added, rather pointedly, "it's too confounded bad; for it was the only one in the place worth saving."

A PETITE, blue-eyed maiden, who was nursing her fifth Christmas doll, and listening to her mother and some female friends talking about domestic broils and divorces, created a rather pleasant sensation by remarking, "Well, ma, I'm never going to marry. I'm going to be a widow."

RARUS has been sold to H. M. Whitehead, of New York, for $36,000.

Cure for Consumption.

A lawsuit in New York over a patent right to a pulmonary medicine, has developed the following receipe for a decoction which is said to be of great benefit to consumptives: Take five pounds of white rock candy dissolved in a gallon of old rye whisky—the older the better. The whisky must be distilled in the old fashioned way with a copper worm. Steam distilation develops latent poison in the berry, and fills the system with fusil and other deadly oils. Colored rock candy is poisonous. The yellow tinge shows the presence of an insoluble earth deleterious to the stomach, and is dangerous. The pure white rock is pure crystallized sugar; the most nourishing of all substances. The demijohn should be well shaken three or four times a day, and then the mixture is not to be used until the candy is dissolved; the patient may take a sherry wine glass full on going to bed, and two-thirds as much on an empty stomach in the morning. He can carry a flask in his pocket, and take a spoonful half a dozen times a day. Night sweats will disappear, and the patient will get a long and refreshing sleep; lung fevers will go, and he will feel no more pain in his chest. While taking this cordial the patient must keep his stomach employed in taking up rich and nourishing matter. All vinegars, pickles, sour wines and malt drinks, and salt provisions must be avoided. Touch no fresh pork for it creates ulceration. Do away with coffee for it fevers the blood. Drink black tea. Eat roast beef rare, broiled steaks, mutton chops well done, toasted beef and all kinds of vegetables. The great object is to enrich the blood. One of the best articles of food is a rum omlet made exclusively of the yolks of eggs.

THE amount of labor performed by bees in collecting honey may be seen from certain calculations made by Andrew Wilson. He finds that 125 heads of clover yield approximately one gramme of sugar (about 15½ grains), and that 125 thousand heads yield one kilogramme (2.2 pounds). Now, as each head of clover contains about 60 florets, it follows that the bees must suck 7,500,000 distinct florets in order to obtain 2.2 pounds of sugar; and as honey roughly may be said to contain 75 per cent. of sugar, we have one kilogramme, equivalent to 5,000,000 flowers in round numbers, or say 2,500,000 visits for one pound of honey.

Mrs. Sprague.

Poor Mrs. Sprague has to suffer not only from Conkling's unpopularity, but from her husbands drunken insanity. We know, in knowing her, that she is as innocent of the wrong imputed to her as her youngest child. To appreciate this we have to know or remember that, inheriting much of her honored father's intellect and force of character, she grew to womanhood without a mother's care and with the training given a man. The result is, that while as pure a woman as God ever created, she looks at the social world from a man's standpoint. When a mere girl of 16 her soul revolted against the illiberal discrimination made against her sex. She found Dick Nevins, the handsome, dashing man of the world, in a small, flat State capital, where the only amusements are visits to the penitentiary and asylums for the insane, deaf and blind. She found Dick, we say, a pleasant gentleman to know intimately, and when the small-souled, copper-bottomed, gilt-edged aristocracy of the place forbade the intimacy, Kate defied the prohibition. She was incontinently run over by a drove of social bulls and heifers, and would have been plastered in the mud past finding but for her own pluck and her father's high position.

Victory made her bold, defiant and imprudent, and the poor little woman tries the same fight, now that her great father is dead, her fortune gone, her social position no longer secure, and her spirit broken by misfortune. She found the society of Senator Conkling pleasant, and she asked no man's, and eke, no woman's consent to the same. It was the most open and defiant transaction ever sneered at by the thin lips and false teeth of the hydra-headed social world. Bald-headed, round-bellied, slender-legged Senators, who can be carded out by strumpets, nodded and blinked at each other like owls in a hay-loft, and old, aristocratic families—twenty years old, at least, in whose closets at home grinning skeletons made the air unhealthy—spoke of her as "that person."

Roscoe Conkling, who, with all his intellect and intelligence, is, through his excessive vanity, an ass, helped to wreck the frail bark of her platonic affections. He delighted in a foul suspicion. He had captured and held a willing captive, one of the high queens of society. He reveled in the notoriety. He lost no opportunity to make it the more notorious. He smacked his beastly lips over, not the gratification of desires long since burned out, but over the notoriety of a supposed gratification that fed his inordinate vanity.

We envy no man's pillow who could read with eyes unmoistened the pitiful account of this once brilliant woman, this loved and lovable creature, following meekly, yet bravely, her children, torn from her by a brute of a husband, to the home two unworthy men had rendered desolate.—Washington Capital.

THE women are getting the upper hand in Pittsburg. Two men of that city have already sued for separation from their wives on the ground of cruelty, and a third unhappy man has appealed to a magistrate for protection against a woman who threatens him bodily harm.

THE Springfield Republican says that the decision of the four Cincinnati lawyers, that the church property of Archbishop Purcell's diocese is not liable for his debts, puts the church "in the attitude of a vast receiver of stolen goods."

JOSH BILLINGS says: "I never argy agin success. When I see a rattlesnake's head sticking out of a hole, I bear off to the left and say to myself that hole belongs to that snaik."

A PLANT THAT KILLS BY ITS STING. One of the best points about our North American forests is that a careless person may remain in them for a month at a time and come to no harm from poisonous shrubs or vines. Saving a few species of nettles, which are not so virulent as the European species, and an occasional poisonous Rhus, the mosquitoes and flies have no competitors. It is different in the antipodean forests. Not only has the traveler to be constantly on the alert for about a hundred different kinds of poisonous snakes, but there are trees and shrubs whose poison is virulent enough to make the vapors from the famous upas tree harmless in comparison. There is one shrub growing in Queensland which actually kills men and horses if a certain portion of their body is stung by it. The curious thing is that the sting leaves no mark, but the pain is maddening, and comes on again and again for months on every change of temperature, such as the body experiences when in bed. Horses become so frantic that when stung that they have to be shot, and dogs knaw off affected parts if they can be reached. The shrub is not named botanically. It grows from three inches high to fifteen feet. In the old ones the stem is whitish, and red berries usually grow on the top. It emits a peculiar disagreeable smell, but it is best known by its leaf, which is nearly round, having a point on the top, and is jagged all round the edge like the nettle. All the leaves are large—some larger than a saucer. It usually grows among palm trees.—Ex.

HE WANTED TO GET OUT.—All was peace in the office of President Porter yesterday evening. The labors of the day were over and an air of gentle repose pervaded the whole apartment. The urbane Bigley had hoisted his eyeglasses and was sitting in the depths of a luxurious arm-chair, with his feet perched upon the table, reading the exciting brevities in the Ledger. The sardonic McCoy was combing his curly locks before the mirror. The spell of silence was broken by the entrance of a disheveled citizen, evidently laboring under mental excitement. He leaned over the railing and addressed the urbane Bigley: "Cap'n, I want to get out of here." "Out of where?" asked U. B., with courteous interest. "Why, out of Memphis. Things is gitting hot, you see, and I never had it." "Good idea; it's much healthier outside. Besides, rations are playing out, and we won't be able to entertain in our usual style much longer." "That's what they tell me; but how'm I to git out? The railroads is all shut down and the boats air got a howitzer mounted on the biler deck to keep off passengers from Memphis. It's all right for you fellers to make game because you've had it and air solid, but my mind's made up; I'm goin'. It's better to be shot by a kurrenteen picket than to have sporads hunting you up at the dead hour of night. So long." And with that the rear of his duster flitted out at the door, and he went forth on his perilous adventure.—Memphis Avalanche.

LOVE ON A CREEPING VINE.—An exceedingly painful affair transpired in Brooklyn the other day. A young man and a young woman, whose hearts are bound to each other in the sweet, loving ties of mutual affection, were out strolling one of the fine evenings we had last week. Coming to grassy bank from which the valley of Still River could be seen, they sat down and gazed with rapture at the scene. Then, like two doves, they fell to cooing softly unto each other, unmindful of the passing time and ignorant of the fact that the bank on which they rested was covered with creeping mercury vine. Their hearts were full as they sat there. The next day it seemed as if the contents had gone into their heads. We love to look upon the faces of those dear to us. But they don't. She don't look at all, in fact, and what little view he gets of things generally is through one eye. One of his ears lays across the other eye, and the other ear is on top of his head, where it stands up like the comb of a rooster. Yesterday morning the swelling in her head had gone down enough to show her hairpins, and thirty-five of them were taken out.—Danbury News.

THE Prince Imperial is not yet, it appears, finally buried. The coffin lies in a temporary chapel open to view, surrounded by the insignia of the Legion of Honor which the lad wore when alive, and by numerous crosses, wreaths, etc., given by the Queen and Royal Princes on the day of the funeral. Ladies daily bring wreaths and heap them up outside of the grille behind which the remains lie. The odd part of the matter to an American is that the whole affair—coffin, crowns, crosses and all—is exhibited to the public from 3 to 5 o'clock daily, at a charge of a shilling per head, children half price.

DURING a "Pinafore" performance in the Davenport (Iowa) Opera House one evening last week, a bat darted in and out among the wings of the stage, and worried the sisters and cousins and the aunts of Sir Joseph. In the "cat scene," when the lash was cracked the second time, and the crew cried: "Goodness me! what was that?" Dick Deadeye took up the refrain behind the mast, singing: "Whisht! it was that bat!"

THE Boston Herald says Gen. Butler evidently expects Democrats to vote for him on the ground that he is working to break up the Republican party, and Republicans on the ground that he is a stalwart and opposed to a conciliatory policy toward the South. This would be a remarkable double team for anybody but a cross-eyed man to drive.

A CURIOUS incident occurred at the trial of Garibaldi's divorce case. The young King, who has a chivalrous admiration for the old General, said, while the trial was pending: "I hope he will succeed povero vecchio." Some officious person carried the phrase to the Judges as they were deliberating, with the addition that the King desired that they would pronounce a favorable verdict; whereupon one of the Judges, much offended, wrote to the King, saying that he could not bring himself to believe that His Majesty intended to influence the decision of the Judges, and that rather than submit to pressure he should prefer to resign. The King was half indignant, half amused, and himself related the episode to the Ministers, asking whether even a constitutional King might not have and express a "hope" or a desire. "The Judge, however," he added, "is honest and courageous; but I am sorry any one should deem me capable of an unconstitutional act."

FOR some reason the British Ministers seem to be dissatisfied with Lord Lytton's administration of the Government of India. Rumors of his recall have been frequent, and now it is reported positively that Lord Dufferin will immediately succeed him. It is understood that the retiring Viceroy's feelings will be soothed with the offer of an Earldom, as an acknowledgment of his success in bringing the Afghan war to a satisfactory close. But a step in advance in the peerage will bring no money to the new Earl's treasury, and will be but poor recompense for the loss of the Viceroy's emoluments, which he sought as a means of reinforcing the meager income inherited with the title from his father, Bulwer-Lytton, the novelist.

RICHARD A. PROCTOR, the astronomer, has written a note to the Boston Advertiser denying that he is dead. He says: "As to my being dead, I cannot but think this is a mistake. The study of science suggests extreme caution about matters of fact. But, so far as my observations extend, I find reason to believe that I am alive. My friends also seem to think so. You must not think me dogmatic if—failing stronger evidence than I yet possess to the contrary—I decline to accept unhesitatingly the theory that I am no longer living."

THE Stewart grave robbers evidently thought they had a bonanza, and $2,500,000 was the first price demanded for the return of the body. From this princely figure they have come down step by step to $200,000. Judge Hilton, it is said, shows no inclination to pay more than $25,000, and even then will promise no immunity to the criminals. The robbers have tried in every way to bring him to terms, but while he is willing to pay the sum offered for the body, he will not compound the felony.

THE Indiana Editorial Association recently started on a dead-head excursion to the Rocky mountains. There were 264 in the party, including fifty-eight ladies, but a Kansas City paper says that only fifteen of the number were bona fide editors. At Kansas City the Atchison, Topeka Santa Fe Railroad Company demanded $38 apiece to take them to Denver, and as there was hardly so much money in the whole party the trip came to an abrupt end.

BODIE freights are lying in Carson day after day, and no opportunity for shipment. This has been the case for the last month, and the difficulty must continue to increase as Winter approaches, and the necessary stock to supply the wants of that large community during a long Winter arrive at Carson. A large force of teams is absolutely necessary to this business, and unless placed on the road will prove a source of much annoyance and disappointment to the Bodieites.—Carson Tribune.

THE Rev. Mr. Hayden, who has been in jail in Connecticut for a year, charged with the murder of Mary Stannard, will probably be tried in October. It is reported that under microscopic investigation of the body of the dead girl some important testimony has been developed. In the flesh of the neck, where she was stabbed, a fine point of steel has been found, which fits into a nick in the edge of the pastor's bloody knife.

HERR KRUPP, the great gun-maker, is a tall, fine-looking man, with white hair and beard, high forehead, bright eyes, and a strikingly intellectual expression. At seventy his natural force is not abated, but he is active and energetic. His broad breast is not broad enough for the medals and orders that have been conferred upon him by his own and other sovereigns; he has repeatedly declined a patent of nobility during the last fifteen years.

"WILD BILL," the frontiersman, who, in his day, was as notorious as Kit Carson, and who was killed three years ago, has turned to stone from scalp to toe. His remains, which were buried at Deadwood, were taken from the grave the other day for interment at another place, when they were found to have become petrified. The features are as natural as life, save that a whiteness overspreading all gives the face the appearance of chiseled marble.

GOV. TRUMBULL'S "war office" at Lebanon, Conn., has just been partly repaired. It served at first as his store and afterward as his office, was the place of meeting of the Council of Safety and the station wherein Washington's messengers between Philadelphia and Boston stopped to rest.

MR. BLAINE'S retentive memory is said to be one of the reasons of his popularity in Maine. He recollects everybody that he has met, and when a farmer was brought forward for an introduction to him, a few days ago, the Senator asked if he had the kicking mare he drove behind in 1869, and if his son's patent ever amounted to anything. The farmer thought Mr. Blaine had forgotten him.

THE RESULT IN THE CITY.

The count of the vote in San Francisco was completed late on last Monday night, and shows results as follows: I. S. Kalloch (W. P. C.) has been elected Mayor by a majority of 1,528. The other successful candidates for city and county offices are the following named: Tax Collector, Wm. Martin (R); Tax Collector for unexpired term, C. Tilson (W.); County Clerk, W. A. Stuart (R.); District Attorney, D. L. Smoot (D., N. C. P. and W.); Coroner, L. L. Door (R.); Public Administrator, B. A. Reynolds (W.); Supt. of Streets, Wm. Patterson (R.); Supt. of Schools, John W. Taylor (R.); Sheriff, Thomas Desmond (W.); Auditor, for unexpired term and for full term, John P. Dunn (W.); Recorder, W. K. Deitrich (R.); Treasurer, W. R. Shaber (W.); Police Judge, Hale Rix (R.), Superior Judges, J. F. Finn (R. and W.) J. M. Allen (R.); J. Hunt, Jr. (R.); T. W. Freelon (D., N. C. P. and W.); W. P. Daingerfield (D., N. C. P. and W.); T. K. Wilson (R.); J. C. Cary (R., D. and N. C. P.); Rob't Ferrell (D.,N.C. P. and W.); J. Howard Smith (D., N. C. P. and W.); M. A. Edmonds and J. F. Sullivan (D., N. C. P. and W.).

Of the Supervisors 2 are Workingmen and 10 are Republicans.

Of the San Francisco Assemblymen elected 13 are Workingmen—of whom 4 were indorsed by the Democrats and by the N. C. P.—and 7 are Republicans. Of the Senators elected 4 are Republicans and 7 are Workingmen, 4 of whom were indorsed by the Democrats and the N. C. P.

Of the School Directors elected 9 are Republicans, 3 are Democrats indorsed by the N. C. P. and W. C. P., and one is a Workingman.

THE returns from Maine, so far as received indicate material gains for the Republicans. It is not sure that the Republican candidate for Governor will receive a majority vote, but as the Legislature is Republican in joint ballot, State officers of this political faith will be elected. The Republican success in Maine will advance Senator Blaine several steps as a Presidential candidate. He has personally managed the campaign, and the result not only demonstrates his ability as a political leader, but indicates great personal popularity. The other States in which Republican Presidential aspirants are managing campaigns are Ohio and New York. Sherman in the former and Conkling in the latter will be shelved as Presidential candidates, if the Republicans fail of success. The result in Maine and California is in one sense favorable to the Republicans, though in both places they are in the minority in the total vote. The probabilities are that in the great Presidential contest of 1880 the opposition will be united in Maine, and possibly in California.

GEN. GRANT has had a long interview with Gen. Loi Hung Chang, the real ruler of the Chinese Empire, on immigration and other matters, all of which reach us through the New York Herald. Loi Hung Chang in this talk assured Grant that the United States, through the Secretary of State, or any proper official personage appointed, will apply to the Imperial Government to stop Chinese immigration to California and the United States, an Imperial edict of the most stringent character will be at once issued that will stop emigration effectively, and most particularly of the laboring classes; and this will be done without the necessity of any new treaty. And it is on account of the talk in relation to the foregoing that Mr. Denis Kearney and his sort propose to burn Gen. Grant in effigy on his arrival at San Francisco. We hope when the gang undertakes such an insult as that to the whole American people that a Gatling gun or two will get loose among them.

THE METEOR IN THE WEST.—It appears that the meteor mentioned in yesterday morning's Sentinel was seen in the western part of the State. The Reno Journal makes this reference to it: "A very pretty sight was witnessed in the northern heavens last evening, about 6:30, which appeared to be a meteor starting from the east and going north, and leaving a ball of fire near the horizen, which excited wonder and admiration from all beholders. A white streak remained in the course of the meteor, visible for five minutes after the flame could no longer be seen."—Eureka Sentinel, Sept. 7.

This same meteor was seen by several persons in this locality, ourselves among the number. It appeared to strike on top of the White mountains, bearing a little east of north from this place. Its silvery "tail" was left hanging in the air full twenty minutes after the exceedingly brilliant head exploded.

STUDY AFTER SCHOOL DAYS.

There are societies in England and in our Eastern States, which provide help and encouragement for girls and women in reading at home books which shall improve their minds and give them the pleasant feeling of increasing knowledge. An American society, whose headquarters are in Boston, Mass., has had great and wide-spread success, but is as yet little known among us. We learn that it has already an agency here, consisting of several ladies who reside in and near San Francisco. These ladies are prepared to furnish lists of books which are at once attractive and instructive, and we give below some of the rules and the address taken from the circular for this part of the country. Many entertaining books convey valuable information, and if well selected and read with a wise plan for pursuing one subject continuously, will awaken interest and produce a strong impression, so that works on the same subject will be relished even if they are of a more serious nature. It is not easy for every one to select among the mass of books, known only by their titles, such as will be best to read, and this society proposes to meet that want. In response to a demand in various parts of the country, it issues now a new set of lists, preparatory to those in the original programmes. Useful reading is not only an occupation to be recommended for those who have plenty of leisure, but a refreshment to those whose daily practical duties are laborious; and in either case it is found to contribute to the health of the body as well as of the mind. The benefit of such help for those who have young children around them, asking eager questions, and needing sysmpathy in their studies is obvious.

In the Fifth Annual Report of the Boston Society we find this sentence quoted from a student's letter: "One of the best results of a study which has interested and enlivened without overburdening or exhausting, is a great improvement in the state of health." Another, on beginning a course of botany, regretted that the region where she lived was poor in flowers and botanical interest, but it was not long before she expressed her astonishment at the wealth around her. Still another whose duty of taking her younger brothers and sisters to walk had been a penance, found these walks become delightful explorations to which all looked forward with pleasure. Again, one who having but little leisure and no early education, took up mineralogy with the society, after a time, said: "I never knew before there was so much beauty in a stone. I feel as though I had lived so long with my eyes shut, I see so many beauties I never thought existed."

Ladies joining the society must be at least 17 years old; each member pays $2 a year, at the beginning of each term or whenever joining; the term for correspondence is from October 1st to June 1st, and this correspondence is monthly. Information about further details, also about the parent society and about books (which will be furnished under certain conditions) can be obtained from Miss Noyes, 13 Geary Place, San Francisco. The number of students on the books in Boston for the past two years has been between eight and nine hundred, and the society has been called "An Invisible University," and has been spoken of as forming a new sisterhood binding women together in all parts of our wide country.

THE following from the Bodie Standard is a history with plenty of illustrations on this coast: "The dead body of a woman was found this morning about two miles south of Bodie, on the Bridgeport road, lying in the sagebrush 100 yards from the path. The body was identified as Madam Dumont—familiarly known as "Madame Moustache" in almost every mining camp from Utah and Idaho to California. She was a French woman, very quiet and inoffensive, but with a strong propensity for gambling. Her favorite game was "twenty-one" which she has dealt for many years. It seems that her bank running low, she borrowed $300 of a friend and with her own funds opened a faro bank. It only lasted a few hours. She mentioned not a word to any person, but wandered to the place mentioned where with her dead body was discovered a vial which told the tale."

GEN. JOHN B. HOOD, of secession fame, has died of yellow fever at New Orleans. Hood was a brave fighter and an able writer. He was preparing a history of the war when death claimed him. A few days since the telegraph brought the news of his wife's death, and now the brave old man who was so mutilated by the bullets of our troops—having lost a leg and arm—has followed her to that better land. A large family of children, all under ten years of age is left, six of whom are twins, if we remember rightly.

SINCE the 1st of January, 1879, the exports from San Francisco to China have amounted to $8,417,569—$6,078,719 in treasure, balance merchandise.

THE Stock Report says: "In his speeches on the sand lots Sunday, Denis Kearney declared that he would burn Gen. Grant in effigy when he arrived in that city. What the head and front of Grant's offending to Kearney may be we know not, but we simply caution Denis to let that effigy contract out. Thers is not much Kearney now, but should he attempt to carry out his threat about Grant it would take the most powerful microscope in existence to find as much of him as would make a watch charm in less than fifteen minutes after he had hoisted the effigy. There is a point in human endurance beyond which even Denis Kearney cannot safely trespass. The people of San Francisco have borne a great deal from him. They have allowed him to paralyze their interests, to destroy confidence in the stability of the city, to depreciate real estate and bring confusion and havoc to their property rights. And now the nasty, cheeky scum dares to get up and threaten to disgrace San Francisco by an insult to one of the most distinguished citizens in the United States, who comes as a visitor and only in his capacity of a private citizen. When the report of Kearney's threat was circulated by the press in the city yesterday there was a general expression of indignant disgust, and hundreds of good, brave men vowed that if an attempt was made to put the threat into execution they would devote themselves to suppressing the dirty, little impudent blackguard who made it for one and for all.

Go slow Denis. If you value your carcass at the worth of a spent lucifer match, you will never attempt that effigy business. That the threat could be made and the man who made it not pulled from the stand and kicked to a jelly is of itself a disgrace to the city of San Francisco."

A World's Washington special says: A. H. Stephens believes that Gen. Hancock is the first choice and most available of the candidates named for Democratic standard-bearers, and is of the opinion that the campaign is likely to turn on the issues of the extra session, local self-government and the freedom of elections. Hancock has shown much capacity for civil administration in Louisiana and Texas, and great respect for the laws of the land and their supremacy over the edicts of the military.

WE are in receipt of the first issues of another new Bodie paper, the Daily Free Press, a bright little sheet published every day, Sundays excepted, by John M. Dormer & Co. It is distributed gratis, depending on its advertising patronage for a livelihood; yet it will take rank as a very excellent daily news journal, plenty good enough as such to to merit success on that account alone. But we suspect Bodie, with her four daily papers and one weekly, has even more "paper talk" than she can well stand under, or well understand.

IT is enough to say of the result of the State election that Perkins beats Glenn some 23,000 and White about 18,000. The State officers, both Houses of the Legislature and three Congressmen at least are Republicans. The Opposition elects five of the Supreme Judges, and a majority of the Board of Equalization and Railroad Commissioners. 'Rah for Perkins!

THERE is not the slightest shadow of a doubt, the Houston Telegram declares, but Gen. Hancock is the choice of the Texas Democracy for the nomination for President, and the Tilden men may put that in their pipes and smoke it. Texas can never forget the General's manly action at the close of the war when he gave the State civil instead of military government.

A SOCIETY for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals recommends the following rules for the treatment of balky horses:

1. Pat the horse upon the neck, examine his harness carefully, first on one side and then on the other, speaking encouragingly while doing so; then jump into the wagon and give the word go; generally he will obey.

2. A teamster in Maine says he can start the worst kind of a balky horse by making him go round in a circle. If the first dance of the kind doesn't cure him, the second one will be sure to.

3. To cure a balky horse, simply place your hand over the horse's nose and shut off the wind till he wants to go and then let him go.

4. The brains of horses seem to entertain but one idea at a time; thus continued whipping only confirms his stubborn resolve; if you can by any means give him a new subject to think of, you will have no trouble in starting him. A simple remedy is to take a couple of turns of stout twine around the fore leg, just below the knee, and tie it in a knot. At the first check he will go dancing off, and after going a short distance you can get out and remove the string to prevent injury to the tendon in your further drive.

PRESIDENT DIAZ is a long-headed gentleman. He has so arranged affairs in Mexico that, in choosing a new President, the people are substantially narrowed to a choice between Diaz for a new term and a civil war. Meantime the astute old man protests he is tired of the Presidency.

Against Chinese Immigration, 561—For Chinese Immigration, 2—Total Vote, 572

EXPLANATORY.—Democrats in small capitals, Republicans in Roman, Workingmen in italics, Bilks in the same but distinguished by a paranthetical (H B). The figures 2 and 3 next to certain names indicate the number of parties by which they were supported. Certain candidates were withdrawn after the ballots were printed and distributed, but were still voted for; such, with their respective substitutes, are marked with an asterisk (*), and coupled with a "brace."

THIS forenoon the top timbers of the station on the 2200 level of the Hale & Norcross was seen for the first time in over three and a half years. The distance on the incline from the 2100 level of the Hale & Norcross to the 2200 level is 135 feet, the incline having an angle of 44 degrees. The station set is 10 feet higher, and this forenoon the water stood 125 feet below the 2100 level. This is a virtual victory of the pumps over the flood and worthy of a general rejoicing.

At the Savage the angle of depression of the incline is 38¾. This accounts for the different measurements given week after week in the official letters and reports of the two mines. The water in the Savage was at the time above mentioned 140 feet on the slope below the 2100 level and the water would have to be lowered some 15 feet more before the 2200 station would be dry. In our mining report of Wednesday mention was made of the raise in the connecting drift of the two mines and it was cited as a reason why the Hale & Norcross would be drained first, the water coming originally from the Savage.

Both mines will almost certainly be drained next week. There is great curiosity to see the fountain head of all the immense flood of hot water and doubtless all will want to take a look at the ledge.—Gold Hill News.

THE Yuma Sentinel says: "The amount of ties accumulating at the front must be enormous; almost daily an extra train of twenty car-loads of them rushes through here, followed by the regular train, with ten or twelve car-loads more. The load is 250 ties; 8,500 ties per day counts up rapidly."

A VIRGINIAN who recently visited Senator Withers writes that he found the patrician surrounded by children, grandchildren, adopted children, friends, guests, relatives, dogs, puppies, little negroes, babies, and pet foxes. At the same time the Senator was suffering from rheumatism, but happy withal.

GEN. SPINNER will be remembered by every one who is familiar with greenbacks on account of that peculiar signature of his, in which the flourish is extended from the bottom of the upper to the top of the lower note. The old gentleman took offense and retired from the Treasury Department to seek a home in the genial clime of Jacksonville, Florida. Here is what hs writes to a friend: "I would just give two York shillings if you could now drop in upon me and see the pitcher of iced lemonade, basket of St. Augustine grapes and dish of sponge cake on my table, to say nothing of a cupboard full of well-filled bottles and all kinds of goodies. I know you would enjoy all these so much. My friends here do." The country at large, which has rather a liking for Gen. Spinner on account of his generous eccentricities, will be pleased to know that he is living in the midst of enjoyment.

A LUCKY PROSPECTOR.—On the lightning train for San Francisco last night was a man named Terrence Day, who came from Bodie by way of Virginia, and, if his story is true, has discovered the biggest mine yet discovered on this coast, at a point some 12 miles south of Mammoth City. Day has been prospecting in that section of the country for the past eight months, and a month ago he struck what he calls a pure gold ledge, at a depth of forty feet. He exhibited to a gentleman of this city several pounds of the rock, which is three-quarters pure gold. What his mission to the city is he did not state, but likely to get some capitalist in with him. We would like to know what a man with a gold mine in which three-quarters of the ledge is gold, wants with outside capital.—Carson Appeal.

NEWS comes from the East that while many Republicans are striving to secure the nomination of Gen. Grant for the Presidency, a few Southern politicians are desirous that Congress shall enact a law creating the office of Captain-General, in order to keep him from being a candidate again for the Presidency.

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 13.....1879

MODOCK OFFICIAL LETTER.—The official letter of the week is as follows:

Sept. 8, 1879.

J. W. Pew, Esq., Secretary Modock Con. M. Co.:—DEAR SIR: The following work was done on the lower level for the week ending to-day:

South drift, 300 foot, run 24 feet; east crosscut, from north drift, 300 foot, 7 feet; north drift, 800 foot, 15 feet; north crosscut, 1000 foot, 7 feet, and south drift, 1100 foot, 14 feet. Total length of south drift, 300 foot, 218 feet; east crosscut, north drift, 300 foot, 7 feet; north drift, 900 foot, 175 feet; north crosscut, 1000 foot, 46 feet, and south drift, 1100 foot, 174 feet.

Crosscut from 300-foot drift north passed through about 4 feet of lime and manganese, and this morning has ore in the face of the same character as started on in the drift. This point looks very favorable for yielding a large quantity of ore.

The face of the north crosscut, 1000 foot, is in fine ground for ore, with every indication of soon striking it. Other points in the mine are looking as well as at any time heretofore. The north drift, 800 foot, still following clay seam, and south drift, 1100 foot, having good ground in face.

Yours, respectfully,
A. C. TIBBETTS, Supt.

THE BIG MILL AT MAMMOTH.—Every day or two, for months past, one or more of the Freighting Company's big teams has passed here loaded to the guards with machinery and all sorts of supplies bound for Lake District. All this machinery, and nearly all of the miscellaneous supplies are to the order of one company, namely the Mammoth. And right good use is all this stuff being put to, as is shown in a long article we find in the Mammoth City Herald. The mill, which is now ready to steam up, is composed of a series of large wooden buildings, joined together and covering about an a quarter of an acre of ground. Some 800,000 feet of lumber were used in their construction. All the rooms are large and well arranged for their respective purposes, giving storage under cover for a vast amount of wood and other bulky supplies during the long Winter months. The machinery is massive, and of the most approved patterns throughout. The engine can be worked up to 250 horse-power, the cylinder having a diameter of two feet with a four-foot stroke. The mill has forty stamps, with pans, settlers, and every other necessary adjunct to correspond. The ore-house has storage for 2,400 tons, while the tramway to the tunnel mouth is all under cover, so that work can go on at all hours and seasons no matter how deep the snow may fall. The mine is in such shape that over a hundred men can be kept constantly at work stoping out, while the ore is so easily worked that each miner can knock down about five tons a day. Much of this falls in such large blocks as to require blasting before further removal.

PANAMINT.—There is quite a fair prospect for Panamint to come to the front again, notwithstanding the sorrowful fact that it has stood unanimously for the great Bilk of Colusa. As will be noted in our letter from that place, given elsewhere, no less than 1,157 pounds of fine bullion has just come from there in one shipment, and the largest the place has ever made. This, we presume, is from ores furnished the mill by chloriders, and not from mines belonging to the new company now operating there. Nevertheless, we believe now as we did years ago, that many of the mines which have recently come under the control of the new company, the Leota, will some day sooner or later, prove to be quite as good as the orginal locators so confidently anticipated. Most assuredly Panamint, with its legions of mineral bearing ledges, and magnificent facilities for opening them to great depths, and for the cheap reduction of the ores, affords a most promising yield for systematic prospecting. There are big bonanzas in more than one of them, and we'll bet a hat on the proposition.

THE REX MONTIS.—We are under obligations to Secretary D. H. Ward for a full prospectus of the Rex Montis Company in pamphlet form, with maps and a copy of the Treasurer's statement up to August 1st, 1879. We shall not now attempt any notice in detail of the facts set forth in these documents, other than to say the company are desirous of driving ahead in the Independence tunnel, but anticipates to do so it will be necessary to levy assessments for the purpose. Some of the stock set apart to be sold to raise a working capital has been so disposed of, but not in amount sufficient to meet requirements, hence the necessity for assessments. Work is going steadily along in the big tunnel, but some 500 feet more will have to be driven to reach the wide ledge known as the Potosi No. 4, when, there is good reason to anticipate, good paying ground will be opened.

ENTERTAINMENTS.—On Thursday and Friday nights our citizens, large and small, were favored with minstrel entertainments by the Wretlands, John and Mona, assisted by some local talent. We have seen better "shows," and yet some not near as good; nevertheless, there is enough of fun and fair acting and ludicrous comicalities in the entertainments by these artists to well justify the cost, and we advise all to go and see, when the opportunity offers.

DEFUNCT.—The signs of the times lead to the natural fear that Jones' Semi-Weekly Bentonian has gone dead again—and so young, too! But let us not surrender hope of a resurrection till a Coroner's jury lets us know we are wasting precious hope.

Grand Jury Report.

To the Hon. County Court of Inyo County, State of California—We, the Grand Jurors impaneled at the September term thereof, would respectfully submit the following report:

We have carefully examined into all the charges that have been presented to us, and have found two indictments:

One for murder against one Michael Welch, for the killing of W. L. Moore, the Sheriff of Inyo County, on the 3d day of July, A. D. 1879.

And one against one Henry Tessier, for an assault with intent to commit murder upon the person of Michael Welch, July 3d, A. D. 1879.

We have examined the County Jail and County Hospital, and found them both kept in good condition and the inmates well cared for.

We also find from reliable information that all the county offices are properly conducted.

And we further, as Grand Jurors, do censure the Hon. Theron Reed, Judge of the Sixteenth Judicial District, for his dereliction of duty, in holding but one day's court in Inyo County since May 17th, A. D. 1878, to the detriment of parties litigant in our county, in which some of them have sustained great loss from said cause. We feel that we would be wanting in our duty if we did not notice and condemn so gross a violation of the sacred trust reposed by us in one of our public officers.

All of which we most respectfully submit.

September 10, 1879.

Panamint 'Redivivus."

MESSRS. EDITORS: Owing to the untiring efforts and indefatigable goaheadiveness of the President of the Leota Gold and Silver Mining Company of San Francisco, the property of the Surprise Valley Mill and Water Company, has lately been purchased by the Leota Company, and active operations have once more been resumed in the district by the new company, under the management of its gentlemanly superintendent, Mr. E. L. Johnson. The affairs of this company, being conducted on a systematic and substantial basis, the people of Inyo county, more particularly the miners of Panamint, should congratulate themselves upon now having a company upon which they can safely rely for close working of ores, and fair dealings.

The denizens of the once lively town of Darwin were reminded of palmy days on Saturday last by the approach from Panamint of a company of sturdy miners, armed with Henry rifles, escorting a "prairie schooner" containing 1,157 pounds or thirteen bars of bullion from the Leota mill, the result of the first six days' run from 59 tons of ore, and this was the largest shipment of bullion ever made at one time from this point. The congratulations of the residents can be more readily imagined than described. When the baseness of the Panamint mineral belt, and the numerous obstacles attendant upon reviving an old and virtually abandoned camp are taken into consideration the results of the past few days are most flattering. The superintendent has placed the mining department proper under the supervision of Mr. W. C. Smith, a competent assistant, and with such a team we congratulate the new company and insure it the success it so justly merits.

OBSERVER.

THE COUNT.—In the table elsewhere in these columns will be found a correct transcript of the vote of this county at the late election for all officers down to Superwisors. There is a great diversity of opinion whether the New Confusion contemplated the election of new Boards of Supervisors complete, as in the case of all other officials, or intended to let things slide smoothly along as heretofore. In the latter case, there would be but one to elect; in the former, a full Board. Some votes were cast on the latter presumption in every District. It so happened, however, that the most of these in all the Districts were in favor of entirely new, and presumably, better men. Well, that little circumstance made it as plain as the nose on your face or anybody else's, to both the gentlemen whose seats were involved that the New Confusion never had the remotest idea of ousting them at all. They showed by the instrument itself that, while it a deal to say in a dazed sort of a way about almost everything else, it didn't hint in any words whatever that sensible holdover Supervisors must step down and out; consequently, they should not canvass the vote for Supervisors in the two doubtful districts—at least they declined to issue certificates of election, in which latter conclusion they were right, since it is a very open question indeed as to whether more than one Supervisor was to be elected. Such being the case, David Olds, of Round Valley, who takes Mr. Garretson's place, was declared elected. The question concerning the others is to be subjected to judicial decision.

THE EMIGRANT.—We note that the firms of Waterman & Co., of San Francisco, and O'Brion & Waterman and the Cerro Gordo Freighting Company, of Darwin, have petitioned Judge Wright, of San Francisco, to cause the Directors of the Emigrant Silver Mining Company to appear before him and show cause why that company should not be declared insolvent and its assets sold for the benefit of the company's creditors. Should this petition be granted, and the company's property turned over to an assignee in bankruptcy—well, who'll give us and many other local creditors say five cents on the dollar for our claims, even those presumed to be secured by attachments? We will venture to answer: "nobody."

Final Proofs.

The vacancy in the land office created by the resignation of Register Briggs having given rise to a published statement that no busisess could be transacted in the office during such time, it gives us pleasure to set the question at rest by publication of the following letter from Receiver Osborne:

U. S. LAND OFFICE.
Bodie, Cal., Sept. 6, 1879.

MESSRS. EDITORS—As there are several notices now being published in your paper, fixing the time of hearing in the matter of final proof in pre-emption and homestead cases, before this office, and as the question has arisen as to whether such proof can be made while no Register is in office, I would be pleased to have you state in THE INDEPENDENT that the proofs can be taken before me as Receiver at the times fixed, although the entries cannot be formally made until the new Register qualifies. Those fixed for hearing before Judge Hannah can of course be heard without postponement.

Very respectfully,
H. Z. OSBORNE,
Receiver.

TAKING A LOOK.—Capt. J. M. Keeler, of San Francisco, and who, by the way, served through the rebellion in the California regiment, has been "doing" this region for a couple of weeks past, coming as the representative of some well known San Francisco capitalists who want to invest in mines provided they can hear of the right sort. The Captain spent most of his time on the ledges near Swansea and Cerro Gordo, and expresses himself as highly pleased with many he examined. This is true particularly of the Indiana, the Boley & Tuttle ledge near Swansea. He ranks that as one of the most promising properties he has seen anywhere. He is also firm in the belief that Cerro Gordo will be the scene of some extensive and successful mining operations ere many months.

HUNTING BONDSMEN. — Our county officers elect are busily engaged just about these times in finding responsible signers for their official bonds. As the aggregate amount required is very great, it is impossible to make up the several bonds without calling on citizens resident in almost every portion of the county. This involves both trouble and expense on the officers elect, but there is no help for it.

HOW IT IS.—Owing to ill health (if there is such a thing as ill health), there are divers and sundry items and things, wise and otherwise, that should have had an original airing in these columns this week which won't get even a distant reference. But "when a thing is as it is, it can't be no tisser," so please don't worry on our account.

The Election in Mono.

The following county officers have been elected: Superior Judge, R. M. Briggs; Sheriff, James Showers; Clerk B. H. Miller; Assessor, J. J. Welch; Treasurer, Andrew Allen; District Attorney, E. W. Taylor; Surveyor, J. G. Thompson; Sup't Public Schools, Miss A. L. Irish; Supervisor, District No. 2, C. H. West; Coroner and Public Administrator, Dr D. L. Deal; Justices of the Peace, Bodie Township, R. L. Peterson and Thomas Newman; Constables, Bodie Township, James S. Harrington and S. J. Stebbins.

With the exception of County Clerk Miller and Public Administrator Deal, Democrats; Miss A. L. Irish, Sup't of Public Schools, and Constable Harrington, Workingmen; the others are Republicans.

The total vote of Mono county for Governor was 1,665, as follows: Perkins, 786; Glenn, 488; White, 301. Perkins' majority over White, 395; over Glenn, 298.

The total vote of Bodie for Governor was 1,146, as follows: Perkins, 525; Glenn, 314; White, 307. Perkins over Glenn, 211; over White, 218—within 96 votes of a tie.—Bodie Chronicle.

ON Sunday morning last about nine o'clock, a Chinaman living in Pine City received a pistol shot in the shoulder and one in the thigh, inflicting two very painful and dangerous wounds, which proved fatal Tuesday night. What clothes the matter in mystery is the different versions of the story given by his friends and the deceased himself. The report of the friends is that he had been ill for some days, and becoming despondent deliberately shot himself, with the result above stated. The deceased, however, gave an entirely different and somewhat ludicrous account as follows: "Debble makee steal 'em pick and Chinaman shootee me for stealee him, alle same Melican man." His remains were interred in Mineral Park for the time, but his friends say his bones will be exhumed in about two years and sent to China, where we presume they will be kept in a glass jar labeled Wi Pan, Fu Chin, or whatever may have been the name of the Celestial.—Lake Mining Review.

THERE has been very nearly an unanimous vote against Chinese immigration. We have heard of but a scattering ticket here and there throughout the State in which a contrary expression was made. It was not necessary for the information of this people of this coast that this verdict should have been pronounced; but the Eastern people required the assurance, and they have it.

THE new Legislature of Kentucky consists of 155 members, and the Democrats will have a majority of 127 on joint ballot. Of the thirty-eight Senators, thirty-four are Democrats and four Republicans; in the House there are ninety-three Democrats, twenty-one Republicans and three Greenbackers. If Kentucky is not the banner Democratic State, what State is?

"JACK," said a pretty girl to her small brother, the other day, "I want you to do something for me—that's a good fellow."

"What is it?" growled Jack, who is the brother of the period.

"Why, you know that wig and moustache you used in the theatricals?"

"Well, won't you just put them on and go to the concert to-night? Agustus and I will be there; and, Jack, I want you to stare at me the whole evening through your glasses."

"What! You want me to do that!"

"Yes; and as we come out you must stand in the door and try to slip me a note—take care that Gus sees you, too."

"Well, I declare!"

"Because, you see, Jack, Gus likes me, I know; but then he's slow; and he's well off, and lots of other girls after him—and he's got to be hurried up a little, as it were."

IT is quietly whispered in San Franfrancisco that the Chronicle changed hands on the 5th instant, the De Youngs withdrawing and the paper passing into the hands of A. A. Cohen, Geo. C. Gorham and a third party whose name we have not learned. If this rumor be true the Chronicle will probably move along as usual, notwithstanding its disastrous defeat in the late election. It is only a question whether Gorham is preferable to the De Youngs.—Eureka Sentinel.

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 13.....1879

GRANT.—This distinguished soldier and civilian will arrive in this city on or about the 21st instant. We do hope for the honor and credit of our city and State that his reception and stay here will be entirely divested of politics. He does not come as a politician but as a private citizen, having held high and distinguished positions in the service of the people of the whole country; as one having received, as an American citizen, the greatest honors that have ever been paid by foreign countries to any man that has ever lived; honors that his countrymen share with him in the fact that he has received them. Under these circumstances there should be a dignity in his reception here that would compare favorably with the delicacy of the attentions he has received abroad; and such a consummation can only be reached by confining the details of the arrngements of those fully understanding what is required in the premises. The military should be foremost in his reception; and in the name of all that is cultured, refined and decent, let the line of procession organized for his reception be strictly military, not an occasion to be seized upon to advertise "bitters" or "sweets." Let it be done decently and in order. Let the Mayor of the city, the President of the Chamber of Commerce, the heads of such organizations and departments as are representative, be invested with authority to make such arrangements for the reception as will be fitting for a man occupying the exalted position that marks the history of Grant.—Spirit of the Times.

IT is generally believed that the banking people are very careful and accurate in handling money and doing business, but inquiry at the dead letter office of the Postoffice Department will show that a great proportion of the misdirected letters containing valuable papers received there are from banks, and in the $57,000,000 received at the redemption division last year, the girls who count the money found errors to the amount of $32,054 77. The Treasury "countesses" are proverbial for their accuracy in counting and their aptness in detecting counterfeits. Gen. Spinner used to say that women could handle money under all circumstances better than men. But it is due to the banks to say that nearly seventy per cent. of the errors they made last year were against them. Out of the $32,054 77 errors, $22,148 42 were "overs," and only $9,906 35 were "shorts," to use the slang of the counting-room.—Washington Star.

THEY were playing "Buffalo Bill" at the Denver Opera House. One of the tableaux was the Mountain Meadows massacre illuminated by glaring colored flames. Some one surreptitiously mingled a quantity of red pepper with the material for producing tinted flame, and the mixture went on a tear, sputtered, flashed, splashed, sparkled, hissed, crackled and flew in fiery, blistering showers over the hands and faces of the dead, whose vitality was restored in a miraculously natural manner. One of the murdered women, who lay prone upon her back, with her head horribly gashed, and a yawning, bleeding slit cut across her beautiful throat—dead as a door-nail—was splashed, and revived with startling suddenness. She howled, groaned, and flopped over, exclaiming: "Ow! ow! My eyes are burned out! I'll die!" Other copses writhed, rolled, flopped, howled and groaned, and coughs and profanity were the order of the night.

SITTING BULL, says the St. Louis Journal, has braved the cannon's belch, and musket's rattle, and saber's gleam many and many a time, and never winced, never faltered, never paled. His trust was in his own good right arm and the fatherly protection of the Great Spirit. But when Sitting Bull heard that Carl Schurz was coming West to parley with him he gathered up his tomahawk and incontinently fled to the wilds of the Canadian side. He is a far-sighted Sitting Bull.

IT seems to be pretty well settled in the minds of Englishmen that the result of the Zulu war will not be absolute submission on the part of King Cetewayo. He is still able to fight and dictate his terms of surrender, and there is very little doubt if he holds his present mind he will be able, with the advantage of his late experience, to make a better fight at another time. The English will doubtless try to establish relations of amity with so able and daring a foe.

THE Internal Revenue Bureau has prepared a statement showing that the number of gallons of spirits produced during the fiscal year of 1879 was 71,893,617, against 56,103,053 gallons in 1878. The gallons withdrawn from bond with tax paid in 1879 number 57,896,770; in 1878 50,073,639 gallons were withdrawn from bond for export. The number of gallons remaining in bonded warehouses June 30, 1878, only 14,088,773.

THE New York Herald says the trial of Henry J. Gully, for the murder of the daughter of Judge Chisholm, has begun. It is expected if he is convicted that a riot will ensue. The probability is he will be acquitted. A conviction, it is thought would be phenomenal.

NORDENSKOLD has found and proved the existence of the "northwest passage," which for years, and centuries even, has been a theme of discussion and dispute. Or, is it not rather a northeastern passage which the Professor has passed through, having left the north of Sweden, and skirted along the north shore of Europe and Asia to the Strait of Behring? The hunt for the famous northwest passage was from Baffin's Bay westwardly to the Pacific Ocean. If the Jeannette finds it impossible to reach the North Pole—as may prove the case, and probably will—she might continue the route through the Arctic from Behring's Strait, and eventually return to the Atlantic through Smith's Sound and Baffin's Bay. The coast of North America between those two points is pretty well known, or passably so, from accounts of voyages by ship, and from reports of travelers, such as Capt. Back and others. But whether a vessel like the Jeannette could work her way through is problematical.

An overland expedition is now to the north of Hudson Bay, pursuing their course with dogs and sledges toward Melville Island and adjacent lands and adjacent bays and shores, the object being, primarily, to discover, if possible, some further relics of the Franklin expedition which perished there some thirty years ago. Of course there are other purposes in addition, geographical and marine. They may succeed in enlightening the inquiring world as to the final ending of the Franklin expedition, as it is believed that written accounts were left by its officers somewhere in cairns, before they all succumbed to the cruel elements and starvation. They may disappear as did Franklin, his crews and his ships, and so add still more to the terrible mysteries of that clime of frost and snow, or they may succeed as did Capt. Back, who made the overland journey in search of Capt. Ross, who had been so long absent as to alarm the world for his safety. While absent, Capt. Ross returned, whereupon the wits said, "Although Back had not got Ross, Ross had got back."—S. F. Alta.

THE New York Tribune says although some over-zealous advocates of Gen. Grant's nomination in 1880 insist that his decision in the canal matter will not necessarily take him out of the Presidential race, it is evident that he has made up his mind to keep aloof from the whirlpool of party politics. It is not to be supposed that he would entertain the idea of managing so gigantic a commercial and engineering an undertaking as a ship canal between the Atlantic and Pacific if he had any ambition or expectancy of serving another term in the White House. He writes he has given two days' consideration to the matter. He is no doubt well informed as to the drift of political events at home, and in these two days of reflection he must have weighed the chances of a nomination and election next year. Probably his conclusion was that a life position as head of the canal company would be more to his taste than four years more of the Chief Magistracy, even if the latter were fully assured. At all events, he has made up his mind, and he is the last man to waver when he has come to a decision.

THE San Francisco Bulletin says a prominent capitalist of this city, in view of the result of the late elections has decided to lend $40,000 on real estate and other securities. He has been holding this sum for several months, being undecided whether it was prudent to negotiate loans.

IT is stated that the V. & T. R. R. Co. will shortly meet and decide the question as to whether they shall, or shall not, construct a branch road from the Mound House, through Carson and Mason valleys, to Aurora and Bodie.—Eureka Sentinel.

Meadow Lake Ores Finally Overcome.

A score of people have gone daft, and hundreds have "gone broke," trying to discover some process for working Meadow Lake ore. With hand mortars for crushing purposes and a frying pan for a furnace, any man could get good prospects. Assayers could always get very flattering returns from the ore ranging away up in the hundreds of dollars per ton. In many places free gold could be seen cropping out of the rock as thick as mussels on a rocky beach. Yet in spite of all this, every every man who took a fortune to Meadow Lake left it there, sunk in some intricate process. When simple amalgamation failed, everybody was panic-stricken. It was at once concluded that the ore was so rebellious that only the costliest chemical process would extract it. This theory was strengthened when chlorination failed, and was everlastingly established when the Schively process, the Fryer process, the Robertson process, and forty other processes failed. And now comes James Gould, a well known amalgamator, who worked last in the famous Black Bear mine, in Siskiyou county, and solves the problem. Assisted by Lee Butts, a well known machinist and mining expert, and C. A. Giffen, and backed up by S. Harris and James Giffen, all heavily interested in these mines, Mr. Gould worked the ore successfully. And what did he do? Why, nothing, except to handle the ore as if it were decent, ordinary rock, in which sulphurets strongly predominate. With a fire in which layers of wood and layers of ore alternated, he heated the ore, and thus dried and partially oxidized it. Then dry crushing it in an ordinary stamp mill, he roasted the ore in a reverberatory furnace until it attained cherry redness. This roasting completed the oxidation. This done, he subjected it to ordinary wet amalgamation, with pan and settler. The result from six tons of ore was a beautiful bar of bullion worth $636. The method of working the ore is the simplest known, and yet its results are perfectly satisfactory. Great interest is manifested by mining men in this part of the country, and the result seems likely to revolutionize the commonly accepted views of the Meadow Lake rock.—Truckee Republican.

In a large retail dry goods house in this city are two persons who, a few years since, occupied very different positions.

One, a man over fifty years of age, is a salesman on a salary of less than one thousand dollars a year; the other, a young man of six and twenty years of age, receives a salary of upwards of twenty five hundred dollars.

Five years ago the elder man was a partner in a wholesale concern that went into insolvency and then out of existence, each partner of which was left without a dollar for the support of his family.

The young man had occupied an humble position in that concern, and one cold day he allowed his dinner to get scorched while warming it at the furnace in the basement.

Soon the smell of burnt meat went up into the counting-room, which so exasperated his employer that he rushed down stairs, and seizing the offender by the collar, brought him up and ejected him from the store.

Such severe treatment made the lad feel rather "cut up," as he was the principal support of an invalid mother.

Not long afterward, he attracted the attention of his present employer, who engaged him at a fair salary, which he kept increasing, until his present handsome position.

Thus, from the changes and depressions of trade, the young man is up and the elder one is down.—Boston Commonwealth.

THE San Francisco Reception Committee have issued an address to soldiers and sailors in which they say:

The great Captain of the age, and twice elected President of the United States, U. S. Grant, is coming upon our Western shore. In returning to his own land he completes a circuit of the world, which has been an unbroken ovation. Royalty and Republicanism, titled rulers and civic statesmen, the oldest powers and the youngest governments have vied with each other in rivalry of hospitality and kindly greetings at his coming. The great national heart of America throbs in sympathy with every tribute of respect that has marked his brilliant journey. It now grows warmer at his approach, and enthusiasm takes the place of regard. It is the exceptional privilege of San Francisco to be allowed to first welcome home our illustrious soldier and citizen. All classes are united here in earnest purpose to give him such an enthusiastic reception as shall show the depth of our affection and the intensity of our loyalty. This is to be done, too, without reference to politics, party affiliations, sex or creed. His welcome is to come from the people, and the whole people.

And to show that in this hour of our exultation there lingers leaven of hate against others, we also cordially invite all who bore any part in the Confederate service to join us in paying respect to our honored ex-President. His magnanimity to his foes may well call for a reciprocity of good feeling, and we shall regard their coming as an act of graceful courtesy.

THE history of yellow fever in this country shows that it has never prevailed in an epidemic form in any locality with an elevation of 500 feet above the sea. Memphis has an elevation of 260 feet.

Dinner-Table Etiquette.

Numerous application having been made asking us to fix a set of rules for table etiquette, we accordingly respond with pleasure:

1. It is proper to place your napkin so that the gravy may not fall on your shirt front. When you are through you can ram it down between your shirts, and if nobody is looking you win a napkin.

2. On no consideration wipe your nose on your napkin. The table cloth was made for this purpose.

3. It is not considered proper to place your butter on the side of your plate. If small plates are not provided wipe your knife off on your head. What is left will do for hair oil.

4. If you discover a hair in the butter pull it out with your thumb and finger. Tell the waiter that he forgot to shave the butter.

5. Never pour your tea into the saucer. It spoils it, and beside, somebody may steal it when you're not looking. Well-made tea is a very enervating drink, but most women make water, and very weak water at that, and it is additionally weakened by pouring it into the saucer.

6. If you discover a fly in your piece of pie, draw the attention of those at the table to the fact. Then tell them how sick a fly made you once after swallowing it. If they are grateful they will thank you for the information.

7. If you get a piece of hot meat in your mouth, do not spit it into your plate. Take it in your hand and slide it down your neighbor's back. If he objects, punch him in the nose.

8. In sitting down in your chair, make believe somebody has placed a pin in it. Then you can jump, yell and kick half the dishes off the table. This produces a very fine effect—you are pitied, and can eat your dinner in peace, as all the children are spanked and sent to bed for putting the pin where it wasn't.

9. If you get a mouthful of hot tea, squirt it through your teeth, and then tell the company that that's the way they sprinkle clothes in the Chinese laundries. They will then think you have traveled—and probably wish that you may do so some more.

10. Ask the bald-headed man of the company if he was spun on his head for drinks when he was young. In the absence of the bald-headed man, turn the attention of all present to the toothless old woman by telling her that you can get her a job in the Postoffice gumming stamps, or in a drug store biting holes in porous plasters.

11. When you pass a plate filled with meat, gravy and potatoes, drop it just as the other party reaches for it. Then apologize by saying you thought they had "their grip on it." Very funny effect.

Readers who carefully follow the above rules will gain the respect of their fellow-men and die happy—though perhaps very young.—Virginia Footlight.

A PHILOSOPHIC FIEND.—A careworn looking man walked into an office the other day and said:

"I should like to sell you a gimlet."

"We have no use for one," replied the cashier.

"But you should always look into the misty future," went on the fiend demurely; "next Winter you will want to make holes in your boot heels so you can get your skates on."

"I never skate."

"You may want to throw some boards together some time. The old-fashioned method of driving the screws in with a hammer is pernicious, as it deteriorates the tenacity of the fangs of the screw, as it were."

"Nothing to-day, sir."

"This gimlet acts as a corkscrew."

"I don't want it."

"It also may be used as a tack hammer, a cigar-holder, and tooth-brush."

"I don't want it."

"It is an eraser, a pen, an inkstand a table for computing compound interest, and a lunch-box attachment."

"I can't help it; I don't want it."

"I know you don't; you're one of those men that don't buy a gimlet unless it has a restaurant and a trip to Europe and an Italian Opera Company attached. You're a man that wouldn't live near an electric light to save a gas bill."

The San Jacinto Assassins.

The two masked villains who attacked Gen. Bouton and Mr. Collins near San Gorgonio Station, have been definitely heard from. It was reported by Indians living between the Cahuilla valley and Warner's ranch, that two days after the attempted assassination young Tripp and Covington came to their cabins and remained with them some three or four days. One was shot through the side of the face the ball striking the cheek bone; the other was shot through the thigh and hip. The Indians reported the wounded men were very uneasy and much afraid of being captured, and as soon as it was possible for them to move, they started away with the intention of trying to reach Utah Territory. One of Don Forster's vaqueros saw and recognized the man who was wounded in the face, and a party who was well acquainted with the wounded men reports having met them a few days later crossing the desert on the Salt Lake road, and says that the one who was shot in the hip was so badly wounded that it was the utmost difficulty that he could get along. The story as told by these men would go to confirm that of the Indians—that the men were bound for Utah.—Los Angeles Journal.

GEN. LONGSTREET, now Postmaster at Gainsville, Georgia, has a sad face, frank, gray eyes, massive jaws, a strong mouth and white silken mustache and side whiskers. He bears a striking likeness to the Emperor William. His right arm, which received many wounds, is paralyzed.

A FLOATING debt is certain in time to sink any enterprise.

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 20.....1879

THE New York World thus notices the arrival of the son of John Bright the great British statesman and free trade champion: "Mr. John Leathem Bright has arrived in this city on his first visit to America. He is a broad-shouldered young Englishman, six feet tall, his deep chest and massive lower face bespeaking his Yorkshire descent. He is the son of the English reformer by his first wife, who was a young lady of Wakefield, Yorkshire, England, daughter of a busy barrister of West Riding, John Leathem. Her marriage to John Bright was a simple announcement in the meeting-house at Northgate, in Wakefield, a square little structure with an audience-room barely larger than a hall bed-room. Mr. Bright comes out for pleasure and to see the country. He will go at once to the Pacific slope to spend the Winter."

THE New York Tribune's correspondent in Utah has a long and careful review of polygamy. He thinks it can only be eradicated by a law making the continuance of parties in polygamous relations a penal offense. At present a man can only be punished where it can be shown he has gone through the ceremony of marriage with more than one wife. He thinks the Mormons would abandon polygamy if they saw themselves in the power of the Government and likely to be severely dealt with. It is an historical fact easily susceptible of proof, that polygamy was not the fundamental principle of Mormonism nor their chief inspiration.

ALPINE county polled 176 votes, 125 of which were for Perkins. The following county officers were elected: Superior Judge, N. D. Arnot; Sheriff, J. B. Scott; Clerk, W. W. Harvey; District Attorney, S. W. Griffith; Treasurer, John Cronkite; Assessor, J. H. Wade; Superintendent of Schools, P. W. Parker; Coroner, H. Bolton. Cyrus Coleman was elected joint Assemblyman for Alpine and El Dorado counties. For State Senator, ex-Senator Brown carried the county over Nott, ex-Assemblyman,

A ST. LOUIS dispatch of the 15th instant states that Mrs. Bonstill, residing at Shawnee, Jackson county, Mo., killed two of her children, little girls, on the 14th, by giving them morphine, then tried to commit suicide by taking some of the drug, but not having enough to produce death, she attempted to kill herself by hanging, but was discovered before life was extinct. The supposed cause was mental derangement, occasioned by domestic troubles.

THE Governor-elect of this State holds office for three years from the 5th day of January, 1880, as also the Lieutenant Governor, Secretary of State, Controller, Treasurer, Attorney General and Surveyor General. The Governor's salary is $6,000 per annum, and the other officers named $3,000 per annum, except the Lieutenant Governor, who receives only the same pay that may be provided for the Speaker of the Assembly.

IT was currently reported in the city last week, though believed by no one in particular, that Father Pickering, of the Call, would have an unqualified opinion about something or other, perhaps Denis, before many days. Anxious friends will be pleased to know that it was a false symptom that started the rumor, and that no such unheard of thing is threatening the old gentleman at all.

ANOTHER newspaper has just been issued at Bodie—the Evening Union—Holland & Co., proprietors—making five in all now published in that lively burg. The Union is distributed free, relying on its advertising patronage for support. From a copy of the paper that we have seen we should infer that it has made a good beginaing in this respect.

TEXAS journals are unanimous in the call for more white farmers, mechanics, and men with coin. "All such are received with open arms," say they. But they forgot to add that their arms are always loaded, and are liable to go off at any moment. Texas is a good State to live in if a man can keep out of sight all the time.

RED SNOW, which is usually found only in Arctic latitudes, is seen on a lofty summit near Mount Stanford, in the Sierra Nevadas. For several acres the vast drifts are a beautiful pinkish tint to the depth of three or four inches. It is said to be a beautifnl spectacle.

KEMPER COUNTY AND YAZOO.

An exchange remarks: "The acquittal of Henry J. Gully on the charge of murdering Cornelia Chisholm is a disgrace to the jury system, a dishonor to the community from whom the jurors were drawn and a travesty of justice." Yes, it is all of that and more, too: it is a shame on civilization, and the age in which we live. Had such a cruel, beastly and cold blooded massacre as was this of the Chisholm family been perpetrated by red instead of white savages, "vengeance!" would, rightly enough, have been the cry all over the land. True, this Gully is not the only red-handed white savage who, through the connivance of equally black hearted juries, has escaped the gallows; not by any means, for such escapes are only too frequent everywhere; but, as a rule, such have no significauce beyond the individual bearings in the case, and as showing to outraged communities what outrages are possible in the face of law and evidence. But in this Kemper county travesty, the conditions are such as to give the verdict of acquittal a significance bearing upon the welfare of the Nation itself. It is this bearing, quite as much as the enormity of the crime committed by the Gullys, which causes this verdict to become a fact of such importance. It is assumed that all the allegations against the Gullys (there were a number of them held to answer) were proven, viz: that they deliberately murdered a father, son and daughter. It is further shown that the actual and only motive for this black deed was that the murdered man held and boldly advocated political tenents which were obnoxious to his murderers and to the community in which they lived. That as the only certain means to put a stop to the public advocacy of such obnoxious opinions, the advocate must be put to death. That in putting that plan into execution, the murderers acted as the approved agents of the whole community. It is true that the murderers charge, in self-justification, that Judge Chisholm had some time previously killed a member of their family, and was himself killed while defying arrest for that act. But there seems to be no truth whatever in either story, and assuredly no justification if both were true for the dastardly murder of the feeble old man, much less his inoffending children, of whom Cornelia, at least, was as deliberately shot down by this Henry Gully as if he had been a veritable Apache Indian. There does not seem to be any question but that this blood-thirsty brute was answerable before the law even that of any race of savages for the murder of that girl, no matter what might be said in extenuation for that of her old father and little brother. But these semi-civilized Mississippi savages say through this verdict that it is not only no crime but a commendable deed to put to death not alone the man who dare assert his right of political freedom of action, but also his children with him. It might not look quite so bad if the whole responsibility could be fixed upon the jury alone, for scoundrelly juys can be found almost any where; the exceptionably ugly eature about it is, that the general sentiment of the community seems to so far encourage murder for opinion's sake as to have made it as much as those jurymens' lives were worth for them to have said that these murders, even that of these children, was a crime deserving condign punishment. There are doubtless thousands and tens of thousands of good people in that State who as sincerely deprecate the deeds of the ruling class of Mississippi savages as do good people elsewhere; but it is evident that these thousands, be they ever so many, find it far safer to keep their thoughts to themselves, more especially since the hint to that effect in the latest Yazoo affair, wherein Dixon, one of the semi-savages, was murdered, like the Chisholms, for daring to think differently from the majority of the unpainted warriors with whom he had himself previously followed so many bloody trails.

Were the apologists and out spoken indorsers of these black crimes against humanity and the most inalienable right of a free people found only among those immediately concerned, we might pass it by as we do murders in common; but, unfortunately, these unmitigated murders receive at least a quasi indorsement not only by the press and people of the Kemper county and Yazoo tribes, but, to some extent, among others accredited with a somewhat higher degree of civilization. From this it is manifest there is an underlying spirit of sectional defiance and of intolerance which sinks mere partisanship out of sight, and in ulterior design is but little less significant than Wigfall's shot at Sumpter. Nevertheless, we look upon the very intolerance of this spirit, especially in its Yazoo shape, as the best possible guarantee that its own heat must soonre or later make it unbearable to the mass of the people who now sustain it.

GEO. C. GORHAM, left on the overland train for Washington on the 12th instant,

Gen. Hood's Death.

The facts surrounding the death of the Confederate General Hood are of a most touching character. A near friend of his writes to Mr. Randall Gibson, saying:

"I was with him Monday morning till the funeral. He said he'd rather God should have taken every one of his children in one day than to have lost his wife; that he was completely ruined, and now, without his wife, he had nothing to live for. The precious little lambs who had gone to bed Sunday night knowing nothing of their mother's death, began to come in one by one until nine came in, and such a scene I never wish to witness again. After the children left he said: "Major, I have never had the fever, but if I should have it, and it is God's will, I am ready to go. I have requested Col. Flowers to take charge of my children, and appeal to the Confederate soldiers to support them, for I have nothing on earth to leave them." He was taken on Tuesday morning at 3 o'clock, and died Friday morning at half-past three o'clock, perfectly in his mind to within ten minutes of his death."

In Galveston and other towns of Texas, the veterans, to whose care Gen. Hood assigned his young children, have accepted the charge, and entered upon the duty of collecting money for their support. There will be many willing contributors to this fund throughout the entire North.—S. F. Call.

This last sentence is undoubtedly true, as will soon be seen after a proper effort by reliable persous. And now is the time when it should be seen to.

JUDGE REED, candidate for Superior Judge for Kern county, and our old friend, V. A. Gregg, candidate for District Attorney for Kern, have both been badly "left" in the late election over there. It is all right enough to have left the Judge away behind, but we do think Mr. Gregg was as deserving a man and lawyer as they can scare up in that county. Here is the vote in detail: State Senator—Rowell (Rep.) 506; Poage (Dem.) 615; Assembly—White (Rep.) 315; DuBrutz (Dem.) 48; Crawford (N. P. C.) 373. For county officers—Superior Judge—Reed (Rep.) 482; Brundage (Dem.) 673; Treasurer—Humiston (Rep.) 441; Bernard (Dem.) 687; County Clerk—Craig (Rep)424; Lightner (Dem.) 614; Auditor—Fay (Rep.) 548; Wilkes (Dem.) 624; Sheriff—Collins (Rep.) 345; Bowers (Dem.) 690; Wells (Ind.) 131; Assessor—Barker (Rep.) 401; Harding (Dem.) 639; District Attorney—Gregg (Rep.) 359; Smith (N. P. C.) 447; Calhoun, (Dem.) 357; Surveyor—McMurdo, 681; Superintendent of Schools—Wallace, (Dem.) 521; Mrs. Rogers (Rep.) 393; Coroner — Mix (Dem.) 464; Burnap (Rep.) 629.

THE London Times has an article on the deficiency in the harvest, in which it estimates that the money value lost to England by the deficiency in crops is as follows: In wheat, £25,000,000; potatoes, £15,000,000; beans, peas and rye, £3,000,000; hay, £15,000,000. The hop crop is less by 3,000 acres in area, and is almost an entire failure. Roots of any description are late in growth and small in size, struggling hard with weeds, and will require a long and favorable Autumn to make half an average crop. The enumeration of agricultural misfortunes of the year is put down at about $400,000,000 lost to the wealth of England. While sympathizing with the misfortunes of the English farmers, it will be seen that the United States will be the largest gainer on account of their short crops.

A DISPATCH from Ali Kheyl to the London Times gives the following account of the massacre of the British Legation at Cabul: Four thousand men attacked the Residency in which the British Embassy was quartered. The mutineers brought up artillery against it. Major Cavagnari was stabbed in several places, and all the bodies of the dead were mutilated. The Afghan loss exceeds 300 men. The Ameer had troops who remained faithful, but made no efforts to interfere, owing to intimidation by the priests. Another report comes from Lahore that the Ameer begged for the lives of the Embassy.

REPORTS have been received from Santiago de Cuba that the slaves on the plantations have demanded their liberty, and that their masters have promised to give them freedom if they will engage to work three years for wages, Many of the slaves are running away, and the local authorities have asked Captain General Blanco what they shall do. It is asserted from Madrid that the Government will propose to the Cortez that all slaves be given their liberty on July 1, 1880, on condition of seven years' obligatory labor, with wages paid.

NEW gold fields have been discovered in Tasmania, Australia, on the west coast of the former place, which was formerly the island called Van Deiman's Land. The gold is found in large quantities on the Pieman river, diggers realizing an ounce and a half, or $30 per man daily. It was expected that the discovery would rapidly increase the population, as numbers were flocking to the locality from Melbourne, Launceston and other cities.

THE BREAK IN THE SYRACUSE CONVENTION.

It has been known for some time that the Democrats of New York were not on amicable terms—that is, with regard to the Tammany wing of the party; but as the same thing has happened on several previous occasions, nothing of any consequence was attached thereto, it being supposed, as heretofore, when the proper time would arrive, Tammany would give way. But it turns out that they did not pursue the old custom of doing things. They have bolted for sure. John Kelly, the leader of Tammany, has been nominated by that faction for Governor. It appears the disruption was caused by the forcing of Robinson upon them, whom they do not consider available. As Robinson is the avowed henchman of Samuel J. Tilden, the outlook is anything but favorable for the latter's Presidential chances. Commenting on the split in the Empire State, the Eureka Sentinel, which is very liberal in its views, and treats all subjects fairly and conscientiously, sums up the probable result as follows:

The worst feauture of the whole business is Kelly's acceptance of the Tammany nomination, with the express determination of defeating Robinson. This action, we take it, seals the doom of the Democratic party of New York in the pending canvass. With a split in the Democratic ranks nothing is more certain than the election of Cornell, the Republican candidate. It also shelves Tilden for the Democratic nomination for the Presidency. There was too much of Tildenism apparent in the Syracuse Convention, and when Democrats throughout the Union learn that Tilden's candidature will disrupt the party in the great and all-important State of New York, they will not be slow to drop him from the list of available aspirants. Viewed in this light, the break in the Syracuse Convention may, after all, prove a blessing in disguise.

THE following from the New Haven Union, a Greenback organ, will serve to show how Senator Blaine managed the recent canvass in Maine: "Mr. Blaine has organized a most remarkable campaign. Besides hundreds of local speakers, he has nightly on the stump the best talent in the Republican party of the country. Not only the cities and towns, but the school districts are carefully canvassed, and the name of every doubtful voter is known at headquarters. These latter are supplied with the most attractive literature of the party, and in many places glib talkers are sent out to personally plead with the hesitating voter. All this work is legitimate and Blaine is to be credited with sagacity and energy for it. But the wily politician has not stopped at this. He has been hunting, for weeks, for the purchasable material in the opposition. Every man who can be reached by money is known to him, and an estimate made of what it will cost to buy the whole lot. The requisite money has been raised and trusty agents are now ready to distribute it."

As we learn through the Bodie Standard. George Daly and co defendants held for the murder of Goff in the late Jupiter-Owyhee mine war at Bodie. have been duly examined and acquirted, On account of the intense feeling in Bodie against Daly, the examination was held before Judge Leavitt at Bridgeport, instead of the committing magistrate, Justice Peterson in Bodie. Mr. Reddy appeared as the senior counsel for defendants. By their own showing, it is plain that the Goff party went well armed to the ground, not for the purposes of defense, but resolved to capture the cabin held by the others before daylight, or die in the attempt. Well, one of them died, but not until he had done all he could to kill. Truly, we fail to see what right his friends have to set up such a whine, regarding the immediate cause of his death at least. He deliberately chose gunpowder as the arbiter of his assumed lawful rights, now let his friends abide the judgment by this arbiter of his own choosing.

THE man who contributes anything to human intelligence is a benefactor. A gentleman having asked through the New York Sun for a device to prevent sneezing, drew out the following valuable communication from a person of experience: "If your correspondent desires to avoid sneezing let him press upward—from underneath—the nasal cartilage. To do this elegantly use the mouchoir and press with considerable force. This is the method adopted by duck hunters when lying in the marshes, if their proximity to the water gives them an inclination to sneeze, since the least noise would frighten away the ducks. To sneeze is to catch cold, and the inclination to do so should be repressed. I have not sneezed these fifteen years, ever since I had my new set of teeth. Sneezing should not be indulged in by those wearing a full set of false teeth."

He was also one of the founders of the Produce Exchange. He was a native of Pennsylvania, aged 53 years.

DEATH FROM POISONED MILK.—On the 11th instant, at Ukiah, three children of John McGrath, living near that place, were poisoned by eating bread and milk, the milk being fresh and warm from the cow. Soon after the little fellows had eaten their usual supper they complained of feeling sick. From the symptoms the mother, who was alone at the time, concluded that they were poisoned, and gave such remedies as she had at hand, saving one by the use of warm water and salt. The others—two little girls, aged two and seven—died in convulsions. The cow had also spasms, leading the doctor to the conclusion that the animal had been poisioned.—S. F. Call.

A BOY'S VACATION LETTER.—A small boy was sent to the country to board a short time ago. D. 1879, whereby I am commanded to make the amount of $188 08-100, besides accruing costs and interest, I have levied upon all the right, title and interest of the said Defendant in and to the following described real property, to wit:

Lots No. Five and Eight, in Block No. Five, in the town of Lone Pine, County of Inyo, State of California, as the same appears upon the plat of said town, now on file in the office of the Recorder of said County of Inyo, together with all and singular the tenements, hereditaments and appurtenances thereunto belonging or in anywise appertaining.

Notice is hereby given that on SATURDAY, THE 11TH DAY OF OCTOBER, A. D. 1879, between the hours of 9 o'clock A. M. and 4 o'clock P. M., to wit: at the hour of 1 o'clock P. M., of that day, in front of the Court-house, in the town of Independence County of Inyo, State of California, I will sell all the right, title and interest of the said Defendant, Natevada Romaro, in and to the above described property, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to satisfy said judgment and all costs, at public auction, to the highest bidder or bidders, for cash in hand in gold coin of the United States.

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 20.....1879

MODOCK OFFICIAL LETTER.—The official letter of the week is as follows:

Sept. 15, 1879.

J. W. Pew, Esq., Secretary Modock Con. M. Co.:—DEAR SIR: Results of operations on the 1100-foot level, for the week ending io-day, is as follows:

Drift south, 300 foot, run 21 feet east crosscut drift north, 300 foot, 13 feet; drift north, 800 foot, 19 feet; north crosscut, 1000 foot, 20 feet; drift south, 1100 foot, 18 feet. Total length of drift south, 300 foot, 239 feet; east crosscut drift north, 300 foot, 20 feet; drift north, 800 foot, 194 feet; north cross, 1000 foot, 66 feet, and drift south, 1100 foot, 192 feet. Face of east crosscut, 300 foot, in fine ore country and looks very encouraging. In running we have cut two ore veins, which have the appearance of joining below the ore run on in main drift. The point continues to improve as it is prospected, and promises well. Ground in 800-foot drift and 1000-foot crosscut is looking better than ever. Started on the underdrain from the 1000-foot point to 1800-foot ledge; this morning shall put this ahead with all possible dispatch, preparatory to prospecting points beyond 1100 foot.

Yours, respectfully,
A. C. TIBBETTS, Supt.

BULLET EXTRACTED.— A couple of days since, Dr. Bicknell cut out the bullet which has so long lain in Jos. Fernbach's hand or wrist. It had imbedded itself in the muscular tissues directly between the bones about three inches above the wrist joint. So situated, and until the swelling had become greatly reduced, it was impossible to determine its locality, more especially as the pain most of the time seemed to fix it in the tissues of the palm. It is a conical ball, and deeply dented by contact with the wrist bones. Mr. F. is getting along firstrate, now, after all his great sufferings from this accident which, for a time, seemed to threaten the loss of his hand if nothing worse.

SCHOOL ON THE HILL.—Miss Frazier, an attractive young lady recently from the East, is now teaching the public school at Cerro Gordo. If we are to believe the story of an irresponsible friend of ours, this young lady is exercising a marked influence for the better up there, the questionable part of the story being that some of the very scaliest of the Chuck-wallahs now try to get some of the furnace dust and other last year's dirt off their faces, and even to go to candy pullings. Also that Parson English has been deposed as School Trustee, and has shut down on his preaching entirely. These are hopeful indications.

HARNESS STOLEN.— During Tuesday night last, some contemptible thief entered Henry Levy's stable and stole therefrom a set of Concord harness. The thief seemed to be well acquainted with the premises, and well able to find among a variety every bridle, collar, strap, etc., pertaining to the particular set of harness he wanted. Mr. Levy will pay a liberal reward for the arrest and conviction of the thief and recovery of the property, and can probably give a description and clue that will lead to both.

PERSONAL.— Jerome Coldren, these several years connected with, and having a proprietory interest in the Rex Montis property, left us yesterday with the view of a somewhat prolonged sojourn among the Majors and Colonels and Generals and other titled people constituting the town of Benton. As he himself goes among them as a high private only he hopes to do pretty well, in which we warmly wish he may not be disappointed.

THE EMIGRANT.—Supt. Peter Taylor, of the Emigrant company, came up from San Francisco, and is credited with giving the assurance that the financial troubles of the company are in a fair way for a generally satisfactory settlement, and also that an entirely new and much stronger company have taken the property, and will have the works in full operation in about two months.

FOR WORK.—Some 12,000 pounds of machinery arrived at the C. G. landing a few days ago, consigned to V. Hoff & Co., and is to be used in a steam arastra by Peter Taylor in Beveridge District. It consists of an engine, boiler, pans, etc., the engine having power sufficient to run a ten-stamp mill, one of which Mr. Taylor hopes soon to erect.

BEVERIDGE MINES.—Four men are constantly employed in taking out ore in the gold mines over in Beveridge District, owned by Messrs. Porter, Britton, Hunter & Hughes. The mines are yielding regularly and well, and the prospect for the future is reported as highly flattering.

CASH, LOTS OF IT.—On the 16th, the Union Con. Co., of Cerro Gordo, made a shipment of bullion, 950 fine, from their refining works, in all amounting to $70,000 in value. This is doubtless the most valuable single shipment ever made from this county.

CHEAP ENOUGH.—It is stated that the farmers about Lone Pine, particularly the Johnson Bros., are delivering the best of hay in Cerro Gordo for $40 per ton, and grain at 3½ cents a pound. These prices are certainly very low down.

REFITTED.—John Irwin, who lately purchased the Aldine saloon, is having it refitted and refurnished in the most elegant and complete style. The doors will open some time next week.

BONDS FILED.—Up to yesterday all the county officers elect, except District Attorney Laird, had filed their official bonds, and all of which have been approved.

FOUND HIMSELF AT LAST.—An Irishman, name to us unknown, arrived here two or three days ago, after having had a great deal of experience in mountaineering in the High Sierras. Some three weeks ago, as we get the story at second hands, our experienced stranger started alone from Visalia to come directly across the Sierras. He got tangled up in the numerous branches of Kings river, and put in sixteen days of painful and starving work in trying, unavailingly, to untangle himself. In all that time he saw no living soul nor any other thing calcualated to remove the innumerable doubts and uncertainties of his mind, besides which he very narrowly escaped drowning more than once while crossing and recrossing those roaring rivers. Toward the last, times got corky with him beyond all precedent. He would climb up only to slide down again day after day, with nothing to sustain or comfort him except a few berries and the grim satisfaction of surmising that if the worst came to the worst no Coroner's jury could ever find and sit on him. Cheered by this he kept on climbing, and at last reached a mining camp on the upper Kings river, where he was most hospitably treated and recruited up for several days, after which he crossed the divide and descended into this valley of more or less of milk and honey, and is now seeking a job.

AT CERRO GORDO.—The outlook for Cerro Gordo is brighter now than it has been before for many a day. The Union Con. mine is looking better than it has at any time previously for two years. There is ore enough on hand to supply the furnace for at least six months to come, while it seems to be no trouble to break out enough every day to keep it running steadily, which it is now doing, but will have to make a short stop in a few days for the usual repairs. The furnace is under the immediate supervision of its old time manager, Mr. F. F. Thomas. Ten to twelve tons of silver ores are put through daily. The refinery is in charge of Mr. E. A. Smith and his son, and who, with Mr. Thomas, have had several years experience in similar lines in Ward district, Nevada. In refining the litharge, after going through the refinery, is again run through the furnace, which is heavily charged with silver and iron ores, but very little lead or galena being required. There is an abundance of both lead and galena on hands, so there is no further trouble to be feared on account of a scarcity of these for a flux. Supt. J. L. Porter, of the Union company, who has been recuperating in the city for some little time, is expected back in a few days.

THE GOLD HILL.—Considerable local interest has been felt as to the outcome of the pending negotiations looking to an adjustment of the issue growing out of the double bonding of the Gold Hill (originally, La Palma) ledge near Cerro Gordo. The ledge is of a very peculiar composition, of great width and presumed value. But the chief point of interest attaching to it is that, but for this conflict of title, it would very likely become the nucleus of mining operations by a new and abundantly able company, which operations would result in quite a general benefit. If at all, this result would have been due more to the efforts of John Ely and C. J. Barker than anybody else, these gentlemen having taken a great deal of trouble to introduce this and adjacent properties to the attention of the right sort of capitalists. That far they were successful, and probably would have been in the whole but for this double bonding, from which litigation was apt to follow. That threatened conflict put an end to pending negotiations, whether finally or not, is now the question. A. E. O'Neal, who holds the adverse bond, has gone to the city, and it may be, to arrange terms of settlement.

QUITE UNWELL.—Mr. Parker, of this paper, was taken sick some three weeks ago, and for a week or more was confined to his bed. By Sunday last he had, apparently, so far recovered as to consider himself able for a trip to the mountains, intending to start on the following day; but, about the hour of starting that day he was taken with a severe chill of a congestive type, and a another of the same character the next day. Since then, through Dr. Bicknell's skill and the unremitting attentions of family and friends, he has got along very well, and is now considered quite out of danger, though, of course, it will be a matter of a week or two before he is fairly on his feet again.

SCHOOL.—The third month of Mr. Crough's school at the Post ends next week. It would meet the desires of a number here, if not contrary to the wishes of the Trustees and parents of that district, to have Mr. C. commence either a half or a full term in this place, beginning week after next if so agreed upon, meantime.

RUNNING ARASTRAS.—The Mexicans are running a number of horse arastras on the rich gold ores of Beveridge District, and all are said to be making '49 wages.

ORDER FOR SILVER.—We are told that the Union Con. Refinery is filling an order, probably on Government account, for 20,000 ounces of fine silver, price not stated.

BULLION SHIPMENT.—Wells, Fargo & Co., on Thursday last, shipped two bars of Rex Montis bullion, valued at $800.

STARVING CATTLE.—Frank Merrow, a stock man of Humboldt county, says that the southern part of the county is literally dried up. Ranges on which thousands of cattle heretofore fattened at this season of the year, will now scarcely sustain jack rabbits. There is no grass or green thing on which cattle can live, in the whole southern country, and stock men are driving their herds north. Some eight hundred head of steers, cows and calves have already been driven to Southern Oregon by Merrow and others, and the remainder of the herds will be started north at once. Some of the cattle have already died of starvation.—Winnemucca Silver State.

BY private hand we learn of the death of John Higler, of Round Valley by the most horrible of deaths, hydrophobia. Some time in April last he was awakened by the noise of his dogs, evidently fighting some animal in the door-yard. In his barefeet he went to look out. As he did so a skunk attempted to rush into the house. Kicking it out his toe was bitten by the maddened animal, though not so seriously but it soon healed up. No further trouble was experienced from the wound until last Thursday night, and sixteen hours after he died in the convulsions of hydrophobia. Everything was done to alleviate his sufferings, but with little avail. He would snap, growl and bark at those coming near, and the sight of water at once threw him into spasms. Hydrophobia among dogs in this State is comparatively unknown, and we believe this is only the second undoubted case of it in the human family. A few fairly developed instances are on record of its being produced in domestic animals by the bite of wild ones, but it is considered as not a disease on the Pacific coast.—Ukiah (Mendocino Co.) Press.

A LITTLE liberality of capital in assisting new enterprises will return to the aggregate of capital ten-fold increase in the revival of business and appreciation of values which the establishment of new enterprises tends to bring about. Every idle white man who is put at work adds his wages to the sum of the consumers' general fund. Capital, which depends for its value largely upon the prosperity of the laborer, can, by judicious investment, do much to secure itself. The disinclination of capital to invest in industrial enterprises has caused the anomaly of idle, many idle, men, and high prices of many articles of common wear. With idle capital and idle men and women, we import boots and shoes, ready-made clothing, woollen cloths, cigars, and hundreds of other articles which we can produce just as well at home. The present is a good time for business men who can control the investment of capital to look about and see how idle men and women can be employed with advantage to themselves and employers.—S. F. Call.

UPWARD of forty teams loaded with machinery, were moving through Main street on last Saturday, followed by a similar number on Monday, and still a large lot of machinery at the depot is awaiting transportation. All destined for Mineral King. The road being now completed affords employment for teams. It is the intention of loading on return trips with lumber, shakes and other building material, until the mill is preparing the precious metal. Then gladness and joy will attend many a shareholder of Mineral King stock.—Tulare Times.

UNTIL quite recently it was considered nearly a settled fact that McKena, the Republican nominee for member of Congress from the Third District, would be elected, as, with but two small counties to hear from, he had an official majority of about 147. But now comes Humboldt, one of the small counties in question, giving a majority of 171 for Berry, the Democratic nominee, leaving him so far in the lead as to almost quite insure is election. But in politics, as in other games, "the game isn't out till it's played out."

THE Massachusetts Greenbackers have treated the American public to a new sensation. They have furnished food for mirth to all the light-minded, irreverent wags of the North American continent by making up a ticket presenting Ben. Butler as the candidate for Governor and Wendell Phillips as their candidate for Lieutenant Governor.

THE policy pursued by the Tilden leaders in the Syracuse Convention is suicidal. In forcing the nomination of Robinson they have split the party asunder and rendered it impossible either to carry New York this Fall or place it in the Democratic column in the Presidential contest.

CONSIDERING that there are only a few scattered bands of insurgents in Cuba (according to official accounts), Spanish statesmen are very much agitated over the condition of affairs in the island. Perhaps the truth has not yet been told.

THE total vote of California, when all accounted for, will not fall much short of 160,000. The returns thus far received foot up 155,638, with several counties to hear from.

SECRETARY EVARTS is to call on the Marquis of Lorne, in Canada. It is doubtful if the young Marquis will survive the long sentences of the Secretary of State.

Mineral King.

A correspondent of the Visalia Delta, under date of September 7, writes as follows in relation to affairs at Mineral King:

A very serious accident occurred in the McGinnis mine yesterday. A young man by the name of J. M. Johnson had his right hand blown off from the explosion of giant powder, which he was tamping down preparatory to making a blast. His face was also badly bruised, and until to-day his eyesight was dispaired of. Dr. DeWolf, of Hanford, who is now sojourning with us, was called in attendance. He has amputated the arm a short distance below the elbow, and says there is hope that his eyesight will be spared to him. Another young man, by the name of Dallas, was in the shaft at the time of the explosion, and was knocked senseless, but was not seriously injured.

Robert Dugan, an old resident of Visalia, and formerly a sexton of Visalia cemetery, died at this place last Tuesday night. A meeting was called the next day and a committee appointed to select a suitable place for a cemetery. The committee selected a very desirable place, about two miles from town, surrounded by evergreens. No prettier or more desirable place could possibly be selected among these rugged mountains.

It is very fortunate for our citizens here that Dr. DeWolf came to make us a visit. He has had his time pretty well occupied attending the sick ones of this place. The sickness prevailing is principally fevers, ague and colds, and is among those who came here from a warm climate, and without warm clothing. No healthier place could possibly be found than Mineral King, but it requires warm clothing, or a cold is sure to follow. There is no better tonic in the world than our pure mountain air and sparkling cold water.

The new hotel will be completed this week. It is being built by Kelly, Flemming & Co., and will be first-class in all its appointments. Everybody in Tulare knows Jack Flemming, one of the proprietors, and Jack's reputation as a good fellow and a bountiful supplier of good eatables is well known.

The mines are looking up every day. Hamilton & Co. have struck a very rich lead on the north extension of the Empire mine. The Empire mine is booming along, and is without question one of the richest, if not the richest mine, ever discovered in California. The work on the tramway and the stamp mill is progressing rapidly, and we shall soon hear the music of the fifteen stamps. Then look out for loads of bullion.

Prospectors are very busy in nearly all the mines in the district, and many are getting out good ore. What this district needs is a 20-stamp custom mill. A mill with twenty stamps could be run constantly on good paying ore.

A MAN who made a business of writing obituaries, epitaphs, etc., used to solicit patronage far and near. Hearing of the death of a man in a distant part of the country, and business being dull, he would make a journey there. Finding the widow of the deceased person he stated his occupation, and asked if she wouldn't like a few lines about her husband. "Lines about him," she said wofully; "he had all the lines he wanted. If he had had one line less he would have been alive to-day." "Why, madam, what ailed him?" "He was hanged."

As cool a person under the circumstances, as ever we heard of, was a young nobleman, who, in a frightful railroad accident, missed his valet. One of the guards came up and said, "My Lord, we have your servant, but he is cut in two." "Ah! is he?" said the young man, with a Dundreary drawl, but with some anxiety depicted on his countenance; "Will you be good enough to see in which half he has the key to my carpet-bag."

THERE is no more pleasant, decidedly agreeable fact connected with the proposed reception of Gen. Grant at San Francisco than is shown by the ex-Confederate soldiers of that city. They to a man and in a body are as warmly enthusiastic in their desire to show their respect for Grant as a man and soldier as if they themselves had been his followers instead of his opponents on so many bloody fields. It is pleasant because it shows that this grand demonstration of the people is from the heart, not a contemptible partisan "boom."

SCRAPING HOGS BY MACHINERY. Man's inventive genius descends on many occasions to a porcine level. This remark is called forth by an invention used in Chicago in the packing houses of Amour & Co. for scraping hogs. As the scalded hogs pass over the revolving flukes they are scraped clean at the rate of ten hogs a minute, as we lately witnessed in company with some prominent agricultural gentlemen from the South who had come here to see the commercial emporium of the West, and the greatest live stock, grain and lumber mart of the world. And it is interesting to note the improvement which must have been effected in this marvelous machinery during the past year or so; for, if we remember rightly, the previous account of it was that large hogs could be scraped in ten seconds and small ones almost momentarily. So that there has been a saving of four seconds on big pigs, and possibly a fraction of a second or so on small ones.—Chicago Times.

CHINA AGAINST RUSSIA.—A New York dispatch says a remarkable article, suggested by the possibility of war between Germany and Russia, appears in a Berlin military journal of high standing, in which China is declared the natural ally of Germany. No more favorable chance could occur for the Chinese to establish their claims to the Amoor territory. The Amoor being the richest and most favored by nature and by reason of its connection with Pacific and Eastern Siberia, is of the greatest importance to Russia of all her Asiatic Provinces. It is not expected that it will be peacefully and voluntarily restored to China. The ultimate possession of this important territory will, therefore, no doubt have to be decided by the sword. It thinks the progress which China has made in arms and armament of late would make her almost a match for Russia in a contest for the territory.

FLAVOR YOUR TEA.—To all who like high-flavored beverages, especially a fine flavored tea, let them drop a sprig of Lemon Verbena of two or three leaves in the top of the tea-top while the tea is being drawn and they will find they have a new aroma to their beverage they never dreamed of before. The effect of the Lemon Verbena is very beneficial, removing all wind from the stomach, preventing that nervousness caused so often by tea, and removing all symptoms of dyspepsia. Those who use it once will be likely to continue it.—California Farmer.

She does this every day, until it becomes a habit which she will follow up all her life. Her frame as a natural consequence is larger, her muscular system better developed, her nervous system in better subornation, her strength more enduring, and the whole tone of her mind healthier.

A Good Temper.

Few can resist its charm, all believe in the happiness it creates, and none fail to realize what a blessing it is to the owner. Before it, dismal anticipations, gloomy forebodings, fancied injuries, foolish slights and wearisome repinings all disappear. Darkness gives way to sunshine in its cheerful presence. It finds the great, wide world such a bright, pleasant place to live in, and seek some balm for every wound. Discontent flees away for want of sympathy, and its pleasant influence is felt in the poorest home in the land. So many people seem to find a pleasure in fretting over what can't be helped, in borrowing trouble and making mountains out of mole hills. Some have spasms of fault-finding when anything goes wrong, and annoyances of all kinds crowd in thick and fast. Some are so over nice about their housework, they make home an almost unbearable place, and send the inmates out to any other refuge in desperation. With many, half of the trouble of life are imaginary, and of their own invention. They take every little thing to heart, and weary the patience of their friends by their ceaseless complaints and repinings. How few bear their burdens silently and uncomplainingly, and keep their troubles within their own breasts? Rare, indeed are the brave heroic souls who ask for no sympathy, and fret not over the troubles that fall to their lot. Of all unpleasant persons to meet, the continual grumbler is the worst. He sees no one half so unhappy as himself, and yet imagines, if he could steer the helm, things would be changed in the twinkling of an eye. It requires a great deal of moral courage to meet uncomplainingly the repeated trials and serious disappointments of life, and yet it is far wiser to face them bravely and cheerfully than to sit down and repine and grow discouraged with looking at the darkest side of the picture. To make so "much ado about nothing" when you can receive no benefit therefrom is extremely selfish. Sunny, cheerful dispositioned people look for sunshine in every somber cloud, not for blacker shadows to bury their faces in. Trying to make the best of things take the keenest edge off the sorrow and half its magnitude away. The worries of life are what wear people out quicker, not the labor their hands perform. Discontent brings the wrinkles, ages the face fast and creates discomfort in social life. None of us enjoy the society of a fretful individual, but we seek to find cheerful, happy people to come in contact with, and thoroughly enjoy the society of those who have a pleasant temper. There are few qualities to be more desired, that brings greater comfort to domestic life, or more happiness into daily existence. Some are born with a sunny disposition, some have the good sense to try to cultivate it; either way to be thoroughly amiable deserves rare praise. The bright, cheery, cheerful bodies are the ones to whom we owe a lasting debt of gratitude, for they keep sweet your faith in human nature. If we did not bring a good temper into the world with us, we can certainly make a strenuous effort to improve it, and avoid giving our friends the benefit of our ill nature more than possible. Like other charming accomplishments we are the happier for being mistress of, it will give much pleasure to ourselves as well as others, for all things in life will wear brighter colors, and assume more agreeable aspects. The music of happy words keeps many reckless roving feet from going into wrong pathways and brings back to better ways many a wanderer. A good temper is a blessing to be coveted and desired by all who would have the world the happier for their having been born into it.—Ex

Iodine as a Substitute for Quinine.

The power possessed by iodine over malarial troubles seems to have been known many years ago, but the knowledge was evidently confined to few, and not appreciated as it ought to be. Recently several physicians have recorded their experience with this drug, and among others Dr. Wm. Anderson, who gives a highly favorable account of it in the "Proceedings of the Medical Society of the County of Kings."

Dr. Anderson's experience with the remedy dates back about five years, when, meeting a statement that iodine was a reliable remedy in intermittent fevers, he resolved to give it a thorough trial. He therefore prescribed it in the form of the simple tincture to a number of patients. After watching the results very carefully, he became thoroughly convinced that he had a valuable remedy, and from that time to this he has invariably, with a few exceptions, prescribed iodine in all his cases of intermittent fever, both in private and dispensary practice. He states that up to the present time he has treated 300 cases in this manner, and with almost invariable success. The time required to effect a cure naturally varied. In a large number there was no paroxysm after the first dose; frequently it took two or three days before any mitigation was observed. Iodine is so seldom prescribed internally that most physicians look with suspicion on the idea of substituting it for quinine, and think that the stomach would not tolerate it. Dr. Anderson says that this mistaken notion is merely the result of inexperience; he has had but one patient who could not retain it, but neither could she retain quinine. He has found that children take it readily, and in giving it to such patients he has not had a fraction of the trouble that he formerly experienced with quinine. Although he formerly used simple tincture of iodine in syrup and water with good effect, he has recently found it advisable to add iodide of potassium to the mixture to prevent precipitation of the iodine. For adults he prescribes 12 to 15 minims of this compound tincture, freely diluted, to be taken three times a day after meals, and regardless of fever. For children, 5 to 10 minims usually suffice. The author's favorite prescription in private practice is: Tincture of iodine comp., 6 drachms; syrup of acacia, 18 drachms. Mix. Dose: teaspoonful in wineglassful of water three times a day after food. Dr. Anderson states that he has never as yet observed any injurious effects from the internal exhibition of iodine, especially the symptoms designated as "iodism."

Why this drug should act so beneficially must remain an open question till we know more about the disease itself. It is worthy of note, however, that the remedies usually employed in malarial troubles have marked antiseptic properties, and this is a prominent trait of iodine. To the American physician, indeed to the inhabitants of all countries cursed by malarial fevers, this is a subject of unusual importance. It would be a national blessing to have an effective, safe and cheap substitute for quinine; for, although the Government has recently removed its protection from the latter, this action will affect not so much the pocket of the patient as that of the apothecary.—Scientific American.

THE FOURTH OF JULY UNDER THE MIDNIGHT SUN.—A party of Americans celebrated the 102d anniversary of our national independence at North Cape, Norway, latitude 71° 15′, longitude 25° 50′. They arrived there at 11 o'clock on the night of July 3d, and at one minute after midnight guns were fired and the shrill sounds of the engine's whistle were made to respond to the number of stars on our flag, and loud cheers given to usher in our great national holiday. The party then ascended the almost perpendicular cliff—900 feet high—and raised the American flag, the flag being made for the occasion by the ladies of the party out of materials purchased at one of the Norweigian towns. When the flag was raised cheers and guns again resounded over the waters. It was certainly a most extraordinary place for such a celebration—probably the first time that a party of Americans ever celebrated the Fourth of July at such an hour and at such a latitude and longitude. The midnight sun shone upon them all the time with dazzling brightness. Far to the north they gazed out on the Atlantic Ocean dashing against the great cliff on which they stood. Behind them was the snow-clad mountains, along which they had been coasting, and not a living creature was near them but the sea birds that arose screaming from the water as the silence of their home was broken. The North Cape is beyond seventy-one degrees of north latitude and about one hundred miles north of Hamerfest, the most northerly town in the world. It is five degrees further north than the most northern part of Iceland.—Scientific American.

AND now a railroad is to be built across the Isthmus of Tehauntepec, a right of way having been granted to a Massachusetts man with a subsidy of $12,000 a mile. The Republic of Mexico needs this route as well for the development of her territory as for the means of conveying some sort of civilization and order among her turbulent population. It may be a prominent rival of the proposed Panama route, but Mexico needs it, and so do we.

THE rattle of the forty stamps at the new mill is music to the ears of the Mammothite, und a broad gleam of satisfaction overspreads every face. That a new era of prosperity is at hand, no one conversant with the richness and extent of the mines in this district can for a moment doubt. The vast machinery was put in motion on Monday last, and everything was found to work in the most satisfactory manner. Mr. J. B. White, the contractor, turned over his charge to Supt. Hardy. Crushing in earnest began on Tuesday, and at the present writing nothing of consequence has occurred to mar the working of any portion of this masterpiece of mechanism. Too much credit cannot be bestowed upon Mr. White and his able assistants, not only for the promptitude with which the contract has been fulfilled, but also for the construction of one of the most complete and substantial mills upon the Pacific coast, and it is the earnest wish of all our citizens that the day is not far distant when he will be called upon to exercise his ingenuity upon other mills in this district. The mill will not be run on No. 1 ore until such time as everything will be in working order and the batteries, pans and settlers regulated, so that once the mill is started on first-class ore there may be no stoppage. And when the good time does arrive we expect to be able to chronicle shipments of bullion second to none in the county of Mono.—Mammoth Herald.

LORD BEACONSFIELD'S JOKE.—We can hardly understand the recent speech of Lord Beaconsfield, in which the assertion was made that the greatest apprehension was felt in the United States that they could not compete with Canada in wheat growing, except as a bit of pleasantry or a flight of the imagination. There is certainly no basis in fact for such a statement. The tide of immigration set in from Canada to the United States quite steadily last year, and the cause which produced this result continues in operation. So far from Canada having any advantage over the United States in respect to taxation, it was from high and prospectively higher taxation the emigrating Canadian fled. The English Premier must be hard up for material for the rose-colored views which he so delights to present to the English, when he finds use for such as this. We are at a loss to understand from what source he got the idea that "nearly all the chief landholders in the extreme Western States of America had sold out." The extreme Western States, leaving out the Pacific States, are Kansas, Colorado Wisconsin, Minnesota and Nebraska, all of which receive large accessions to their population each year. Beaconsfield's belief, based upon the "impulsive character of humanity in the United States," that the wildernesses of Canada would soon be occupied by millions, has a very unstable foundation.—S. F. Call.

AMUSING CASE OF IDENTITY. — An amusing scene occurred on the Allegheny suspension bridge last evening, which in a few moments gathered a crowd of interested people. It appears that a respectable, well-to-do citizen of Allegheny was quietly crossing the bridge on his way home, when he was suddenly accosted by a well-dressed young lady, who seized him by the arm, and said: "Ah! I have found you; I want you to come right with me." The citizen turned and looked at the lady in amasement, and said that she had evidently made a mistake, as he did not know her. The woman, however, insisted upon his accompanying her, saying: "That won't do; you are my husband, and you must come." The citizen, who is likewise a confirmed bachelor, asserted most vigorously that he was not her husband, and that she had mistaken him for another man. But she wouldn't have it, and the spectators enjoyed the little drama hugely. At last, almost in despair, the gentleman appealed to those surrounding them, and said that if the lady would accompany him across the bridge to a store on Federal street he would convince her of her mistake. She consented to this, and upon reaching the place, after profuse explanations, maps and diagrams, at last, it seemed unwillingly, acknowledged that he was not her husband. It is supposed she was demented. — Pittsburg Gazette.

A NEW WAY TO TREAT DIPHTHERIA.—Quite a discovery in the treatment of diphtheria has been made here. A young man, whose arm had been amputated, was attacked by diphtheria before healing took place, and instead of the matter incident to that disease being deposited in the throat, the greater portion appeared on the wounded arm, and the diphtheria was very light and easily managed. Dr. Davis, of Mankato, profited by this, and in his next case of diptheria blistered his patient's chest, and on this blistered part the chief deposits appeared. This was also an easy case of the disease. The theory of Dr. Davis is that diphtheria usually appears in the throat because of the thinness of the lining of the throat. Hence, when the blister breaks the skin upon any other part of the body, the disease appears there.—Minnesota letter to the Salem Gazette.

GRANT.

The reception of Gen. Grant at San Francisco on Saturday evening last was, by all odds, the grandest out burst of popular enthusiasm ever witnessed on this coast, or any other, perhaps. At least a hundred thousand people took an active part in the extraordinary proceedings of the occasion, besides full twice as many who quietly helped things along by looking on, and yelling and getting in the way of other people. Let all those who wish to know just what was done, and how it was done, and who did it, and what it was done with, and have it all splendidly narrated, read the column after column of graphic description of the scene to be found in last Sunday's Chronicle. That is the best we can do in the way of conveying an adequate idea of the magnificent event.

GEN. Grant has accepted the invitation to visit Virginia City, which event is stated will take place on the 20th of next month. No doubt the General will be highly entertained by the Comstockers during his stay in the City of Bonanzas. Grant has probably heard a good deal of noise during his eventful career; but after he shall have visited Virginia, we will venture the assertion, that he will acknowledge that he never heard anything to equal the din they can make there when they turn those steam whistles loose. After a man has passed through one of those whistling ordeals, it is fully a month before his natural hearing is restored to him. But, then, the General is on a trip of "sight-seeing," and no doubt this style of ovation will impress him as forcibly as anything that has presented itself to him during his trip around the world.

THE depression of agriculture in Great Britain has paralyzed one branch of American industry little known in this country. That is the mining of phosphates, which is carried on to a large extent in South Carolina. The phosphate-rock is exported to Great Britian, and, after being pulverized and treated, sold for manure. The stagnation of trade, and more especially the bad outlook for agriculture, has stopped the demand for manures. The English manufacturers of phosphates have curtailed their purchases of raw material, and are left with large stocks of the finished product unsold. There is as little demand for the crude rock here as abroad. Nearly all the phosphate companies in South Carolina have suspended operations, and more than two thousand laborers have thus been thrown out of employment.

IT takes Indians to make the Chinese go. Chinamen underbid Indians at hop-picking in Washington Territory, and the red men held a council and determined that the Chinamen must leave, peaceably or forcibly, as the exigencies of the case might require. The coolies did not take long to deliberate, but left the neighborhood in a hurry. A Chinaman has a high regard for his queue and would shudder at the contemplation of his corpse being deprived of that, to him, importan spendage. Indians are no respectors of hair when they go on the war path. They only consider the queue in a utilitarian light, on account of its affording so much better a hand-hold for the scalping operation than the wig or the few scattering hairs that adorn the top of the majority of civilized heads in these days.

A Bulletin reporter rushed into the Stock Report office the other day and tackled the telephone which communicates with the City Hall, to obtain some information he wanted from that building. During the telephonic interview the man at the other end must have remarked that he could not hear very well what was said, as the reporter spoke through the mouthpiece these words: "I guess you had better pin your ears down behind your back; they interfere with the working of the instrument." The man at the other end declined in emphatic terms to hold further converse with a blasted newspaper fellow.

THE New York Tribune says Senator Lamar is now reported to have made up his mind that the assassination of Dixon ought to be denounced. A few days ago he told a friend that in a political speech which he was expecting to make at Yazoo City, he should censure the Yazoo plan in very strong terms. He had declined to do so until he should come face to face with its authors. It is also asserted in this connection that Lamar will never dare to say what he has expressed the intention of saying publicly in Yazoo county

THE TRUE INWARDNESS.

There may be far better reasons for the outlawry of the Bodie Vigilantes or Miners' Union against George Daly than appears upon the surface. Certainly, there must be a mighty sight to show to law abiding people a shadow of even a moral justification for the high handed course pursued by that gang of Highbinders from first to last in this whole Daly business. Probably the true inwardness of the deadly animosity against Daly dates back to the events of the Engineers' and Mechanics' Union strike last Winter. When that organization started out on its grand scheme of daylight robbery, it got along swimmingly for some time, every one of the snub-nosed mining companies and Superintendents surrendering at discretion; but when they came to Daly they met more than their match, and a man who would not permit himself or his company to be robbed of either money or right of control of its own business. The Miners' Union, having nothing in particular to gain by joining in that strike, declined to take stock in it as a body, and in consequence of that and Daly's courage, it fell through. But subsequent events indicate that from that day the Miners' Union marked him down as a man to be got rid of some how, by the Molly Maguire plan of murder if nothing else would do. To effect this, members of the Union if not the Union itself, planned the scheme of murder and open robbery in which the leader, Goff, came to such a sudden end. Regarding this, it appears from evidence and diagram given in the Virginia Enterprise prior to the grand outrage of all that this Owyhee claim represented by Goff and his gang of cutthroats had no shadow of a lawful title to the ground claimed by the Jupiter company represented by Daly, and which ground the Goff gang undertook to take by force of arms, but in which, it is pleasing to know, they came to grief. Of this, the Enterprise remarks:

From a private but strictly reliable source we learn that the testimony given in the examination of George Daly at Bridgeport, established beyond the possibility of dispute the fact that the man Goff, who was killed, and his associates were doing their work on Jupiter ground, and that their intention was to either steal the property of the Jupiter company, levy blackmail, or to provoke a quarrel in which George Daly was to be killed.

From this it is clear that Daly was legally and morally justified in defending his property and his rights as a man, and would everywhere have been held as one of the snub-nosed poltroons had he done less. Next, it is shown by the evidence of the survivors of the Goff gang themselves that they were there to do murder or take by sheer force that to which they could show no title whatever. From the first down to the latest crowning act of infamy, they and their backers, this band of Molly Maguires, have trampled law and justice under foot. From first to last, as the facts reach us, Daly, the object of their hatred, has exceeded not one of the rights of a free American citizen under the law. It has never been claimed or shown that he is or ever was a lawbreaker or desperado whose presence was inimical in any degree whatever to any individual or organization so long as they let him and his alone. Yet, for daring to maintain his rights, he is driven forth like a petty thief, and that, too, by a gang of law breakers believed capable of assassination to order of their organization itself. It was the general appreciation of this danger at the hands of this powerful band of bulldosers that impelled good citizens to humble themselves enough to beg Daly to surrender his every right and not further provoke those dreadful men. It was as obvious to these good citizens as to Daly that the law and its officers and upholders could or dare not afford him any present or subsequent protection to be relied on for a moment, so, to save his friends and their property, but not himself to his credit be it said, he quit, but as an exception to the whole outfit, with nothing to be ashamed of. In this review of this disgraceful affair we wish to make due allowance for all concerned by saying we understand full well the difference between a distant and a near view of dangerous scenes like this, but as presented to a distant view, and in default of a possible better light, we hold it as a matter of infinite regret that Daly and his men had not had a chance to use those sixty Henry rifles three hours by the watch. Bodie would have stood better in public estimation than she now does with that gang of organized law-breakers as her undisputed master.

So great is the present demand for railroad iron that the Union Pacific Railroad Company are unable to buy steel rails in this country for the purpose of building their new branch, which runs 150 miles south of Salt Lake City. The consequence has been that the Union Pacific Company have been compelled to use old iron.

THE BODIE OUTRAGE.

The most high-handed outrage yet perpetrated by the Molly Maguires of this coast culminated Sunday last. This was in the fact that the aforesaid Molly Maguires, or, as they prefer to be called, the Bodie Miners' Union, ordered George Daly, Joe McDonald, Barney McDonald, George Harber, Jos. Burnett, James Murphy and Wm. Andrews, constituting what is called the "Jupiter men," to leave the town and district within twelve hours. On receipt of this order Daly made the following manly reply:

To all Good Citizens:

The lawless element of the Bodie Miners' Union have passed a resolution ordering me and several men in the employ of the Jupiter Company to leave the camp within twelve hours. We have, by the laws of our country, been declared innocent of any crime or wrong doing; we are American citizens, and as such are entitled to pursue our respective avocations free from molestation, and this right we propose to maintain, and we call upon all good and true men in the community to assist us in so doing, and in quelling the turbulent element now disturbing the peace of this community. It is our belief that this obnoxious and violent resolution is NOT the sentiment of a majority of the Bodie Miners' Union, most of whom we believe to be good and true men, but it is merely the voice of the mob, and will be repudiated by every good man in the Union.

GEORGE DALY.

This did no good. The Maguires reaffirmed their order. Daly proceeded to the Jupiter hoisting works, of which he is the Superintendent, and with the others included in the order, proceeded to fortify himself in a manner to have withstood a siege from quite an army.

Intense excitement prevailed among all classes throughout the town, and the following day a meeting of the citizens was held to devise means to avert bloodshed. After much frightened talk a committee of nine was chosen to confer with the belligerent parties. They did so, and found the Daly party as well as the Maguires inflexible in their determination—one to stay, the other to make them go. Persisting in their efforts, however, these men of peace at any price, did finally succeed in inducing Daly to leave the matter, so far as his own action was concerned, to a committee of his friends, consisting of Wm. Irwin, Capt. Haynie and P. Reddy, Esq. These gentlemen, astonishing as it may seem, advised Daly to comply with the demands of the Maguires. He did so, the Mollys graciously consenting to extend the time in which he was to leave to forty-eight hours, and according him the "privilege" to come back to Bodie at stated intervals to look after the important interests in which he was concerned, provided he would not remain to exceed 24 hours at any one time! The others were to leave and stay away forever! Daly published another card, too lengthy to give here, which shows that he is a true man, and just such a man as Bodie needs for her own welfare, provided Bodie had the sand to uphold him in his rights. In this he says he accedes to the demands of the Union through the "earnest appeals of his friends—not on account of the threats of his foes."

It is evident that the good people of Bodie were completely terrorized by these Molly Maguires, who exist there in large numbers, and are well organized. It is evident, too, that the good people of Bodie feel their humiliation almost as much as outsiders feel it for them. The whole business is shameful beyond expression.

BEN BUTLER has had himself nominated for Governor of Massachusetts again. His convention assembled at Worcester a few days ago, reaffirmed the principles of the grand old Democratic party, and nominated Butler. Meanwhile, the regular Democratic party of Massachusetts is dodging around to keep out of Butler's way. It has been afraid to call a convention for fear that Ben would come in and capture it; but now that Butler has had his convention, the regulars will hire a steamboat and sail out on Boston Bay and hold a convention.

THE Treasurer of the State of Georgia, Renfro by name, has been doing a nice little stroke of business in which he has recently been detected. He has been loaning the State's money on his own account and putting the interest in his pocket, and now that he is found out he offers to resign and pay $6,000 of the interest he received over to the State. This is a glaring exhibition of what in the current vernacular is called "gall."

THE Eureka Sentinel's local reporter the other day interviewed a number of prominent citizens of that town, who are engaged in various professions, to ascertain how they stood in their choice for President. The total canvass showed that of 105 men interrogated, their preferences were as follows: Democrats—Tilden, 20; Hendricks, 10; Thurman, 9; Bayard, 3. Total, 42. Republicans—Blaine, 35; Grant, 16; Sherman, 5; Washburne, 4; Conkling, 3. Total, 63.

PEACE.

It is plain enough that the Bodie papers, as well as the citizens in common, have found it expedient to materially suppress their real sentiments in regard to the operations of the Molly Maguires of that place. We don't blame them for it in the least, for, if we appreciate the situation properly, it would be positively dangerous to both life and property to incur the enmity of that gang of outlaws comprising the Miners Union. These things considered, the Standard is entitled to a great deal of credit for saying this much:

Grim-visaged war hath smoothed its wrinkled front, and peace—gentle, white-robed peace—now hovers over the Bodie Belt. The vexed questions which a day or two since threatened us with civil convulsions have been settled, in a manner. Our devoted people—devoted to the business of money-making, the sale of pots and pans, whisky, flour, vegetables, newspapers and other necessities of civilized life—can once more relegate the entire attention of their minds and bodies to their several pursuits. It is true that a half-dozen men have been compelled to leave town. Some of them have families here—wives and children. Perhaps they did not like to go. But why should we bother ourselves about their troubles, so long as the white-winged angel of peace hovers over our particular heads, and we can continue to sell whisky, pots, kettles, pans and newspapers? When we contemplate how easily peace s obtained—by a simple sacrifice of the honor and manhood of the community—we cannot but think the Revoluti nary Fathers an absurd lot of stubborn old fools. They fought eight years to establish American liberty. Could anything have been more ridiculous? They should have appointed a Citizens' Committee, and then they might have had peace. How much more sensible the conduct of the citizens of Bodie, who would see American liberty to the devil before they would fight eight minutes for it. "Let us have peace."

THE New York World has reports, which it deems reliable, that the Republican candidate for Governor in Maine is not elected by from two to four thousand votes. One dispatch says that the Republican managers are distressed at the news, and wish the plan of placing a second Republican candidate in the field had been carried out. If the Republicans are really concerned at the failure to elect by the people, it must be that later returns have thrown some doubt on the political complexion of the Senate. In Maine the House chooses from the candidates voted for two names to send to the Senate, which proceeds to elect one of them Governor. If two Republican candidates were in the field, a Republican House would send both to the Senate and thus secure the election of one, although that one might not have been the regular candidate. But if three candidates only are voted for, belonging respectively to the Republican, Democratic end Greenback parties, the House can select two from the three. Of course, if the House is Republican it would select the Republican candidate and either the Democratic or Greenback candidate. The Senate, if Republican, would elect the Republican candidate, but if a majority of its members were Democrats or Greenbackers, it would elect the candidate other than Republican which the House had submitted. The situation need not trouble the Republicans unless they have lost the Senate, as the House, if lost, would be obliged to send the Republican's name to the Senate in selecting two from the three in the field.

THE NEXT HOUSE.—There are still two vacancies in the Lower House—one in New York and one in Iowa—which will be filled at the Fall elections in these States. A Republican will be elected in Iowa to succeed a Republican, but it is expected that a Democrat will be elected in New York to succeed a Republican, as the district in which the vacancy exists is strongly Democratic. Last year the Greenback candidate obtained votes enough to defeat the Democratic candidate, though the district gave Clarkson Potter, 4,919 majority at the preceding election. Assuming that these vacancies will be filled as predicted, the House will stand, 148 Democrats, 133 Republicans, and 12 Greenbackers. The Democrats have a clean majority of three. The representation of the States under the present system does not reflect the political sentiment of the people in the various States. For instance, New York, which was largely Democratic in 1876, and is probably Democratic today, if the dissensions in the party could be healed, has 24 Republican members to 9 Democratic. Pennsylvania, which is generally Republican by a small majority, has 17 Republicans to 8 Democrats. On the other hand, Kentucky, which has a large Republican minority, does not elect a single Republican Congressman.—S. F. Call.

The Last Sensation.

From 10 o'clock Saturday night until the same hour on Sunday night, Bodie was in such a fever of excitement as was never known before. Even on the memorable day following the Owyhee-Jupiter fight, there was not such a feverish feeling existing. Ever since the return of Mr. Daly and the miners who were arrested with him, there have been rumors afloat that there would be trouble of some kind, but outsiders could get no reliable information.

When it was announced late Saturday evening that the Miners' Union had passed a resolution ordering Geo. Daly, Joe McDonald, Barney McDonald, Geo. Harper and Wm. Andrews to leave Bodie within twelve hours, the excitement became general, and the news spread like wild-fire throughout the town and up on the hill.

Mr. Daly evidently anticipated the order, as he received the news with coolness and apparent unconcern, and immediately wrote a card for publication in the morning paper, calling on all good and true men in the community to stand by him and resist any effort made to carry out the order. These two announcements were received by the general public with a feeling of alarm, und expressions of regret that a fight should occur, were expressed on every side.

Mr. Daly repaired to the Jupiter works and had the building strongly fortified. Thick planks were placed all around the walls on the inside of the building, making it almost impervious to bullets. Mr. Daly was on the inside all day, surrounded by forty or fifty men armed with Henry rifles. Rifle pits were dug on the outside and other preparations made for a defense. A rope was stretched around the works and no one allowed to approach unless he could give a good reason for his presence. By the preparations made for a defense it would have been difficult to dislodge the inmates of the building. * * * * *

A great deal of feeling was expressed for and against the miners for their adopting such a resolution, but their movements were planned with coolness and deliberation, with a view for future peace and protection. There are two sides to every question, and while one is right the other must be wrong, and it takes an unusually intelligent man to always determine which is right. As long as human nature remains as it is, selfish motives will govern the course of all.—Bodie Free Press.

The Savage Oven.

The heat in the Savage grows more intense as the water is lowered. The mercury now stands at 140 degrees at the nearest point to the 2200 that can be reached. At the lowest donkey pump it stands at 225 degrees.

A day or two ago it took three men eight hours to fill an oil cup on this pump. They formed in a line in the incline, so that the man nearest the pump could receive assistance from the man behind him, and the latter from the farthest man away from the intense heat. In this order changing positions as they became exhausted, they worked out a whole shift, and Supt. Gillette says he thinks they were not able even then to do any good. It is so hot in the bottom of the incline that if a piece of iron is touched with the bare hand a blister is raised the same as if an attempt had been made to steal a red-hot stove.

When the three miners quit work last week on account of the great heat, a man who had been trying to get employment in the mine for several months applied for one of the places. He said he had fired on a Panama steamer, worked at an iron furnace at the equator and experienced high temperature in othe places. He thought he would require an overcoat in any mine on the Comstock. Supt. Gillette said he was just the kind of a man he was looking for, and if he had any friends who were as much accustomed to heat as he, to fetch them along and they could all get work. The man went into the mine at 11 o'clock at night and came out the next morning. All the time he was in the mine he was gasping for breath, and did not attempt to do a thing. Several times the older hands thought he was about to faint, and conducted him to the air-pipe. When he came to the surface he spent about an hour under the shower bath, dressed and left and has never been seen since.

A drift will in a day or two be opened which will connect with the 2200 station and bring in a supply of fresh air. Meantime the water will be held where it is—some three feet over the floor of the 2200 station. When this drift is done it is expected that the 2200 station will be so cooled and refreshed that further serious trouble will be avoided.—Enterprise.

HON. JOSEPH WASSON, Assemblyman elect from Mono and Inyo counties, is preparing an exhaustive report on Bodie District for the benefit of the Bullion Club of New York. Mr. Wasson is a veteran prospector and is better fitted to write upon the past, present and future of Bodie District than any other man we could name. Any report which is given over his signature may be accepted as literally true.—Stock Report.

THE New York Times has an interview with Tilden about Field's recent stories, and commenting thereon, says: "The reader who has been taught to reverence the moral attributes of the Field family, will be pained that the President of that beneficent corporation, the New York Elevated Railroad, has laid himself open to several imputations of deliberate mendacity, and that his formerly 'dear friend,' Tilden, paints him as a decidedly silly, ridiculous and incapable sort of person. Tilden makes a spirited defence of Nephew Pelton in the following characteristic language: 'Pelton neither initiated nor consummated anything. He merely listened to offers from officers to do what they admitted to be their lawful duty, for hire, before they violated their duty under corrupt inducements. His wrong did not go beyond a futile dalliance.' A man who can provide for Pelton so admirable a phrase as 'futile dalliance' is clearly in possession of vigorous intellectual capacities."

SPECTACLES LOST.

ON SUNDAY, AUGUST 31 LAST, WHILE hurrying to take the stage for Bishop creek, I left my glasses lying on the bed in my room at Grover's Hotel at Big Pine. They are gold mounted, light frame, small, oblong eye glasses, and enclosed in a red Morocco case. As their loss is nearly irreparable to me, and being unable to obtain any trace of them otherwise, I take this method of calling attention to their loss, as it is possible they may have fallen in the hands of some Piute, who, through the good offices of persons seeing this, may be induced to give them up. I would feel most grateful to the proprietor or any one finding them if they will let me know, or send them to me at this place.

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 27.....1879

MODOCK OFFICIAL LETTER.—The official letter of the week is as follows:

Sept. 22, 1879.

J. W. Pew, Esq., Secretary Modock Con. M. Co.:—DEAR SIR: Results of operations on the 1100-foot level, for the week ending to-day, are as follows:

Drift south, 300 foot, run 19 feet; east crosscut drift north, 300 foot, 14 feet; drift north, 800 foot, 15 feet; north crosscut, 1000 foot, 15 feet, and under air-drain from shaft to face of tunnel, 120 feet. Total length of drift south, 300 foot, 258 feet. East crosscut, No. 2 drift north, 300 foot, 14 feet; drift north, 800 foot, 209 feet; north crosscut, 1000 foot, 81 feet, and under air-drain, 120 feet.

As stated in letter of the 19th instant, crosscut in No. 2, in north drift 300 foot point, run through the ore-vein in main drift at a width of over 4 feet. In a few feet the crosscut passed through the second vein as found in crosscut No. 1. At present writing face is in ledge-matter and ore. Ground at this point looks very favorable for yielding a large amount of ore. Started a crosscut east from drift north, 800 foot point, this morning, at a point in drift 200 foot from here in main tunnel. Have good ground for ore at this place. The under air-drain to 800-foot ledge is making good progress, and carrying fine ventilation with it.

Yours, respectfully,

A. C. TIBBETTS, Supt.

THE SUPERVISORSHIP.—It is an open question whether that confused instrument, the new Constitution, under which we are henceforth to have our being and stumble along, contemplates a new deal for County Supervisors all around as in the case of all other State and county officers, or lets existing Boards wiggle along as under the old regime. It is one of those problems just suited for a San Francisco Call opinion—one of those which decides a question both ways, leaving the patient hopelessly mystified as to what its bold conclusions do mean. It is our unbiased conviction in the matter at issue, either that a full new Board was to be elected, else a full new Board was not to be elected. Anyway, that's all the Constitution says about it, and the Constitution is first-rate authority on some subjects. With this elucidation, we now come to a matter of interest to dwellers in the 3d Supervisor district. At the late election a few random votes were cast for Supervisor for that district. Of these few a small plurality was in favor of Mr. Horace Bellows, of Haiwai—a gentleman, by the way, as well qualified for the place as any we know of. In response to an inquiry on the subject, Mr. Bellows plainly intimates that he does not consider himself entitled to the office on the strength of an election by such a meagre and uncertain vote, but would accept should a vacancy be shown when satisfied by a full expression that such was the desire of the people of the district. Here, in a letter, dated on the 24th, to Mr. Moffat, is what he says about it: "S. P. MOFFAT—Dear sir: I received yours in regard to the Supervisorship to-day, and in answer, will say that if the voters of the 3d district want me for Supervisor, and will elect me by an honest majority of the votes, or will petition the Governor to appoint me, I will be proud to serve them to the best of my ability; but I am not willing to accept an office through a lack of knowledge of the people, or any political trick. Yours, etc., HORACE BELLOWS."

AT CERRO GORDO.—A gentleman from the Hill on the 23d gives us the following: The furnace is running steadily, with plenty of ore to keep it going. A party of mining gentlemen, consisting of Judge Theller and Messrs. J. D. Berry and —— Jones, has been making a brief inspection of a number of Cerro Gordo mining properties, and expressed themselves well pleased with the outlook. Other affairs compelled them to cut their visit short and leave for the city before completing their inspection, but in the expectation of renewing it at an early day.

FOR THE CITY.— Mr. A. W. Eibeshutz departed for the city a few days ago, and, it is thought, with the view of trying to effect some change in the status of the mercantile firm here, of which he is the resident partner. This is mere surmise, however, but it is no surmise that they are selling goods mighty cheap as if determined to clear to the bed rock for a complete new stock.

DON'T GO.—The school proposed to begin here next week don't go. The Trustees of Milton district, upon whose complaisance that particular proposition was contingent, thought they had better run their own school through to the end without a break, so there won't be any here for some little time.

AT BIG PINE.—D. P. Macarter has established his mercantile business in the Wicks building at Big Pine. From our own business relations with Mr. M., extending through many years, we will undertake to vouch for him as as liberal and honorable a dealer as can be found any where.

HOUSE FOR SALE.—By reference to the new advertisement column, it will be seen that Miss Marcia Stevens, at Inyo, offers to sell a very excellent dwelling house, nearly new, at less than half its original cost.

SPECTACLES LOST.—Mr. S. V. Bunting, of this place, has lost a pair of gold mounted ladies' spectacles, under somewhat peculiar circumstances, for particulars of which see her advertisement under the above caption.

OFF FOR THE "GOOD INJUN."—T. F. A. Connelly and Al. Robinson started a couple of days since to go out to Panamint to see how it is about that reported million dollar find.

A MINING EXCITEMENT.—Three days since, word came of a most wonderful mining discovery in the Panamint range, and of the existence of a prodigious excitement in consequence all through the lower country including Kern county, from which many persons are said to be on the road to the "front." Simmered down, our knowledge of the facts are meagre enough—simply, that an unknown Indian led an equally unknown Mexican to a place overlooking Death Valley, and about 25 miles easterly from Panamint, and there showed and gave to him a ledge of shining gold rock which, in reputed promise, discounts all the Breyfogle and Gunsight lodes ever invented by a fertile imagination—not less than a cool million dollars in sight, with a positive certainty of more than twice as much just out of sight. Stopping barely long enough to locate some monuments and to thank Mr. Injun for his kindness, our respected millionaire Don humped himself straightway off to Kern county to let his cousins and aunts and the folks over there rejoice with him while the thing was fresh; and that's how it came that the wretched Kernites got the bulge on respectable people living much nearer at hand. Then another person spread the infection up this, way, and where, notwithstanding the uncertainties of the symptoms, several have already succumbed and have been carried off, while many more are liable to go most any day. While, as here shown, the information regarding this reported strike is altogether indefinite, yet there are none but believe it to be substantially true, and further news is awaited with decided interest. Panamint is just 100 miles, over a good wagon road, from this place, and the locale of the Breyfogle-Gunsight-Good-Injun is, as before stated, 25 miles further eastward, but all in this county. There being no regular communication with that region, Panamint is practically as far away from this place as San Francisco—hence, the uncertainty of the news and the enchantment of the view.

GATHERING FACTS.—Supt. J. H. Holt, of the Rex Montis, is now engaged in what we consider a work of material promise to the future of this county, for his standing as a mining man gives his opinions of mining properties deserved weight in quarters where they will do some good, when favorable, of course. The work in hand is to make a personal visit to every known ledge in reach and unknown ones wherever he can find them, and by assays and critical examination of all of any promise, prepare reports for use of capitalists who employ him to do this, and also for the information of the Bullion Club of New York. To this end, he takes to the mountains with his tools grub and blankets and pack mule as did the boys in the days of '49.

ARM BROKEN.—We much regret to have it to say that little Minnie, daughter of Isaac Harris, last week met with a repetition of her last year's misfortune in incurring broken bones. This time, by accidentally falling from a horse while at school at the Post, but during the noon recess, her arm was broken near the shoulder. At the time before, above referred to, she was thrown from a wagon and had an arm and leg both broken. She has very many friends to deeply sympathize with her, more particularly as she is a favorite with all who know her.

FROM MAMMOTH.—Geo. M. Gill, Esq., has just returned from a visit to Mammoth, and firmly believes that is a locality of immense promise. That new mill, he thinks, has no superior anywhere, and as it is now in full blast, with no end of work ahead of it, times generally have brightened up most decidedly. He proposes to return there in a few days to locate in his profession as a lawyer, and in which we will undertake to say he will in due time make a brilliant success.

BELL'S FLOURING MILL.—Mr. Andrew Bell is now engaged in replacing the old machinery in his flouring mill with new, so that when completed it will in all essential parts, be new from top to bottom. Among the rest it will have a new water wheel, bolt and smutter or grain cleaner and improved mounting and style of dressing for the burrs. It will be in operation early this coming week.

COURT.—Next Monday Judge Hannah's Court will begin the trials of Tessier and Welch, now in jail under criminal indictments. George Gill, by appointment of Court, appears for Tessier, and Judge Conklin, with District Attorney Snelling, for the prosecution. Can't say who appears for Welch.

DRIVING AHEAD.—Work on the big Independence tunnel is going steadily on, and with encouraging developments every week. A blind ledge, prospecting quite well, was cut a few days ago, and in a short distance further a promising ledge belonging to the Sardine Company will be intersected at a depth of about 150 feet.

FINE.—John Irwin's Aldine saloon, which will be ready to steam up this evening for a long run, is fitted up with what we believe to be the largest and finest mirror to be found on this eastern slope, with billiard table, elegant and chaste pictures, bar fixtures and every other part of the running gear no less new, fine and tasty.

OVER THE LINE.—Old Sol crossed the line only a few days ago on his way to the far south, and already there is a noticeable coolness of the atmosphere, and at present some indications as we were going to have rain, or clear weather or something.

PROSPECTIVE.—A friend in position to know whereof he speaks, assures us that he has good reason to believe that two new and responsible companies will soon undertake extensive mining operations in or near Cerro Gordo.

ONE DOLLAR.—Considerable Modock stock has lately changed hands on the Stock Boards at one dollar per share.

AT SEVEN O'CLOCK.—Stated meeting at 7 o'clock sharp to-night of Inyo Lodge, No. 221, F. & A. M.

THE Bentonian comes to hand once more; hasn't been dead at all, only sleeping while Jones was sick.

BERYL STAR'S contribution will appear next week.

THE Eastern people sometimes get mixed on technical mining terms. An Eastern man who recently arrived in San Francisco from a tour through various mining districts in Colorado was entertaining a party of Californians in the lounging-room of one of the principal hotels in the Bay city with an account of what he had seen. While he was describing the formation of a certain district, one of his hearers interjected the question: "What is the formation of that district?" The Eastern man must have been a little hard of hearing, for he replied: "The 'foundation' is limestone."

EVERY New York paper that comes to hand, says the Stock Report, is full of jubilation over the great revival of all branches of business in that city. An era of good times does not come every year, and it is well to make the most of it. It seems as though it was about time for the Pacific coast to wake up and try and come in for a share of the prosperity now being enjoyed by the country on the other side of the Rocky mountains. California has as many elements of prosperity as any State in the Union, and there is a screw loose somewhere when there are hard times in this State while the rest of the country is prosperous.

A DISPATCH from Worcester says that Dyer D. Lum, ex-Greenback candidate for Lieutenant Governor, reports that Denis Kearney will arrive in Massachusetts early in October for the purpose of exposing the tricks of Uncle Ben Butler, and showing up the relations existing between himself and Butler last year. Denis had better let that contract out as he did the Grant effigy business, for if he should succeed in getting old Ben riled up, there won't be enough left of Kearney when he returns home to tell his admiring sandlotters how he was "received" by the people of Massachusetts.

THE terms of peace imposed on the Zulus will deprive them of nationality, and substitute for an independent royalty the rule of semi-independent chiefs. A policy is outlined not much unlike that pursued in Hindostan, and the result will probably be the same. Gradually the petty rulers will sink into complete subjection to the British. Until that end is accomplished the conquest cannot be considered complete, but its eventuality is now only a matter of time.

THOSE Mono newspaper men do have a power 'o trouble in partnership matters with each other and otherwise. This time it is Barnes and Bogart of the Mammoth Herald—out with each other, out of sorts, out in cards, while Bogart is out of the paper, and claims to be some hundreds of dollars out of pocket. The Standard people should go down there and read old Mr. Watts' hymn, concerning the cats and dogs, to them.

IT is said that the Czar intends to adopt the Bonapartist plan of keeping the people quiet at home by giving them plenty of occupation abroad. This is the statemanship of expedients, which in the long run ends in ruin. The capitulation of Paris and the defeat of Waterloo under the first Empire, and the surrender at Sedan, which destroyed the second, do not speak well for the Napoleonic plan.

A PRIVATE letter from Japan received at Washington says the Japanese Government expended $80,000 in entertaining Gen. Grant, taking the money from the educational fund set aside to educate Japanese youths in the English language, and that in consequence of this expenditure no Japanese students will be sent to this country this year.

A NEW YORK telegram says trade is beginning to assume fair proportions and the transactions in many departments are quite active, while prices generally are firm with an upward tendency. From all the principal commercial centers and manufacturing districts of the country come cheering reports of an active trade.

HARD times and lack of money, says the Virginia Enterprise, in the ordinary avocations of life is no sign that there is not plenty of money in the world, but simply proves that men of capital are rather distrustful of peoples or Governments, or cannot see a return in the ordinary enterprises for investments.

RUNNING RACE.—Hank Lufkins has matched the flyer, "Sleepy Bob," against Johnny Williams' Bodie horse, "Black Harry," for $500 aside—$250 forfeit now up. Owing to there being no track in Bodie the race—500 yards—will be run at Carson on the 25th of next month.—Bodie Tribune.

THE statement is made that an electric light in Saratoga enabled persons to read a newspaper at Ballston, seven and a half miles distant, on a dark night. A powerful reflector was used.

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 27.....1879

A MAN AND A GATE AND A WOMAN. The gates at the passenger depots which shut out all people not having tickets for the trains, were yesterday closed at the Union Depot against an elderly woman wearing spectacles and using an umbrella for a cane.

"Can't pass without a ticket," said the man at the gate as she came up.

"I want to see if there is anybody on that train going to Port Huron," she answered.

"Can't pass without a ticket, Madam."

"Can't help it. My orders are very strict."

"I tell you I want to send word to my darter!" she exclaimed, adjusting her spectacles for a better view of the official.

"Yes, but we cant help that, you see. Please show your ticket."

"I want this 'ere railroad to understand that I've got a darter at Port Huron, and she's got a baby four weeks old, and I'm going to send her up word in spite of all the gates in this depot!"

"Please show your ticket, madam."

"I tell you once more——"

"Please show your ticket, madam."

She gave the old umbrella a whirl, and brought it down on his head with all the vim of an old-fashioned log-raising, and as he staggered aside she passed him and said:

"There's my ticket, sir, and I've got more behind it! Mebbe one man and a gate can stop me from sending word to my darter to grease the baby's nose with mutton taller if the weather changes cold, but I don't believe it!"

And she walked down to the train, found some one going to Port Huron, and came back carelessly humming the melody of the "Three Blind Mice."—Detroit Free Press.

DURING an excursion from this city to Niagara Falls, and while at Cleveland, an incident occurred which will never be forgotten by those who heard of it. The Kennard House in that city was crowded with guests, when an eccentric and witty druggist of Smithfield street appeared late at night at the hotel office and demanded a bed. The clerk replied that there was only two vacant beds in the house, one wherein was quartered a Pittsburg morning newspaper man, and the other in a room wherein was a Pittsburg evening newspaper man, who were with the excursion.

"To tell you the truth, they are both pretty drunk—so you can take your choice as to which room you will sleep in."

The druggist said that on general principles he would take his chances with the evening newspaper journalist, as they excelled the morning men in more ways than one, and he would doubtless be so drunk that he would lie dormantly quiet all night. He went to bed and was soon sound asleep. The journalist, however, awakened about 12 o'clock, and thinking it a long time between drinks, dressed himself, unconsciously, in the druggist's clothes, and sallied out to make a night of it. Ever and anon he muttered, as he treated all present:

"Funniest thing I ever heard of. When I went to bed last night I only had twenty-five cents to my name, and now I've got over a hundred dollars (showing a corpulent roll of bills), and I'm bound to spend every cent of it before morning." He did.—Pittsburg Telegraph.

JOHNNY WILLIAMS intends taking Black Harry, the boss race horse of Inyo county to Bodie, with the intention of getting up a race if the Bodieites have sand enough in their gizzards to put up money enough to make it an object on a horse that they think can beat him.—Mammoth Herald.

THE Norwegian bark Columbia was recently struck by a large fish or sea monster, which knocked a hole in her bottom, causing the vessel to sink in half an hour.

BUCKSKIN JOE.

FOR THE INYO—BY BERYL STAR.

"Halloo, stranger! Where d'ye hail from?
Come in by the fire and sit down."
"Pretty cold night." "Do ye think so?
Reckon you've come up from town?

Sit down by the fire and warm you,
And I'll give you something to eat—
Only some bread and coffee
And a piece of venison meat

But there's plenty such as it is, stranger,
And you are welcome to all that you see;
Take hold and help yourself, old fellow,
And don't be staring at me.

It is something rather uncommon
For a stranger to come round here,
And I haven't seen a white man
For a trifle more than a year."

"Have I lived here long?" "Yes, I reckon—
'Tis thirty-five years to-day
Since I pitched camp in these mountains.
And here I intend to stay.

For camping out on the wild frontier
Is the life best suited to me.
For I've long been tired of the civilized world,
And it has forgotten me.

And I sit some nights by myself all alone,
And gaze at the star-lit sky;
It is here all alone I have lived for years,
And 'tis here all alone I shall die.

You ask me why I live here,
And roam o'er the mountains wild?
You ask was I ever married?
Had I ever a wife or child?

Touch lightly on that, Mr. Stranger,
I am pretty sensitive there;
'Tis thirty-five years or a trifle more—
But sorrow is hard to bear.

Well, what do you want me to tell you?
What would you like to know?
Would you care to look down in my sad old heart
And see all its misery and woe?

For there is so many pictures
Hanging on Memory's wall—
Some as bright as an angel's dream,
And some that I dare not recall.

What! tears in my eyes? Ah! well
I am as weak as a woman to-night;
But for me the battle of life
Has been bitter and hard to fight.

So you came up here to see me,
The oldest man on the plains?
I think somebody's been meddling
Or else taking a sight o' pains.

And you want to know my name, do you?
Well, 't ain't much to know,
For ever since I've lived in these here parts
They've called me Buckskin Joe.

And they told you a romance was hidden
Under this old slouched hat?
And if I understand you right
You've come up to see me 'bout that.

You think that my life was not always
A bleak as the Winter air;
You think that a story lies hidden
'Neath this tangle of snow-white hair.

Ah! well, I don't deny it;
But 'tis one you may never see,
For the key to a hidden life
Will some day be buried with me.

So you came to ask me questions
To put in the papers, for the world to see?
Man, I have nothing to do with the world,
And it shall not meddle with me.

Ah! no, Mr. Stranger, of course I am not mad,
But this is secret you know,
And I've dug down into my memory
Just as far as I dare to go."

IF it be true, as reported, that Tom Scott has effected a loan of twenty millions in Europe to enable him to immediately commence the construction of the Texas Pacific Railroad and carry it on to San Diego, we shall greatly rejoice, not only on account of San Diego, which we think with its fine natural harbor must some day become a great seaport, but also on account of the whole people of California, who will in some degree have the grasp of the Central Pacific relaxed upon them by the completion of Scott's road.—Carson Appeal.

A GOOD old negro was burned to a crisp somewhere down in Georgia. The text of the funeral address, oddly enough, was: "Well done, thou good and faithful servant."

A Mine of Soft Soap.

I have noticed with gratitude the patience you have already shown in publishing some of the tall stories I have had occasion to send you. I know how severe a strain I inflicted on your credulity when I fired the tale of that big petrified tree into your sanctum, and I can imagine now the consternation that will prevail in your office when I undertake, as I now do, to tell you of a mine of soft soap and hard soap.

When I was first told of it I pulled down the under lid of my left eye, and inquired disdainfully of my informant whether he saw anything very green there; then I arose in virtuous wrath and denounced all such attempts made to deceive the guileless reporter as contemptibly thin and outrageously villainous; and finally, I asked sarcastically whether the gentleman would not be pleased to tell me next of some mine which bore in a "true fissure vein" ready-made boots and Boston baked beans. But I am at last convinced. I have not seen the mine, but I have seen the soap, and have received the description and history of it from Rev. D. B. Wright, the good pastor of the Methodist church here, who discovered and now owns it. His discovery of it was made a little over a year ago, and it happened in this way: He was traveling on board a freight train toward Prescott, to assume the charge of the church to which he had just been called, when he was—to use the vernacular of this country—"shipwrecked," about fifty miles from here. While waiting for the freight wagons to be mended, he noticed on the surface of the ground a cropping of strange appearance, a little whiter than the color of the ground, dry and cracked, like well-baked bread. Placing his foot on it, he found it to be soft and yielding, and, plunging a stick into it, he drew it out dripping with an oily substance looking exactly like soft soap; touching it, he found that it felt like soft soap; putting it in water he found that it made suds like soap, and cleaned the dirt from his hands, and, finally, rubbing some of it on a white hat, which had been spotted with grease from the freight of bacon, he was astonished to see that the grease and dirt spots were removed under its application. He found a number of these deposits of soft soap about him, and was not able to reach the bottom of any of them with a long pole. Near by are ledges of a hard substance which is unctuous and soapy to the touch. Mr. Wright showed me some of the soft soap in a bottle, and some of the hard in in a piece of brick colored ledge matter. The soap in both these crude states is so mixed with dirt and grit that it is unfit for use, but by a simple process these are removed, and the substance left possesses all the uses of soap, with the additional virtue of removing dirt from clothing and making hard water soft. The curious substance has never been analyzed, and I cannot say whether it contains the alkalies of soda and potash, which I believe are the ingredients of soap, or some other unnamed properties. Whatever they may be it is certain that their union makes a substance which performs all the uses of good soap, and it is fair to presume that the good pastor of the Methodist church here has discovered nothing less than a veritable mine of hard and soft soap. He made me a present of some of the hard soap purified from the grit and sand, and I not only found it softer and pleasanter to the skin than ordinary toilet soap, but have also tested it in another way by cleaning from a portion of my wardrobe the dust and dirt which had accumulated in four weeks' travel through the sandy deserts of Arizona and among the greasy Mexicans of New Mexico. By this mail I send you in a registered package some specimens of the ledge matter and the soap, which is made by removing its impurities from it, in order that you may see the evidences of the existence of this most wonderful natural phenomenon.—Prescott Letter to the Chicago Inter-Ocean.

THE powers of a horse's memory were illustrated at Rochester, N. Y., recently, where the driver of a hook and ladder truck tried an experiment. Three and a half years ago the city sold a team of horses that had been used for drawing the truck, and since then they have been employed in different work. One day recently the driver took the horses into the truck house and turned them loose, whereupon each went directly to his own stall, and when a gong was sounded they ran out and took their accustomed positions at the tongue of the machine.

ON the night of the 23d ultimo an affray occurred at Columbus between John Peddicord and Henry McClusky, in which the latter was killed. There has been bad blood between the two men for over a year, and some months ago McClusky shot at Piddicord. Friends interfered and the matter was dropped until this recent affray when it was revived with the above result.—Esmeralda Herald.

GLASS sleepers for railroads are the newest things in that line in England. The glass is toughened by a process discovered by Frederick Siement, of Dresden, the cost per ton being about the same as that of cast iron, but there are three times as many sleepers in a ton, owing to its specific gravity being only one-third of that of iron.

MAGISTRATE—"You are charged with having emptied a basin of water over the plaintiff." Irish woman—"Sure, yer Honor, ye must forgive me; in the dark I took the gentleman for me husband."

A Living Death.

"How did I ever cure myself of the opium habit?" said a man a little more than thirty years of age to our reporter the other day. "First I'll tell you how I got in the way of using the drug. I didn't use opium myself, mind you, but morphine, the active principle of opium. I took it hypodermically under the skin—that is, the morphine in solution was injected into my arm. You never had inflammatory rheumatism, perhaps? Well, I have; and when a man has that he'll jump at anything for relief. Five years ago I began the use of morphine by sub-cutaneous injection. I never used the little needle-eyed syringe myself, but the soothing fluid was always injected by my physician. At first it was given me two or three times a week under the skin of my arm, but it was no great while until the syringe came to be used that often each day, and I became a slave to the drug. I was gloomy, despondent, worthless, except when under the influence of the opiate, and when charged with it was quite as worthless as the rosy visions which followed its use were accompanied by a languor and listlessness that made me actually averse to all exertion. My right arm (for that matter my left arm also) has been so closely punctured with holes from the syringe point that you couldn't lay a quarter down on my arm anywhere without touching two or three sore places, for the morphine inflamed the flesh wherever incision was made.

Women who use morphine hypodermically have the fluid injected under the knee-cap. This is for the reason that they do not like to disfigure their arms. Two months ago I determined to go to Hot Springs, Ark., to see if I could not boil the morphine out of my system, and undertake some treatment that would cure me of the habit. I was a slave to morphine. It had completely enervated me, and ruined me, ruined me for everything. Cured of rheumatism, I had acquired in its stead the opium disease, opiophagy, which was infinitely worse. When I left this city to go to Hot Springs, my physician advised me to take a solution of morphine along with me and a hypodermic syringe. I did so, but resolved not to use it until the last extremity. Do you know that the craving for liquor is not to be compared with the insatiate desire that a morphine user has for his nepenthe? On the cars, on my way to the Springs, I suffered terribly, resolved not to use the opiate; but as I neared my destination my sufferings increased. People on the cars who saw my writhings—for my limbs became contorted and my teeth grated together—thought me a mad man. Finally I could hold out no longer. With great difficulty I bared my arm, and with unsteady hand jabbed the syringe into it. I struck a vein or artery, I don't know which. The blood spurted across the car, three or four women fainted, and several men rushed forward, thinking it a suicide. You can have no idea of the shock that went through me as the fluid entered the vein. Flash after flash of searing, blinding light shot across my eyes; from my heels to the top of my spinal column went an electric like current that seemed to burn as it ran. In five minutes I felt myself again, that is my old morphine self, but I once more resolved to rid myself of the bondage, even if my life went out in the effort. When I got to the Springs I put my hypodermic solution and the instrument aside and began taking the baths. I don't know whether they did me any good or not. I don't know anything that occurred during the next ten days, except that I suffered a thousand deaths. I had every pain and ache that almanac ever told of. Morphine is a drug that the entire system grows to and assimilates with. If you deprive yourself of it after it has become necessary to you, you suffer the tortures of the damned. I had but one thought in my mind in all those terrible days—to free myself from the drug. I did it, and thank God for it. Do you see my hair, how gray it is? Not one man in a thousand, I've been told, could do what I have done. Several physicians to whom I have told my experience look on me in wonder. They say my nerve is unequaled. That may be. I only know that $50,000 wouldn't bire me to undertake the experience of those ten days again."—Indianapolis News.

A REPORT comes from Colorado of the discovery of a mine which assays $437,000 per ton. The gold is said to be of good quality, and will coin $17 30 per ounce. We don't suppose Colorado papers would lie about small matters like this; but, as one ton of gold at $17 30 per once is worth $415,200, it would be interesting to know where the remaining $21,800 come in. It is evident that figures do lie, sometimes—at least in Colorado.—Eureka Sentinel.

A TENNESSEE colored preacher held forth recently as follows: "You girls call your sweathearts 'darlings,' and you men call yours 'daisies,' and you girls are afraid to come up here for fear some other girls will get off with your 'darlings,' and you men for fear some other fellow will get away with your 'daisies,' and between this 'darling' and 'daisy' business, lots of you niggers are going straight to hell."

THE Los Vegas Gazette intimates that the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fé Company are preparing for a move toward Tucson. That would show practically that the Company intend to push up to a vantage position where they can strike for the Gulf or this Coast, which ever they then decide upon as their Pacific terminus.

KEEPING BOARDERS.—"Another boarding house busted up, I see," sighed a venerable Detroit landlady, as she laid down her paper. "Well, it must have been extravagance on the table. That's what bankrupts seven out of ten, and even then the boarders are crying 'hash!' and complaining of poor meals. Now, I have run a boarding house for twenty-two years, and I made money and heard no complaints. How did I do it? Why, it's all in planning. For instance, a neck piece of mutton can be cut to look like a rib roast, and a little extra fire makes it just as tender. Lawd save you! I've been complimented a thousand times on my selection of choice Spring lamb when the meat was mutton four years old, and toughest part at that. The idea of Spring chicken on a boarding-house table is absurd—aye! almost wicked. In my palmy days I could take a tough old hen, pound the body with a potato masher for ten minutes, and set before my boarders a feast to make every heart glad. Now, I'll venture that there aren't ten landladies in the city that can bake a pig's head and slice off the meat in a manner to make everybody believe he has the choicest cut in a pig's body; and it's a wonder to me that there ain't more failures. Lots of landladies buy nice fresh butter, and thus tempt a man to eat five or six biscuits or half a loaf of bread. What economy! I always had my nice butter on the table at breakfast, when we had little but toast, and the boarders got along on old butter the other two meals. It is all in the planning—all in the planning. I used to have beefsteak every morning. Three mornings in the week I bought sirloin, which is very nice, you know, and the other four mornings I bought neck-pieces and rubbed the case knives over the grindstone. Give a boarder a sharp knife and a tough steak and he'll never make a complaint—never. He'll put the blame on his teeth, and the more steak he leaves on his plate the more rabbit pie you have for dinner."—Detroit Free Press.

A WELL-KNOWN Chicago lawyer, who served under Lee in Virginia, being in San Franciso a few days since, when every one was talking of the coming of Grant, was asked if he intended to take part in the Grant reception. "Well, I hardly believe I will," said he; "I attended one of Grant's receptions at Appomattox in 1865, and I guess that will do me."

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 4..... 1879

THE National Commissions of Education have issued their report for the year 1877. The school returns from the thirty-eight States and nine Territories are included, with the single exception of the revenues of Wyoming. The entire school population is fixed at 14,227,748. The revenues, not including Wyoming Territory, are $86,-866,166; expenditures, $80,233,458. The lowest annual expense per capita is in North Carolina; the highest in the Cherokee tribe, Indian Territory, the limit being $1 39 in the former and $35 76 in the latter. The highest average of salaries for male or female teachers is in Nevada. California follows close to Nevada, and is in advance of any thickly populated State. There are 152 Normal Schools, having 1,189 instructors and 37,072 pupils. Of 2,763 graduates for the year, 1,874 are engaged in teaching.

COL. ALF. HARPER, the editor of the Okolona States, is no better appreciated in the South than the North. Here is what the New Orleans Democrat says about him: "The Okolona donkey got as far as Freeport the other day, where he was advertised to deliver his speech on "Sunny Southland." He happened to glance into the hall before beginning his oration and found only eleven persons present, not enough to pay for the gas. This "riled" him and he declined to speak, throwing up his engagement. He will return South at once, and his disappointment in his lecturing tour will probably give zest to the abuse he will now heap on the people of the North and West.

ANOTHER European war appears imminent. It is thought an understanding between Greece and Turkey is impossible. Warlike preparations are progressing on both sides. It is the opinion in London that Austria is obstructing the efforts for an understanding, and that in the event of hostilities she would immediately occupy Macedonia. Prince Lobanoff is the bearer of a project for an alliance between Russia and Turkey. It is rumored that Russia is willing to renounce the 800,-000,000 francs of war indemnity, and give back some of the former provinces of Turkey in Asia.

THE ten little orphans left by Gen. Hood are likely to be well provided for. Subscriptions are being taken up in different parts of the country for their support. Letters have been received by the Mayor of New Orleans—one from a lady in New York and another from a lady in Baltimore, each of which ladies proposes to take one of the children for adoption. The reader will perhaps be surprised to learn that there are three pairs of twins among the ten. The oldest of the children is nine years and the youngest two months.

THE reports from Memphis bring indications of a subsidence of the yellow fever, and it is about time for the first frosts of the season to set in, when the disease will entirely disappear. It will be strange if the citizens of Memphis do not hereafter remove some of the causes for the prevalence of the yellow fever in their city. New Orleans has not suffered much from the scourge the present season, and it is alleged that this is due to the improved sanitary condition of the city.

THE arrival of gold from Europe in New York continues unabated. This shows conclusively that the accumulations of wealth in the United States are marvelous. Our wheat, cotton, petroleum, and a hundred other commodities are required in large quantities in Europe, and we receive in return vast wealth. Every year our vast home manufactures swell in importance, which renders foreign imports of merchandise less and less.

Now that the walking lunatics in New York have finished their silly tramp around the inside of a building, the rest of the world can start up again and go on as before. The telegraph man has faithfully reported the walk, and evidently thought that the public was interested in reading the accounts.

WE never knew until now that Brother Jones, of the Bentonian, was a poet. Hear him:

'Twas in the Fall of forty-nine
The gold fever broke out,
'N I'd have been a pioneer
Without the slightest doubt;
But Molly, here, took on and said:
"Argonaut, dearest Joe!"
I thought I'd argy not with her—
So, boys, I didn't go.

A REPORT comes from Silver Reef, Utah, that twenty-eight prospectors were killed by Indians in the country lying between Grand and Blue rivers, in Southeastern Utah.

CONSPIRACY AGAINST GRANT.

We suppose that is what it might properly be called—a conspiracy or a sort of a Gunpowder Plot by which Grant is to be blown up, not with powder, but with vanity, or something of that sort, to make him believe he is too good and great a man entirely to think of besmirching himself with any more Presidential experiences. The chief conspirators are said to be John Sherman, Blaine and Whitelaw Reid of the Tribune. The idea is that if they fail to blow him up enough that way, thereby causing him to refuse a nomination by making him feel that it would be a condescention on his part to accept, then they propose to join forces with Hayes and go to war with the General in dead earnest. That, substantially, is the story now engaging the attention of political quid nuncs.

We suspect there is not much in it, especially the notion of trying to cajole Grant; that plan might work with some people—John Sherman, for instance, supposing him in Grant's position—but General Ulysses is not that sort of a man, else public estimate is terribly deceived; he won't inflate worth a cent, and Blaine is smart enough to understand that if none of the other alleged conspirators are. Besides that, it is hardly reasonable to suppose that Blaine and Sherman could pull together in an operation like this when it is certain neither will agree to play second fiddle to the other, both wanting the first or none. And the proposed war in dead earnest will prove equally futile, particularly if the New York Sun joins in. The Sun, having an immense circulation, exerts a vast influence in political matters, but in general exactly opposite from what is intended. It is conceded to be the leading and most unscrupulous liar in the United States east of the Rockies, and correspondingly influential in the inverse manner above mentioned. Nothing is more certain to make Grant want to be President again, or more likely to elect him than for the above named respectable conspirators to form an alliance with that sheet, and start in lovingly together to abuse and scare him out of the notion. From all the General has ever said to us privately on the subject, we are satisfied the blarney dodge won't win, while the proposed war in dead earnest will make him the next President. He is precisely like Jeff Davis in one respect—he simply wants "to be let alone." The best thing that Blaine and Sherman and other aspirants can do is to let out both of the aforementioned contracts, and go to war with each other; and the more noise they make in this the better for their own chances, as regards Grant; and which ever one manages to get the Sun forenent him the strongest will have the best of the fight.

A RELIGIOUS excitement has been started in South Wales by a body of men and women known as the Army of Salvation. According to what appears to have been the rule in Great Britain from time immemorial down to the Victorean era, the new sect is meeting with that persecution from the magistrates which is necessary to force it into growth. Recently a Miss Lock, Captain in the Army of Salvation, was imprisoned for two months on a charge of obstructing the sidewalks. Upon her release she was greeted by a crowd of 20,000 persons, thus again showing that opposition only makes proselytes. The Army of Salvation is said to be doing good in some parts of South Wales, and appears to be composed of a set of enthusiastic pietists not unlike the early Methodists.

LAST Monday's Chronicle, consisting of eight large and handsomely printed pages, is nearly filled with a sketch of its own remarkable history from the beginning down to the present, an elaborate description of its new office, and, most interesting of all, an account in detail of its wonderful presses and other machinery, altogether constituting the finest office and most perfect lot of machinery and appliances for producing a great newspaper to be found in any city on this continent and not excelled perhaps as a whole in any other in the world. The whole account is of unusual interest.

THE Oakland Tribune says that the true reason why Denis Kearney backed down from his proposition to burn Grant in effigy was that when Capt. Jack Crawford, the "Poet Scout," heard of it he called at Kearney's headquarters and left the following message for the "Giniral:" "Tell him that if he burns Grant in effigy or even attempts to perpetrate that indignity, I will make it my individual business to kill him."

THE old town of Wallula, on the Columbia, is becoming quite a railroad center. The Utah Northern will bridge the Columbia at the rapids just below the town.

A NEW town, named Smithville, is just coming into existence thirty miles east of Prescott, Arizona. It is growing rapidly at present.

THE TROUBLE BEGINS.

Some of the deeply hidden beauties of our new Constitution are beginning already to crop out. The man who can tell within ten years when such peculiar beauties will cease to crop out, so that things can go smoothly along in anything like a fixed channel, can go head in the first class of prophets and wise men. It would have saved a world of trouble if a Board of Interpreters had also been provided, said Board to consist of such far-seeing Constitution makers as Beerstecher, Barbour (Clitus himself) Ayers, Terry, Howard or some other equally brilliant lights, their decisions to be with . ppeal. These are the men who did most to shape the new instrument, and are of the very few in the world who pretend to know what its most confused passages do mean. Their services as such Board of Infallibles would be of value right now, for they could tell us whether forty or only twenty State Senators were elected last month, whether or no each county elected full Boards of Supervisors or but the usual number, and, if the former, whether the individual members were to pull straws or play seven-up to decide the length of their respective terms, and if not, why not? They could also give the present incumbents of all county offices an indistinct idea whether they are all to simultaneously let go of the public teat in January or to hold on till March when the new grass would give them a better chance to make an honest living outside. All these important questions could have been settled at once had such a Board of Solomons been authorized to guess at what they thought their Constitution did provide for in each of these cases; and, next Spring, the judgment of such a constituted Board would be simply invaluable as a source of light to mystified Assessors, as the latter might then have some idea what they were to assess, and whether four or more times on each article or only twice. All this and much more might have been done by such a Board and thereby have saved no end of trouble and expense. But, alas, there is no such Board, so these troubles are upon us.

The twenty hold-over Senators are resolved to claim their seats; they will be recognized by the Secretary of the Senate when first called to order, the said Secretary being reported as favorable thereto. Having half of the whole vote in their own hands, it will take only one more to seat themselves permanently. They will help to grind out new Constitution laws during the hundred days. In due course, the new Supreme Court will cogitate over the matter, and decide that it was the other fellows who should have sat in those disputed seats, consequently that that Legislature was illegally constituted, therefore its labors were all in vain. To make up the extra cost, mortgages and such evidences of value will have to be taxed once or twice more. Otherwise, if the twenty hold-overs are declared entitled to their seats, their successors will have to be chosen at a time when the N. C. says they must not be voted for, else the next Senate can have but twenty members.

We think it quite certain all new county officials begin their terms in January. One of the best reasons for this belief is the fact that Attorney General Hamilton has just issued a circular giving it as his opinion that the N. C. intended the old officials to hold on till March. This is pretty good ground to expect competent authority to adjudge the contrary to be the fact.

A CURIOUS lawsuit has just been tried in Paris. As plaintiff and defendant both were deaf and dumb, they agreed to leave it to arbitrators who likewise were deaf and dumb. As mutes have a language of their own, Judges, lawyers, witnesses, plaintiff and defendant were deaf and dumb. The trial lasted two hours; lawyers argued, witnesses gave testimony, Judges decided—not one word was said. You could have heard a pin drop during the whole trial. Tell that in Gath—where you are.

THE bullet from De Young's pistol that hit Kalloch in the fleshy rear portion of his hip was of 42 caliber—about the size of a hickory nut. It only penetrated a short distance. The bullet that hit him in front before he turned to run will eventually be found sticking between two of his ribs. A ball out of a 36-inch caliber Krupp would merely double him up and bruise him some.

THE returns received at the office of the Secretary of State, show that Morrison has a majority of about 4,500 over Rhodes for Chief Justice. The Associate Justices elect are McKinstry, McKee, Thornton, Ross, Sharpstein and Myrick. The latter is a Republican, Sharpstein is a Kearneyite, while all the rest, including the Chief Justice, are Democrats.

IT is understood that the suit to test the constitutionality of the greenbacks issued since the resumption of specie payments will come up in the Supreme Court some time next month.

How Mining Claims Are to be Located.

Follow is a section from the United State mining law governing the location of claims, which will be found of interest to a large class of persons:

"From and after the 10th day of May, 1872, any person who is a citizen of the United States, or who has declared his intention to become a citizen, may locate, record and hold a mining claim of 1,500 linear feet along the course of any mineral vein or lode subject to location; or an association of persons severally qualified as above, may make joint location of such claim of 1,500 feet, but in no event can a location of such vein or lode made subsequent to May 10, 1872, exceed 1,500 feet along the course thereof, whatever may be the number of persons composing the association."

With regard to the extent of surface ground adjoining a vein or lode, and claimed for the convenient working thereof, the Revised Statutes provide that the lateral extent of locations of veins or lodes made after May 10, 1872, shall in no case exceed 300 feet on each side of the middle of the vein at the surface, and that no such surface rights shall be limited by any mining regulations to less than 25 feet on each side of the middle of the vein at the surface, except where adverse rights existing on the 10th of May, 1872, may render such limitation necessary; the end lines of such claims to be in all cases parallel to each other. Said lateral measurements cannot extend beyond 300 feet on either side of the middle of the vein at the surface, or such distance as is allowed by local laws. For example: 400 feet cannot be taken on one side and 200 feet on the other. If, however, 300 feet on each side is allowed, and by reason of prior claims but 100 feet can be taken on one side, the locator will not be restricted to less than 300 feet on the other side; and when the locator does not determine by exploration where the middle of the vein at the surface is, his discovery shaft must be assumed to mark such point.

IT is stated officially that the last fiscal year closed without the loss of a dollar of the one hundred million dollars collected throughout the country. It is stated also that the accounts of the five hundred Postmasters through whom the four per-cent. bonds were sold have just been closed, and it is found that of the entire amount received in sums of ten dollars and upwards, not one dollar has been lost. In view of the number of agents through whom these transactions were made, the circumstance that no loss should have been incurred, either through dishonesty or carelessness, is as remarkable as it is gratifying.

SOME one makes the proposition that the Governors of the thirteen original States shall meet at Independence Hall, Philadelphia, on the 18th and 19th of October, to arrange a plan for celebrating the centennial anniversary of the surrender of Cornwallis at Yorktown. The surrender took place October 19, 1781. This would give a year for preparations. Since centennials have become so common, it is doubtful whether any general interest could be created in such a celebration.

THE Democrats of Louisiana are looking round for a Gubernatorial candidate. The men most prominent before the people are Gen. F. N. Ogden and Louis A. Wiltz. Mr. Wiltz, seemingly, has the inside track, although in certain localities—New Orleans, for instance—Gen. Ogden is very popular. It is claimed that the latter would be the best man to champion the new Constitution which Louisiana recently adopted.

WE find the following items in the Bodie Standard of the 1st instant:

J. J. Gunn, who is well known all over the coast as an indefatigable mining venturer, came in from Panamint yesterday. He has information of importance which we shall give to our readers in a few days.

Hon. Theron Reed, District Judge, arrived in Bridgeport Sunday evening, where he will immediately assume his Judgeship duties.

SINCE January 1, 1879, the exports from San Francisco to China have amounted to $9,200,213, of which $6,674,661 was treasure and $2,525,522 was merchandise. The grand total for a corresponding period last year was $11,591,159.

IN the first 26 days of September, 37 wheat cargoes were cleared from San Francisco, and 39 ships are now in port under engagement to load. All these vessels will be full and off, together with others, before the 1st of November.

THE paid up capital of the incorporated commercial banks of San Francisco is upwards of $27,000,000, as follows: Five State banks, $16,000,000; one national bank, $2,000,000; four foreign banks, $9,637,400; total, $27,-637,400.

ONE of the chief obstacles to Tilden's nomination for the Presidency is said to be the two-third rule which has prevailed in the Democratic National Convention since 1836, and the old gentleman is trying to have it abrogated.

THE Supreme Court, September 29, denied the motion for a rehearing in the case of Sprague, sentenced to be hanged for the murder of More in Ventura county, and ordered a day fixed for the execution.

The Brothers, Sherman and Field.

There are two brothers, or rather two sets of brothers, in the United States, who are acting in extreme bad taste in connection with the forthcoming Presidential nomination. We allude, of course to the brothers Sherman and Field. One set of them is figuring on the Republican side, and the other on the Democratic. Gen. Sherman, whose brother John is a candidate, more or less prominent, for the Republican nomination, makes indecent haste to rush into print with the contents of a private letter from Gen. Grant, setting forth, as is claimed, that the latter under no condition of circumstances will consent to be a candidate for a third term. The surroundings considered, it must be confessed that Gen. Sherman, in lending prominently the weight of his great name to the furtherance of his brother's political ambition by the publication of the gist of a private communication from a private letter from a supposed rival candidate, descended from the high place which he occupied in the estimation of the country. His conduct in the premises cannot be put in milder terms. He has displayed an unpardonable amount of zeal to rule Grant out and John Sherman in.

In like manner has Cyrus W. Field manifested the cloven foot of nepotism. Some out of the way country paper chanced to mention Judge Stephen J. Field as a proper person to receive the Democratic nomination for the Presidency. Of course no intelligent man for a moment thought that this Judicial candidate possessed a single element of availability. He was known to stand for the great corporations as against the people, and was absolutely lacking in every of attribute popularity. There are 100,000 prominent Democrats in the United States who would be more acceptable to the Democratic hosts as their standard-bearer in the race of 1880, than Stephen J. Field of the Supreme Court. And yet Cyrus W. imagines that there is a show for him, and he straightway proceeds to do all in his power to smash Tilden in New York. The present demoralized condition of the Democratic party in that State is as much due to the intermeddling of Cyrus W. Field and his political associates as to any other cause; and all to kill Tilden that Judge Field may live. There is no parallel for the shameless conduct of the brothers Field, except that presented by the attitude of the brothers Sherman on the other side. Whatever the National Conventions may do next year, we hope to see them permanently shelve the Fields and Shermans.—Eureka Sentinel.

A LATE dispatch from Deadwood, Dakota Territory, has the following concerning the recent great fire: "Work among the ruins continues night and day. As fast as the embers can be extinguished a structure rises upon the site. Several fiery outbreaks occurred last night, but were subdued by the watchmen, of whom fifty are constantly patrolling the streets during the night, armed and under rigid orders from the Sheriff to arrest suspicious persons. Such dealers as escaped with portions of their stocks are ready to resume business in the morning. Both banks are prepared to meet the probable heavy run that will occur. Several large trains arrived from the railroad to-day loaded with needed goods, and more are expected to-morrow. In view of the fact that many tons of goods have been ordered shipped by express, the Sydney and Black Hills Stage Company will put on 100 freight wagons, drawn by four horses, each relayed every ten miles, and make the trip in four days. The total loss by the fire will not fall short of the original estimate, $3,000,-000, while each hour produces something new to augment it. Instead of 225 buildings of all kinds destroyed, as at first stated, the number will reach, if not exceed, 1,000. Of the 6,000 people residing in the city there is not one but has suffered commercial damage or loss of clothing, household goods, etc. People are good-naturedly bearing their loss, and all, even those heretofore considered wealthy, are arrayed in coarse attire and working in the debris. All feeling of caste is obliterated, if any ever existed."

C. D. DAVIS has nearly completed his map of the proposed road from Crane Valley to Mammoth City. The entire distance from Fresno to Mammoth is less than 100 miles. The distance from Crane Valley is under 50 miles. The grade is very light, the heaviest being one foot in fifteen, and there is less than eight miles of this grade. The county will build the road to Crane Valley, and the cost of construction from that point over the mountains will be less than $35,000. This part of the road Thos. Hildreth, Chas. O'Neal and others propose to construct. It is bound to be a financial success, as all the trade of the new mining districts in Fresno, Inyo and Mono counties will pass over it. The enterprise should receive every encouragement from our people, as they will receive great benefit from it.—Fresno Expositor.

PISTOLS AND KNIVES.—The great body of taxpayers do not find it necessary to carry pistols, and those who carry them cost the others a great deal of money. The class that carry pistols, too, are of the impecunious, non-taxpaying sort. Every pistol ought to pay a tax of about $20 a year, and it should be made a misdemeanor, punishable by imprisonment for six months, to be found guilty of having a pistol in one's possession which did not have the stamp of the collector for that year. This is a much better idea than the concealed weapon law. We would put into this class bowie-knives, dirks and all other things carried on the person and used for the purpose of taking life.—Colusa Sun.

THE New York Economist has this: The Bank of California holds a gold brick whose weight is within a fraction of 1,400 ounces, or over 100 pounds. Its value is $28,054, or $20 04 per ounce. The bar was the product from forty-seven tons of quartz from the Fresno-Enterprise mine, worked by four men in an arastra during five weeks. This is news to most Fresnoites.—Fresno Expositor.

Indian Depredations in New Mexico.

A reporter yesterday met and talked with a gentleman who has just arrived in the city from the scene of the Indian outbreak in Southern New Mexico. He was in Silver City, Grant county, a short time ago, and had just left that point on his journey northward when the first report of the trouble was received there. The massacre near Hillsboro, of which mention was made at length in yesterday's issue, occurred on Friday, but the people at Silver City were unaware of the proximity of the Indians, or that they were really on the warpath. The stage had journeyed about twenty-five miles to the hot springs (Ojo Caliente), when the passengers received the first intimation of the massacre. They met there a messenger from Hillsboro who had spread the alarm over the country as far as he had traveled and where he was still traveling. This messenger told a horrible story of Indian brutality, of murder, arson and rape. It seems a band of the red rascals pounced down upon an unsuspecting community, and at once began their devilish deeds. They killed during the day as many as twenty-seven persons, thirteen of them being men and the remaining fourteen women and children, both Americans and Mexicans suffering whenever they were seen by the Indians. Our informant was not able to learn the names of any of those who fell victims to the savage atrocity of the red warriors, as all aboard of the stage deemed it wise to make the best possible time on the trip through the infested country. They expected to be attacked every moment, and he rode with his hand on the trigger of his gun for eighteen hours.

Besides this massacre the Indians have killed quite a number of soldiers. The first demonstration was made early in the month, when a party of eighty Indians attacked six soldiers, herding the horses of Capt. Hancock's Company of the Sixth Cavalry, and killed all of them and drove the horses off.

The fact is that the Indians are too numerous for the force at command, there being no soldiers in New Mexico except the skeleton of the Ninth Cavalry and the Twelfth infantry. Portions of the Sixth Cavalry are stationed along the Arizona border. The Indians are devilish rather than dissatisfied, and say they are determined to whip the negro soldiers; that they want only stones to fight them with.—Denver Tribune.

BULLION.—Wells, Fargo & Co. shipped yesterday four bars of fine silver bullion from the Gunsight mine, Resting Springs mining district. The bars were 998 fine and valued at $6,000. The yield of bullion from the Gunsight, it is said, will be something fabulous, as the company now have their mill in full operation. There are many other mines in the same district that are of equal richness. We are told that the Gladstone Mining Company have so far developed many of their mines as to warrant the erection of a mill for the reduction of their ores. With such a flow of silver from this district, and as both the above named companies have their headquarters in this city, we look for pleasant results to our business community.—Los Angeles Express, Sept. 24.

THE OUTLOOK IN TULARE.—Nearly all will be able to put in a crop this year in Tulare, and those who have not already sown their grain are doing so, or preparing to do so. They have learned the advantage of having it in in time to receive the benefit of the first rain. Three very dry seasons like the two just passed have never been known to succeed each other in this valley, and the indications are that the coming Winter will be a very wet one. Nearly every one seems satisfied of it, and farmers do not regard it a risk to seed their land this year, and, if we are rightly informed by those who should know, a larger area of grain will be sown in Tulare county this year than ever before. Considerable new ground will be cultivated next year, and this of course cannot be plowed till after there has been sufficient rain to wet the land several inches deep. There will be considerable work this Winter and next Spring for those who have not work to do on their own places, and next Summer there will be work for every man in the valley.—Visalia Delta.

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 4.....1879

MODOCK OFFICIAL LETTER.—The official letter of the week is as follows:

Sept. 29, 1879.

J. W. Pew, Esq., Secretary Modock Con. M, Co.:—DEAR SIR: Results of operations on the 1000-foot level, for the week ending to-day, are as follows:

Drift south, 200 foot, run 29 feet; east crosscut, No. 2, drift north, 300 foot, 12 feet; east crosscut drift north, 800 foot, 21 feet; drift south, 1000 foot, 18 feet; north crosscut, 1000 foot, 9 feet; under air-drain, 80 feet. Total length of drift south, 300 foot, 278 feet; east crosscut, No. 2, 300 foot, 26 feet; east crosscut, 800 foot, 21 feet; drift south, 1000 foot, 18 feet; north crosscut, 1000 foot, 90 feet; under air-drain, 200 feet.

Started drift south, 1000 foot, a few days ago on some promising ledge matter, the distance run—18 feet—being run in five shifts.

Ground in 800-foot crosscut and at 1000 foot north, continues very favorable and good prospects for ore.

In east crosscut, at 300 foot, we cut both ore veins, as found in crosscut No. 1, the face still being in ledge matter. Shall run north from this point in ore passed through in the crosscut. Assays of samples yesterday from this point run 140 and 160 oz. in silver. A piece of ledge matter from 800 foot gave 7 oz. in silver.

Yours, respectfully,
A. C. TIBBETTS, Supt.

THE BROWN MONSTER.—From Supt. Eudey, who has just returned from a few weeks sojourn at the Bay, we learn that the Brown Monster property has been bonded to a gentleman representing a company of Eastern capitalists. We are not informed as to the figure, but understand that it is small in comparison to the big mine and the extensive improvements put upon it to cheapen and facilitate the working of its ore. Even while laboring under the disadvantage of lack of capital and support, in his efforts to make the property yield dividends Capt. Eudey has achieved some valuable results—such as dispensing with steam and securing water power of almost unlimited capacity, and in the transportation of ore from mine to mill by rail, reducing the cost from $5 to 50 cents per ton. The 30-stamp mill, however, is lacking in appliance for saving either gold or silver, as well as in suitable concentrators for collecting the immense quantities of sulphurets contained in the ore, which carry a high per centage of the precious metals. The mine, from lack of means, has also been neglected, there having been no sinking done or new levels opened for years past. Nevertheless the property has been well-nigh self-sustaining, and when taken in hand by a company of means, with good management can be made to pay most handsomely.

THE KEARSARGE PARTY.—On Tuesday last Supt. Gray of the Kearsarge arrived from San Francisco. He is accompanied by A. J. Marcus, President of the Company, Louis J. Frank, one of the principal stockholders, and Jas. G. Rule, an old Comstock miner and expert. The party proceeded immediately to the mine, where they will make a thorough inspection of the late important developments as well as of the entire property. With the present fine showing of ore bodies in the Kearsarge, vigorous work upon the big tunnel cannot long be delayed.

YGNACIO.—Supt. Greenly is pushing ahead at the rate of three feet per day a tunnel, now in 120 feet, to open the Greenly and San Francisco ledges and to strike the Ygnacio 90 feet below its present lowest level, which is 350 feet deep. The tunnel will be some 500 feet in length when completed. The Ygnacio, showing thousands of tons of rich ore in the various bodies exposed, and having on the dump 150 tons of $100 ore, is always open to the inspection of visitors and mining men.

BRIDGE TIMBERS.—Jas. Rose, who has the contract to furnish the planking and timbers for the new bridge at the Lone Pine crossing will commence the work of delivery next week, the work of hewing out being nearly completed. The timbers are said to be of a very superior quality in all respects. Altogether, they contain some 40,000 feet board measure, and the transportation will be quite a lengthy job.

A SECOND CROP.—Mr. Zaun has growing in his garden at Lone Pine a three-year-old apple tree, which after maturing one full crop of fine fruit this season, commenced a second one, and now bears several well-grown apples, and which with a little protection from early frosts, are likely to ripen fully. This is certainly an unusual occurrence.

ICE.—Mr. Zaun, of Lone Pine, proposes to keep up with the requirements of future times, and for some weeks past has been engaged in remodeling and improving his ice house in such a manner that hereafter he expects to be able to keep a full supply of the cooling article through from one year's end to another.

SCHOOL.—A week from Monday next, October 12th, the Independence school will be re-opened, under charge of Mrs. Thomas May. It was expected that Mr. Daniel Crough would again take the school, but as his present engagement will occupy him until too late to put in the required six months here it was thought best to begin at once.

BULLION.—On the 29th ultimo Wells, Fargo & Co. shipped two bars of Rex Montis bullion valued at $500, and on the following day two more bars valued at $800. October 1st, Arnold, Cordes & Co. shipped $400 in gold, the proceeds of a short run of their arrastra in Alabama district.

FOUND GUILTY.—The County Court was occupied during the first three days of the week in the trial of Henry Tessier, upon charge of assault upon Michael Welch with intent to kill, out of which affray grew the killing of Sheriff Moore by Welch while the officer was attempting his arrest. District Attorney Snelling and Judge A. R. Conklin appeared for the prosecution and Geo. M. Gill, under appointment by the Court, for the defense. Out of a venire of thirty, the following named jurors were obtained: Fred Schabbell, S. J. McMurry, Fred Albers, James Jones, O. B. Wilson, Benjamin F. Thibau, Elihu Smith, A. H. Johnson, A. C. Harvey, Julius Roeper, T. S. Hamilton and John R. Hughes, Foreman. After the examination of quite a number of witnesses and argument by counsel, the jury received the Judge's charge and retired. They were out but a few minutes when they agreed upon a verdict and returned that of "guilty." Tessier was to-day sentenced by Judge Hannah to three years in the State Prison.

SHOTGUNS AT BISHOP.—One day last month Wm. McCarter, at Bishop Creek, thought to settle a business controversy with F. Rickey by means of a shotgun. After he had got his gun cocked and in proper shape to settle Rickey and the question at issue, another shotgun in the hands of a third party was suddenly brought to bear in such a way as to cause Mr. McCarter to forego pulling the trigger, so no blood was spilled. Soon after, Justice Alexander looked into the matter, and after due investigation, committed Mr. McCarter to jail here to await the action of a grand jury, the commitment being for an assult to do murder. Now, it may comfort Mr. McCarter to know that only a few days ago a jury here found a young man guilty of a penitentiary offense on a precisely similar charge. In the possible event that a similar minded jury should be called upon to try Mr. McCarter why, of course, he will be company for the young man at San Quentin.

FRUIT.—Another box of magnificent fruit, received at this office the other day with the compliments of Mrs. Sallie M. Bell, of Big Pine, deserves more than a passing notice on account of the extraordinary size and fine flavor of the peaches and grapes. We are not apprised of the names of the varieties, but may state that the peaches were yellow cling-stones, of a flavor more delicate and delicious than any that it has ever been our lot to sample on this coast. Measuring nine and three-quarter inches in circumference, a single one was all that a person could comfortably get away with. The grapes were equally remarkable for size and fine flavor. We would much like to see some of the products of the Bell orchard on exhibition at the State Fair, where we opine the eyes of the world would be opened as to the capabilities of some of our foot-hill farms.

MINING.—Among the several parties of capitalists and mining men, who have been recently attracted to the rich mines and new discoveries of Cerro Gordo district, were Samuel L. Cheller, Prof. John D. Barry and Martin Jones, all well-known mining operators of San Francisco. They made a careful examination of the Ygnacio, Palma, San Lucas and other properties, with some of which they were so well pleased as to promise an early return. The party were conveyed from here to Bodie by Omie Mairs, but while on the road north made a halt at Bishop long enough to visit the mines of Antelope district, belonging to Swearingen, Mills and others. They were very favorably impressed with the appearance of this property also, and the party imbibed some new ideas concerning the limitless mineral wealth of this county.

A CHANGE.—Our home readers will be indeed sorry to learn that it is the intention of Dr. F. T. Bicknell to leave us for his new location at Bishop Creek. During his two years' sojourn among us the Doctor has come to be considered an indispensable part of the community, and certain it is that as a practitioner he has met with more uniform success than any who have preceded him in this field. However, he is not going far away, and our loss is Bishop Creek's great gain. We understand that Dr. W. H. George, of Kernville, who has lately paid Independence a visit, intends to locate at this point.

RELIGIOUS.—The Nevada Methodist Conference has assigned to this, the "Owens River Valley work," the Rev. F. M. Willis, a man of family and fine reputation. Let kindly words be spoken for him, and—well, is it not among the possibilities that Independence build itself a church?

SHUT DOWN.—The Union Con. reduction works at Cerro Gordo have been compelled to suspend operations for a time on account of the scarcity of water. But for this unexpected misfortune the Union Con. was on a fair road to a handsome dividend.

RETURNED.—W. Hedge, an old-time Inyo miner of the cheering days of '63 and '4, has just returned, and will proceed to open the St. Lawrence and other promising old mines across the river, which have lain untouched for all these long years.

HEADQUARTERS.—Jerry Mairs is out with a new advertisement of the Headquarters Saloon, of which he is now sole proprietor. His stock comprises everything desirable in the way of plain or fancy drinks, and all of first-class quality.

THE TAX.—The Board of Supervisors will meet on Monday next, pursuant to law, for the purpose of making the tax levy for the ensuing fiscal year and apportioning the same to the several funds.

IRWIN'S SALOON.—See Johnny Irwin's card among the new advertisements. His elegant establishment has become a very popular place of resort.

PANAMINT.—Mr. Harris, of Harris & Rhine, started this morning on a business trip to Panamint, which place is looking up again.

LETTER FROM BENTON.

BENTON, Mono Co., Cal., Oct. 2.

MESSRS. EDITORS: I suppose some of your readers would like to hear a little of what is doing in our little burg, so sweetly placid lying in its bed of sand. We have had nothing to disturb the equanimity of our existence but the poisoning of a Chinawoman by nobody, according to the decision of our most able, respected and talented jurist, Old Rob—so there was no one to blame; the woman planted and the ordinary routine of life resumed.

The owners of the Tower mine, in Indian District, are jubilant over their strike of a ten-foot ledge in the 250 level. The ore is a zinc blende and assays $150 all through the ledge, and Mr. Walsh, the Superintendent, is very joyous thereat.

The Comanche mill has started up and is still under the superintendence of Mr. Robert Burnham, so well known in mining and milling circles both here and in Mexico, and who has heretofore given able evidence of his capacity in running a mill, which to ordinary men has proved a difficult undertaking. The present management has shown its good sense by retaining so able a manager. The mill is crushing from 10 to 12 tons of ore per day, and by the appearance of the ore body in the mine will be able to keep up its lick for some months to come.

Capt. Prescott has returned from below and is going ahead as fast as muscle and powder will let him. The Sultan Hill Company's mines, under his charge, are looking splendid, and when the hoisting works and pumping machinery, which are on the road from Carson, are here and in working order, we will be able to show the outside world good ore and plenty of it, that will astonish the skeptically disposed.

There are other good mines in the district, notably the Red Rover, belonging to John Knaresborough, that are taking out slathers of good ore and piling it up on the dump in anticipation of the mill that is to be built next Spring in Yellow Jacket Cañon.

Mr. Creaser's mill is about starting also on a goodly quantity of rock taken from the Diana mine, and when both mills are running things will be lively, and as we are a religious people we will, like the Pharisee of old, lift up our hands devoutly and thank Heaven we are not as other people.

VERITAS.

Mammoth Items.

The mill has now been running nearly two weeks, we might say, without any interruption except incident to all new machinery. The ore upon which it has been running is not by any means the best that could be taken from the mine. How long before bullion will be shipped, we are unable to say, but suppose that shipments will shortly be commenced. The mine is working the full limit of men, and the cars are kept constantly running with ore to the mill. The covered tramway is almost completed. Immense quantities of wood are being placed in convenient proximity to the fire-room for use this Winter. A large supply of hewn and sawed lumber for use in the various departments of the mine is being hauled to the foot of the hillside tramway. Large loads of coal are daily passing our door for blacksmith purposes. In fact, every preparation is being made by Supt. Wm. Hardy for the vigorous prosecution of work in all departments during the coming Winter months.

A Herald representative paid a visit to the various mines located in the southern part of the Mammoth range yesterday and found the mines in which the new discoveries have been made looking equally as well as reported. The Metallic and Troy mines, for the amount of work done, both showing favorably, and leaving no doubt that when sufficient labor has been performed they will rank with the foremost mines in the district. Several other mines in that locality are showing up well, and within the past few days five or six new locations have been made. This portion of the district has heretofore had but little attention given it, prospectors generally having the idea that it was not on the mineral belt. We are glad now that this opinion has been overcome, placing as it does another feather in our cap.

From Morris Burke, who has just returned from Bodie, we learn that after the 1st of October a daily mail line may be expected between this place and Bodie. Although not confident of the fact, the rumor is well authenticated that Con. Ogg has received a mail contract from the powers that be. Should such be the fact, Mr. Ogg will put on his four-horse stages again and run the route daily. We hope this may all be so, as it will be a great convenience to our citizens and somewhat remunerating to the contractor for past expenses incurred in furnishing Lake District with a mail without receiving a compensation.—Mammoth Herald.

A CASE of interest to newspaper subscribers and readers has just been decided in Dayton, Ohio, under the newspaper law. Mr. Wolf, the Dayton distributor of the Gazette and of the Journal, left a copy of the paper at the wrong door for several months. The paper was accepted and read, and when Mr. W. called to collect the money for it the party who had taken and read the paper refused to pay for it, on the ground that he had not ordered it. Mr. Wolf, anxious to avoid a legal contest, offered to compromise for half cost, but the party asserted that he couldn't collect, and refused to pay anything. Suit was then brought and Wolf recovered the entire bill. That is the law, and parties who want something for nothing will make a note of it. The defendant in the above suit could have notified the carrier who made the first error that he did not want the paper, not having subscribed for it, but he did not do so and thought to get the paper for nothing.—State Register.

THE discoverer of the Tombstone mines, in Arizona, now a bonanza king, was, three or four years ago, a woodchopper on a wood ranch in the vicinity of Austin, Nevada.

CHILDREN'S HAIR.—How often the soft, flossy hair of children is seen crimped, pinched and curled, and nothing is so injurious to the ultimate health of the hair as this sort of treatment. Wee creatures of three or four years, and even younger, are arrayed in in curl papers by affectionate and admiring mothers, who are bent upon making the children charming, and who do not stop to consider how far they may be defeating their own ends by this action, or how much pain they may be inflicting on the object of their fond solicitude. An authority on that subject says: "Up to the age of six or seven children retain what is called their baby hair, which is injured, not improved, by cutting. In its soft and delicate silkiness it is like the first plumage of a young bird, and is quite different from the harsher hair which succeeds it. If the hair curls naturally it looks charming dressed in that fashion, but putting it in papers is sure to injure it and pull it out by the roots. The use of curling irons is still more objectionable; anything which tangles or cuts the hair is bad in the extreme, and it is to be regretted that mothers draw so heavily on the capital of their children's hair, instead of using the yearly increasing interest of its beauty and value. One disastrous result arising from the prevalent custom of allowing the hair to flow unconfined down the shoulders has been in some cases disease of the spine or other ills of a kindred nature. This has been attributed to the heat of the hair, when it is thick, and as the hair is a non-conductor the constant warmth of it about the neck and shoulders becomes a weakening agency that betrays itself in some miserable form. The scalp of the hair should be always kept clean.

The hair should not be brought in contact with very sharp combed teeth; it should be carefully and well brushed, and loosely coiled in one of the becoming fashions that abound at present, without being injurious to the growth or beauty of the hair, or detrimental to the physical structure in any way."

THE full text of Tilden's answer to Cyrus W. Field comes by mail. It is a little singular that, with two Democratic dailies in New York which have been regarded as friendly to him, Mr. Tilden should have published his reply in the Times. The reason may be found in the assumption that that paper, as a Republican journal, would naturally be more favorable to Mr. Tilden's nomination by the Democrats than any Democratic journal not directly under Mr. Tilden's control. But the journal chosen for communication with the public does not affect the character of the answer. The answer itself is sufficiently explicit. He pronounces several of Mr. Field's statements to be "void of truth." He declares that there was no understanding between him and Field that he should keep up the price of stock during Mr. Field's absence in Europe. He simply gave Field authority to dispose of one-sixth of his interest in Europe, retaining entire freedom to dispose of the residue at his own pleasure. He denies that he was under any obligation to Field in the purchase of the stock, as the stock was not offered to him until ineffectual efforts had been made to sell it to others. Mr. Field's statement about forcing him to make a payment on stock is pronounced "a mere romance." Mr. Field's description of Mr. Tilden's peculiar business habits is pronounced by Mr. Tilden "a tissue of fictions, frivolous in detail and false in all its substance." In a word, Mr. Tilden turns the tables on Field, charging him as playing the part of a trickster and conspirator in all his operations in Elevated Railway stock. The Times expresses the opinion that Mr. Tilden has effectually disposed of Cyrus W. Field, and intimates that he would do the country a service if he would dispose of each member of the Field family in the same way.—S. F. Call.

A MINING discovery has been made about fifteen miles above Kernville, near Kern river west side, that promises to be valuable. Near the summit of the mountain at this point there has at some time been a landslide that exposed a quartz ledge. This was discovered in June last, and located by Milton Kelly and W. B. Rose. They had an assay made of surface rock by P. Y. Baker of Visalia, U. S. Mineral Assayer and Surveyor, which yielded at the rate of $24 11 per ton. The locaters went down the hill below the surface croppings and started a tunnel to strike the ledge and did strike it 90 feet from the mouth of the tunnel. They have every reason to believe that the ledge is very wide—over 20 feet—but as yet have only penetrated into it a distance of five feet. The outside casing, which is an inch and a half thick, is thickly studded with fine gold; but none can be seen in the rock, which is full of sulphurets. They had an assay made of rock taken from the ledge at this point by Mr. Baker, and it yielded at the rate of $1,120 to the ton. The owners are very much elated and think they have a big thing. The new mine is christened the "Young Guide." Persons who have been up from Kernville to examine it think it is very valuable. It is easy of access, and there is an abundance of wood and water in the vicinity.—Bakersfield Gazette, Sept. 27.

MINING IN TUOLUMNE.—It looks as though old Tuolumne mining interests were reviving. We know of over half a ton of gold being shipped from this county during the past few days. Pocket mining is going on in several parts of the county, and has met with some brilliant successes recently. Quartz mining interests are doing well and placer mining is reviving in the old gulches where it was abandoned in the more palmy days of 1849 and the following years.—Sonora Democrat.

A TELEGRAM from Havana states that three slaveholders have emancipated 6,000 of their slaves, and contracted with them for their services for five years. Other slaveholders intend following their example. The Spanish government has decided to send 500 soldiers to Cuba forthwith. Several Deputies have resolved to move in the Cortes for the immediate abolition of slavery in Cuba, without an indemnity to slave-owners.

TIMES IN KERN.—Though no special activity is now visible among the people of Kern, there is a cordial recognition of the changes going on, and a sincere belief that from this time forward every enterprise will be matured and every branch of trade improved. The inactivity is alone owing to the character of the season, this being the Winter of the farmer, when the harvest is ended and the waiting is for the beginning of another growing season. —Kern County Gazette.

THERE is now in the vaults of the United States Treasury the enormous sum of $45,915,199 in standard silver dollars and subsidiary coin, about two-thirds of the total amount being silver dollars. As each dollar of silver weighs an ounce, this mass of money will amount to nearly 3,000,000 pounds weight, or 1,500 tons, and to haul it away would require about 1,500 two-horse teams well loaded.

THE Kern county Gazette says that in that section most of the flocks will be allowed to carry their wool till Spring, the fleece being generally light. The scarcity of feed in the mountains has caused the death of a great number of sheep, through eating milk-weed.

BUFFALO BILL'S WRIT OF REPLEVIN. One morning a man came rushing up to my house and stated that he wanted a writ of replevin to recover possession of his horse which a stranger was taking out of the country. I had no blank forms, and had not yet received the statutes of Nebraska to copy from, so I asked the man:

"Where is the fellow who has got your horse?"

"He is going up the road, and is about two miles away," he replied.

"Very well," said I, "I will get the writ ready in a minute or two."

I saddled up my horse and then taking up my old reliable rifle, "Lucretia," I said to the man:

"That's the best writ of replevin that I can think of; come along, and we'll get that horse or know the reason why."

We soon overtook the stranger, who was driving a herd of horses, and as I came up to him I said:

"Halloo, sir; I am an officer and have an attachment for that horse," and at the same time I pointed out the animal.

"Well, sir, what are you going to do about it?" he inquired.

"I propose to take you and that horse back to the post," said I.

"You can take the horse, but I haven't time to return with you."

"You'll have to take the time, or pay the costs here and now," said I.

"Here's the money," said he as he handed me the greenbacks. I then gave him a little friendly advice, and told him he was released from custody. He went on his way a wiser and poorer man, while the owner of the horse and myself returned to the fort. I pocketed the $20, of course. Some people think it was not a square way of doing business, but I didn't know any better just then. I had several little cases of this kind, and I became better posted on law in the course of time.—Omaha Herald.

VICTOR HUGO was talking about age, and confessed, in a charming humor, that the disagreeable advance to him was from 30 to 40. "Oh, that terrible 40!" he said. "But," remarked some one, "I should think it a great deal better to be 40 than 50." Not at all," he replied, "40 years is the old age of youth, while 50 years is the youth of old age."

A YOUNG man in Binghampton, N. Y., recently died from the effects of swallowing a silver half-dollar. He was tossing the coin in the air, and catching it in his mouth, to amuse a child, when it lodged in his throat and passed into his stomach.

AN exchange says: "Kerosene will make tea-kettles shine as bright as new." "Yes," remarked another paper, "kerosene will do wonders; it will make a house shine so it can be seen for miles, but it is terrible destructive to paints."

DOWN in Jersey swamp districts when they heard that the duty had been removed from quinine, they gazed smilingly intc each other's eyes through tears of gladness, cordially extended their trembling digits and exclaimed, "Shake!"

IN February next year there will be five Sundays. This fact occurs but three times in a century. Thus, after 1880, we will have to wait until 1920 before the short month of the year can boast of five Sundays.

A LAZY man, having a wife named Hope, whose custom it was to pull off her husband's boots every evening, was wont to exclaim on such occasions, "How truly it is said that 'Hope is the yanker of the sole."

ABOUT the guiltiest-looking people in the world are a man accused of a crime of which he is innocent, and a newly-married couple trying to pass for veterans.

GEN. GRANT goes to Yosemite next Thursday. The Central Pacific people have tendered him a special train over all their roads.

LADIES are like watches—pretty enough to look at; sweet face and delicate hands, but somewhat difficult to "regulate" after they are set a-going.

ANY man who can swap horses or ketch fish and not lie about it is just about as pius az men ever git to be in this world.—Josh Billings.

SPECTACLES LOST.

ON SUNDAY, AUGUST 31 LAST, WHILE hurriedly preparing to take the stage for Bishop Creek, I left my glasses lying on the bed in my room at Grover's Hotel at Big Pine. They are gold mounted, light frame, small, oblong eye glasses, and encased in a leather Morocco case. As their loss is nearly irreparable to me, and being unable to find any trace of them otherwise, I take this method of calling attention to their loss, and is possible they may have fallen in the hands of some person who, though the good fellow he is, seeing this, may be induced to give them up. I would be most grateful to the party to whom may come finding them if they will let me know, or send them to me at this place.

HORRIBLE ACCIDENT.

Nine Men on a Cage Drop 520 Feet Down the Tioga Shaft—Five of the Men Dead—Two More Cannot Live.

Last evening about half-past 5 o'clock a horrible accident occurred at the Tioga mine. Henry Richards, S. J. Martin, Joseph Brothers, James Cassidy, G. H. French, Thomas Moran, Peter Bluff, Patrick Bannan and Manuel Albers, nine men of the night shift, had stepped on to the cage to descend to the 520 level, and when the signal that everything was ready was received by the carman, he removed the chairs from under the cage, when it immediately shot down the shaft at lightning speed to the 520 level. Here it was stopped by a bulkhead, which had been built at that point, consisting of heavy planks. Three men were at work one hundred feet below, in the bottom of the shaft—which has three compartments. They heard the noise and felt the jar of the cage when it struck the bulkhead, but were unable to tell what was the matter until drops of blood began to trickle down upon them. At the sight of this they knew that a serious accident had happened. Several men who were in the drift at the same time hearing the crash hastened to the shaft, where a horrible sight presented itself. The men were jammed into a heap; some were unable to speak a word, while others could only utter faint groans. Timbers were shivered to splinters and the cage was a complete wreck.

John Boynton, the engineer, on giving the signal, had neglected to close the clutch on to the reel, thus leaving it free from the control of the engine; so when the chairs were removed the weight on the cage started the reel. Seeing what had happened he lost all presence of mind and was completely paralyzed. If he had started the engine and closed the clutch a connection might have made before the cage reached the bottom. He put down the brake on the reel, or tried to do it, but it failed to stop the reel in its swift revolutions. It is said that the brake was out of order at the time and was almost useless. The carman seeing the pending calamity, hurried to the brake; but he accomplished no good, only stopping the run of cable after the cage had struck the bulkhead. The engineer, after fully realizing what had happened, staggered for his coat and left the works. On reaching the room where his wife and two children were stopping, a picture of horror was upon his face; he was pale as a sheet and covered with perspiration. He changed his clothes without scarcely saying a word. This done he left his family in the room and has not since been seen. It is said that Boynton, while engineer at the Belcher, ran the cage up in the sheeves; that he did the same thing in the Savage, and was the cause of a man losing his life while at the Silver Hill.

News soon reached town of the accident and many left for the scene. Drs. Davison, Roe, Deal and Rogers were at the works shortly afterwards. The two latter gentlemen descended the shaft to attend the victims of the accident, while the latter remained on the surface and took charge of the men as they were brought up. The bodies were removed from the debris as soon possible. Henry Richards was found to be very severely injured. He had one leg broken and was hurt internally. His suffering was intense, and before he could be removed to the surface he was dead. His last words were: "Boys, I'm gone." The men were bound up as much as possible before being taken to the surface. Only one taken up at a time, the bucket being used for that purpose. Patrick Bannan was the first one hoisted. His right arm was fractured, and injured internally. Manuel Albers was the second; injured internally; bladder ruptured. Thos. Moran was next hoisted up; injured internally. James Cassidy had a leg fractured and otherwise badly hurt. S. J. Martin was very severely hurt; both legs were fractured; two ribs fractured, and received internal injury. Joseph Brothers' head was fractured and he susta ned internal injuries. Peter Bluff had his thigh fractured and his leg fractured in two places. G. H. French was the last person taken out alive. His left hip was iractured in two places and sustained fnternal injuries. They were brought to the surface in the order named, and Drs. Roe and Davison did all that medical skill was capable of accomplishing. The bodies were then placed on cots and brought to town as soon as thought advisable. Miners' Union Hall was thrown open and several of the men were taken there. G. H. French was removed to the Champion Hotel. It is thought he will recover. Pat. Bannan is in the hospital under charge of Dr. Summers. He is sinking rapidly and cannot live. Bluff and Moran are in cabins and resting comfortably.

Five of the victims are dead. Martin, Brothers, Cassidy and Richards passed away during the night; Albers this forenoon. Martin and Richards were buried this afternoon by the Miners' Union. The funerals were largely attended. Manuel Albers will be buried to-morrow. Cassidy's remains will be taken to Gold Hill for interment. He leaves a wife and four children.—Bodie Free Press, Sept. 8.

At the Front.

There has never been a time in the history of the Comstock where there were in progress so many big works as are now to be seen out on the new front of the lode. At the Union shaft about an acre of ground is covered with iron and steel in the shape of engines and mining machinery and apparatus, while the air is filled with masts, booms and guy ropes, and the ear is assailed with a Babel of sounds, such as the puffing of engines, great and small, the whirr, rattle and roar of machinery, the click of stone hammers and the various noises of carpenters' tools.

At the shaft named a carpenter shop 50x100 feet in size is being raised. Many workmen are busily engaged in putting in the foundations for the new pumping machinery. The old pumping apparatus is being rapidly stripped from the shaft, and excavations for pumps and tanks and bobs are being made. Eighty-four men are employed, and work is going on from top to bottom. Besides all this sinking other work is going on in the shaft as usual.

A large cooling pond is in course of construction for the condensing engine, and soon a force of men will be put to work on the new ore house. S..me eighty men are now at work on the side track which is to connect this ore house with the Virginia and Truckee Railroad, and, indeed, men swarm everywhere out on the new front line, while the frequent blasts have the sound of a vigorous cannonade.

The new Scorpion shaft is out on the front, and is to be one of the big works of the line. There, too, a building 70x110 feet in size is going up, and all is business and bustle.

The works at the Requa shaft, on the front, are completed and the shaft itself is fast nearing the 3,000 level; while at the Yellow Jacket over 2,700 in depth, they have just commenced the work of putting their huge hoisting engine on foundation.

Down under all these works, and well out to the front, are being run the north and south lateral drifts of the Sutro tunnel, which are to connect all this east line of immense shafts, or working centers, carrying away the water encountered, and conducting air from point to point.

At no other time and on no other point in the line of advance eastward from the Comstock croppings have there been seen a series of such vast and systematically arranged works, nor have we ever before seen in the lateral branches of the Sutro tunnel, by means of which the shafts were to be connected and all above and below brought together as a scientifically-arranged whole.—Virginia Enterprise.

THE Roddans have been acquitted of any knowledge of the assault upon Ida Dunn and Cora Heslep because there was no testimony to connect them with it, and yet there is something in the reticence of the girls which carries an uneasy feeling of suspicion and mystery. The action of the Court, however, must be accepted, and the Roddans go clear; but we doubt if one in ten are satisfied that all the facts in the case were brought to light. Hugh Roddan had obtained the signature of Ida Dunn to a card for publication and according to the Bee her father telegraphed to that office to have the publication stopped short, as it never reached the office. This same Hugh Roddan enters into correspondence with detectives and evidently throws them of the scent. A trial is instituted and the Roddans are exonerated, and there stands the case; but there is something smoking, and a fire may break out one of these days. We are anxious to see justice done, but her servants are evidently "going it blind."—Carson Appeal.

Timber Lands.

The present Secretary of the Interior is especially active in guarding the Government's timber. The officers of the Land Office are constantly in receipt of instructions to enforce the law on this subject, and they have about determined to bring up offenders with a round turn. We reproduce a portion of the law applicable to timber lands. We quote from section 2,461 of the Revised Statutes, as follows:

"It shall be unlawful for any person to cut or remove, or cause to be cut or removed, from any of the mineral lands of the United States any timber or undergrowth of any kind whatsoever less than eight inches in diameter, and any person so offending shall be liable to be fined in any sum not exceeding $500, and to which may be added imprisonment for any term not exceeding six months."

The above applies to all lands in this State, surveyed or unsurveyed, though there is a provision in another section of the law that timber above eight inches in diameter may be cut and appropriated for mining and domestic purposes. But on no account shall the timber of the Government below eight inches in diameter be taken for any purpose whatever. It is thus shown that the young timber must be respected. It is only by the most liberal construction of the law that the coal producers of this section are permitted to trespass on Government timber lands at all. They come under the exemption for mining purposes. But in no event have they the right to take any less than eight inches in diameter. We are told that some of the coal burners take all timber, young and old, indiscriminately. This will not be tolerated by the land officers in the future, and any person violating the true intent and meaning of the law will be vigorously prosecuted. United States District Attorney Varian is devoting his attention to the matter, and cases of infraction of the law, when reported to him, will be pushed to the utmost extent. Parties interested will do well to take heed of this timely warning.—Eureka Sentinel.

MILK RIVER MASSACRE.—The Milk River massacre gives promise of developing into a first-class Indian war, but such a conflict cannot last long, as the season is so far advanced that the weather will soon prevent campaigning by United States troops and drive the Indians to the shelter of their fastnesses, where they cannot be reached when the snow is on the ground. The Utes are very cunning Indians, and in all probability provided for this very contingency in making their attack on Thornburg's command. Of course they knew that troops would immediately be put in the field to avenge the massacre, and when they find a number of troops opposing them larger than they care to face, they will take to their heels and break for the mountains and hide, and the troops cannot get at them till next Summer. Then perhaps they may be good Indians. An Indian has a faculty of growing suddenly good when he is hungry or overpowered.

Usually in Indian wars sympathy is manifested for the Indians by the humanitarians on the ground that the poor red men are oppressed and ill-treated by the whites, and occupy the position of the worm, which, being trod on, has at last turned. This excuse will not hold good with the Utes. They are among the most cruel, bloodthirsty and treacherous Indians on the continent. No provocation has been given them for this outbreak, and the Utes have no motive except an inordinate coveteousness for white men's hair.—Stock Report.

A RACE.—Harry Lufkins, of this city, and J. J. Williams, of Bodie, who own two very fast horses, have made a race between their respective nags, to come off on the Carson track on the 25th instant, for $500 a side. The forfeit money and the agreement is in the hands of Wells, Fargo & Co., in this city. The agreement reads as follows: "J. J. Williams and H. Lufkins hereby agree as follows: To run a horse race on the track at Carson City, Nev., on Saturday, the 25th day of October, 1879; Mr. Williams to run the horse known as Black Harry, and Mr. Lufkins to run the hors known as Sleepy Bob; the distance to be 500 yards. Williams is to ride Black Harry against a catch on Sleepy Bob. The race is to be for $500 a side. A forfeit of $250 a side is to be put up now, and the other $250 a side to be deposited on the day of the race. The horses are to start at the tap of the drum, and the first horse out to win the race. Judges and starting man to be agreed upon by the parties on the day of the race." From the foregoing agreement it can be seen that the race will be a square one, and ought to draw a big crowd.—Carson Appeal.

BORAX WATER.—Borax water will instantly remove all soils and stains from the hands, and heal all scratches and chafes. To make it, put some crude borax into a large bottle, and fill with water. When the borax is dissolved, add more to the water, until at last the water can absorb no more and a residuum remains at the bottom of the bottle. To the water in which the hands are to be washed after gardening, pour from this bottle enough to make it very soft. It is very cleansing and very healthy. By its use the hands will be kept in excellent condition—smooth, soft and white.

LAST year a man patented a fan, which fastened to the back of a rocking-chair, was made to work by the motion of the chair. This year some one has fashioned a fan whose motive power is the sewing-machine; and next year we see no reason why a combined fan and fly-brush shall not be invented, to be attached to boarding-house tables and operated by the innate strength of the butter.

A CHAP went to a circus and stepping too near the animal's cage had his arm seized and savagely jerked by one of them. He would have escaped safely had he not said "it was merely a monkey wrench," and when they heard that the infuriated crowd cast that newspaper paragraphist in the lion's cage.

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 11..... 1879

APPLETONS' JOURNAL for October gives the second installment of Mrs. Edwardes' brilliant novel, "Vivian the Beauty," and a continuation of "The Seamy Side," by Messrs. Besant and Rice. The third of Karl Blind's papers on "Russian Conspiracies" appears, which concludes the series. The revelation which these papers give of life under the Czars is certainly startling. Mr. W. H. Mallock's latest contribution to the ethic and æsthetic discussions of the day is entitled "A Dialogue on Human Happiness," and this is given in full. It is a brilliant and suggestive paper. From Matthew Arnold we have an article entitled "The French Play in London," which is not only an analysis of the French theater as exhibited recently in London, but a comparison of the French and English drama, with some fresh and acute comments on the nature of dramatic poetry. "Art and Criticism" is devoted to the discussion of certain art theories now current in London. "Leaves from the Laurels of Moliere" is a very readable paper on the great French humorous dramatist. A description of a remarkable rocky group in Utah, known as the City of Rocks, and poems by Locker, Fawcett and others, complete the body of the number. The editor has for his topics "The Nude in Art once more," "Women as Horticulturists," and "Art and Democracy;" and in the "Books of the Day" reviews some of the more important of recent publications.

THERE is (or was) a very spirited newspaper published in our neighboring town of Independence, down in Inyo county, called THE INYO INDEPENDENT. Last Summer we were honored by an exchange with THE INDEPENDENT, and read it with as much gratification as any of our mountain exchanges. We have not received a copy of it for weeks. What is the matter? Is it the fault of the mails? If so, let's pool the issue and go after them and the whole postal service rough shod. —Bentonian.

Yes, that's it; let's go for the whole bilin' of 'em, for, on investigating our mailing monkey, we find that our really highly esteemed contemporary has not had a copy of this paper for three or four weeks; mails wouldn't carry it because our neighbor's name got pied in the mailing galley, and the aforesaid m. m. forgot to report. It won't happen that way some more.

THE Postmaster General has ordered an actual daily count made in all the postoffices of the United States from the 1st to the 7th of November of all letters, packages, postal cards, etc., deposited for transmission, and publishers of newspapers are requested to furnish Postmasters with the number of papers mailed by them within the time specified.

THE Lake District Mining Review, which has passed into the hands of Messrs. Bogart & Farnham, is to be issued hereafter as a semi-weekly. The editor announces a forthcoming change in the name of the paper. Under whatever name, the journal is bound to be a brilliant and able advocate of the vast mining interests on this side of the Sierras.

THE election of Du Brutz, Tulare county, to the Assembly, is to be contested on the ground that a number of illegal votes were polled at Mineral King and Porterville precincts. Notice has been served on Du Brutz. S. O. Blakely, Secretary of the Republican Central Committee of that county, appears for White, the contestant.

GEN. GRANT will visit the Yosemite and then go to Oregon, where he will remain several weeks. Utah, Wyoming and Colorado will next be visited, after which he will go to his home at Galena, Ill., and remain there until May 1, when he will occupy his cottage at Long Branch.

THE Railroad Commission consists of Cone, Republican; Beerstecher, Workingman, and Stoneman, Democrat. The State Board of Equalization consists of King, Drew and Dunton, all Republicans, and Heiskell, Democrat.

WHITE, late candidate for Governor in California, is reported as being exceedingly gratified over the large vote he received. It does not take much to satisfy some men.

THE ATTORNEY GENERAL AND THE COUNTY OFFICERS.

Attorney General Jo. Hamilton, in response to an inquiry from the District Attorney of Solano county, gives it as his opinion that the new Constitution does not shorten the terms of present county officers, consequently that the terms of the new officers elect do not begin until next March. In his circular on this matter he says:

"Section 5, Article XI of the new Constitution, provides for county officers, but leaves the question as to the manner of their election or appointment with the Legislature.

Section 1, Article XXII, provides that laws inconsistent with the new Constitution shall remain in force until changed by the Legislature.

I, therefore, conclude that those officers, so far as commencement of their terms of office, will not be affected by the organic law.

I think Section 20, Article XX, applies only to such officers as have been expressly created by the new Constitution, such as State, District and Judicial officers."

In this, the Kern County Gazette, after giving the sections referred to at length, replies at length, and as we take it has much the best of the argument. As we do not think we can improve upon it by condensation or otherwise, we here present the Gazette's arguments in full as follows:

It would be presumption in us to set up our opinion against that of the Attorney General, but inasmuch as we expressed a different opinion before seeing his, we wish to state briefly what that opinion was based upon.

Section 5, Article XI of the new Constitution, given above, says: "The Legislature, by general and uniform laws, shall provide for the election or appointment in the several counties of Boards of Supervisors, Sheriffs, County Clerks, District Attorneys, and such other county, township and municipal officers as public convenience may require," etc. (See above.) The offices of Sheriff, County Clerk, District Attorney, etc., are therefore clearly provided for by the new Constitution in this section; the Attorney General admits it, and it is made the duty of the Legislature to provide for their election. Bear this in mind. Section 20, Article XX, says: "Elections of officers provided for by this Constitution, except at the general election in the year 1879, shall be held on the even numbered years next before the expiration of their respective terms. The terms of such officers shall commence on the first Monday after the first day of January next following their election." It would seem that this action plainly includes all of the officers provided for by the new Constitution, and we have just shown that Sheriffs, County Clerks, etc., are thus provided for. This action is supplemented by Section 10, of Article XXII. It says that in order that future elections shall conform to requirements of this Constitution, the duties of all officers elected at the first election under the same shall be one year shorter than the terms as fixed by law or by this Constitution. And again: "The first officers chosen, after the adoption of this Constitution, shall be elected at the time and in the manner provided by law." Now, it seems to our non-judicial mind, that Section 5, Article XI provides for the officers of Sheriffs, County Clerks, District Attorneys, etc., that Section 20, Article XX fixes the time when the terms of all officers provided for by the Constitution shall commence, that is the first Monday in January after their election, and that Section 10, Article XXII, fixes the time and manner of electing the first officers chosen under the new Constitution; also the duration of their terms of office.

The Attorney General makes a point that Section 20, Article XX, applies only to such officers as have been expressly created by the new Constitution, such as State, District and Judicial officers. He denies inferentially that the county officers enumerated in Section 5, Article XI are created by the Constitution. With all due deference we beg leave to differ with him. It seems to us that Boards of Supervisors, Sheriffs, County Clerks, District Attorneys, etc., are constitutional officers. They are expressly named in the Constitution, and it makes it the imperative duty of the Legislature to provide for their election and fix their terms of office.

If this is not creating these offices we confess we do not understand the force of plain English. If it is not providing for them, then we confess to an extraordinary degree of stupidity. It is equivalent to saying, "There shall be in each county a Sheriff, a County Clerk, a District Attorney," etc.

But it seems to us that the language of Section 10, Article XXII, of the new Constitution is clearly at variance with the opinion of the Attorney General. It says that the terms of all officers at the first election under the same shall be, respectively, one year shorter than the terms as fixed by law, or by the Constitution. Now, the terms of all State, District and Judicial officers are fixed by the Constitution itself. Hence when that instrument says that the terms of all officers at the first election shall be respectively one year shorter than the terms fixed by law, it refers to a different class of officers from those whose terms are fixed by the Constitution, and since all the terms of all the officers referred to by the Attorney General are fixed by the Constitution itself, it follows logically that other than State, District and Judicial officers are included, and these can be none other than county officers. The very last clause in the Constitution seems to be intended to remove all doubt on this subject. It says: "This Constitution shall take effect on and after the fourth day of July, 1879, at 12 o'clock meridian, so far as the same relates to all officers, the commencement of their terms of office, and the meeting of the Legislature." Now, "all officers" certainly must include county officers, and the Constitution provides that their terms of office shall commence on the first Monday in January.

ON the 3d instant S. Barclay, of the firm of Earl & Co., Carlin, was killed there by William Garrard, son of Major Garrard, the former Private Secretary of the late Governor Bradley of the State of Nevada. Domestic infelicity is the reported cause. Garrard warned Barclay, whom he alleges made improper advances to his wife, to never enter his house again. Barclay, it appears, insisted, and Garrard meeting him fired, with the above result. Deceased was a first-class business man, having been connected with some of the most responsible firms in that State. About six or seven years ago, in Eureka, Nevada, Barclay was shot at, his life being saved by the bullet taking effect in a large bill book, which he happened to have in the breast pocket of his coat. But we believe that difficulty originated out of some business proposition.

THE New York World says that Gov. Sprague has decided not to recognize Mrs. Sprague's trustee. He will hold Canonchet as far as the law allows for his personal benefit, but will surrender to Mrs. Sprague, without delay and without reserve, whatever she proves to be her own. The remainder he will hold for the benefit of the Sprague Manufacturing Company. Thus he antagonizes Chaffee, the trustee of the Sprague estate. He denounces Mrs. Sprague's trustee and her lawyers as conspirators, and threatens to bring action against them. His attitude will prove annoying to Mrs. Sprague, who will have to fight both her husband and Chaffee, who dislikes her greatly. The affair cannot be settled without further litigation, and all the interested parties are in a State of indignation. "Verily, the way of the transgressor is hard."

THE Princess of Wales, remarks an exchange. is growing lovelier every day of her life. She is described as being as radiant as the close of day, when the delicate pink of the sky incarnadines the snowy chalice of the lily, and the pensive robin lets its song ripple through the silent aisles of the woodland. All of which may be very true, but it don't keep Wales home at nights.

THE latest matches among the moneyed aristocracy of the country include an engagement between U. S. Grant, son of Gen. Grant, and Miss Jennie Flood, daughter of the bonanza king, J. C. LETTER FROM DR. ROWELL.

FRESNO, Cal., Oct. 3.

T. F. A. Connelly, Independence—DEAR SIR: I believe my election to the State Senate is conceded. As I made no canvass before election I feel it to be a duty to visit the different sections of my district before the meeting of the Legislature, but unless my wife should get better soon I may not be able to visit Inyo county. She has been very ill for a month or more, and is but slightly improved now. If possible I will visit you, but if not I wish to be informed of any interests in your county likely to be affected by legislation, and would be glad to be in communication with leading citizens, and those acquainted with the resources, prospects and characteristics of your county and people. My only object in going to Sacramento next Winter is to honestly represent my constituents in the legislative councils of the State. I shall be glad to communicate with yourself or other gentlemen that you may suggest. Respectfully,

CHESTER ROWELL.

DURING Sunday some very amusing incidents occurred in Bodie. While the excitement was at its hight in regard to the Jupiter-Union controversy, a great many people were scared half out of their wits, and did some very ridiculous things. One man hearing that there would be a big fight, made a rush for the stage office and purchased a ticket for Carson. Before the stage started he got full of gin and failed to connect. During the evening he got over his scare and sold his ticket for $10.

Saturday night a carpenter paid his month's board. He was a timid man, and fearing that everything was going to the devil, as he said, to a friend, "I don't care if the town would go up the spout, but I wish to God I had my last month's board bill."

A barber, while shaving a customer in the forenoon, on being asked his opinion of the situation, replied: "If I don't hear the whistle blow in the morning, you bet I'm going to jump the town. The first stage will find me on it."

A shop-keeper, on hearing there was liable to be a little disturbance, became very bold, and talking strong language against the miners, said he was willing to throw down his life to defeat their aims. At noon he took a deck passage on a mule for Aurora. He came up yesterday.

The Aurora stage took out a much worried man with a red nose, who was in such a hurry to get out that he neglected to settle a little board bill. He was overhauled and brought back.—Bodie Evening Union.

THE VAN GORDER ESTATE.—Last Saturday application was made by C. Derby and Richard Dye, judgment creditors against the estate of Charles Van Gorder, to have the executor, W. N. Leete, suspended and a special administrator appointed. The applicants alleged waste and mismanagement. They showed the receipts of the estate to have been, by Leete's own figures, over $50,000, and that, allowing $12,000 claimed for expenses of executor in settling, the estate should have a balance of $38,000. Yet when on Friday they presented claims aggregating $12,400 Leete said he could not pay them because he did not have the money. Judge Rising ordered Leete to appear to-day and show cause why he should not be removed from the management of the estate, but he did not respond. He was therefore removed and D. B. Lyman appointed in his stead, with bonds at $25,000. John Mackey and C. Derby were Leete's bondsmen for $25,000 each. Fears were expressed that there has been crookedness in the management of the estate. Leete was an old partner of Van Gorder, and was made executor of his estate by the terms of his will. He received $300 a month income from the estate and got $500 a month for managing it.—Virginia Chronicle, Oct. 4.

IN regard to Los Angeles, if a pro rata per ton per mile for short or long distances is forced upon the railroad, it will make freight so high from San Francisco to Los Angeles, that our merchants cannot receive freight by rail at all and our farmers cannot ship that way. This will drive the freight between those two cities to the steamers and practically abolish fast freight. So that in the end, instead of reducing rates, by the new Constitution, we materially advance them as far as this city is concerned. Our people have imagined that the railroad managers were dunces, who would be frightened by some sand-lot provisions in the new Constitution, and come down with their rates like Crockett's coon. There never was a greater mistake. The C. P. R. R. managers are shrewd, far-seeing men, and will run their road to make money. If any fanantical attempt is made to deprive them of a fair earning on the capital invested, they will resist it as any other set of business men. * * * *

The railway question is a vast and intricate problem, which requires the highest intelligence combined with cool and unbiased judgment for its solution. Our readers must neither expect any rash or radical measures at the hands of our Railroad Commissioners. —Los Angeles Commercial.

COULDN'T THINK OF HIS NAME.—A party of gentlemen were engaged in conversing on various topics, when the conversation drifted into a literary channel—repeating "the last words of great men," for instance—when one inquired, in a serious manner, "Who was it that said 'To be or not to be' before making his exit from this life to that behind the cloud? I can't think of his name now." The rest of the party looked at each other smiled, and branched off into prognosticating in regard to the weather.

AN Ottawa dispatch, published yesterday, conveys the intelligence that an order in Council has been issued by the New Dominion Government prohibiting further importation or introduction into the provinces of Quebec, Ontario, New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and Prince Edward's Island, of cattle from the United States. This is another step in the direction of carrying out what is called "the new Canadian commercial policy." Our northern provincial neighbors have perhaps a somewhat more lofty idea of their own importance, commercial and otherwise, than is entertained by any other part of the world. Ever since the abrogation of the old one-sided Reciprocity treaty, under which they reaped all the advantages, they have cherished the idea of punishing the United States by retaliatory tariffs and other commercial regulations. We doubt, however, in the long run whether they will make much by such childish tactics. We are inclined to think that when the time comes for calmly figuring up the results the fact will begin to dawn upon the provincial mind that the trade of the United States is far more important to the Dominion than that of the Dominion to us. At any rate there is reason for believing that we shall be able in one way or another to survive even the most terrible inflictions of the Canadian "retaliatory policy," especially since business has revived, the crops are abundant, and greenbacks are at par.

And now that Secretery Evarts has returned from his Canadian tour, it seems to be about time that he should give his serious attention to the fishery question. The attitude of the United States on this subject is unworthy of a great nation. Our plain rights have been invaded, our protests treated with gross disrespect, and we should no longer submit tamely to the humiliation of being snubbed and insulted by Dominion authorities. We have paid the Halifax award, notwithstanding its manifest injustice, and if our Government does not firmly insist upon the honest performance of the treaty stipulations affirmed by it, we shall prove ourselves worthy of the ignominious treatment to which we have been subjected by the Canadian Government.—S. F. Chronicle.

THE SPRAGUE CASE.—The Supreme Court has denied the motion for a new trial in the case of Sprague, convicted in Ventura county of the murder of T. H. More, and has ordered the Court below to fix a day for carrying the sentence into execution. This will astonish every one at all familiar with the case, and, unless there be excellent reasons for the action, which are surely not known to the public now, it will by no means tend to bring this tribunal into any more favor than it has had. Sprague was convicted of the murder on testimony of one Jesse Jones, a man who later on confessed himself guilty of the most flagrant perjury. He was the prominent witness for the prosecution and it was upon his testimony that Sprague was condemned to the gallows. Now comes the Supreme Court and says that the evidence of this perjurer must stand, and this is sufficient to send the criminal to an ignominious death. All his companions in crime—for we do not go so far as to believe that Sprague had nothing to do whatever with the murder of More, as accessory if not as principal—have escaped any punishment. Yet, he alone suffers for the sins of all, and suffers on the word of a self-confessed liar. Viewed in the light before us, we cannot look upon this action of the Supreme Court, which, thank heaven, will soon be a thing of the past, except as a burlesque on justice and an outrage on humanity. It savors of old English law when "wretches hung that jurymen might dine."—Sacramento Bee.

NEW YORK is to have a new mining stock board, organized something after the plan of the big board in San Francisco. Rumor has it that several old members of the latter are to take a leading part in the organization. Harry Logan, it is said, is to be the Chairman, and other leading spirits of the affair are Wm. M. Lent, Jas. R. Keene, Lester L. Robinson, John W. Gashwiler, John P. Jones, Jack Mahoney, J. S. Wattles and C. K. Kenney. The membership is to be limited to 100; seats are to be subscribed for at $5,000, thus starting out with a cash capital of $500,000. The Chairman will call no stocks except those regularly listed; the price of listing to be $1,000 for the first year and $500 for each subsequent year. The object will be to have a list as little affected by the San Francisco board as possible. There are, it is stated, about 100 companies with general offices in New York city, and in Boston, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Chicago, St. Lous and Denver fully as many more that would pay the fee and enroll their companies on the list of a board having strength financially to establish and maintain values.

THE following paragraph betrays a very humorous absence of exact knowledge on the part of European publications of political affairs in this State:

"The London Saturday Review announces that the new Governor of California, who was formerly a Baptist minister, probably profited by the outrageous attempt of one of his opponents to murder him on the evening of his election, but it is satisfactory to find that the more respectable of the two regular parties controls the State."

The Paris Figaro, commenting on the recent affairs in San Francisco, says:

"Political struggles had brought into antagonism Rev. Kalloch, candidate of the Workingmen's party at the next election, and Mr. De Young, editor of the Chronicle, who supported Mr. Bilks, candidate of the Republican party."

"Mr. Bilks, candidate of the Republican party," is good.—Los Angeles Express.

GEO. W. GREEN, JR., (not the editor of this paper) arrived in town last night from the new Dorado at Mill Creek. He says that Bodie is nowhere in comparison with the new district. He reports that the ground pays there from the grass roots down—down just as far as you want to go.—Bodie Union.

IN San José a few evenings since Justice Barrett was about to unite two young persons in marriage. The friends of both were present. When the Justice asked the young lady's consent to the ceremony she answered "No," and withdrew to an adjoining room. Her friends expostulated with her, and she at length consented to carry out her original intention. The young man had been silently waiting the result of the intervention of her friends. The girl again came forward and declared her readiness to marry. But the young man had changed his mind also, and remarked: "Guess I'll go home and go to bed." And he went.

MODOCK OFFICIAL LETTER.—The official letter of the week is as follows:

Oct. 6, 1879.

J. W. Pew, Esq., Secretary Modock Con. M. Co.:—DEAR SIR: Results of operations on the 1000-foot level, for the week ending to-day, are as follows:

Drift south, 300 foot, run 20 feet; drift north from No. 2 crosscut, 300 foot, 13 feet; crosscut from drift north, 800 foot, 16 feet; drift south, 1000 foot, 13 feet; north crosscut, 1000 foot, 26 feet; under drain, 78 feet. Total length of drift south, 300 foot, 298 feet; north drift from No. 2 crosscut, 300 foot, 13 feet; crosscut from drift north, 800 foot, 37 feet; drift south, 1000 foot, 31 feet; north crosscut, 1000 foot, 116 feet, and under drain, 278 feet.

In south drift, 300 foot, we are getting softer ground than for some time back; have but a short distance to run to reach ground started for. North drift, from No. 2 crosscut, 300 foot, is going ahead well, keeping the ore on west side of drift. On account of air at this point it may be necessary to run a connection drift from crossut No. 1 to No. 2, and in that event shall probably run through ore. This place continues to present some favorable showing as before mentioned.

Crosscuts at 800 and 1000 foot are looking finely and are in ore. Ground in under drain has been hard this week, making rate of progress lighter than usual.

Yours, respectfully,
A. C. TIBBETTS, Supt.

PANAMINT.—T. F. A. Connelly and Al. Robinson returned from Panamint a few days ago, and from the former we have some items of interest. The place, once quite a city, soon after almost utterly abandoned, now begins again to present the appearance of a really prosperous mining town. There are in all some sixty men at work, the most of them on individual properties taking out ores, which are reduced as custom work at the big mill. In this way, the comparatively few there give the place a more substantial air than did the many in former times when about every man seemed to be waiting for the "Company" to do something for him. There are now somewheres from 300 to 500 tons of very good ores at the mill awaiting reduction, which work will be begun about the 20th of this month. The late purchasers of the mill, the Leota Company, give assurance of making their venture a marked and permanent success, notwithstanding the fact it was by no means a wealthy institution. Its management is without doubt in excellent hands. Their purchase, it appears, did not include any of the mines patented by the Surprise Valley Co., therefore they obtain no ores from any of those well known mines except the Stewart's Wonder, which they work subject to limit, and from which they are now getting some seven or eight tons a day. Messrs. Connelly and Robinson contracted with the Leota Company to deliver at the mill something near 2,000 cords of wood, ready cut on the adjacent mountains, and this work they begin upon at once. There being no mail route established to Panamint, all its mail matter is sent in once a week by courtesy of My Harmon, of Darwin.

ANOTHER CHURCH AT BISHOP.—Not content with the enviable distinction of possessing the only church building in the two counties of Inyo and Mono, the good people of Gospel Swamp are astir in the laudable purpose of building another. A correspondent writes as follows concerning the matter, under date of Bishop Creek, October 9: "A Committee of ladies has been formed who are now soliciting funds for the purpose of erecting a Methodist Church at this place. It is to cost $3,000. The exterior is to be rustic, with a porch over the door, and a spire from the roof, bell, etc. The inside will represent a hard finish. Mr. Joseph Rowan has donated an acre of ground as a site for the building on the southeast corner of his ranch, which is in the town of Bishop Creek. The city of Mammoth, in Mono county, has subscribed about $500, over half the amount having been paid in. By the time the Committee get around to see the ranchers of this locality they expect to make up the most of the sum required. They intend to call, also, upon the good people of Big Pine and Independence, upon whom they depend for help. If the citizens of Mammoth can give $500 to be taxed in this county I don't see why we cannot raise the balance of the sum necessary to complete the church. We have a minister coming to preach in this county; let us give him a helping hand and join in and build this church."

TAXES FOR 1879-80.—On Monday last, at the annual meeting held for the purpose, the Board of Supervisors levied the regular tax of $3 on each $100 of taxable property in the county, and apportioned the same to the respective funds as follows:

Expense Fund	$1.10
Interest and Building Fund	33⅓
State Fund	62½
Road Fund	.10
School Fund	.05
Sinking Fund	.12
General Fund	.22
Special Bridge Fund	.25
Hospital Fund	.20
Total	$3.00

SUDDEN DEATH.—Some time during the night of Friday last there occurred at the lodging house of Mrs. Barry, Lone Pine, the death of a woman known as Mrs. Jamison, who has for some years past been a resident of Cerro Gordo, Darwin and Lone Pine. When found, she was lying half reclining upon the bed, as if she had suddenly fallen and died while attempting to get into it. Dissipation and long indulgence in opium is ascribed as the cause.

PERSONAL—A REMINISCENCE.—Capt. Edward Wartan who commanded the splendid steamship City of Peking at and prior to the time of her destruction by fire off Yokohama five years ago, is now at the Blaney House, intending, after a brief inspection of some of the mining properties in this locality to visit Lake District, he having been engaged in mining operations ever since he quit the seas. The circumstances attending the loss of his magnificent ship will bear a brief recapitulation: While at sea the China mail steamers, for economy's sake, were required to burn a peculiar and highly inflammable class of coal procured in Japan, of which about a hundred tons had to be shoveled in every day to keep up an ordinary head of steam, and of course, a vast bulk of it had to be carried in the immense bunkers of a ship like the Peking. It gives off, under certain conditions, an explosive gas, so inflammable that a lighted match will set a piece of it aflame. On account of the dense volumes of black smoke which roll from the stacks and obscure the vision ahead when the wind is astern, a supply of clear burning anthracite has to be carried for use when making port. One rainy December night in 1874 the Peking with the wind astern, was moving along under sail and steam some 20 miles from shore, expecting to make the port of Yokohama the next morning. She was burning anthracite, the bunker of the other kind, of which about 350 tons remained, being tightly closed. Shortly after, the Captain, who was in his shirt sleeves at his post on the bridge, heard an indefinable kind of a noise down below, and an instant later, the cry of "fire." Stopping the engines and ordering firemen to their posts, the Captain rushed to his room for his pea-jacket, which was the only thing he ever got from it, and a moment later was on deck again. By this time the flames were above deck; twenty-six streams of water were playing upon them, but with no more apparent effect than if down the crater of a veritable volcano. In three-quarters of an hour the flames were sweeping the decks from stem to stern, the white passengers and crew by this time being afloat in the small boats, a number of which were also filled by Chinese passengers. There were about 700 of these, of which about one-half perished; all the white passengers escaped. The fire originated from the spontaneous combustion or explosion of the Japan coal; the explosion was so sudden and violent that one fireman and two or three coal-passers never got out of the fire-room, while the engineer on duty had barely time and power amidst the suffocating heat and smoke to pull the stopping bar, at which he was standing ready, and escape with his life. An official inquiry soon after entirely exonerated Capt. Wartan of all blame, and certainly could have done no less; but he has never asked for another ship, and is now trying his fortunes in this wilderness, where, we are sure from his prepossessing manners, he must meet the good wishes of all with whom he comes in contact.

A SCURSION.—On his trip to tidewater, anent his three years' sojourn within the hospitable walls of San Quentin, Henry Tessier was accompanied by as tough a lot of citizens as Independence could well send forth at one time. Should they approach the prison gates together, candor compels us to state that, judged by appearances, Tessier would be the last man taken in charge by the authorities. Under Sheriff Welch, Judge A. R. Conklin, County Treasurer Isaacs, Omie I Mairs and Geo. W. Brady constitute the excursionists. If Chief Kirkpatrick don't increase the police force when they reach the city, we mistake his efficiency as guardian of public property.

HOW IS IT?—In view of the fact that Justice of the Peace elect Paul Houard, of Lone Pine, has already been performing some of the duties of the office, as well as having acted as Coroner, it will behoove him—or perhaps his spiritual advisor, Supervisor Meysan—to arise and explain. Mr. Houard was duly elected, and has his official bonds filed and approved. But his term of office does not begin until January, and in the interim there has been no meeting of the Board of Supervisors at which he could have been appointed. Until further enlightened upon the subject the public will regard the matter as somewhat curious, to say the least.

BULLION.—The Union Con. Company at Cerro Gordo has resumed shipment of unrefined or crude bullion, of which there are some 4,000 bars on hand. The new refining works have been represented to be such a complete success that is difficult to understand why the change, unless because of the late advance in the price of lead or an increased yield of soft ore in the mine.

HEAVY YIELD.—On the ranches of John E. Jones, Tom Williams and others of Round Valley, the season's yield of the finest quality of wheat was at the rate of eighty tons per ninety acres. The new Jones Flouring Mill, under the management of Mr. Edson, is said to be producing flour unexceled by the very best imported article.

JUSTICE'S OFFICE.—S. G. Sneden, Esq., Justice of the Peace elect for Bishop Creek, is building and fitting up a commodious office wherein to carry on the rapidly increasing business of the position. Mr. Sneden is Notary Public also, under a late commission from Gov. Irwin.

OVERHAULING.—The Bishop Creek Flouring Mills, Messrs. Dugan & Blair proprietors, are being thoroughly overhauled and greatly improved for the season's work.

GOOD.—Supt. Holt informs us that he has received orders from the Rex Montis Company to crowd work upon the Independence Tunnel.

NEW STOCK.—See L. Wood's announcement of new Fall and Winter goods now en route.

NOTICE.—All parties interested will do well to consult Dr. Bicknell's notice, given elsewhere.

INDIANS, GOOD AND OTHERWISE.—We have in this valley a few vagabond, lazy and dreadfully mean Indians—some who toil not, neither do they spin, and would cut your throat with pleasure but for the risks involved; still more, not given to throat cutting, will work but spend all their hard earnings in gambling, drinking and in that way making as big fools of themselves as white men of similar instincts; others again and perhaps the majority are commendably industrious, temperate and provident; and quite a number who, in all respects save race drawbacks in lack of education and incentives of actual citizenship, can fairly take rank with about the best of white men, taking the best of such as their own models in all their domestic, social and business relations. Among these latter are two brothers, Charley and Frank, the former of whom holds a present lease of Fred Schabbell's farm near the Post, the other a regular employé for years past of H. Fehrman of the same neighborhood, both of whom have proved worthy of every trust, even as arbiters in water distribution questions and similar issues among and between their white neighbors. The first named has, this year, produced an unusually good crop of grain and general produce, built himself a good house and furnished it with all furniture and conveniences ordinarily found in the houses of white people, and takes a pride in providing for and dressing his family to correspond, while neither ever drinks or gambles. Elsewhere in the valley are quite a number of red men who have pre-empted lands and farm well and quite extensively, but none equal Charley and Frank in staid personal habits and progressive spirit, the rest often wasting their substance in riotous living.

DIED.—Upon information received on Saturday afternoon last, Coroner John A. Lank summoned a jury of six and late in the evening repaired to the old "Sheep Ranch," on the road about eight miles north from Independence, where an inquest was held upon the remains of John T. Denton. But two or three witnesses were examined, the principle one—Mr. Johnson, an employé of the Black Rock Saw Mill—testified that upon that day he had entered the house and found the deceased in the position in which he was still lying, and took immediate steps to have the Coroner notified. The deceased was lying upon a blanket on the floor, partially undressed. Near him was a basin half filled with blood—the whole scene and circumstances going to show that upon his return home from this place on the Wednesday previous he had suffered a recurrence of bleeding at the lungs, of which he had had a severe attack while in town some days previous. Decomposition had already set in, and after rendering a general verdict in accordance with the above facts, the Coroner and jury coffined the remains, brought them to Camp Independence Cemetery and gave them interment. Denton lived alone at the ranch. He was a native of England, aged 51 years. He came to this valley in 1867, as a recruit to Capt. Devens' Company "B," 9th Regt. U. S. Inft., and served until discharged in '69 or '70. He was the owner of the ranch referred to, with buildings and a small band of stock, which by the terms of his will revert to the benefit of his daughters, Sarah E. Denton and Harriet E. Garrett, residing at Salt Creek, Tuab Co., Utah. The will names C. A. Walters as executor.

THE GOOD INJUN LEDGE.—We are not surprised to learn from Mr. Connelly, who went out to see about it, that that Breyfogle-Gunsight-Good Injun-millions-in-sight ledge twenty-five miles beyond Panamint turns out to be a myth, a humbug, one grand hoax. It was the dream of two Mexican hombres, and only a dream. These hombres got a lot of rich specimens, probably from the old Coso gold seams, and went forth to take somebody in and do for them; but why, is not clear. Accordingly, they went to Kern county and lit on Señor Chicopa, a man of some means, as a suitable subject, and in due time returned to the borders of Death Valley. They led the Señor to Anvil Cañon (which has a legend), 25 miles northeast of Panamint; they didn't somehow seem to recollect precisely where the big ledge was, and not being able to point out anything there that would do, they remembered it was in another sort of a place, perhaps ten miles away, and went but didn't find it somehow; they then dragged the Señor to another equally distant place, and didn't find it there, too. By this time the Señor had had enough of that sort of thing, and soon after abandoned the hombres and struck for home, preferring to risk starvation in Kern to the chances of becoming a sudden millionaire in southeastern Inyo. And that in truth comprises the whole foundation of the latest excitement. We can only guess what became of the two hombres, but presume that they are over there yet acting guides to excited new comers.

A CHANGE.—We were favored with a call yesterday from Mr. W. S. Wartelle, who succeeds Mr. Montague as Cartago agent of the Cerro Gordo Freighting Company. Mr. Wartelle manifests a sincere sympathy for newspaper men, having been in the business himself as editor and publisher of the Los Angeles Star. He expresses a high opinion of the future prosperity of Inyo, comparing its prospects most favorably with many localities he has lately visited in Arizona and Mexico. He was accompanied by Mr. Lott, general teaming boss of the Company, who appears well satisfied with the increasing business of the line.

PANAMINT SPECIMENS.—We are indebted to Mr. Clark, engineer at the Panamint mill, for several specimens of what appears to be quite rich smelting ores, which come from a reputed extensive ledge of the same situated a short distance north of the Stewart's Wonder. The prospect is considered very promising, and the owners deem it well worth the erection of a furnace, which object they are now endeavoring to accomplish.

CATFISH.—Next week Mr. John McMurry, of Big Pine, pursuant to a plan he has long had in contemplation, proposes to start for Reno, Nevada, there to obtain a lot of young catfish with which to stock Owens river and suitable sloughs and smaller streams of this valley. It is unnecessary to waste words in commendation of this important enterprise, for everybody knows that it must prove a material success and in due time of incalculable pleasure and pecuniary benefit to the community at large. We have it on all sufficient authority that all those streams on the west side of the mountains which were planted with these fish but three years ago are now literally alive with them, and quite large ones at that. Similar results are certain to follow the stocking of this river, which seems to have been constituted expressly for fish of the catfish order. It is a source of great regret that the proposition to stock it two years ago had not then been carried out, as it would have been had one principal locality joined in toward the cost with like liberality as shown in others. But now comes a better chance to now do at much less cost to the community what should have been done long ago. This is due in the main to Mr. McMurry's personal exertions and liberal public spirit, seconded by citizens of like energy in various parts of the valley. It is but right and proper that every resident should do something to help in this thing in which all have a precisely equal interest. The immediate payment of a small subscription from such only as can help without a groan is what is needed. Mr. McMurry will see to the rest, taking on himself an undue share of the expense if necessary, and all the risk in so far that if he fails to deliver a satisfactory plant of the young fish every dollar of the subscriptions will be returned to the respective contributors through the parties making the collections. As the time is short, we shall name one or more in several localities whom we think are willing to act, requesting each to secure all he can and forward all by the 20th of this month to John McMurry at Big Pine: John McGee, John Stoutenborough and Thos. E. Jones for Bishop and Round Valley; D. B. Curtis, Fish Springs; V. G. Thompson, Independence; John Kispert, Georges Creek, and A. C. Harvey, Lone Pine. This is a matter we should have attended to last week, but very inexcusably did not, therefore we have to beg these gentlemen to hurry things up a little by reason of the same. It is well to say that this place has already been pretty well canvassed and has responded quite liberally, and no doubt the same is true of others.

FREIGHT.—The immense quantities of goods being unloaded of late at the store and warehouse of Harris & Rhine is a forcible reminder of old times, prior to the days of the Freighting Company, when stock for an entire season was received by trains arriving at the same time.

PERSONAL.—Isaac Harris has returned from Panamint, E. A. Reddy from Bodie, and Geo. M. Gill, Esq., and John Langer have gone to Mammoth, the former to locate, the latter to see about it.

INSTALLED.—David Olds was duly installed Supervisor, vice J. L. Garretson, term expired, and entered upon his duties at the session on Monday last.

RETURNED.—The family of our old friend "Pete," or J. B. Swearingen having returned from Los Angeles, he has again taken the management of the Bishop Creek Hotel, and invites the patronage of everybody. See the advertisement elsewhere.

Big Blue Lead in Nevada.

The Centennial, a new mine, is undoubtedly right on the track or channel of that famous old Blue lead. The exhausting of shallow placers in California led to deep mining, worked by hydraulic process, long tunnels, and deep shafts. Thus it was that by degrees the great ancient river channel, better known as the "Big Blue Lead," was developed and traced from north to south, throughout the gold region. This famous lead contains some of the richest and most permanent of the gravel gold mines of California at the present time; mines that will last for many long years to come.

The Centennial is situated in Washington township, Nevada county, Cal., 14 miles above Nevada City, in a range of hills at the head of Jefferson ravine, between the South Yuba river and Deer creek. It comprises a tract of heavily timbered land 800 acres in extent. The mine has been considerably prospected under the superintendency of Major Downie by about 3,000 feet of tunnel, developing some very good gravel streaks carrying heavy wash gold, as well as by shafts, and the dip of the gravel having been obtained, a prospecting tunnel to the eastward is now being run, in order to ascertain the best and most advantageous point to start a main working tunnel directly into the gravel deposit, low enough to secure the best possible drainage. A strong, permanent stream of pure, cold water, of 12 or 15 miners' inches, flows from the old tunnel, and is, without doubt, from the great channel or river itself. This stream will prove of great value and importance in the gravel washing. The great "Blue Lead," which has been traced for hundreds of miles, has already given to the world $300,000,000, and now yields $10,000,000 annually; consequently the chances for the Centennial turning out rich by and by are pretty well assured.—Gold Hill News.

"How men do change," said Mrs. Snooks. "When George was courting me, we went to a party one evening. During a waltz I trod on his toe. I begged his pardon for the accident, when he whispered in accents soft and low, 'Don't mention it, my dear; that dainty foot wouldn't hurt a daisy.' A short time ago a similar accident occurred, when he roared out: 'Can't you get along without climbing all over me with your big hoofs!'"

WE have startling news from San Francisco. It is to the effect that Gen. Grant has "schwore off" from wine, which he hasn't tasted for several months. Ulysses never did care much for wine. Old Rye was always good enough for him.—Baltimore Gazette.

AN eastern exchange says that Grant's boom is making so much noise that John Sherman has to hold his to his ear to see if it is going.

THE total dividends from Bodie District to date aggregate $2,500,000.

THE HOLD-OVERS. — The hold-over Senators have agreed one with the other to take their seats and fight it out on that line if it takes all Winter. It seems to us that they have the best of the fight. In the first place they were elected, and it is doubtful if any new Constitution can legislate a man out of office before the expiration of his term. Constitutionally, each House of the Legislature is the judge of the qualifications of its own members. If the Secretary of the last Senate, in convening that body, calls the roll of the hold-overs and they take their seats, they will hold the balance of power, and if they get a few of the newly-elected Senators over to their side to vote with them on all questions of the qualifications of Senators, there will be no power to oust them.—Stock Report.

DAN GAY, a detective well known to all on the coast, and recently connected with the Roddan affair at Wheatland, committed suicide in his rooms, on Montgomery avenue, by shooting himself through the head. He left a letter stating that he killed himself from remorse. He promised his wife three years ago to give up drinking, but had broken his pledge.

THE English Government has broken up the old Arctic ship Resolute, once abandoned in the ice, recovered by American whalers, and restored to England by our Government. A commemorative piece of furniture, probably a secretaire, is to be made from a portion of the timber for the President of the United States.

A YEAR ago 11 mining companies paid dividends. Those on the list then, but not now, were the Consolidated Amador, Leeds, New York Hill and Silver King. The Bodie then paid $3 per share, and the Eureka Consolidated $3 per share, but the Bodie had only 50,000 shares a year ago, against 100,000 shares now.

A WOMAN cured her husband of staying out late at night, by going to the door when he came home and whispering through the keyhole: "Is that you, Willie?" Her husband's name is John, and he stays at home every night now, and sleeps with one eye open and a pistol under his pillow.

SICK headache can be relieved by bathing the feet in warm water in which a spoonful of powdered mustard has been stirred. Bathe as long as possible, or until the water gets cold; it draws the blood from the head.

THE Sonoma Democrat says that the New Constitution tickets of that county were printed with Congress left blank, and as a result, 543 blanks were voted. Democrats claim that by that action Berry's majority in Sonoma was reduced.

THE town of Connersville, Indiana, has the call. Geo. Barton and wife of that place are celebrating the birth of their twenty-third child, in twenty years of married life. The mother is but thirty-nine years of age.

AN editor was out walking with his wife one evening, when she suddenly exclaimed: "Oh! Augustus, just notice the moon!" "Can't think of it, my dear, for less than 20 cents a line."

"WE'RE in a pickle, now," said a man in a crowd. "A regular jam," said another. "Heaven preserve us!" ejaculated an old lady.

IT has been found that by winding a strong cord about the limb or trunk of an apple tree, its productiveness is greatly increased.

JAY GOULD has given another $5,000 to the Howard Association at Memphis.

ASSESSMENT NOTICE.

KEARSARGE MILL AND MINING COMPANY. Location of Principal Place of Business, San Francisco, California. Location of Works, Kearsarge Mining District, Inyo County, California. Notice is hereby given that at a meeting of the Board of Trustees, held on the First day of September, 1879, an assessment (No. 3) of Twenty-five Cents per share was levied on the capital stock of the corporation, payable immediately in United States gold coin, to John Calvert, Secretary, Room 5, 131 Montgomery street, San Francisco, California.

Any stock upon which this assessment shall remain unpaid on the Sixth day of October, 1879, will be delinquent and advertised for sale at public auction, and unless payment is made before will be sold on WEDNESDAY, THE TWENTY-NINTH DAY OF OCTOBER, 1879, to pay the delinquent assessment, together with costs of advertising and expenses of sale. By order of the Board of Trustees.

SPECTACLES LOST.

ON SUNDAY, AUGUST 31 LAST, WHILE hurriedly preparing to take the stage for Bishop Creek, I left my glasses lying on the bed in my room at Grover's Hotel at Big Pine. They are gold mounted, light frame, small, oblong eye glasses, and enclosed in a red Morocco case. As their loss is nearly irreparable to me, and being unable to obtain any trace of them otherwise, I take this method of calling attention to their loss as it is possible they may have fallen in the hands of some Piute, who, through the good offices of persons seeing this, may be induced to give them up. I would feel most grateful to the proprietor or any one finding them if they will let me know, or send them to me at this place.

TUOLUMNE AHEAD.

$89,000 in One Week $265,000 Inside of Seven Months.

This town and vicinity was much excited by the report that, on Saturday morning last, Wells, Fargo & Co. shipped several hundred pounds of gold bars, the product of a mining claim in town. All kinds of rumors were afloat as to weight and value, some stories going as high as 600 pounds and $90,000 in value. The truth, however, in this instance, is more startling than rumor. The amount shipped, as the express receipt shows, as exhibited to a friend of ours by one of the lucky parties, is $188,000, and the weight 820 pounds. Some $50,000 was shipped at different times, not long since, and about $26,000 previous, making a grand total taken out, that is known, of some $265,000, or over a quarter of a million dollars, inside of seven months. This claim is located on Gold Hill, in Sonora, at the head of Washington street, a few yards west of the Episcopal Church, the tunnel being on a level with the street. Charles Clarke, Joseph Bray, and James G. Divoll are the partners, the two former working in the claim, with no other assistance. This hill has been celebrated for the amount taken out in early days, and has been repeatedly prospected for years since by parties who hoped to find another bonanza. The gulches running from it have also been fabulously rich—especially the run south, crossing the old Con it lot, since mined out with big results, and running down through the center of Washington street. Several companies have, at different times, proposed to tunnel down the length of this street, but it was never done, and no arrangemen coul l be made with the city. In 1866 Ike Porter, our County Clerk, and two others, sunk a shaft 40 feet deep, and ran a tunnel through Rogers' house, in hopes of striking a vein. They struck an old tunnel and a big excavation, which looked so shaky that they became disgusted and abandoned the chase. Mr. Dan. Longaway and others also worked here for the same object, but failed to find the right spot. It remained for the latter parties, named above, to be more fortunate. These gentlemen have had much experience in quartz mining, and believing they could find a bonanza, started in some months since, and now have a big reward for their faith and well-directed labor. They are very reticent about details, and it is difficult to get at all the facts the public would like to know. The quartz yielding the last shipment of $189,000 was taken out by two of the parties inside of a week, about two months ago, and they have since been engaged in pounding it out in mortars and running it into bars—the tunnel in the meantime being fastened by an iron gate and heavy locks; no admission given to any one. The bullion was very fine, and will coin nearly $20 per ounce at the mint. Sheriff Yancey and Assessor Monahan went down with the stage as guard, and no one outside knew anything about the matter until a day or two after. It was necesary at Copperopolis to brace up the stage, as the immense weight, stored in the iron safe under the center seat, caused the stage to sag in the middle.

This strike, we believe, is the biggest ever made on the Pacific coast up to date, and if made outside the old mining counties would set California wild. It puts the Bodie bonanza strikes in the shade, but capital will still seek Bodie investments all the same. The Tuolumne mines will not be neglected, however, in the future, although at present the feeble glitter of far-off assessment-paying mines seems to place her golden hills under a shadow of delay.—Tuolumne Independent.

A CHAP in Carson has just drawn a $5,000 prize in the Havana lottery.

The Hog in Mining.

In developing the interests of the Pacific slope, and in civilizing and Christianizing the people of the coast, the hog has cut a swath of some breadth.

Bacon has a modest, unassuming look; it never makes itself too forward or too fresh; but there is a good deal of reserved power in it. Some of it is very powerful. Were it not for bacon the prospectors and miners, at times, would have to go without meat, for it is not every man that can run down a jack-rabbit.

Many a man has stood and admired the elegant architecture and beautiful finish of the fine residences on Nob Hill, in San Francisco, and wondered where he was going to get his next meal. The hog assisted in erecting those palaces.

Bacon is very convenient to carry. It is not like the floweret, easily damaged. It does not, like fresh meat, readily spoil, and if it does no one observes any change.

A piece of bacon will contribute to the support of a prospector, then afford him a pillow to dream on—of hog heaven—and absorb mule sweat all the next day without getting any saltier.

Canvased bacon is the best for packing—on mules. Before the canvas is put on, to make the bacon nice for the purchaser, it is wrapped in numerous folds of brown paper. This paper is sold for bacon.

One, when he begins on his first meal, cooked on a camp-fire, takes a a piece of bread in his left hand, lays a slice of bacon on it with his right, licks the forefinger and thumb of his right hand to get the grease off, puts a little piece of bread on the slice to protect the thumb of his left hand from the grease, puts the end of his nose down against the big piece of bread to bite the bacon, and finds after a hard pull that the bacon in his mouth does not let loose the bacon out of his mouth. He looks around as he pauses for breath, sees that the other members of the party have eaten three or four slices of bacon apiece. It hurries him. He throws his head back and pulls again. The bacon pulls out from between the pieces of bread, and as he gets a good hold on the free end of the slice with his right hand, the grease begins to drip warmly down inside his shirt sleeve. But the toughness of the bacon is solved.

Oftentimes the restless ledge hunter, after a day of climbing and struggling with tangled underbrush, builds his camp-fire in a nook of creation, a place of wild beauty, disturbed for the first time. His soul is soothed by the landscape, rich and fresh, by the ripple of the rill, lovely and clear, by the sweet notes of frying bacon mingled with the pine-top's song of dreamland.

Bacon is amphibious. One may eat bacon, then drink, and drink, and think he has got it drowned. It revives.—Salt Lake Tribune.

THERE was a compositor not only discharged but also fired down four flights of stairs by the infuriated foreman of the paper. It seems that the typo was requested to "liven up" a certain speech delivered, with the usual marks in brackets. The "jour.," who was carrying a little more beer than was necessary, just then got hold of the wrong proceedings, causing the eloquent resolution of Mr. Van Arman, referri g to the death of a member, to read something like this: "Whereas, It has pleased Divine Providence to remove from our midst our beloved comrade Azariah McMuck [loud applause], who has been cut off in the flower of his usefulness [laughter] and promise, be it resolved, that we tender to his family [cheers] and friends our sincere sympathy in their hour of affliction [cries of 'Put him out!' 'Order!'], and to assure them that while we humbly bow to the will of Heaven, lament our departed brother [roars of laughter], a fellow-citizen of enlightened mind, statesmanlike views [cries of 'Give us a rest!' 'Let's adjourn!'] and broad and generous sympathy for his kind. [Terrific cheers]. He is not lost but gone before. [derisive cries and continued laughter.]" In fact, the McMuck widow is hunting for that unfortunate printer yet, and cherishes the conviction that he is still hiding in the hills.—San Jose Herald.

DARING ROBBERY.—Wells, Fargo & Co.'s stage was robbed about a quarter of a mile from the town of Candelaria, on the 3d instant, of gold bullion to the amount of several thousand dollars. The stage left Candelaria at 3:30 A. M., and on the outskirts of town two men stepped out of the sagebrush and told the driver to throw out Wells, Fargo & Co.'s box. He did so and they ordered him to drive on. The bullion came from the Silver Peak Company, of Esmeralda county. The Sheriff and posse are scouting the country for the robbers and they will probably be caught.—Lake Mining Review.

THERE are coal mines in Germany in which the phenomena of subterranean waters having a regular ebb and flow has been observed. The scientific academies of Vienna and Berlin are studying it, and look for valuable additions to our knowledge of the earth's interior.

THE boss prevaricator was around last week. He told a story about shooting at a deer and hitting him in the head and hoof with the same bullet. We got out our gun, and were about seeing if we could do the same thing with him when he explained that the deer was scratching its head.

ANOTHER BIG STRIKE.

Gold Rock That Will Assay $120,000 per Ton.

Last night about 8 o'clock, Mr. W. J. Parks, night foreman of the Mammoth mine, was seen with a sack on his shoulder rushing heels over head through the snow, from the mouth of the bonanza tunnel. As he came down the steep grade and fairly tumbled over the bowlders, the fire struck from his iron-clad boot heels at every jump. In a minute or two he stood panting in the time-keeper's room, and throwing his sack on the floor yelled to Col. Purington, the time-keeper, "Look at that!" Col. Purington looked at "that." "That" proved to be about twenty pounds of something which Col. P. was for a moment in doubt about—whether it was quartz with gold mixed with it, or whether it was gold with quartz mixed with it. Finally Foreman McClellan was called in and he decided that it was about half and half. At once there was a commotion in the office. Mr. Parks having reported where he had found his sackful of ore and recovered his breath, lit a cigarette and started up the hill again to see if there was any more where that came from. Mr. McClellan grabbed some of the rock and started down the hill to the Mammoth Company's office to report to his chief, Capt. Hardy.

This morning when the news of the new strike leaked out there was a good deal of excitement in town, and at once a rush was made for the office at the tunnel to look at the specimens that had been brought down during the night. All hands agreed—even the oldest miners—that nothing like it in the nature of gold quartz had ever been dug out of the earth. The specimens were not small pieces as big as walnuts, such as are usually shown, but huge chunks, some of them weighing as high as ten, fifteen and twenty pounds, and one great bowlder going even as high as fifty pounds. All were literally alive with gold. On every side gleamed huge "splatches," some as big as peach leaves, while all over and through the porous-looking rock stood a solid incrustation of frosty-looking gold, closely bound up with yellowish, iron-stained quartz. The size of the lumps and their formation indicated very plainly the approximate size of the vein from which they came, and showed that it was no narrow knife-blade streak.

After everybody, including the Review staff, had feasted his eyes to his fill, a representative of this paper sought Supt. Hardy for official information regarding the strike. From that gentleman it was learned that the rich ore was found in a new crosscut which was started the other day from the winze which has been sunk from what is known as the Bonanza tunnel. It will be remembered that the rich gold strike of last Spring was made in a crosscut started in the winze 60 feet from its mouth. The new crosscut in which this strike was made is 45 feet from its mouth, or 25 feet above the old one. The rich rock was broken into but a few feet from the mouth of the crosscut, and in quality it is far superior to the find of last Spring. And what is better, as a miner informs us, "there are lots of it there." The locality of the new deposit and its comparative nearness to the old one proves conclusively that the rich streak is an unbroken one for at least 50 feet in depth. How much further it goes down will have to be proved by crosscuts below the one run last Spring. As we all know, the winze is down 200 feet. So there are yet 140 feet of "virgin" ground to be tested by means of crosscuts. Whether this will be done immediately we are unable to say.

The news of the strike has had a most exhilerating effect on everybody in the district. The town abounds in good humor to-day, and everybody has taken a fresh grip on his reservoir of hope, and predictions of Mammoth's future greatness are as plentiful as flies around a sugar barrel.—Lake Mining Review.

GRANT FOR PRESIDENT.—The St. Louis Globe-Democrat will not give up its convictions. It has for more than a year en leavored to get up what is called in the East a "boom" for Grant, and refuses to believe that he is not the next Republican Presidential candidate. Here is what it has to say on that head:

"Senator Logan is Chairman of the committee appointed to receive Gen. Grant at Chicago. We look to Logan to do his duty in this matter, and to tell Grant very plainly that he is to be the next Republican candidate for President. There has been too much non-partisan gammon talked to Grant and about Grant lately. Every sane man knows that Grant, if he lives, will be the Republican candidate for President, and there is no sense in affecting ignorance on the subject. On with the boom."

PERSONAL.—Mr. J. B. Hume, one of the keenest detectives on the coast, came in from the south yesterday. In referring to the Wheatland outrage, he says that Wm. Roddan and his wife are as innocent of the crime as he is himself. He stated that if there was a single intelligent judicial mind in California that could find the slightest indication of guilt against the Roddans he would be willing to abandon his profession. This statement is entitled to much credit, for Mr. Hume is recognized as one of the most penetrating as well as honorable criminal takers on the coast.—Carson Appeal, Oct. 11.

WHEN the hot water from the Comstock mines began to flow from the Sutro tunnel, it was thought that trees and flowers, if irrigated with it, would die, the water being so hot, even a mile below the tunnel's mouth as to be uncomfortable to bathe in. But the result has proven the belief a fallacy. The hot water, instead of injuring the plants, appears to have given them more nourishment than cold water has in past years.

THE Joseph II mining adit at Schemnitz, Hungary, is the longest tunnel in the world—16,538 metres, or about ten and a half miles. It was begun in 1782 and finished a year ago. St Gothard and Mont Cenis will be respectively 14,920 and 12,233 metres.

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 18.....1879

From the Bodie Standard of the 15th instant we learn the result of the elections which took place in Ohio and Iowa on Tuesday last. The former State elects Charles Foster, Republican candidate for Governor, by from 25,000 to 30,000 over Gen. Thomas Ewing, the soft-money, Democratic nominee; and Gov. Gear has a handsome majority over all his competitors combined for Chief Executive of the latter Commonwealth. In Iowa there were four full tickets in the field—Republican, Democratic, Greenback and Prohibition; also in the Fifth Iowa Congressional District there was an election to fill a vacancy caused by the death of a Democratic member, which resulted in the choice of a Republican. The Ohio Legislature chosen Tuesday will have a Republican majority. This Legislature will choose a successor to Senator Thurman. The result in Iowa is about what was to be expected, but in Ohio there existed a doubt whether Foster would be able to overcome the other two factions. This Republican victory in the Buckeye State, we take it, strengthens Secretary Sherman's chances in a Presidential point of view, for it is well known he lent all his energies to bring about the success achieved in that State on the 14th instant.

In London, a few days since, the famous Jersey beauty, Mrs. Langtry, made a legal descent upon the publisher of Town Talk, a "society" paper, and had him up before the Police Court on a charge of libel. The alleged libel consisted in the statement (which has been telegraphed all over the world) that the lady's husband had begun a suit for divorce, the Prince of Wales being included in the list of co-respondents. Mr. Langtry swore positively that there was not a word of truth in the story, but that on the contrary, he is living happily with his wife. This being true, it would be hard to find any punishment too severe for the publisher of Town Talk. To cloud the good name of a woman for the sake of a newspaper sensation is a crime which should bring down upon the criminal publisher the heaviest blow that the law can inflict.

A Laramie correspondent of the Denver Tribune says there is a strong suspicion in that section that the Mormons have had something to do in inciting the Ute outbreak. The Indians have arms of the best quality, and apparently plenty of ammunition. It has been a matter of surprise how they could be so well provided for; but if there is truth in this suspicion, the matter is explained. "There is nothing improbable in the rumor," says the Call, "for it has been shown from the exposures of the Endowment House that one of the first oaths administered to the novitiate Mormon, is hatred to the United States, and binding him to teach his children that the killing of Joseph and Hiram Smith must be avenged. The Mountain Meadows massacre is still in the minds of the people."

In a local article of last week, making mention of the visit of Capt. Warsaw to this county, there occurred two material errors as to names. Instead of Wartan, as given, it should have been Warsaw, and the name of the steamer lost was the Japan and not the City of Peking. These blunders, in an account correct in all other particulars, were caused by over-confident informers who didn't know what they were talking about. Our reporter is curious to see what San Francisco paper will pick the matter up, and how.

There is an uproar in England concerning the British land system, and radical reforms are threatened. The absolute title to all the land in the Kingdom is vested in the Crown, the present nominal owners merely possessing the right to enjoy or transfer the benefits of the land. This momentous fact empowers Parliament to reconstruct the system at its pleasure, and to any extent that is deemed advisable. A wide and favorable field is thus thrown open to popular agitation.

The Sacramento Savings Bank has begun an action in the Sixth District Court against Hugh J. Glenn to foreclose a mortgage of $200,000. As his wheat shipments for the year will foot up to something over $2,000,000, it is stated that the would-be Governor will be able to pay off the sum.

Mono County taxes for the current year has been fixed at $2 90 on the $100. This, on the assessment of $1,691,776—13 per cent off for delinquent and cost of collection—$1,666,-402 30, will realize $31,661 64, which will liquidate the floating indebtedness and place the county on a cash basis.

THE GREAT GOLD BELTS.

In times past The Independent has incidentally alluded to the idea that following down the great mountain ranges bordering Owens Valley on either side, there exists two distinct gold-bearing "zones," running in a general northeast and southwest direction. We have not now at hand all the data collected for substantiation of this theory, but the following reference to facts may prove interesting:

One the west side, we may begin at the head of the White Mountain or Inyo range, in Mono County, at which point is situated the Indian Queen mine and other properties, now being profitably worked, though mostly for silver. But the beds of the water courses along the range, debouching to the westward into Blind Springs Valley, are prolific in rich "float" gold ore. Although this fact has long claimed the attention of prospectors, and albeit it is one of the oldest known among our mining districts, no satisfactory effort has ever been made to find the ledges which evidently exist. Coming on to the southward on the same side of the mountains about twenty miles we reach a point opposite Bishop Creek, where the Piute and other districts show a number of mines, though mainly valuable for silver so far as known. From this point southeast to Belmont, three miles below Cerro Gordo—a distance of seventy-five miles—there is no place on the range at which a footman could climb the mountains without crossing mineral veins. Among the mineral districts are the Red Rock, Goldopolis and the old Crysopolis, San Carlos, Bend City and Union regions, while further south comes in the present Swansea gold and silver fields. Beginning again at the north and on the opposite or east side of the range, we have Montgomery and Deep Springs, with Sylvania, Lida and Gold Mountain lying a little to the eastward of the direct line. The Waucoba silver district is next in order, after which we come to the Beveridge country. Here the Hughes, Hunter & Co. company has within the past Summer, upon the Borago Bronco and Golden Wreath, made sinkings of 600 feet in the aggregate and developed sufficient ores to keep its steam arrastras in operation for months to come. Further on are other well-known ledges, upon one of which Mr. Peter Taylor is erecting a mill and three others are under bond to San Francisco parties. In the Cerro Gordo lead and silver districts, where many of us prospected years ago, it has taken the miners twelve or more years' observation and experience to learn the fact that gold ledges really exist in that country, notwithstanding the rich nuggets taken from the very dump of the great argentiferous-galena deposits.

In many of the points within the mineral expanse above referred to, are old and new gold mines being now held by owners confident of sale or future profitable working upon their own account. But we have yet to go upon the other side of the great valley of Owens River and refer to what we believe to be prime geological and mineralogical facts. The Sierra Nevada mountains, compared to the Inyo range, are from six to eight thousand feet higher, and are by such students as King, Whitney and others ascribed to a much later upheaval and geological period than the Inyos. The old idea that the Sierras contained no true mineral fissures has been exploded by developments at Bodie, Lake, Kearsarge, Mineral King and intermediate districts. All along at points near the summit for 200 miles silver mines exist. Below, on the eastern foot-hills, runs our second great gold belt. Leaving out of the count the rich new districts to the southward and westward of Mono Lake, where below the newly-discovered Mill Creek mines the rich placers of Monoville were worked nearly twenty years ago, and passing Lake and contiguous districts, there begins at Round Valley and Bishop Creek a wide belt of porphyry and quartzite, walled in by granite and slate. The ledges there are remarkable for their immense size and proportionately low grade in precious metals, though the streams below have furnished profitable ground-sluicing for gold. Some twenty miles further down, at Big Pine, the creek bed carries gold, doubtless brought from the mines above, which are just now re-awakening to life. Next comes the Fish Springs series, which have yelded tens of thousands, and where there is a whole hill offering a splendid field for hydraulicking. From thence down past the Kearsarge to the Alabama Hills the ore-bearing belt is distinctly traceable. The small, rich ledges of the latter district, with adjoining placers, have produced much fine gold and continue to do so. Still further on, but to the southeast—lying to the south and rather between the two belts we have attempted to describe—are situate the Old Coso and Snow's Cañon mines.

Taken together the foregoing array of facts may remind some of us of the grand probabilities of Inyo's future importance as a gold as well as a silver producing county.

AS USUAL.

There is another Indian war now on hands in Colorado. Of course it will end as all our more recent Indian wars have ended, and of course it began as all our more recent Indian wars began.

This time it is the Ute tribe on the White River Reservation who are "the murderous, treacherous fiends!" The trouble with them begun precisely as such troubles have begun ever since the organization of the "best Government the sun ever shown upon." The Utes had a reservation, and were starving and otherwise conducting themselves peaceably enough upon it. A lot of white prospectors made an irruption into it last Spring. The Indians complained of it as a flagrant violation of a solemn treaty by which these lands had been given them for all time. No attention whatever was paid to these complaints. More prospectors came, and these were followed by miners and settlers who came to stay. During all this, the Utes were starving, and on this account quite a number of them followed Chief Ogalalla to Snake river. Meantime the Agent had men and teams at work plowing up certain pasture lands belonging to the Indians. The latter begged and complained, all to no purpose, of course, and then fired on the plowmen. Then the Agent sent for the troops to come and protect him. Major Thornburgh's detachment was sent forward. A scout, Lowry, was sent on ahead to see how matters stood at the Agency. He found the Indians in possession, and resolved upon killing the Agent, but persuaded them to forego this last. A lot of warriors went out to fight the troops, of whom they killed Major Thornburgh, the gallant commandant, and sixteen of his command, including Lowry, the scout, and two or three teamsters. For five days thereafter the remainder of the soldiers, under command of Capt. Payne, had a most desperate struggle to keep themselves from utter annihilation; as it was several more soldiers were killed, as was nearly every horse and mule in the command. Finally, on the 5th instant, Gen. Merritt, with some 500 men, came to their rescue. On reaching the beleagured camp the savages gave him battle, and being posted on an inaccessible bluff of rocks, and well armed with repeating rifles, got the best of it, so long as it suited them to hold that ground. They at last withdrew, leaving the road clear to the Agency, which place Merritt reached on the 11th instant. He found every building but one in ruins, and every soul, including the Agent, N. C. Meeker, massacred.

GEN. CROOK'S VIEWS.

As everybody knows, Gen. George Crook is a terror to redskins everywhere west of the Missouri. He has been after them scores of times, and never without bringing them, or their scalps, figuratively speaking. When his duty as a soldier required him, as it often has, to kill Indians he would go at it with such earnestness and effect as to make it appear he did it with pleasure, and as if he thought that was all such creatures were made for, and as if it was a fate they had justly earned. Yet, notwithstanding all this, not a prominent man in either the military or civil public service manifests as much real common sense feeling and friendship for the untutored savage as does this same Gen. Crook who has sent so many of them to the happy hunting grounds—not a public man among them all more disposed to make proper allowance for the red man's barbarous acts of retallation, because he believes, from what he himself has so often seen, such acts are in almost just retaliation for untold wrongs—that, though so wronged by the superior white race, the superior white race has given them no possible mode of redress except to kill and be killed. He says: "The Indians have no redress against lawless whites, even when Agents are honest and the Interior Department appropriations are sufficient. The whites seize Indian property, and the owner has only a shadowy hope of recovery in the Courts. As affairs now are, the Indian has no encouragement to be thrifty. When his horses and cattle are big enough to be of any service, they are driven off in herds by white renegades. When his wheat, corn and vegetables are almost ready for the market, his reservation is changed. Were we to treat some of our foreign immigrants in such a manner it would not take long to turn them into prowling vagabonds, living by robbery and assassination."

This benign Government would soon put an end to the operations of those white scoundrels who fatten on the Indian's helplessness, as it would also soon render Indian outbreaks a thing of the past, but for one thing: the scoundrels and their backers have votes, and the Indian has none. But for purely political considerations, in which the fear of a possible increase of the army was a leading factor, the Indian Bureau would now be in the hands of the military, political considerations and favoritism would have cut no figure, and both whites and Indians might have hoped for protection against each other, and something like mutual justice.

The Mojada Mines.

The adventurous spirit of the Anglo-Saxon race which has culminated in America, has carried progress and civilization everywhere, though opposed by shot and shell and Indian butcheries, and adverse climate, and difficulties which would have deterred any other race on the earth. To indomitable pluck and perseverance is added education of the most advanced kind, and brains; and now after having explored our own country, a new field opens up in Mexico, which may cause some temporary troubles; but if the discovery is a "paying claim," will most assuredly fall into the hands of Americans, for the majority of the Spanish race are in favor of annexation and the "bounce" which characterizes us on this side of the boundary. The following dispatch explains the situation, but omits this point: that although by treaty, unarmed settlers or new adventurers have the same right which we grant to all foreigners, the Mexican race is not bound by treaties generally, because the Mexicans are not a unit on any question, and therefore what one party ratifies the other party does not feel bound to accept, and treaties in such cases are so much paper and ink wasted. Here then is our difficulty, and the case of the Mojada mines will illustrate what we mean. A Times special from Washington says: "According to information received at the Department of State from Consular officers in Mexico, fears are entertained that the rush of persons from the United States to the Mojada mines in Mexico is likely to be so great as seriously to embarrass the Government. Already the rush has commenced, and the United States Consuls in Mexico report that it is steadily on the increase. Recent press dispatches from Mexico City confirm these statements, and it is reported that certain officers at the Mexican capital, not over friendly with the United States, taking advantage of this opportunity, are endeavoring to excite the jealousy and ill-feeling of the Mexicans against what they term the Yankee invasion. It may be remembered that a few days ago it was announced from Mexico that when Minister Foster went on his recent tour of inspection of the consulates, he was accused of sinister designs, and, in fact, was openly charged with going to explore the Mojada mines. Acting Secretary of State Hunter, speaking to-day with reference to that last mentioned point, said that no official information had yet been received on the subject, but that in due time Mr. Foster would probably be heard from. Regarding it, Mr. Hunter said also that if the people of this country should see fit to migrate to Mexico, whether in search of wealth near the Mojada mines, or for any other peaceful purpose, there is nothing in the existing laws to prevent them. The law prohibits invasion, by an armed body of men, of a country at peace with the United States; but it in no way prohibits citizens of this country from emigrating to another country, even though they be armed for self-defense, if their mission is lawful. Of course, he said, such emigrants would be amenable to the laws of Mexico, and would be punished for any violation thereof. The Mojada mines are situated at a point where four Mexican States meet, namely: Sonora, Chihuahua, Sinaloa and Durango, and owing to disputed jurisdiction by those States, will probably be taken under direct control by the Federal Government. Mr. Hunter says that the mines are not more than 300 miles from Laredo and other border towns in Texas, and he fears that as soon as their resources become better known miners from Western States and Territories will swarm down into Texas and pass over into Mexico. There is no doubt that both Governments feel some alarm at the difficulty likely to arise from the matter.—Carson Appeal.

The Richest Yet.—Henry Ferris, of the Bodie, exhibited a small slab of ore bullion in Porter Holmes' office this morning, that altogether surpasses any and everything of the kind ever before extracted from that most celebrated mine of this district. It was obtained yesterday from the main incline and at the lowest point of exploration in the mine. This crude bar is about ten inches in length by eight in width, and is about two inches in thickness. One side is studded with crystals of clear quartz about half an inch in length; next to this is a dark stratum or streak of what appears to be black sulphurets of silver ore; the balance of the material is soft quartz so weighted with bright gold that it feels in hefting more like a solid mass of metal; the whole surface and sides being almost one connected mass of the precious metal. The marks of the pick are still fresh, as made while separating it from the ore surrounding. It is pronounced by all who are the most familiar with the marvelous richness of Bodie, Standard and Bulwer ores, as the finest thing of the kind ever taken out of the district. But what is more significant, it is from the extreme bottom of the mine, which shows richer and more suggestive with every foot of depth. Now that the work of exploration is again fairly under way, the interest in the famous mine must increase from day to day.—Bodie Standard, Oct. 13.

After several days' waiting to learn the truth, it is feared that the painful and discreditable rumors concerning W. S. Seavey, City Marshal of Santa Barbara, are only too true. These reports are to the effect that he has abandoned wife, child and home to follow in the footsteps of a "strange woman," one Mrs. C. J. Paddock. His deceived, deserted, destitute, heart-broken wife, suddenly overwhelmed with a great grief, is dangerously ill, and yet pleads, in moments of consciousness, to have her recreant husband shielded and restored to her.—Santa Barbara Press.

A Church in Mono.—For the benefit of outside barbarians, we will state that Mono county can boast of a church building. It was erected in Antelope Valley a short time since. Bodie is determined to have one also shortly, if it breaks every faro bank in the town in the attempt.—Bodie Standard.

Points Under the Mining Laws, Etc.

There are certain points of orders and decisions by the Interior Department in regard to mineral lands which it would be unnecessary to allude to, because of their being clearly laid down in the law, were it not for the fact that the cases which frequently come up before the Interior Department demonstrate that the plainest intendment of the law is the most frequently violated or overlooked. All sorts of points have been decided lately, from those which are fatal to the applicant's claim down to those which involve the routine of the office.

One of the most important points to be regarded is that in the General Land Office all claims are acted upon in the order of presentation, and there is not the slightest use for any person, no matter how influential he may be, to ask for special privileges. This rule is under a new order of things, and is promulgated by the Commissioner in reply to the daily demand made to have cases taken up out of their proper order.

During the past five months over 500 patents for mineral lands have been issued—a larger number than ever before during the same period of time. This presumes a larger number of applicants, and in the necessary routine of the office, if a claim does not conform in every particular to the rules of the office and of course to the laws, even the use of ordinary paper fasteners in connecting documents, instead of paste or mucilage, it is not ready to be acted upon, and losing its place goes back to begin over again, perhaps being returned for correction, thus losing considerable time.

Claims are suspended daily in the General Land Office solely because applicants or their agents neglect to conform to the plainest rules of the office. As for instance, they fail to file regulations, to have abstracts of letters certified by the proper officers filed; affidavits as to posting on claim omitted, etc.

Hereafter Registers and Receivers are required to obtain satisfactory non-mineral proof only to date of final proof in all classes of entries, except minerals, upon lands withdrawn or designated as mineral lands. Heretofore the practice has been variable, some officers requiring this non-mineral proof in advance of allowing an entry (other than under the mining laws) of lands withdrawn or designated as mineral.

Discrepancy in description is another and very common reason assigned for suspending a claim after it reaches the General Land Office. In a case lately considered, an adverse claim was rejected because it had been sworn to in San Francisco, when it should have been sworn to in the district where located, the defect being considered fatal.

Another error, also common, is the neglect of the Recorder to attach his certificate and seal to a copy of location notice and affidavit of publication. The sworn facts in the case cannot be made by an attorney, except in the case of a corporation, or one co-owner for another. In all other cases the proof must be made by the claimant. No person who is not in actual possession of land can apply for a patent, and one in possession cannot maintain it except by a hearing to determine the facts, as provided in Sec. 2325 Revised Statutes. An occasion for making this statement arose in the case of the American Flag G. M. Co. vs. The Bennet Lode, Nevada Mining District, Gillespie county, Colorado.

Occasionally cases arise in which parties claim repayment from the Land Office, and in a recent case passed upon by the Acting Commissioner of the General Land Office, where money paid in to the local office was misapplied, it was held that the claimant had no claim upon the Government, and that the only remedy was to institute a civil suit for recovery against the Receiver. "Registers of the U. S. Land Offices are not the authorized agents of the Government for the purpose of receiving money from claimants and receipting therefor, and the Government cannot be held responsible for their actions in this regard, nor has the office any authority to allow a claimant credit for money paid to and misappropriated by Registers." A bad state of affairs for the compelled claimant.

[But this means simply that the Receiver of the Land Office, not the Register, is the only officer to receive and receipt for fees, etc.—Eds. Independent.]

Repayments are not made when obstacles to the the confirmation of title did not exist through the fault of the Government at the date of sale in cash, or any other disposal of public lands. Appeals from rejection of claims decided by the Commissioner must be made within 30 days.

It is evident that nothing but a little care in complying with all the requirements of the law and rules of the Land Office will enable any claim to avoid a postponement, involving trouble, expense and time. The law evidently takes no note of time, regarding delays, expense, etc., in the light of a well-merited punishment for the non-observance of its tenets. — Scientific Press.

Secretary of State Jasper Babcock has got into an ugly scrape. The law appropriates $300 per month for a Deputy Secretary. A Mr. McFadden received the appointment, and acted in the capacity of Deputy for several months, his thrifty principal withholding from his salary 50 per cent. as a commission for the billet. Finally, McFadden was discharged, and he now brings suit to recover the back pay due him. Rich developments may be expected, as this kind of petty business has been going on at the Capital for a long time. Col. Ellis appears for McFadden and Gen. Clarke for Babcock.—Eureka Sentinel.

A serious railroad accident occurred on Friday last on the Michigan Central, not far from Detroit. Two trains collided, killing twenty or thirty passengers, mostly emigrants, and wounding as many more.

Free and Accepted Masons.

The thirtieth annual Communication of the Most Worshipful Grand Lodge of Free and Accepted Masons for the State of California commenced in this city yesterday at 10 o'clock. The following Grand officers were present: M. W. John Mills Browne, of Vallejo, Grand Master; Wm. H. Crane, of Susanville, Senior Grand Warden; Robert Chidley Breder, of Visalia, Junior Grand Warden: V. W. Moses Heller, Grand Treasurer; Alex. G. Abell, Grand Secretary; W. Thos. Guard, Grand Chaplain; John W. Shaffer, Grand Lecturer; Geo. T. Grimes, Assistant Grand Secretary; John Quincy Adams, of Vallejo, Grand Marshal; Samuel Graves, Grand Bible Bearer; H. H. Knapp, of Napa, Grand Standard Bearer; Lemuel T. Crane, of Marysville, Grand Sword Bearer; Orrin W. Hollenbeck, of Auburn, Senior Grand Deacon; Henry Sayre Orme, of Los Angeles, Junior Grand Deacon; Henry M. Isaacs, of Independence, and Clay W. Taylor, of Shasta, Grand Stewards; George Burnham, of Placerville, Grand Pursuivant; Samuel D. Mayer, Grand Organist; James Oglesby, Grand Tyler; Past Grand Masters N. Greene Curtis, William C. Belcher, W. A. Harris, Leonidas E. Pratt, Isaac C. Titus and Geo. C. Perkins; Past Senior Grand Wardens Adolphus Hollub, Theo. G. Cockrill; Past Junior Grand Warden Jacob H. Neff, and representatives of about 150 Lodges.

The forenoon session was principally occupied in calling the roll and opening the Grand Lodge, which was done by the Grand Master, with singing by the Masonic choir, consisting of Messrs. Mayer, Boston, Taylor and Anderson, and prayer by the Grand Chaplain, Thos. Guard.

At 12 o'clock the session was closed, to reassemble at 2 p. m. On reassembling the Grand Master delivered his annual address. It was one of the finest that has ever been listened to, and made particularly so as it was frequently referred to as the last the speaker would ever deliver in that capacity, this being the fourth, and that has been the maximum term of a Grand Master in this State. The address was quite lengthy, and contained many valuable suggestions, and reported an unusual amount of labor performed by the several Grand officers. Reports were received from most of the Inspectors of the State. A large number of questions were therein answered deciding many important points of Masonic law, some pretty sharp criticisms of delinquents were made, and due praise awarded where due. Allusion was made in the most flattering terms to the services of the Grand Lecturer and the Grand Secretary, and an indorsement of the Masonic Monthly, which was recommended to the craft. The closing sentences were delivered with strong evidences of deep feeling at the prospect of so soon severing the ties of official life with those with whom he had for four years been intimately associated. Following the address of the Grand Master were the reports of the Grand Secretary, Grand Lecturer, Grand Trustees, Grand Treasurer and Committee on Foreign Correspondence, all of which were appropriately referred. The Grand Lodge adjourned at 5 o'clock until this morning. Before closing invitations were extended to the members to visit Oriental Lodge, No. 144, and Pacific Lodge, No. 136, both of which were accepted. The session bids fair to be an interesting one, as there are several matters of great importance to come before it. There are about 300 delegates present from Lodges outside of San Francisco.—S. F. Chronicle, Oct. 15.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

ASSESSMENT NOTICE.

NEW COSO MINING COMPANY—LOCATION of Principal Place of Business San Francisco, California. Location of Works, Darwin, Inyo County, California. NOTICE is hereby given that at a meeting of the Board of Directors, held on the Tenth day of October, 1879, an assessment (No. 10) of Ten Cents per share was levied upon the capital stock of the corporation, payable immediately in United States gold coin, to the Secretary, at the office of the Company, Rooms 6 and 7, No. 327 Pine Street, San Francisco, California.

Any stock upon which this assessment shall remain unpaid on the TWENTIETH day of NOVEMBER, 1879, will be delinquent, and advertised for sale at public auction, and unless payment is made before will be sold on TUESDAY, the SIXTEENTH day of DECEMBER, 1879, to pay the delinquent assessment, together with costs of advertising and expenses of sale. MODOCK OFFICIAL LETTER.—The official letter of the week is as follows:

Oct. 13, 1879.

J. W. Pew, Esq., Secretary Modock Con. M. Co.:—DEAR SIR: Results of operations on the 1000-foot level, for the week ending to-day, are as follows:

Drift south, 300 foot, run 18 feet; connection drift between No. 1 and 2 crosscuts, 300 foot, 15 feet; north crosscut, 800 foot, 15 feet; north crosscut, 1000 foot, 14 feet, and under drain, 92 feet. Total length of drift south, 300 foot, 316 feet; connection drift, 300 foot, 15 feet; north crosscut, 300 foot, 52 feet; north crosscut, 1000 foot, 130 feet; under drain, 370 feet. Connection drift at 300 foot continues with ore vein started on and is looking well as we advance. Shall sink on ore near mouth of crosscut No. 2 as soon as the connection is completed. The 800 and 1000 foot drifts are in good ore ground and are promising points. The underdrain is making good headway, giving plenty of air for its present distance. Conditions are favorable for usual rate of progress the coming week and the mine showing well.

Yours, respectfully,
A. C. TIBBETTS, Supt.

BUSINESS.—During the coming two weeks all patrons indebted to THE INDEPENDENT office will be presented with their accounts—personally so far as practicable, and by mail or through our regular agents otherwise. It is to be hoped that all will see the propriety and necessity of prompt payment, upon which the concern is compelled to rely.

AN IMPORTANT MINE.—The "Pinch-out," a gold mine belonging to Messrs. Kelley, Beyer and Miner, is assuming an important place among the promising and paying mines of Inyo. It is situated on the side of the Sierras, about five miles northwest from Big Pine, and one mile above the placers from which so much coarse gold was taken some years ago. It is the old "Black Warrior," which McMurry opened and run arrastras upon in '73-74. It passed into the hands of the present owners—who are thoroughly experienced in the business of mining and reducing ores—in June last, or at least they then began work upon it. The ledge is full three feet in width, bearing honeycombed and decomposed quartz which, assayed by Curt Ober at Mammoth, carries $480 in gold to the ton. The country around is seamed with large and small ledges, but so far none have been sufficiently opened to show their worth. The mine in question has been worked through an incline 45 feet in depth, from the bottom of which drifts extend 80 feet along the ledge. The owners intend tunneling to to get 100 feet deeper. An arrastra has been kept in steady operation for some time, which rude process, however, saves but little of the gold. Shipments are made from Bishop Creek, hence we are uninformed as to the amount of bullion the mine has produced.

MODOCK AFFAIRS.—Thursday evening last Mr. Wm. Ross, of Lookout, was in town and left on the following morning, accompanied by Deputy Sheriff Jas. W. Smith. Reports concerning the matter, which relates to the Modock Mining Company of Lookout, are conflicting, and are in the main discredited by parties who are best informed upon the standing of the company and the present appearance of the mine. As stated, however, the Secretary of the Company recently visited the mine and upon his return to San Francisco reported that there was "nothing in it." Subsequently the Superintendent's checks came back protested, whereupon some employés levied upon the personal property and Mr. Ross came up for writs of attachment against the mine. We can hardly believe, in the nature of the case, that the trouble is anything more than temporary.

THE CAUSE.—In a note of the 15th instant Mrs. M. A. Barry, of the Lone Pine Hotel, writes as follows concerning an item given last week: "I see in your paper of the 11th instant a notice of the death of Mrs. Jameson, 'at Mrs. Barry's lodging house,' and that her death was caused by dissipation and indulgence in opium. Your information was incorrect; according to the evidence at the inquest her death was caused by appoplexy. That was the opinion of two attending physicians, Drs. Colleau and Gelcich. Also, Mrs. Barry's lodging house is open to the public as a hotel, and has been for over a year." The testimony taken at the inquest has not been filed with the County Clerk, and our statement was based upon the best information obtainable at the time.

A Church Donation.

BISHOP CREEK, Oct. 15.

MESSRS. EDITORS: At a meeting of the Bishop Creek Baptist Church in council, Oct. 4, a vote of thanks was tendered J. H. Stoutenborough and other merchants and business men of our town for the kind act of furnishing and applying two coats of white paint to our church building. Believing such acts of kindness as the above worthy at least of a passing notice, I herewith submit this for publication; and in their hour of trial that their reward may emanate from that "Great I Am, that I Am," is the prayer of your informant. A. CLARK.

A CELESTIAL TROUBLE.—The chronic quietness of our burg was not in the least disturbed or thrown out of balance by a little Celestial Conkling-Sprague domestic difficulty which began and we believe ended late last week; but, unlike the trouble between William and the curly haired Roscoe, there was no shotgun figuring in this affair, consequently nothing to excite phlegmatic people not specially interested. It was somehow this way: Charley, Thompson's cook, bought a second hand wife from another Chinaman, whose name, for want of a better, we will suppose to be Roscoe; the market for this class of goods being somewhat flattened out, the price agreed upon was only $300, which sum was duly deposited by Charley with Wells-Fargo, subject to Roscoe's order, presumptively on delivery of the goods. Now comes a tale of perfidy: Roscoe went that same evening, drew the $300 and immediately thereafter, drew out for Lone Pine, Charley's purchase being neatly tucked away in the wagon. The next morning Charley sought redress through the law, and going to Justice Gardner and Sheriff Moore prayed them in unintelligible China-English to have the perfidious Roscoe arrested and brought to grief forthwith. Neither of the learned officials knew exactly what sort of a writ would be applicable in such a case—whether for unlawful entry and detainer, grand larceny or common brigamy—and not wishing to be reversed by the Supreme Court, they wisely told Charley he was to be pitied, and had better go after Roscoe himself—either with or without a shotgun and a newspaper reporter as appeared to him the safest. Accordingly Charley boarded a vehicle, sailed out to Lone Pine and there found Roscoe and read the law of decency to him with such a salutary effect that he (Roscoe) agreed to keep the $300 and way-bill the woman to Charley by stage that very night, which he did, and Charley is now as happy as the new Constitution will possibly allow.

THE KEARSARGE.—Supt. Gray and President A. J. Marcus, of the Kearsarge Company, left for San Francisco on Thurday last, after a stay of some two weeks at the mine. Mr. Rule will remain as director of mining operations for several weeks to come, while Mr. Frank attends to assaying and surveying with Mr. Seeley. Work has been discontinued on the deep winze, work enough having been done in and by lateral drifts from it to demonstrate the fact that it contains ore sufficient, averaging about $90 per ton, to supply the 10-stamp mill for at least a year's steady run. In the north crosscut from the long tunnel a ledge has been struck which is believed to be the Cliff mine itself; if so, it virtually prospects that lode nearly 800 feet below the old workings. This crosscut is being driven actively forward, and advices of yesterday state that a most promising body of ore is being exposed there also, this ore running higher in silver than any yet found in this mine. A re-survey is being made of the ground to determine by that means if possible whether it is the Cliff ledge or not. In any case, however, work below will go on all the same. It would require a column to give full details of recent operations and results; these details we shall defer for the present, and merely add here that the old Kearsarge now rates as a grand mine indeed, and that the mill is to be put in perfect repair to start up permanently on the 1st of March.

THE YIELD OF GRAIN.—Mr. J. R. Westerville, running the principal threshing machine in the valley, makes up the following careful estimate of the yield of small grain throughout the valley for the past season: Round Valley, 750 tons, of which there were 300 tons of wheat, 50 of barley and 40 of oats. Bishop Cre k, 600 tons; wheat, 200 tons; oats, 100 tons, and barley 300 tons. Big Pine, 150 tons; wheat 30 and barley 120 tons. Fish Springs, 120 tons; wheat 50 and barley 70 tons. Independence and George's Creek, 175 tons; barley, 120 tons and wheat 30. The entire yield foots up to 1,845 tons.

A CALL.—We were yesterday recipients of a call from Geo. M. Pinney, Esq., a gentleman quite as well noted, perhaps, as any man on the coast. He goes through the country looking after mining interests, leaving on the afternoon stage for Indian District. There he expects to meet our Representative-elect Joe Wasson, and after a short visit to Bodie, will return with the latter gentleman back through this county. Mr. Pinney was pleased to find among our citizens several old-time acquaintances of Montana, Nevada and California.

WHAT?—"Joe," of the Bakersfield Courier-Californian, says the catfish planted a few years ago in the waters of Kern County are overrunning the irrigating ditches—visiting the ranches, in fact, after watermelons. By the way, what has become of our Independence subscription towards getting Owens River stocked? Wake up, somebody.

THE GO-BY. — The traveling show companies which have been working down from Bodie and Aurora so far south as Bishop Creek, have given our towns of Independence and Lone Pine the go-by, or rather haven't come this far—for which let us be thankful.

LETTER FROM BENTON.

BENTON, Cal., Oct. 15.

MESSRS. EDITORS: Since my last letter to your valuable sheet, there has been some lively doings in our little town. On Saturday night last there was a shooting scrape in Kremkow's saloon. The difficulty was between Jim Powning and Crosby. It appears that Powning had an old grudge against Crosby, on account of a previous difficulty. Powning, who was under the influence of liquor at the time, entered the above named saloon, where a number were enjoying their lager, and opened fire. The consequence was an innocent party by the name of Davis was shot in the fleshy part of the thigh. Powning also received a bullet in the thigh, causing a very serious wound, the ball not having as yet been extracted, but whether he shot himself or was shot, is a mystery, as there were between fourteen and sixteen shots fired during the affray.

Another shooting scrape occurred here last night, wherein an Indian and a white man known as "Old Kaintuck," were the parties interested. It is said this "Kaintuck" has been furnishing the Indians whisky for the last four or five months, and some time ago was hauled over the coals for it, but somehow got off. What action will be taken in the present case I do not know, but in all probability he will get free, because no one saw him fire the shot.

It is time something was done to stop this indiscriminate shooting and unchecked sale of liquor to Indians. It is felt here that justice is not being done, and it is feared, if this state of affairs continues much longer, more stringent measures will have to be inaugurated. The shooting of this Indian may cost many prospectors their lives—for, as is well known, this is an Indian's only mode of warfare.

The Comanche mill has been turning out some very fine bullion of late, averaging 780 fine, which is considered in this district and from the nature of the rebellious ores contained to be the ne plus ultra of milling. Mr. Burnham, the worthy superintendent of the mill, has also rigged up a new and neat apparatus for handling the quicksilver and amalgam automatically, thereby saving a great deal of labor to the pan man, and also dispensing with the services of an assistant on each shift, reducing the expenses of two men's labor, which, in a milling sense, is worthy of note.

Mr. Welsh, superintendent of the Tower mine, is jubilant over the still increasing body of ore lately discovered in the above named mine.

Mr. Clausen, of San Francisco, is still amongst us, taking items of the mode of working both the mill and mines of this section previous to going below to give a more elaborate account of our previously neglected but truly rich section of country.

Capt. Prescott is also still here looking after his several interests which are improving splendidly.

The only thing we lack here is capital to open the virgin breast of Mother Earth, who will so lavishly repay by yielding up her rich treasures of precious metals to the hardy and venturous explorer.

We have had quite a snow storm, which covered the ground with its beauteous mantle, but which is again disappearing under the genial influence of old Sol. VERITAS.

COURT.—May it please his honor, Judge Reed, a regular and final term of the District Court will begin here two weeks from next Monday, to wit: on the 3d day of November. It will be quite a novelty, such a Court will, to the benighted litigants of this region.

TOO GOOD.—The Independence party of excursionists to San Francisco are booked at the Palace Hotel. Whew!

AT Grayson, Ky., on the 12th instant, a family shooting affray took place. The parties to the vendetta were the Underwoods and Holbrooks. The ball opened by the shooting of Jesse Underwood by one of the Holbrook party, who, with others of the gang, surrounded the deceased's house, threatening to kill anybody who would dare to bury his body or rescue George, who is badly wounded, and with the women and children is all that remains of the unfortunate family. George sent word to the County Judge, praying for help and protection. The Governor has been appealed to, but has not responded. This is the fifth murder within the last three weeks in Carter county, four of the murdered men being Underwoods and one a member of the Holbrook tribe.

THE Memphis correspondent of the New York Sun says the yellow fever is now confined principally to colored people and those whites who have returned to the city. Hundreds of houses are dangerously infected, persons having been sick and died in them. This year the Board of Health system of disinfecting with sulphur has no effect in stopping the spread of the disease. The best physicians in Memphis look upon disinfection, fumigation and quarantine as nonsense. The fever breaks out among the best and worst of the population, regardless of cleanliness and filth.

THE New York Times says that at a Republican meeting held in Boston a few days ago, Senator Chandler spoke very heartily in support of a campaign on national issues as against State matters at this critical period. In referring to Gen. Grant, before closing his remarks, he said: "I tell you, gentlemen, in confidence, that we are going to nominate him next year for President, and elect him, too."

POLITICIANS are now satisfied that the Ohio election has "fatally killed" that wretched poor little Rag Baby. The remains will lie in state at the residence of Hon. Thomas Ewing, the begrieved parient, until the woe-stricken sponsor, Senator Thurman, gets well enough to attend to them. Doctor Jim Blaine of Maine was called in during the later stages, and much is due his eminent professional abilities for the solemncholly result.

THE New York Times says the 'longshoremen employed by most of the European steamship companies have asked their wages to be increased from twenty-five to thirty cents per hour, and this request has been granted. The readiness with which the steamship managers grant the increase, the Times thinks, is proof of returning prosperity.

THE French Embassador at Berlin has been specially requested by the French Minister of Foreign Affairs to tender his heartfelt thanks to Bismarck for the kind and friendly way in which he spoke of France during his late v sit to Vienna.

THE total returns of the State election are now in the office of the Secretary of State. The official footing gives Perkins, 67,695; Glenn, 48,695; White, 44,844; Clark, 119. It will be seen from these figures that Clark was not elected.

THE Masonic Grand Lodge is in session at the Temple in San Francisco. County Treasurer Isaacs' name appears among the list of officers as Senior Grand Steward. Judge A. R. Conklin, as W. M. of Inyo Lodge, No. 221, of this place, also represents Inyo.

THE Webfeet people are making themselves sick trying to make Gen. Grant think they know how to do honor to a great man.

LAST Saturday rain fell in considerable amount pretty much all over the State from the Sierras westward.

THE LEAD MARKET.—The market for Common Domestic has ruled active and strong and a large business has been consummated, principally during the early part of the week at hardening prices. Sales which aggregate about 3,000 were made at 4@4⅛ cents, the entire amount having been taken by consumers, and holders then advanced their price to 4¼, at which a few hundred tons were taken. The stock is now firmly held at 4¼ cents, but the demand has naturally slackened as consumers have supplied their wants. Refined is quoted at 4-35 cents. The present strong position of the market is shown by the fact that since April last the stock has been reduced 8,000 tons in addition to the absorbtion of the supply sent to this market. The available stock on the spot is not only materially reduced by these purchases, but is concentrated in the hands of a few and strongly held, the tendency being for a still further advance in prices.—New York Mining Record.

THE friends of Gen. Hancock propose to establish a Hancock headquarters at Washington when Congress convenes, and to begin the work of actively pushing him for the Democratic nomination for the Presidency. They expect much assistance from the South and parts of the West.

FOR months this year there has not been a drop of water in the Rio Grande for a distance of about 500 miles. There is great suffering of the people in that district in consequence.

IT may be that a Nevada girl of 14 held a full grown deer by the hind legs until her father could run half a mile for his ax, but we prefer to believe that she held a stick of candy by one leg.

THE Coroner's Jury, in the Tioga mine case at Bodie, rendered a verdict laying the blame on the engineer in charge at the time, and exonerating the management.

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 18.....1879

SENATOR JOHN P. JONES.—The Herald says that Los Angeles is to have a visit from Senator J. P. Jones, while the Express says he is going with the Grant party to Oregon. We see no reason why the Senator may not make both trips. At any rate, we hope he may come to Los Angeles. We should like to see this public spirited man brought face to face with a people upon whom he tried to force a benefit, and they were foolish enough to reject it. It might revive more keenly a train of reflection that will yet do our people some good. We should like to be a "mind-reader" and stand by the side of the Senator, at Santa Monica, and follow his thoughts as he looks out upon the ocean and takes in the situation. He would see the slender remains of the splendid structure which his enterprise had thrown into the ocean for the accommodation of the public; and perhaps he would feel a just contempt for the corporate greed and meanness that caused its destruction. Then he would range his eyes along the shore line and witness preparations on the part of a few public-spirited men to duplicate the structure that the Los Angeles people so foolishly allowed to pass from their reach. And then, if he is a philosopher, we imagine him saying: "Well, it's a lesson dearly bought; but the people seem to have learned it. There is still hope; there is life and pluck in the old land yet."—Downey City Outlook.

THE San Francisco Bulletin thinks the depression on this coast has been rather mental than real, with the single exception—the stock market. We have been in the dumps morally rather than materially. We don't know that we fully understand that paper, but it is quite sure there has been no want or suffering on account of the depressed times. People have made less and have had to economise; but there had been abundance of food, and the climate is so friendly that shelter and clothes may be exceedingly scant, without discomfort, if the people are driven to it.—Downey City Outlook.

ON good authority it is stated that the Virginia and Truckee Railroad Company will shortly meet and decide the question as to whether they shall or shall not construct a branch road from the Mound House, through Carson and Mason valleys, to Aurora and Bodie. Why the matter has been put off this long we are at a loss to know. The route is feasible and but little grading would have to be done. The amount of freight that has to be transported by wagons from Carson and other points along the railroad to the mining towns named is enormous.—Sutro Independent.

A COLORED man was once asked why he did not get married. "Why, you see, sah," said he, "I got an ole mudder, an' I hab to do for her, ye see, sah, an' if I don't buy her shoes an' stockings, an' bread' an' butter she wouldn't get none. Now, if I was to get married, I would hab to buy dem tings for my wife, an' that would be takin' de shoes an' stockings an' bread an' butter right out of my mudder's mouf."

GEN. GRANT and party sailed for Portland on Thursday in a steamer placed at their disposal by the Alaska Fur Company. The party consisted of Gen. and Mrs. U. S. Grant, Jr., John Russell Young, Mr. Dent and daughter, Gen. J. Miller, wife and daughter, Senator Sharon and daughter, Miss Jennie Flood and brother, Mrs. Gen. McDowell and danghter, ex-Gov. Low, Senator Jones and a few others.

THIS has been a very diversified year for circus clowns. One has been killed, four overhauled by deserted wives, two have fallen heirs to heaps of money, and one left on the bottom of the Ohio river. So says an exchange, which probably said it to make "filling," not for an ascertained truth.

IT rather disturbs the unities for a lover to hear his girl talk about ethe-realized friendship, the gossamer wings of love, the thin and permeable texture of affection, and that sort of thing, and then see her sit down and eat a big piece of roast beef, four biscuits and an apple pie.

THE Horn Silver mine, in Frisco District, Southern Utah, was sold recently to Eastern purchasers for $5,000,000. The par value of the stock is $10,000,000. The net earnings of the mine are reported to be over $4,000 per day.

The Compilation of the Official Records of the Late War.

The following account of an interview with Gen. Marcus Wright, who is engaged in collecting the records of the Confederate side, taken from the Washington Star, gives some interesting details of the manner in which missing records are being recovered. The Union and Confederate records are to be published separately, and a complete official history of both armies of the civil war is to be supplied:

A reporter of the Star this morning dropped into the large building on G street, corner of 20th, where the official records of the late war are being compiled. Gen. Marcus J. Wright, who is engaged in collecting the records of the Confederate side, was found in his office, and gave the reporter an account of the work and its progress. Said he: "Very many of the most valuable official papers of the Confederate army were lost or destroyed in the general break up and surrender. Our purpose is to get copies of all such papers, and thus make complete the official record of that side. Such of the papers as were preserved were obtained by the Government, and I was appointed to procure duplicates of those that were lost."

Star—"But how do you get these duplicates?"

Gen. Wright—"From the officers of the Confederate army. They preserved copies of every report, every official paper they sent to Richmond, and many of them kept copies of every official letter they wrote."

Star—"Do the ex-Confederate officers give their files to you?"

Gen. W.—"Oh, yes. As a general rule they give them to us, but where any of them have papers they wish to keep they allow us to make copies of them, and we return the originals. Gen. Joseph E. Johnston turned over to us his entire records, containing all his reports, official letters, and reports of his subordinate officers. I have also Gen. Pemberton's papers, and that gives us a complete record of the Vicksburg campaign as conducted on the Confederate side."

Star—"Did they turn over their papers entirely to the Government?"

Gen. W.—"Yes. We preserve the papers, and they are accessible at all times to those gentlemen if they should wish to see them or make copies. They give them to us very willingly, as it relieves them of the trouble and care of keeping them, and does not deprive them of any use they would want to make of the papers. We take every precaution against loss by fire or otherwise of the papers we get. We have printed copies of each one made, and eighteen or twenty of these copies are distributed around among as many different Department and other Government buildings, so that in case of fire we are certain not to have them all destroyed."

Star.—"General, these records are to be published by the Government, are they not?"

Gen. W.—"Yes, sir; that is what we are collecting them for. The purpose of the Government is to make up a complete official history of both armies of the civil war. The record of the year 1861, of both sides, will be ready for publication about the time Congress meets. The volumes will be printed by the Government as any other public documents, and the usual number distributed among the Departments and members of Congress. Then the law provides that the work shall be stereotyped and sold to the public at the cost price of the printing, so that any one can obtain the work at comparatively little cost."

Star.—"Will the records of the two armies be printed separately?"

Gen. W.—"Yes; separately, and in consecutive volumes."

Star.—"Will the records be edited?"

Gen. W.—"No, not at all, simply compiled so as to present, in the order in which they were issued, the official reports, letters, orders, etc., of the war. The compilation is in the charge of Col. R. N. Scott, of the 3d artillery, U. S. A., and a man better qualified for the work could not have been selected."

Star.—"How long will it take to finish up the entire work?"

Gen. W.—"It will require several years more to complete the work for all the years of the war."

Star. —"Haven't you recently returned from a collecting tour in the South?"

Gen. W.—"Yes, sir; I got back a few days ago, and I obtained a number of very valuable papers. I first went to see Gen. Joseph Wheeler, in Alabama, who commanded the cavalry of Bragg's army. He gave me his entire file of papers and reports, covering the time from his entry into the Confederate service until the close of the war. I next visited the Indian territory, and got a set of papers covering the military operations of the Confederates in what was called the district of the Indian Territory. The district was commanded by Gens. Albert Pike, Maxey, (now United States Senator from Texas) and D. H. Cooper. These records are quite important. I also got all the official papers of Lieut. Gen. R. S. Ewell, since dead, who held an important command in the Confederate army. I next visited Gen. E. Kirby Smith, who commanded the Trans-Mississippi Department, and got his records. During the war his Department was, for a long time, pretty effectually cut off from Richmond, and the records there were incomplete as to his military operations. I found his files very complete, though. Col. Richmond, of McMinville, Tenn., promised to send me the official files of Gen. Leonidas Polk (Bishop Polk), who was killed during the war. These papers will cover some very important military movements. I have many of the papers of Gen. Beauregard, and he has promised me the balance as soon as his book, now in press in New York, shall have been printed. He held, you know, very high commands, and his files will cover some of the most important operations of the war. This Winter I shall make a trip to New Orleans, Memphis and Mobile, where I will get papers of interest from ex-Confederate officers residing at those points. The printing of these records is equivalent to the publication of an official history of the war. The reports of battles from officers on both sides and other official documents will thus be preserved, and they will speak truthfully and impartially of the great events of the war. I had undertaken, on my own account, the collection of Confederate records, with the view of publishing them, when Congress passed the act authorizing them to be compiled. I had procured very many valuable papers, and I immediately turned them over to the Adj. Gen. of the army. Subsequently it was decided to appoint an ex-Confederate officer to collect the papers of that side, and the position was tendered to me."

THE MAN FROM INYO.

He is Arrested for Forgery and the Larceny of a Coat.

A man giving the name of Daniel H. Hall was arrested by Detectives Jones and Coffee, upon a charge of forgery and another of petit larceny.

A week ago last Tuesday Hall called at the office of Christy & Wise, dealers in wool, and presented a letter, of which the following is a copy:

"BISHOP CREEK, Inyo Co., Cal., Oct. 3, 1879.

Messrs. Christy & Wise: The bearer, Daniel D. Hall, is a man of means, having 3,700 head of sheep, all paid for, and a fine range. I have had dealings with him over four years, and can recommend him as strictly honest. He has all his wool stored here, probably 16,000 or 18,000 pounds. As he is going to your city I told him to call on you. Yours, respectfully,

J. H. STOUTENBOROUGH,
Merchant and Postmaster."

After Mr. Wise had perused this letter, Hall suggested that he wished to dispose of his wool, and would like an advance of $500. Mr. Wise, wishing time to make inquiries concerning Hall, who was a perfect stranger, asked him to call on the following day. He promised to do so, and left. The attention of the detectives named was called to the letter, and on the following day, one of them visited the office of the firm. Agreeable to promise, Hall put in an appearance, and attempted to force the sale. The firm desiring more time, in order to obtain an answer to a letter sent to Mr. Stoutenborough in relation to Hall, requested him to call again, but he failed to do so. It has been ascertained that the letter was a forgery.

It has also been ascertained that recently Hall called in the store of Heuston & Hastings, where he selected an overcoat. Before purchasing it, however, he said he wished to take it to his room and show it to his wife, and if she approved of his choice he would buy it. A clerk was accordingly sent with the customer, who took him to a room in the Alhambra House, on Bush street. No lady, however, was visible, and the confidence man, remarking carelessly that his wife must be in the adjoining room, asked the clerk to sit down while he went to bring her in. The trusting clerk accepted the proffered chair, but sat a long while without seeing either customer or wife. Then it dawned upon him that he had been victimized by an old device.—S. F. Call.

THE September expenses of the Government aggregated $18,914,040 10.

Lake District Items.

There is considerable excitement in Mammoth in relation to a recent find in what is called the South End mines, situated near Pine City. A bag full of specimens knocked from the croppings of some of the ledges literally sparkle with free gold, some of the specimens assaying over $4,000 to the ton. One of these ledges is four feet across, all the rock for that width showing free gold. This is called the Black Mountain, and is claimed by Messrs. Caza, Dolan & Love. Except on the surface, none of the ledges have been prospected at all.

John Reardon, working in the Mammoth, had his leg so badly crushed by a mass ore, falling just after a blast, as to render amputation necessary.

Frank Hutchison has purchased at McFarland's mill in Lake 60,000 feet of fencing, with which he proposes to enclose a part of his big farm at Bishop Creek. The same gentleman proposes to keep Mammoth people supplied all Winter with fresh beef by now killing and hanging up 50,000 or 60,000 pounds in Hutchison's Hall.

A week ago last Sunday snow commenced to fall in Mammoth, and continued for two days, since which the weather has been extremely cold.

From the Herald, of the same date, we take the following:

Gabe Hoskins [well known throughout this portion of Inyo county as an excellent musician.] was married to Miss Alice O. McGinley at Aurora. The lady is the youngest of the "McGinley Sisters," or McGinley Troupe.

We hear that there is a small number of Indians camped at Point of Rocks, just beyond Trainor's ranch, sick and in a starving condition. Evidently these poor wretches have been deserted by their savage companions and left to perish, for such is "Injun" usage, or cussedness, for Lo cares but little for the aged and infirm.

The Mammoth Company are preparing to make a shipment of bullion, the which is looked for with great interest.

We are indebted to W. S. Lillien, U. S. Deputy Surveyor, for a map of Lake District. " Judging from the manner in which some of the mines overlap each other Lake District will be a rich harvest for the lawyers when the owners of the various claims undertake to untangle them. Some of the ledges present the appearance of Mark Twain's farm in Nevada—the under dog in the fight. Take the Bogart mine, for instance. Along came Grand Cash and set square on him; next, the Clarendon crawled on top, and the Bogart was in the third story underneath; Excelsior was then piled on top, and Bogart was fast disappearing from view, when some wretches came along and located Mountain Prize over all, forcing Bogart down to the fifth story below. One would think this was piling it on rather steep, but the perseverance and untiring cheek of the modern prospector knows no such word as fail, for some classic cuss came along and bolstered up Octavia on top of the heap, leaving only a small portion of the southeast corner of Bogart visible on the map. The only chance we can see to get at the Bogart mine is to drift from the Sutro Tunnel, and strike her where she is red hot.

Work will be commenced to morrow on the building for the Monte Christo and Headlight air compressor and machinery.

PLAIN TALK.—Postmaster General Key did some plain talking to the Tennesseeans during the centennial celebration at Jonesborough. None but a Southerner and a fellow-citizen would have been allowed to express himself so freely; but he was listened to without interruption or any attempt at resentment. The following extract will give an idea of the general tenor of his remarks. He said:

Repudiate this debt, and though prosperity may be all around us it will not be in our midst. Capital and enterprise will leave us never to return. Healthful immigration will avoid us, and want of confidence, which like the curse of Heaven, "blights all it breathes upon," will fetter enterprise and paralyze our energies.

We are no longer proud Tennesseeans. We have become beggars, and to-day our people are in the marts of commerce reaching out their hands to the bondholder whom so many of us denounce and refuse to pay, for charities to feed our poor and minister to our sick, and Wall street is pouring out of its abused coffers thousands for the purpose. We greedily accept of its benevolence but refuse to pay it one dollar that we owe. Ours has become a beggar State, and to-day she hangs her head in disgrace and shame. My countrymen, let us on this centennial day swear, by the graves of our fathers, by the sacred altars they erected, that we will never relax our best efforts until we strike from her limbs the chains which bind her, and bid her stand forth in her former glory, redeemed from the curse which now rests upon her.—S. F. Call.
